President McKinley has appointed a Bimetallic Commission of three to secure international agreement for the restoration of free silver coinage. What will the gold democrats who buried their long cherished free trade principles in order to elect McKinley do next? A gold standard they wanted and a gold standard they would have! Now their President, in accordance with his well known former views on the subject, endeavors to keep up at least a semblance of redeeming party pledges, by appointing a bimetallic commission and not giving the party whose platform most strongly favored the gold standard, the National Democrats, a member on the committee.

The republicans promised to do what they could to bring about an international agreement to have silver again coined free, the same as it used to be and same as gold is now. Then they are in duty bound to make the attempt. In making the attempt they show to the world that they believe it would be better for us to have silver restored to its old place as money, in our nation. Thus do they strike a fearful blow at those who claim that all our property of every kind including our silver must be put in the balance against the comparatively small pile of gold that haa been minted into money.

It is generally conceded that unless silver is again coined free in this country before another election that the land slide from the republican party will be even greater than that indicated by the recent city elections ir Chicago, and other places, including Canton, Ohio. That even the boss manager of the elephant will not be able to retain the seat he recently succeeded to by the promotion of John Sherman to the Secretaryship of the U. S. Treasury.

Messrs Walcott, of Col., Vice-President Stevenson, of Illinois and Paine, a Boston banker constitute the commission. No half way measure will save the G. O. P. If they do anything they must complete the job; they must fully restore silver to its normal condition as money.

Needs Attention.

Several times we have called attention to the fact that the examination papers of our High School scholars came back from the State Board, marked down, in some cases so much as to make it appear that someone is greatly at fault in marking. We are interested in having a school as good as the state affords, and do not like to have pupils discouraged in any such a way. Neither do we wish to have it appear that our teachers don't know how to mark papers, unless it is a fact, and if it is, the sooner they are got rid of, or learn how, the better for the school.

The Board of Education, at least the President, claims to be powerless in the matter, unless we keep copies of the examination papers with the markings, with which to confront the State markers, and as this has not been done it will have to go till next time.

The complaints are not confined to our school, nor to our village, as evidenced by the Sherburne County Star-News, under the head of School Notes, publishing the following on the same subject: "Professor Cranston thinks this matter should be enquired into."

On Saturday Prof. L. H. Pryor, of the Montrose Schools, expressed the same opinion. He says his papers on Civics, in which study he prides himself, 8 in number, were scaled down about 50 per cent, 4 of them failing to pass, contrary to his and his scholars expectations. His Grammar depreciated in a terrible manner, also, 2 papers he had marked 80 and 85 coming back 55 and 60 respectfully, neither getting a certificate.

Now this may be all very fine for the state authorities to show how high they expect the country people to climb in learning, but there should be some more harmonious mode of arriving at proper markings, or it may be, as has been charged, that the marking that should be done by the State Board, for lack of time is turned over to pupils in the University who do not perform the duty properly.

Last Tuesday we sent copies of the GAZETTE with a marked item on the subject to Superintendant of High Schools, George B Aiton, and to Pres. Cyrus Northrop, whom we understood were interested in the matter. As we have heard nothing from them we conclude that either they consider the subject beneath their notice or are guilty of the charges of being too busy to attend to marking papers. However we expect the marking of High School papers will receive attention in the near future. It is too important a matter to let go, and immediate attention is demanded all along the line. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

FROM the immense profits in raising sugar beets, as figured out by the Senators, Keller, J. Adam Bede clique, it certainly should be among the last of the industries to ask for a bonus for their business. It smacks of a gold basis, too much so.

A HEALTHY growth of moral sentiment in this country is shown by the fact that the candidates in the last political campaign for president, on both sides, were exceptionally clean, Christian men, and that the defeated candidate for Governor in Minnesota felt called upon to remove from his reputation even the suspicion that he might not believe in Christianity. Let the good work go on.

Cadets to West Point.

A notice has been issued of a competitive examination for a candidate to West Point. The examination to be held at St. Cloud, between 9:30 a. m. and 5:30 p. m. at the office of S. S. Parr, Superintendent of City Schools, in the High School Building.

Two young men passing the best examinations will be chosen as cadet and alternate. If the first fails to pass at West Point the alternate gets the place.

Age of admission for the competitive examination from 16 to 21 years. Actual and permanent residence of the Sixth Congressional district. Candidates must be examined in reading, writing, orthogrophy, arithemetic, elements of English grammar, discriptive geography, particulary of our own country and history of the United States, and must be five feet or more high, free from infectious or immoral disorder. Write the Secretary of War at Washington for further information. Wright County boys now is your chance, a good opportunity to get an education.

Hon. Page Morris writes us that he has determined to select the two who pass the best competitive examination, mental and physical for these positions.

Among our Exchanges.

Valley Herald: Senator Iltis voted in favor of the Knatvold "local option bill". When will wonders cease?

If the new Judicial district is to be made who will be judge from Wright County? Judge J. T. Alley probably.

We are pleased to learn from yesterday's Waverly Tribune that its former editor R. D. Topping, who has been quite sick is much better.

New York World: When Mr. Gage's "samples" are used as a basis for levying retroactive duties, what will be the advalorem estimate of antique eggs or lemons seized in April or May for purposes of taxation in August or September?

Cokato Enterprise: The much talked of Fourth Hospitial site at Anoka is most of it under water and the balance of it is so sandy the water leaked through. Now is a good time for the commission to look at and compare the two sites.

Farm Stock and Home: Bad times come in '93 because "confidence was destroyed", it required no legislation to cause them; but to make good times require restored confidence and legislation, and there is yet no sign that the combination is a booming success.

Brainerd Journal: Some of the gold standard newspapers say that the free coinage men are telling with much glee about the hard times that have come since election. They are mistaken. There is no glee about it. In fact we never before saw glee so scarce.

Duluth Herald: Bourke Cochran is credited with saying recently: "Those who are remembered for a year are not many; and the man who is remembered for 3000 years does not exist." A little bull like that may be forgiven in Bourke; he is a thoroughbred Irishman himself.

The Wright Co. Times reports that $2,500 has been raised by citizens of Maple Lake for a flower mill. This is a mistake. We may have a mill in the near future, but no bonus has been offered yet. This is not a bonus town thank you, unless the other fellow pays the bonus for coming here.—Maple Lake Messenger.

Litchfield News-Ledger: Frank W. Palmer, of Illinois, gets the appointment of public printer. L. P. Hunt of Mankato, was after it, but he was from Minnesota and in consequence he was not recognized. In unity there is strength, but Minnesota is not built that way, and she takes a back seat with the administration.

The new tariff bill adds one dollar to the value of every sheep in the country.—St. Peter Tribune.

Who puts this added dollar into the value of each sheep? Does the foreigner pay the tax", or does it come out of the American buyer of woolen goods? If the consumer pays it, it is only taking the money out of one man's pocket and giving it to another. The people as a whole will be no better off. If the foreigner pays it why stop at a dollar? Double the tariff and take two dollars instead of one. Or make it five dollars while you are about it.—Litchfield Independendent.

Advertise in the Gazette.

Waseca Herald: What a farce! The gold-bug McKinlerites are shouting themselves red in the face in favor of the Dingley bill, and the gold-bug Cleveland democrats are cursing it. But the farce is too apparent—the pretence too thin. It isn't the tariff, gentlemen, and all except the nincompoops are onto your game of deception and fraud. Until the money question is settled, and settled rightly, there can be no permanent prosperity. Mark that.

Boston Towne.

There is no doubt at all that Congresman Towne, of Minnesota, is an able and eloquent, public speaker. He is said to have much of that magnetism which made Mr. Bryan such an attraction for the people during his phenomenal campaign.—Boston Globe.

Pease Right Once.

Editor Pease in his paper says: "If Minnesota had had in the years 1857-8, such times as we are having now, the populace would have thought that they were enjoying peace and plenty."—Dassel Anchor.

Democrats Have Only to Wait.

We have yet to note the arrival of that prosperity so confidently predicted under the rule of McKinley and the republican party. Nor do we see any signs of its coming, though McKinley was elected five months ago.

Meanwhile the democratic party is rapidly regaining its strength. Town and county elections nearly everywhere show it. Even in old New England the change since November is astonishing, nearly all the town elections there resulting in sweeping democratic triumphs. If a new President were to be elected today we feel absotuely sure that he would be a democrat.

The Dingley Tariff bill and the juggling of the republicans at Washington disgusts the country. The republican party is beginning to show again that it has always been—the friend of rings and trusts and combines and the enemy of the people.

We repeat what we said some time ago, that if things go on as they are it will not be worth while for the republicans to nominate anybody in 1900. The democrats will win by the biggest majority.—World.

Beat Bounty Beats the Best.

Let us look a little into this beet sugar business and not go crazy over it upon the say-so of men employed by somebody to urge farmers into the sugar business. At New Ulm, recently, there was a meeting, and here is a statement from Prof. Boes, of the Minnesota state farm: "As the result of tests, he gave $32 as the cost of raising an acre of beets, the yield averaging fifteen tons, at $4 a ton." Now, let us figure. We can raise from an acre according to this professor, 15 tons of beets and get therefore $60.—cost of production, $32.—profit per acre, $28. A clean profit of TWENTY-EIGHT DOLLARS per acre. See! Then what? Why under the latter day republican doctrine, (McKinleyism) the wheat farmer or the man of diversified farming, who doesn't get a profit of $10 per acre, must be taxed to pay the sugar producer, one dollar per hundred pounds for all the sugar he makes. Was there ever before such cold-blooded, legalized, robbery as this? Why! it is astonishing that some men will, for a moment, entertain such an unjust and dishonorable proposition. Have the people become so blind that they will follow their party leaders into such unjust class legislation as this?—Waseca Herald.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 9, 1897.

Hon. W. J. Bryan was fortunate enough to be in Washington this week to make an argument for the people of Nebraska in a railroad case before the U. S. Supreme Court. This gave him an opportunity to participate in the democratic jollification which has followed the news of the democratic victories in Ohio and in Chicago. Mr. Bryan told an immense democratic meeting addressed by him over in Alexandria, and attended by many prominent democrats from both branches of Congress that the grand cause was steadily marching on to victory, and closed his speech by saying: "There more Jeffersonian democratey in the United States than there was before. More people soaking to make this government what it ought to be, and the crusade that was started will go on and on; will gather strength as it goes, and will be instrumental in bringing to the people of this country blessings for generations to come".

The administration and King Hanna are especially sore over the unmistakable rebuke given them by the result of the Ohio elections. They try to make light of the matter by saying that only local issues are involved, but they know better, and everybody else knows better; knows that the administration expected and worked for republican success, which it would have considered an indorsement, Senator Jones, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, says: "While I am not at all disposed to attach too much importance to purely local elections, I do believe that the result in Ohio is largely due to the dissatisfaction with the National and State government of the republican party. There is no doubt in my mind, either that the cause of bimetallism has made tremendous strides since last November, and I believe that more has been accomplished for our cause for the very logic of events than was done by all the campaign methods."

There is a little wrangle an between the administration and the republican members of the Senate Finance committee. Mr. McKinley has been bringing pressure to bear upon them to report the tariff bill not later than the 19th of this month, while they insist that they cannot get the bill in condition to report befor May 3rd, if so soon.

Humanity is the one power that is strong enough to face all the discordant elements which go to make up Congress into solidity in an effort to relieve suffering. The joint resolution appropriating $200,000 for the relief of the sufferers from the floods in the Mississippi River and its tributaries and in the Red River of the North, which became a law this week, received the unanimous vote of Congress.

The Senate has been talking Cuban belligerency again, and has adopted a resolution requesting the President to endeavor to save the life of Gen. Riviera.

It would be difficult to find a more vigorous bit of dignified English than Senator Caffery's reply to the request of the New Orleans Board of Trade, that he Should vote for the following extracts: "When my political views change so as to convince me that this great country, with its vast resources, its free, pushing, enterprising, inventive population, needs protection against countries with not half its resources, with populations oppressed with debt, crushed by class distinctions, or tyrannous government, without the skill and inventive genius of our own people, I will hand in my resignation as being out of touch with democratic principles. I take it that Louisana is a Democrat yet, notwithstanding the temporary split in the democracy about finances, and the defection of the sugar planters to republicism, or rather to 'bounty'." The letter closes with a discription of the tariff bill: "It will blight the budding promice of increased export of Amerlean manufactures. It will cripple the export of our cereals, flour, fuel and raw material; it will add enormously to the burden of the toiling masses of our people, it will create greater discontent where discontent is already threatening peace and stability of society. And it violates the cardinal, essential, cherished principles of democracy. I will not vote for it. I will vigorously oppose it."

Fortunate is the appointee who gets the praise of his political opponents as well as that of members of his own party, and they are as few as they are fortunate. One of them is Mr. Benjamin Butterworth, who has for the second time been appointed Commissioner of Patents Arthur first appointed him to the place. In as much as Mr. Butterworth's ability to fill a higher position is unquestioned, it is believed that Mr. McKinley has put him in charge of the Patent Office for the special purpose of correcting existing abuses in the practice of patent attorneys, in and out of the office, and raising the practice to a higher professional plane, his ability as a lawyer and experience in the patent branch especially fitting him for the task, and that after he has succeeded he will be promoted to a higher place.

The faculty of Bowdoin has struck a blow which jarred up the whole student body. It has suspended 21 sophomores for hazing.

With the warm weather the cyclone comes again, finding science no nearer a solution of its source and power and humanity no better protected from its fatal fury.

Twenty-four o'clock is midnight according to the new arrangement adopted in Belgium, except on the railroads, which will put the system in use in a short time.

A Chinese pundit declares that the X ray was known in the time of Confucius. China appears to have discovered everything, and to have been too obtuse to make intelligent use of anything.

Scientists are endeavoring to prove that our atmosphere, by mingling with the water and rocks, is continually diminishing, and that the terrestrial globe will some day be as badly off as the moon. People who are constantly using so much atmosphere in unnecessary talking should take notice.

There is a general breaking up of "pools" this year, but the queerest is that of the medical college pool at Cleveland, which has gone to pieces because some of the colleges in it thought they were not getting their share of the "subjects," the latter being the dead paupers given away for dissection.

A reporter who has been watching the action of the heart under the X ray says that it "somewhat resembled a balloon, partly inflated, swayed by a light breeze, rising and falling regularly and constantly changing outline." No wonder the organ is considered troublesome under sentimental conditions.

A well-known American gambler, just from Cairo, Egypt, where he yearns to establish another Monte Carlo, says he saw old Papa Castellane, whose son, the count, married Anna Gould, lose $44,000 at baccarat. The man who originally earned that $44,000 never took chances like that. It was the other fellow that baccaratted.

Attorney-General Barber, of South Carolina, says that since the dispensary law went into effect there has been a decrease of at least 50 per cent. in the number of arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, as shown by the official reports. The dispensary, by abolishing the saloon, has entirely eliminated the social features of drinking. Half the men who drink do not desire the liquor, but do it as a matter of form.

The much-worn joke about "newspaper English" does occasionally find justification, as in an item recently noticed in a Maine paper, which gravely announced that "David McPheters recently hauled a log with a 900-horse 25 feet long and 22 inches through at the top end," and proudly inquires: "Can any of the lumbermen beat this?" To which another exchange responds: "We should say not, nor do we believe many of the breeding establishments of this state have that sort of an animal."

New York city has instituted a regular medical inspection of its school children. There were doubts as to its necessity, but results talk. In one day 150 inspectors reported as follows on 4,255 children: "Three cases of measles, 14 of diphtheria, 1 of scarlet fever, 3 of mumps, 35 of contagious eye diseases, 55 of parasitic diseases of the head, 12 of parasitic diseases of the body, 8 of the chicken pox and 8 of skin diseases." Verily, we have not yet seen daybreak in administering the vital question of public sanitation.

Lieut. Peary is now waiting for some person or persons to give him $150,000, when he will start out on another trip to the frozen north. Most of the money, Peary explains, will be needed to maintain a colony of Eskimos at a point farther north than any previous colony has ever located. As much as the world might enjoy seeing a colony of Eskimos live in this high latitude, would it not be better to devote the $150,000 to enabling a colony of poor white people to live in some more equable climate? Nansen has settled all the essential facts about the north pole.

The Pennsylvania railroad maintains an editorial department composed of a dozen men under the direction of a managing editor. In addition to looking after the advertising their duty is to read the newspapers for the officers of the company. About 800 papers are received daily from all over the world. Each man clips every item of news and editorial that he thinks will interest the head men of the road, and they are laid upon the table of the president, who thus gets the news of the world and expressions of public opinion upon important topics at a glance.

Nicola Tesla, of New York, has made a discovery which, it is believed, will revolutionize methods of illumination and be of infinite use. He has perfected new electrical oscillators based on one of his discoveries made six years ago. By their means Tesla is able to produce economical electrical vibrations to a frequency of many millions a second from ordinary currents, either alternating or direct. These oscillators do away entirely with induction coils. Any electric pressure is available. Tesla says that they furnish ideal means for the production of Roentgen rays, which are more powerful.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

The reading of the president's message in the United States senate on the 7th urging congressional relief for the devastated regions of the Mississippi river was followed by the passage of a joint resolution appropriating $200,000 to be immediately available for the flood sufferers. Senator Morgan spoke further in support of the resolution declaring that a state of war exists in Cuba, and recognizing both parties as belligerents. In the house a joint resolution was adopted appropriating $200,000 for the relief of the flood sufferers of the Mississippi valley.

The United States senate on the 8th heard Senator Morgan (Ala.) for the third successive day on his resolution declaring that a state of war exists in Cuba. The bankruptcy bill was further considered. The nomination of Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, to be assistant secretary of the navy, was confirmed. The house was not in session.

The United States senate was not in session on the 10th. In the house a short political debate took place over the rules, after which an adjournment was taken until the 14th.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Assurances were given Secretary Sherman that Gen. Rivera, the Cuban insurgent leader, would not be executed, but would be treated as a prisoner of war.

In honor of the late Admiral Foote torpedo boat No. 3 has been named the Foote.

In the United States there were 232 business failures in the seven days ended on the 9th, against 212 the week previous and 225 in the corresponding period of 1896.

Republican senators in Washington who are acting as a subcommittee of the senate committee of finance in the preparation of the tariff bill say it will be reported in about two weeks.

At the age of 76 years Daniel W. Voorhees died at his home in Washington. He was a congressman from Indiana from 1861 to 1873 and a United States senator from 1877 to 1896.

THE EAST.

The battleship Iowa on her trial trip at Boston proved herself the fastest in the navy, averaging 17 knots an hour, and winning for her builders, Messrs. William Cramp & Son, of Philadelphia, a premium of $200,000.

At the leading clearing houses in the United States the exchanges during the week ended on the 9th aggregated $1,016,093,321, against $905,986,642 the previous week. The increase compared with the corresponding week of 1896 was 9.2.

The mayors of New York and Brooklyn have returned the Greater New York charter to Albany without their approval, and this makes the passage of the bill by the legislature again necessary.

Indians at Oldtown, Me., whose tribal name is the Tarrantines, have issued a decree banishing from their reservation on an island in the Penobscot all white persons.

In a collision with the steamship La Grande Duchesse off the Jersey coast the American barkentine Nellie Smith was sunk and Capt. Dodge, of Peabody, Mass., and four sailors were drowned.

WEST AND SOUTH.

In the flood situation in the south no improvement was reported.

At the encampment in Greenville Col. A. T. Bliss, of Saginaw, was elected department commander of the Michigan G. A. R.

Near Indianapolis a car loaded with whisky exploded and the entire train was set on fire and burned.

James Ford and his wife, an aged couple living at Parkertown, O., were probably fatally injured by burglars, who robbed them of $100.

The American Bankers' association will hold its next annual meeting in Detroit, Mich., August 10, 11 and 12.

The steamer Bermuda, loaded with munitions of war for the Cuban insurgents, sailed from Jacksonville, Fla.

In the floods in South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska 40 lives at least have been lost.

The life of Mrs. Leland Stanford, of San Francisco, is insured for $1,000,000. This is the largest single policy ever issued.

Over a portion of Dale county, Ala., a cyclone left wreck and disaster in its path. Many houses were demolished and a Mrs. Powers was killed.

In central Indiana a heavy snowstorm did great damage to telegraph wires.

Further reports from the fire at Knoxville, Tenn., indicate that 17 persons lost their lives.

Throughout the country encampments of the Union Veteran legion celebrated the thirty-second anniversary of Lee's surrender at Appomattox courthouse.

The legislature of Nebraska adjourned sine die.

In Wisconsin the anti-pooling law has been officially published and is now in effect, gambling on horse races being therefore at an end in the state.

Gov. Bushnell, of Ohio, has issued a proclamation fixing April 23 as Arbor day.

BRIBERY CHARGED.

Latest Sensational Phase of Kentucky Senatorial Contest.

Frankfort, Ky., April 12. — Indictments charging bribery and conspiracy to bribe have been prepared by the Franklin county grand jury against three of the most prominent republicans in the state—ex-Congressman W. Godfrey Hunter, of the Third district, the republican nominee for the United States senate; Congressman John H. Wilson, of the Seventh district, one of Dr. Hunter's closest advisers, and E. T. Franks, one of the leading republican politicians of the Second district. The indictments were prepared Friday night upon the testimony of Capt. Noel Gaines, Capt. Thomas Tanner, his brother-in-law, and Fred Gordon, all of this city.

These gentlemen in their statements before the grand jury testified in effect that Hunter had said to them that he wanted three votes to secure his election, and that he was willing to pay $15,000, or $5,000 a vote. He would furnish the money himself, but it would not do for him personally to pay the amounts, and that the trade would be completed by his representative. He said that Mr. Wilson would act as his agent. Hunter said that Representatives Gossom and Clark, of Warren county, and Johns, of Floyd county, could be got, and they should be the first ones to be seen. In an interview with Wilson afterwards, it was testified that he repeated the offer, showing three packages of money which he said contained $5,000 each, to be paid over to the men selected when their votes had been cast.

A statement signed by ten members of the legislature was issued Saturday night stating that Dr. Hunter was in his room on the night that Capt. Gaines claims he (Hunter) visited his home for the bribery conference. The charges of bribery naturally overshadowed everything else in the legislature, and, although two more ballots for senator were taken, no change was developed, besides pairing, and adjournment was agreed to.

CLOSE OF A NOTABLE CAREER.

Ex-Senator Daniel W. Voorhees Dies in Washington.

Washington, April 12.—Daniel Wolsey Voorhees, ex-senator from the state of Indiana, died at five o'clock Saturday morning at his home in this city, No. 105 Maryland avenue, northeast.

Mr. Voorhees was 76 years of age last September, and prior to his retirement from public life on March 4 last had been for many years one of the most picturesque figures in the senate. He was born in Liberty township, Buffalo county, O., and in his early infancy was carried by his parents to their pioneer home in the Wabash valley, Indiana. In 1849 he graduated from the Indiana Asbury (now Depauw) university, and studying law began its practice in 1851. His first public office was entered upon in 1858.

In that year President Buchanan appointed him United States district attorney for Indiana. When the famous John Brown raiders were to be tried in 1858 his services as a lawyer were enlisted by Gov. Ashbel P. Willard, of Indiana, whose brother-in-law, John E. Cook, was to be put on trial for participation in the raid. It was his defense of Cook that first brought Mr. Voorhees into national prominence.

He was elected to congress in 1861, and reelected in 1863, '65, '69, '71 and '73. He was out of the house of representatives from 1866 to 1869 as a result of a contest decided in favor of his opponent for the seat Henry D. Washburn. In congress his powers of oratory soon made him a leader on the democratic side. He was a member of the house committees on elections, appropriations, judiciary, revision of laws and the Pacific railroads.

His term in the senate began in 1877, when the governor of Indiana appointed him to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Oliver P. Morton. He took his seat on November 12 of that year, and when the term expired in 1879 the legislature elected him to the full term. He was reelected to the senate in 1885 and again in 1891, the last term expiring March 4 last, when C. W. Fairbanks was elected. Through his entire career in the senate Senator Voorhees was a member of the finance committee.

PLAN A BIG CAMPAIGN.

Executive Committee of Democratic Associated Clubs Meets.

Washington, April 13.—The first meeting of the new executive committee of the National Association of Democratic Clubs took place here Monday at the Ebbitt house. There was a very full attendance of members of the committee. A committee consisting of Messrs. Black, McMillin and Maguire was appointed to prepare an address to the democratic voters of the country, which the committee unanimously adopted. The address says:

"Although the paramount question before the people was and is that of the single gold standard as against the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and a mighty majority of the whole people declared unequivocally for bimetallism, either independently or by international agreement, as promised by the republican party, we see not the slightest inclination of any disposition to move in that direction. While all industries languish, while the gold dollar appreciates and the silver dollar is denied its natural economic function, while a nation waits and suffers, tariff schedules are being revised for the exclusive benefit of the taxeaters, and the gold owners are tacitly assured that they need apprehend no encroachment upon their monopoly, which is visibly appropriating the profits uopn the labors of civilized mankind. To the bitter complaints of the people the answer of the Roman farmer of the revenue returned, namely: 'More taxes and a dearer currency with which to pay them.' We respectfully suggest that democratic societies constituted after the manner of those which Mr. Jefferson described as 'very nurseries of republican principles' be established in every district, and that the democratic state, county and city chairmen throughout the country take immediate steps to secure the institution of such organizations."

Big Transfer of Convicts.

Michigan City, Ind., April 13.—Probably the largest transfer of prison convicts that ever took place in this country was successfully carried out Monday. Two hundred and ninety-one prisoners from Michigan City prison were put on a special Monon train and taken to Jeffersonville, while from the latter place 356 prisoners were sent here. At the last session of the legislature a law was passed converting the southern penitentiary into a reformatory and making the Michigan City prison the penitentiary for the state. The law provided that all prisoners under 30 years of age, serving their first sentence, were to be transferred to Jeffersonville, the exceptions being those sentenced for treason or murder. An indeterminate sentence law was also passed.

Kentucky Association Suspends.

Lexington, Ky., April 13.—After 66 years of continuous racing the Kentucky association has been forced to abandon the sport. Clashing of three Cincinnati tracks with the proposed May meeting is the cause of suspension. The entrance money to the stakes will be returned.

TO CONTROL THE SENATE.

Democrats, Silver Republicans and Populists Combine.

Washington, April 12. — The final agreement among democrats, silver republicans and populists in the senate looking to a permanent coalition was reached at a meeting of representatives of those parties held in Senator Gorman's committee room, at the capitol. The agreement had its origin in the effort to reorganize the senate committees, but it is destined, apparently, to reach far beyond this situation and in fact to the future proceedings of the senate on all matters if not to the extent of shaping party policies throughout the country. There were present at the meeting:

Democrats—Senators Gorman, Cockrell, Walthall, Jones, of Arkansas, and Murphy.

Silver Republicans—Senators Cannon and Mantle.

Populists—Senators Allen and Pettigrew.

With reference to the matter of the senate organization, it was decided that the combination should hold out for the assignment of all the places on committees heretofore held by democrats, while it was agreed that the republicans should have the places hitherto filled by republicans. This will give the republicans all the committee chairmanships vacated by the retirement of Senators Cameron, Sherman, Dubois, Squire, Mitchell of Oregon, and Brown, but it will give the combination about 70 vacancies, while it allows the republicans only about 30. The combination decided against making any concessions, even that provided for allowing the republicans to fill one of the three vacancies on the committee on appropriations.

The silver republicans say that their principal incentive in entering the coalition is to protect the finance committee, which, they feared, might become an anti-silver organization in case the republicans were allowed to have their own way in committee organization. All intention to interfere with the passage of the tariff bill through the senate through the coalition of democrats, silver republicans and populists is denied by the parties to the agreement.

COMMISSION IS NAMED.

President Appoints Members to International Monetary Conference.

Washington, April 13. —The president has announced the appointment of Senator Edward O. Wolcott, of Colorado; Hon. Charles J. Paine, of Boston, and ex-Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson as commissioners to an international monetary conference. These appointments are made under the act approved March 3 last "For the promotion of an international agreement for bimetallism," and by its provisions do not require confirmation by the senate. Senator Wolcott has been an active leader in the movement for a monetary agreement and widely known as an advocate of the silver cause. His trip to Europe last summer was generally conceded to be at least semi-official as the representative of the new administration.

Ex-Vice President Stevenson, the democratic member of the commission, generally known as an advocate of bimetallism, was a stanch supporter of Bryan and the Chicago platform. He and Senator Wolcott, however, are said to be in accord on the financial question.

Charles J. Paine is a republican and was a McKinley man. He is one of the most prominent business men of Massachusetts and is said to be a deep student of the financial question. Gen. Paine is largely identified with railroads and other corporations, being a director of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad and other large concerns, and a director of the Boston institute of technology; was an intimate friend and associate of Prof. Walker, the financial author and authority. It is a fact not generally known that Gen. Paine accompanied Senator Wolcott on his European trip last summer and assisted him in that work. It is believed that he went abroad with Senator Wolcott with the understanding that he was to be made a member of the commission.

BATTLE IN TURKEY.

Sultan's Territory Invaded and a Fight Ensues.

Athens, April 10.—A private dispatch just received here from Kalambaka says that a band of irregulars who were compelled to return to Greek territory heard a sharp fusillade between the Greek and the Turkish outposts. The official dispatches merely report that three Greek bands invaded the Turkish territory.

London, April 10.—The Daily Telegraph publishes a dispatch from its war correspondent at Elassona, the headquarters of the Turkish forces on the Macedonia frontier, confirming the reported invasion of Albania between Grevena and Kraniar. The correspondent says: The invasion took place early in the morning, and a desultory fusillade has proceeded all day long. It is thought probable that fighting will now break out along the entire frontier. A Turkish council of war was held here Friday.

London, April 12.—The Times prints the following dispatch from its Athens correspondent: The porte in protest to the powers against the Greek invasion says that the regular Greek army entered Turkish territory near Grevena and committed acts of hostility by destroying three posts. The protest further declares that these acts virtually constitute an act of aggression and a casus belli, and denounce Greece as an aggressor in the affair.

Sensational Charges.

Topeka, Kan., April 10. — Speaker Street, of the Kansas legislature, produced a sensation Friday when he testified in the bribery investigation. He said Henry Wilson, said to be an agent of the American Book company, proposed to give him $1,000 to rule unfavorably to the text book bill, and $2,000 if the bill was defeated. Senator Titus swore that Senator Lewelling took him to a room in the National hotel and said that there was "something in it for both of them" if they could get a substitute adopted for the original text book bill. Representative Dingus, of Lynn county, swore that Representative Doyle, of Republic county, had offered him $250 if he would cease his fight for the text book bill.

Roosevelt Accepts.

New York, April 12. — Theodore Roosevelt returned from Washington Saturday afternoon. When interviewed he said: "I have accepted the place as assistant secretary of the navy."

THE FLOODS.

High Water Record Broken in the Northwest—Another Levee Breaks

Omaha, Neb., April 13.—The Missouri river has risen almost two feet at this point in 24 hours and is now higher than at any time since 1883. At noon the government gauge showed 14.8 feet above mean low water and the gauge at the pumping station, seven miles north, where the channel is confined, showed 16.8 feet. On the Iowa bottoms north of Council Bluffs the water is four feet deep, but is held back from the city by dykes. The factories along the river have taken precaution against overflow. A portion of the Burlington tracks was washed out. Monday evening the river broke over into its old channel by Omaha, flowing into Florence lake, which was formed when the river changed its course nearly 20 years ago. The water is pouring down through the lake and has flooded the bottoms in the vicinity. All the houses in North Omaha, 200 or 300 in number, are surrounded and the inhabitants have been moving to higher ground. The Missouri Pacific and Elkhorn tracks are under water, the roundhouse of the latter road being surrounded. The water from the break into Florence lake is finding an outlet into Cutt-off lake and if the rise is much greater there is great danger that the river will reestablish its abandoned course of 20 years ago. In this event, the property loss will be enormous, as there are extensive railroad plants, factories, etc., in the line of the threatened cut-off.

Memphis, Tenn., April 13.—The mighty sweep of the waters south of Vicksburg has at last had its effect upon the lower levees and a telegram from Tallulah, La., reports that the levee which protects Davis' island has given way. Twenty-five hundred people inhabit Davis' island, which consists of about 5,000 acres of land. The place is situated in Warren county, Miss. Throughout the upper delta the flood situation shows little change since last reports. The work of government relief has been actively inaugurated. Many people are being fed and housed at Greenville, Rosedale, Helena, Friar's Point and other points along the river. A relief steamer is now plying up the St. Francis river with food and forage for man and beast.

Washington, April 12.—A statement relative to the agricultural interests of the submerged districts of the Mississippi valley south of Cairo, Ill., has been issued by the department of agriculture. It is based upon a chart prepared under the direction of the chief of the weather bureau showing the extent of the flood on April 6. To this chart the department has applied the crop statistics of 1896 as representing more closely than any other available data the acreage and value of the crops of 1897 now in jeopardy. The statistics of population, of the number and acreage of farms and of the value of farms and farm implements are those of the census, and the statistics of live stock are the department's own figures for January 1, 1897. The statement follows:

The total area under water on April 6 was about 15,800 square miles, of which 7,900 square miles was in Mississippi, 4,500 square miles in Arkansas, 1,750 square miles in Missouri, 1,200 in Tennessee, and 450 in Louisiana. This region contained in 1890, so far as can be determined in view of the indefinite boundary lines of the flood, a population of 379,685, of which 186,489, or about one-half, was in Mississippi, 100,235 in Arkansas, and the remainder almost equally divided between Missouri and Tennessee.

The flooded districts contain, it is estimated, about 39,500 farms, of which about 18,500 are in Mississippi, nearly 10,000 in Arkansas, and a like number about equally divided between Missouri and Tennessee. These farms contain a total area of about 3,800,000 acres, one-half of which is in Mississippi and rather over one-fourth in Arkansas, the proportions in Missouri and Tennessee being about the same as in the case of the number of farms. The total value of these farms, with their improvements, farm implements, etc., is close upon $65,000,000, and here also the proportions in the different states are about the same as above noted.

The live stock on hand the first of January of the present year was valued at over $7,500,000, divided in very much the same proportions as other farm property. It is estimated that of the crops of last year over $3,875,000 worth remained on hand in the submerged region in the last month, cotton representing about two-thirds of this amount and corn practically all the remainder.

The largest interests at stake so far are those of the state of Mississippi, whose flooded districts represent an invested capital in agriculture alone of close upon $42,000,000. Over 18,000 farms, containing 2,000,000 acres of land, of an average value of about $18 an acre, are under water in the country lying between the Mississippi and Yazoo rivers, including some of the most productive lands of the state.

Arkansas stands next in the extent of its imperiled interests, nearly 10,000 farms, containing 1,000,000 acres of land, worth over $14,000,000, being submerged.

The agricultural interests affected in Missouri represent a total capital of $9,000,000, the 5,300 submerged farms containing an area of about 470,000 acres, worth about $7,250,000.

Tennessee is not far behind Missouri in the extent of its imperiled interests, the number and acreage of the submerged farms being very nearly the same, and the entire value, including $1,250,000 for live stock, and $400,000 for crops on hand, being over $8,500,000.

What effect the floods will have upon the crops of the present season depends upon the length of its continuance, and the practicability of wheat planting after the subsidence of the flood. The entire region under water on April 6 produced last year about 370,000 bales of cotton, valued at close on $13,000,000; over 11,000,000 bushels of corn, worth about $3,400,000, and wheat, oats, potatoes and hay, worth over $800,000.

The weather bureau predicts a further extension of the flooded area, but no attempt, of course, has been made to estimate the serious possibilities of such extension.

Trade Situation.

New York, April 10.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"Out of 4,000 failures, with liabilities of $60,752,561 in the first quarter, 74 bank failures covered more than a fifth of the amount, $12,744,650, and 3,345 failures, with liabilities of $35,947,892, or nearly three-fifths, are classified this week according to branches of business, leaving only 587 failures, and less than a fifth of the liabilities, $12,060,019, in branches of manufacture or trade not specified. Only two of the 13 manufacturing classes and only four of 13 trading classes show liabilities for the quarter larger than last year, and only five manufacturing and three trading show largest average liabilities. For the month of March only three manufacturing and four trading classes show larger amounts than last year, and only two manufacturing and five trading show a larger average of liabilities. In almost every case also it is shown that the increase is due to one or two exceptionally large failures in that class. The returns, compared with those of three previous years, disclose much improvement already, and a bright prospect for more hereafter."

The Wonderful Kava-Kava Shrub.

A New Botanical Discovery.—Of Special Interest to Sufferers from Diseases of the Kidneys or Bladder, Rheumatism, etc.—A Blessing to Humanity.

A Free Gift of Great Value to You.

Our readers will be glad to know that the new botanical discovery, Alkavis, from the wonderful Kava-Kava shrub has proved an assured cure for all diseases caused by Uric acid in the blood, or by disordered action of the Kidneys or urinary organs. The Kava-Kava Shrub, or as botanists call it, Piper Methysticum, grows on the banks of the Ganges river, East India, and probably was used for centuries by the natives before its extraordinary properties became known to civilization through Christian missionaries. In this respect it resembles the discovery of quinine from the peruvian bark, made known by the Indians to the early Jesuit missionaries in South America, and by them brought to civilized man. It is a wonderful discovery, with a record of 1200 hospital cures in 30 days. It acts directly upon the blood and kidneys, and is a true specific, just as quinine is in malaria. We have the strongest testimony of many ministers of the gospel, well known doctors and business men cured by Alkavis, when all other remedies had failed.

The Kava-Kava Shrub (Piper Methysticum.)

In the New York Weekly World of Sept. 10th, the testimony of Rev. W. B. Moore, D. D., of Washington, D. C. was given, describing his wears of suffering from Kidney disease and Rheumatism, and his rapid cure by Alkavis. Rev. Thomas Smith, the Methodist minister at Cobden, Illinois, passed nearly one hundred gravel stones after two weeks' use of Alkavis. Rev. John H. Watson, of Sunset, Texas, a minister of the gospel of thirty years' service, was struck down at his post of duty by Kidney disease. After hovering between life and death for two months, and all his doctors having failed, he took Alkavis, and was completely restored to health and strength, and is fulfilling his duties as minister of the gospel. Mr. R. C. Wood, a prominent attorney of Lowell, Indiana, was cured of Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder disease of ten years standing, by Alkavis. Mr. Wood describes himself as being in constant misery, often compelled to rise ten times during the night on account of weakness of the bladder. He was treated by all his home physicians without the least benefit and finally completely cured in a few weeks by Alkavis. The testimony is undoubted and really wonderful. Mrs. James Young, of Kent, Ohio, writes that she had tried six doctors in vain, that she was about to give up in despair, when she found Alkavis and was promptly cured of kidney disease and restored to health. Many other ladies also testify to the wonderful curative powers of Alkavis in the various disorders peculiar to womanhood. ●

So far the Church Kidney Cure Company, No. 412 Fourth Avenue, New York, are the only importers of this new remedy, and they are so anxious to prove its value that for the sake of introduction they will send a free treatment of Alkavis prepaid by mail to every reader of this paper who is a Sufferer from any form of Kidney or Bladder disorder, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Gravel, Pain in Back, Female Complaints, or other affliction due to improper action of the Kidneys or Urinary Organs. We advise all Sufferers to send their names and address to the company, and receive the Alkavis free. It is sent to you entirely free, to prove its wonderful curative powers.

Little Cream Cheeses with Anchovy.

Weigh four ounces of finely grated Parmesan or Gruyure, add to it in a bowl a tablespoonful of made mustard, a desert spoonful of the best French vinegar, six fillets of anchovy and the yolks of three eggs; work the whole through a hair sieve into a bowl, and add to it a gill of whipped cream. Have ready half a dozen little saucers, cold, fill them with the mixture, dust over with Parmesan, and serve.—Boston Budget.

Opium and Whisky Habits.

The letter quoted below, written March 23, 1896, by the editor and manager of the Sheffield, Ala., Standard, leaves no room to doubt that a successful treatment for the cure of the liquor habit exists:

"Dr. B. M. Woolley, Atlanta, Ga.: Your antidote for the liquor habit will do all you claim for it. After drinking whisky for more than twenty years I find myself entirely relieved of the accursed appetite through the use of three bottles of your medicine. It is absolutely a specific for the liquor habit, and leaves no bad effects.

"E. M. RAGLAND."

Shinnston, W. Va.,—Dr. B. M. Woolley, Atlanta, Ga.: I have been cured, or quit taking the antidote nineteen months, and never had any call for opium after taking the first dose of your Antidote. You wanted to know if you might use my letter. Yes, and my name, also. Any one may write to me if they wish to know of my cure or ask any questions as to the efficacy of the Antidote, and if they enclose stamp I will answer.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. THE TABLE SET FOR TWO.

The sunshine falls on the windowsill,
And the day looks in at the open door,
The kettle sings, and the dear, old wife
Goes back and forth o'er the kitchen floor
With plate and platter, and fork and spoon,
As every day she is wont to do,
And she lays them with a quiet grace,
On the homely table set for two.

O, the bread is like the sea's white spray,
And the cloth is clean as mountain snows;
From the pantry shelf to the kitchen stove,
The dear, old wife on her errands goes.
The morning glories over the porch,
All in a riotous tangle run,
The cat lies curled asleep on a chair,
The old dog blinks at the noonday sun.

But the dear, old wife is sad to-day,
And the morning hours have seemed so long,
For her thoughts are of the long ago,
When the old house rang with mirth and song;
When the red-cheeked boys and merry girls
Came trooping in through the open door;
Some wander now 'neath an alien sky,
And some will come back no more—no more.

There are empty chairs against the wall,
And the wide, old rooms are strangely still,
The day is sad, though the sunshine falls
Like sifted gold on the windowsill.
And the dear, old wife in her quiet way
Does the homely tasks she is wont to do,
But the tears fall fast as she sadly thinks
Of the lonesome table set for two.

—Jeanette La Flamboy, in Good Housekeeping.

CHASED BY A COUGAR.

The only indigenous, long-tailed cat in America, north of the thirtieth parallel of latitude, is the cougar. The wildcats, so-called, are lynxes with short tails, and of these there are three distinct species. But there is only one true representative of the genus Felis; and that is the animal first above mentioned. It has received many trivial appellations. Among the early American trappers and hunters east of the Mississippi river, it is called the panther, or, in their patois, "painter;" in the Rocky mountains and California, the "California lion."

There are few wild animals, says the St. Louis Republic, so regular in their color as the cougar; very little variety has been observed among many specimens. The cougar of mature age is of a tawny red color, almost uniform over the whole body, although somewhat paler about the face and the parts underneath. Though considered the representative of the lion in America, his resemblance to the royal beast is but slight. His color alone entitles him to such an honor.

He is a tree climber. He can mount a tree with the agility of a cat, and, although so large an animal, he climbs by means of his claws—not by hugging, after the manner of bears and opossums.

While climbing a tree his claws can be heard cracking along the bark as he mounts upward. He sometimes lies squat along a horizontal branch—a lower one—for the purpose of springing upon a deer, or such other animal as he wishes to feed upon. The ledge of a cliff is also a favorite haunt, and such are known among old hunters as "panther ledges."

The Cascade range, and every tributary chain of mountains on the vast Pacific slope, was the habitat of the cougar, or mountain lion, as everybody out there called the ferocious beast. The cougar rarely ventured out of the great forests, however, the deer and mountain sheep furnishing them their general food.

In 1867 I was stationed at Fort Sincoe, in the valley of the same name, in Washington territory, as it was then called. One afternoon in June of the year mentioned, I started for Fort Dallas, 65 miles from Fort Sincoe, on the Columbia river.

There were no wagon roads in those early days. Everything had to be carried on pack mules, because of the rough, rocky and precipitous character of the country. The majority of the mule trails were what are called "zigzags;" that is, angling from right to left up the steep sides of the mountains, it being impossible to make the ascent by going straight up their scarped faces.

I mounted my beautiful coal-black mare, Petaluma, one of those strong Indian ponies famous for their endurance and ability to climb the fearful, narrow pathways, only by which communication between points was made possible.

I left the post without carrying any arms—not even a revolver—a careless habit of mine, for which I was reprimanded more than once by my commanding officer; but one becomes indifferent to constant danger in a wild country, and I was never cured of the fault. I reached the foot of the first "zig-zag," at the west side of the valley, where it juts against the range of mountains about sundown, and, before essaying the ascent, dismounted and cinched my saddle.

In a little more than three hours I reached the summit, making frequent halts to wind my animal, for she had labored heavily in struggling up the grade.

When I started on again, after resting 20 or 30 minutes, the moon, which was at its full, now appeared at the verge of the horizon, way below me at the lower end of the valley, and began to light up the trail on the summit of the range, so that in the clear, cloudless sky objects were as distinctly visible as at noonday, though the atmosphere and all nature seemed tinged with a silver sheen.

The trail on the summit of the range ran over a narrow tableland for several miles, and then entered the deep pine and cedar forest at the other extremity of the chain of great hills over which I was going. A ride of 12 miles further and I arrived at a lonely spot, entirely denuded of timber excepting a group of blasted cedars about an acre in extent.

I reached the place just as my watch indicated midnight. Seating myself on one of the granite bowlders scattered over the ground, I lighted my pipe and was about to enjoy the delicious fragrance of some tobacco which had been given me the day before by an officer lately arrived from the states, when my mare, which I was holding by the rein, gave a convulsive shudder and nearly broke away from me. I could not for a moment divine what had caused her trepidation, for when with me, although a most highly-mettled animal, she was usually as docile as a kitten.

The moon was nearly over my head, and I gazed around in wonder for some minutes to learn the cause of my pet animal's strange action. Presently, on looking at the very center of the cluster of blasted cedars, I saw two great green eyes staring at me with a steadiness that was appalling. For a moment I was seemingly fascinated by the uncanny vision, but in another instant all sense of possible superstition vanished, as I saw the bushes move and heard dead twigs lying on the ground crack as if under the foot of some heavy animal treading on them. With bated breath, I saw a monstrous cougar stealthily crawl out of the tangled mass of brushwood in a crouching attitude, its tail slowly oscillating, as does that of the domestic cat when watching a mousehole.

The beast evidently then saw me for the first time, and, as is natural with the species, instinctively drew back, as if to fly from the presence of man. It was my handsome mare the cougar coveted, but, seeing me, it deferred the fatal spring it had contemplated at the moment its eyes first met mine.

I soothed Petaluma as best I could, but her trembling was not in the least abated, though she rubbed her nose against my coat sleeve, as was her wont when I caressed her. She seemed a little more passive—that is, she did not attempt those frantic jumps in her efforts to get away that at first characterized her terrible fright when she smelled the cougar, or by some instinct became aware of its proximity.

What I had to do, and do quickly, was to get away from there as soon as possible, for I did not know how soon the ferocious brute, nearly famished with hunger, maybe, might make an effort to fasten its horrid claws into the flanks of my mare, ignoring my presence entirely. So I hurriedly knocked the tobacco from my pipe, and, stroking Petaluma on the shoulder, mounted her as rapidly as I ever had before in my life, and was no sooner seated firmly in my saddle than, without a word or other impulse from me, she made a bolt down the trail that nearly threw me over her head, at the same instant seeming to shrink convulsively in a frantic effort to look behind her.

I sympathetically turned my head around and gazed at the bare hilltop this side of the blasted cedars, and, to my horror, saw those great green eyes but a few rods behind me, following my trail with a sort of crouching, crawling motion, all ready, evidently, to spring the moment it had covered the right distance.

When I noticed that the cougar was crawling in its crouching attitude behind me I had presence of mind enough to think that if I reined my horse and made her walk, it would impress the cougar with the fact that I was there as well as the animal it wanted to devour for its late supper. I could thwart its designs, as I felt confident that where I had first seen the cougar, in a narrow valley, surrounded by lofty mountains, heavily timbered, the government had erected a blockhouse and a corral, in which were herded a number of horses and mules, to be used as relays between the military posts.

I hoped that I should be able to make that point in about two hours from the cluster of cedars, but now that the cougar had entered as a factor in my calculations, I did not know whether I should reach the blockhouse at all, or maybe only on foot, with my beautiful mare's bones left on the trail, picked clean by the vicious beast that was following me.

True to its instincts, it was really afraid of me. I succeeded with great difficulty, however, in coaxing my mare into a slow walk, the effect of which resulted as I surmised it would. The cougar ceased at once its fearful bounds, and settled down into a shambling sort of gait, dropping further behind me at the moment.

Desirous of knowing for a certainty whether my tactics were the sudden cause of the creature's abrupt change of movement, I allowed Petaluma to break into a quick lope, and the instant the huge cat noticed the mare's renewed effort to get away, it commenced its former action. I then slackened my gait, and to my intense satisfaction the cougar once more lagged behind, renewing its slow movements, and seemed to be now watching the rider closer than it did the mare.

I did not again dare to let Petaluma go any faster than a walk, and during the whole 12 miles to the blockhouse, as long as I maintained that slow gait, the cougar did not try to spring toward us.

After continuing in that tiresome manner for about four hours, I at last entered the little valley, and just as I rode out of the heavy timber into the bright moonlight, the terrible beast gave one awful roar and turned back into the forest, a sad and disappointed cougar.

I changed animals at the blockhouse and rode on to the river without further adventure, happy in having saved my beautiful Petaluma, and possibly myself, from the jaws of the hungry beast, which had been my unwelcome companion for so many weary miles.

An Old Record.

Some of the antiquities of this country which find their way into the museums are rivaled in age by a living creature at the Zoo. It is an alligator terrapin, or Mississippi snapper, whose 150 pounds of substance have been accumulated in a lifetime of five centuries or more. At least, that is what the scientists calculate, and they say that there is no reason to doubt that it was paddling around as a little turtle in the Mississippi when De Soto first gazed upon the river. The giant terrapin measures about five feet from snout to tip of tail, and during its residence at the Zoo it has grown not a particle. It is too lazy to move about much, and so nature has endowed it with special facilities for catching food. When hungry it lies in the water with its mouth wide open, and the bright little red tongue looks so much like a worm that it serves as a bait to attract fish, on which the terrapin feeds.—Philadelphia Record.

Herring Cream.

Freshen six herring for 24 hours, then cut them in pieces and place in a dish in which they are to be served. Place one cupful of not very strong vinegar in a sauce pan, add the beaten yolks of six eggs, one-half pound butter, two large grated onions, one heaping teaspoonful of mustard and one tablespoonful of sugar. Stir over the fire to a cream and when cool pour over the pieces of fish. Serve with hard boiled eggs, mushrooms, gherkins or button onions.—Toledo Blade.

LEGISLATIVE ROUTINE.

Briefly Showing Bills Introduced and Business Finished.

St. Paul, April 8.—The senate yesterday, after a long debate, passed the apportionment bill providing for 63 senators and 126 representatives.

In the house the following bills were given final action:

Fixing the salary of the secretary of the state board of health at $2,500; passed.

Providing that trust companies shall give bonds for fidelity the same as natural persons; passed.

For the relief of B. S. Russell and others; lost.

Forbidding the use of sectarian garb or sectarian instruction in public schools; passed.

Relating to bonding counties; passed.

To legalize bonds heretofore issued by counties in certain cases; passed.

To repeal an act authorizing county commissioners to acquire public parks; passed.

Providing that where county commissioners license a saloon within 160 rods of any village half the license fee shall go to the village; passed.

For relief of Henry Dillery; passed.

Providing for day schools for deaf children in special districts; lost.

For the relief of Mrs. Lambert; lost.

Providing that railroads shall build cattle sheds at all stations where 30 cars of cattle are shipped in the course of the previous season; passed.

Relating to replevin bonds; passed.

Relating to the security for costs in municipal courts; passed.

To regulate the filing of notices of real estate actions; lost.

St. Paul, April 9.—In the house yesterday a bill was introduced to provide for two additional bank examiners at an annual salary of $1,800 each, and to provide a further contingent fund of $1,800.

The following bills were passed:

To amend laws relating to the pay of county commissioners.

To amend the probate code.

To provide for county boards of visitors for correctional and charitable institutions.

Relating to free libraries; to the employment of children; to sale of municipal bonds; to common carriers; to adulterated dairy products; to the making of jury lists; to the care of insane persons; to the duties of township treasurers.

St. Paul, April 10.—The senate yesterday killed the department store bill.

The following bills were passed:

To prohibit minors from visiting immoral places.

Fixing the time for the election of clerks of the district court.

The house passed the following bills:

Providing for the licensing of pawnbrokers.

Concerning land titles. The Torrens system.

Relating to the pay of county commissioners.

To regulate rentals and charges of telephones.

St. Paul, April 12.—The reapportionment bill has passed both houses and only needs the signature of the governor to make it a law. The number of legislators is fixed at 119 representatives and 63 senators.

The house, Saturday, acted upon the following bills:

To establish state weighing of grain at Fergus Falls and Winona.

Relating to property exempt from execution.

Relating to securities in which savings banks may invest their funds, was held over. It was claimed this bill let down the bars and left the savings banks free to make most reckless investments.

To amend the forestry law regarding forest and prairie fires; lost. This indicates the fate of the continuation of the fire marshal's office.

Regulating the division of village and township funds when separated.

Relating to township indebtedness.

St. Paul, April 13.—The following bills were passed in the senate yesterday:

To abolish all special departments for the treatment of inebriates at the Rochester hospital for the insane.

To amend laws relating to the capital stock of manufacturing corporations.

To amend laws relating to the jurisdiction of justices of the peace in forcible entry and unlawful retainer.

Relating to place of holding court and office of justices of the peace.

Providing for the creation and organization of new counties and the government of the same.

To legalize and regulate cremation.

To prohibit the use of tobacco by minor persons under 18 years and by all minor pupils in public schools.

To encourage the cultivation of the sugar beet and prescribe rates of freight to be charged by railroads for transporting the same.

Making invalid all provisions or conditions declaring a forfeiture of the rights of any vendee or purchaser or his assigns in or to any contract or deed.

The Keller banking bill was passed, fixing the miuimum rate of interest on state funds as two per cent and allowing the treasurer to deposit money for three money at his own discretion as to the rate of interest.

Brief Minnesota Items.

The State Poultry association has elected the following officers: President, H. J. Jeddy; vice president, J. E. Heimve; secretary, William Brown; treasures, Mr. Griffin.

A verdict of not guilty was returned by the jury in the case of the state vs. O. Halden, auditor of St. Louis county, at Duluth, after being out thirty-five minutes.

The German American and Merchants' National banks, of St. Cloud, have decided to consolidate.

The roads are so bad that it costs 50 cents to transport 20 cents worth of oats from Tower to the Rainy Lake country.

The resignation of Cyrus H. Kellogg, of the state board of arbitration, has been handed to the governor. Mr. Kellogg feels that he has not time to devote to the work of the board, which, while not continuously onerous, may at any time require a large expenditure of time on the part of the members.

Bank Examiner C. H. Brush, who has had charge of the National Bank of Commerce of Duluth, which failed last summer, has been ordered to turn the bank over to its directors and the bank will pay in full.

William R. Merriam has been appointed receiver of the Minnesota Packing and Provision company and likewise of the St. Paul Refrigerator Car company.

Twenty-eight graduates received diplomas at the commencement exercises at the state agricultural school.

IN A SKYSCRAPER.

A Ludicrous Comedy Enacted in a New York Elevator.

Dan Griffin, the quaint South Boston cousin of Andrew Mack, the Irish comedian, paid the latter a visit while he laid over a day in New York before leaving for his Chicago engagement. The comedian had occasion to visit his lawyer, whose offices are on the top floor of one of the sky-scraping buildings on lower Broadway. He thought it would entertain his cousin Dan to be shown some of the sights, so he took him along. When he reached the building he told Dan to wait for him, while he went up in the elevator. The Bostonian had never seen such fast moving elevators before and became deeply interested. It finally occurred to him that he might as well take a ride as to stand around and do nothing while waiting for Mack. As he went up Mack came down and the elevator dispatcher said to him:

"Your friend just went up in the elevator. I think he's looking for you."

Mack took the next elevator up. Just then his cousin came down. He looked all around and then inquired of the elevator man:

"Have you seen my friend Mack?"

"Yes, he just went up this minute."

Griffin took the next elevator, and he was no more than out of sight till Mack came down again.

"Your friend has just gone up again," said the elevator man.

"I guess he'll wait for me this time, so I'll go up," and up he went.

Down came Mack a second afterward.

"Did my friend Griffin come down again?" he inquired.

"Yes, and just went up again. He thought you would wait for him."

"Well, I'll wait here."

He waited about five minutes, and then, growing impatient, took an elevator upstairs. Griffin had been waiting for him upstairs and came down just as Mack disappeared.

"Well, I'll wait for him and catch him this time," said Griffin.

After standing in the corridor several minutes he decided to go upstairs and find him. As he was whisked out of sight Mack stepped out of another elevator.

"Your friend has just gone up," said the elevator man.

Mack swore a little under his breath and started to leave the building. At the door he hesitated and changed his mind, and took the next elevator up. Down came his cousin Dan at the same moment.

"He's just gone up again," was the elevator man's answer to his weary look of inquiry, "and he's as mad as a hornet."

"Then I'd better go right up and catch him," said Dan.

Up he went and down Mack came.

"Just went up," remarked the elevator man.

"I'm demmed if I'm going up again," said Mack. "I'll wait right here," and he sat down on the stairs.

"I hope they'll meet in Heaven," remarked the elevator man.

Finally one of the elevators stopped running, and Cousin Jim came down, greatly to Mack's relief, for he was beginning to despair about getting to Chicago.—Theatrical Tidings.

RED IN MILLINERY.

The Newest Hats Have Conspicuous and Startling Colors.

If color can sound the note of the new millinery, red bids fair to reign supreme in this branch of fashion. The first display of spring hats and bonnets is always a jumble of startling colors and shapes, altogether discouraging to the women who prefer elegant and not conspicuous headgear, but as the season advances the popinjay style of hat disappears and good taste and moderation have an inning. Just at present red straw, red tulle, and red flowers, in more shades than nature can produce, are combined in one hat. Poppies and geraniums have the lead in red blossoms, but there are green silk poppies in pretty, soft shades, with black centers, which are very effective on a black hat with green ribbon and black tulle or kilted chiffon, which is one of the special features of millinery.

Tulle, with narrow satin straw sewn on in many rows, is used for bows, and sequined net will be much employed. Aigrettes of all sorts and kinds are in order, as are black and white paradise plumes, and ostrich feathers curled round the top in a sort of fringe. Every kind of ornament in gold, pearl, steel, jet and rhinestones will be used and a great deal of horsehair lace which is well-spangled. Moire, glace and gauze ribbons are the special kinds in favor, and white, in ribbon flowers, lace and tulle, will be much worn when the warm days come.

With most kinds of flowers foliage will have a very important place, and lilies of the valley, sweet peas, Scotch thistles, and both white and colored violets are choice selections. Yellow flowers are to be much worn, and cowslips arranged to stand up in a sort of fringe or comb at the back of the hat are a novel fancy.

The fashion of wearing the hats well tilted over the eyes promises to continue throughout the summer, and certainly the shade given to the eyes is always acceptable even though it is not always becoming. The shapes in hats are legion, since so many are made to order out of the pretty soft braids by the milliners to suit the wearer; but the sailor shape, with the plain, straight brim and medium low crown, will not be ousted.—N. Y. Sun.

Fluffy Hair.

To arrange the hair fluffily and yet securely is the despair of the amateur. A "woman who knows" says an infallible way of keeping the hair in position is this: Take a small strand at the middle of the crown, a trifle higher or lower, according to the style required; twist this closely and make it secure with hairpins; then brush and arrange the hair over this little knot. A strand of perhaps two fingers' thickness should be used. It furnishes a solid something upon which to fasten the loose, wavy superstructure and make it secure.—Chicago Tribune.

Vermont's Brown Bread.

One pint of cornmeal, one pint a little over half of rye and the rest wheat flour, one teaspoonful of ginger, one teaspoonful of salt, one heaping teaspoonful of soda dissolved in one cupful of sweet milk, one cupful of sour milk, one cupful of molasses. Mix in the order given and steam three hours, being very careful that the water does not stop boiling, as it would make the bread fall.—Boston Globe.

Always to Be Found.

A great advantage in using the ammunition manufactured by the Winchester Arms Co., New Haven, Ct. It is said that it can always be found even in the most remote and out of the way parts of the world. There are so many Winchester guns in use that there is a great demand for Winchester ammunition everywhere. No matter what kind of a gun you shoot, you can get ammunition for it if you ask for the Winchester make. This great house makes all sizes of metallic cartridges from BB caps to 58-caliber and in shot gun ammunition from 4 to 20 gauge. Ideal farming comprehends not only the growing of the tallest grain—the most tons-to-the-acre of hay; the best farming—the farming that pays—must contemplate something more than this; for there is a harvest time, and just in proportion as a crop is saved successfully, speedily and economically, in just that proportion may be measured the season's profit or loss.

McCORMICK

Harvesting Machines are the profit-bringing kind; they are built for long wear, hard work, light draft, and in short, to satisfy. There are other kinds that don't cost as much, but there's nothing cheaper than the best.

REASONS FOR USING

Walter Baker & Co.'s Breakfast Cocoa.

1. Because it is absolutely pure.
2. Because it is not made by the so-called Dutch Process in which chemicals are used.
3. Because beans of the finest quality are used.
4. Because it is made by a method which preserves unimpaired the exquisite natural flavor and odor of the beans.
5. Because it is the most economical, costing less than one cent a cup.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, APR. 16, '97.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

Read our Buffalo, Rockford and Independence items.

—John W. McDonnell now drives a single rig. His horses came unhitched the other day and spoiled the double outfit.

—Horseback riding is again becoming fashionable as the warm weather comes on. It is a healthy and pleasant exercise.

—Simon Weldele is the early bird at least he got his crew at work laying the foundation for his new building before the other builders did.

—George P. Schaffer shipped 660 doz. of eggs on Saturday and had left on hand about 190 doz. more. Who says the hen industry is not prospering.

—P. H. Greear of Kentucky, gives it as his opinion that Kentucky will go without a Senator for sometime yet. P. H. Is still interested in Blue Grass politics.

—Several of our citizens insist that on Tuesday evening they saw strange lights in the western heavens, but are not prepared to pronounce the apparition an air-ship.

—Presiding Elder Chaffee preached one of his good sermons at the M. E. Church, Sunday evening. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered after the preaching.

—April 18 will be Easter Sunday. Colored eggs have already made their appearance in town. At present prices 7 cents per dozen children can have all they want at little expense.

—C. Moores and two sons, formerly of Rockford, has returned from Devil's Lake country. He brought with him a carload of Holstein milk cows and has been offering them for sale here for several days.

—The Board of Supervisors met Saturday and opened bids for wheel scrapers. The contract was let to E. H. Buck for 6 wheel scrapers at $30. each, to J. W. & F. Q. Lindsley, ten Columbus Drag Scrapers, at $5.50 each. Passed a resolution asking for $200 appropriation from the county, $100 for Pioneer Creek bridge, $100 for Bain's hill. Also signed road warrants.

—Al Hitzman lately returned from a short time to Iowa. He purchased two good teams while there. He says horses are higher than they have been. Most everybody is hard-up and has disposed of all they could spare. Those left are the best and held at higher figures, most of them bringing $100 or more. He says he can buy all the corn he wants there for 7 cents per bushel, and good corn too.

—Bicycle riders have run into some of our citizens on the sidewalk. Those fellows that ride recklessley whether on the side-walk or in the street are in danger of running over someone; or frightening a team. They should either ride as they should, or stop altogether. The exercise seems to be enjoyed very much by those engaging in it, but pedestrians have some rights, especially on sidewalks.

—Two run-a-ways occurred in quick snecession Fair Day. A double team with a light wagon came from near the cattleyard and Mr. Redmond stopped them on the R. R. track and River St. The loss of a few eggs which had been brought to market was the only result. Then came Thadius S. Kerr's gentle equine headed for home with a buggy full of shingles, etc. Dr. Soper captured him in fine style. No damage.

—It is to be hoped that our school board will try and see that the markings of our teachers and those of the State Board will harmonize a little better. It is very discouraging to pupils and parents to have such a discrepency occur if the trouble is with the State Board or with our teachers it should be corrected. From complaints from other places we incline to the belief that it is not all at home.

—The Ida Grove Era, (Iowa), says: there has been 75 applications for the principalship of their schools, filed with the board, not withstanding the salary has been reduced to $1000 a year. Of the list of names published, 56 are from Iowa; 7 from Illinois; 5 from Michigan; 2 from S. Dakota; 2 from Nebraska; 1 from Ohio; and 1 from LeSueur, and 1 from Willmar, Minnesota. Three of the number are females.

—Our village street committee should take the broad hint recently given by people on the Montrose road hauling their milk to Montrose instead of Delano because the road was better. The clay hill should be graded, or the road made in some other place so that when ever it is a little wet people will not stay at home or go to Montrose. Several other places on othea suburban roads leading in from the country could be looked after nothing like having good roads in every direction.

—To us it seems like a quear ruling that permits the St. Paul Dispatch to bring men onto the witness stand to say that they thought that John Lind, because he belonged to the Turners, was an infidel; and to exclude Rev. J. W. Powell, our former pastor, from the list of Mr. Lind's witnesse's because he would testify that he christened one of John Lind's children, and considered Mr. Lind a man believing in God and in Christianity. If it is sought to prove that a man is an infidel it surely seems right for him to have witnesses to prove to the contrary.

—Easter Exercises on Sunday evening at the M. E. Church.

Surveyor Eaton, of Buffalo, was assisting Dr. Shrader in finding lines today.

Band Concert at the City Hall Monday evening. W. I. Nolan to be on hand. Give the Band a boost.

—M. J. Stone has purchased Mat Tompers blacksmith shop on Bridge street and will keep a shop there in the future.

—A boot-black hailing from Sioux City spent several days in Delano this week. That business does not thrive very well here.

—Conzet and Plattner have clipped there horses. They look well in motion, but it looks kind of strange to see men with fur overcoats on and clipped horses all on the same road.

—The new village fire alarm bell arrived yesterday. It looks as if it might be able to wake up the natives in case it should be rung. We understand the old one will be put up on the south side of the track, giving the town two bells.

—Joe Rousseau has more of a cheek than any other man in our village—not owing to disposition but merely due to an attacd of mumps.—Annandale Post.

Joe didn't use to be considered overly cheeky when he lived in Delano.

—Charley Brunkow has bought the stock of goods of Mrs. Berneck and is moving into the building she recently occupied.

—The egg manufacturers seem determined to flood the market with their products betore the protective tariff is raised. Can it be the hens have turned free traders?

—Roscoe Sturman entertained a number of his young friends on Thursday, April 15, at his birthday party. He is 13 years old. They had good cake, and did not forget to bring ye editor a liberal allowance. May he have many more birthdays as happy as this.

- School will begin Monday. Every pupil should be in his place and attack his studies with renewed diligence. Our school depends largely on what the pupils make of it. If you want a good school help make it so behaving well and having good lessons every day during the term.

Health Notice.

To the citizens of Delano: You are hereby notified to clean up and put in order your cellars, lots and alleys; carting all rubbish, decayed vegetable or animal matter to such place as directed by the street commissioner, on or before May 1, 1897.

DELANO, April 16, 1897.

By order of Board of Health,
T. J. CATLIN, M. D., H. O.

Personal.

Miss Anna Parslow began school in Dist. 48 last Monday.

M. A. O'Hair visited Minneapolis on business Wednesday.

Will Jacobs, of Rockford, drove over Wednesday, on business.

Andrew Ames, of Minneapolis is stopping in the village for a time.

Rev. Farber has been spending a week at his farm in Renville County.

Joseph Kubon, of Minneapolis, visited old time friends in Delano yesterday.

D. R. Thompson and son went this way to Minneapolis Wednesday evening.

John C. Arup returned from Cokato where he has been under medical treatment, Wednesday.

Mrs. L. W. Everson, came up from Minneapolis Sunday evening to keep house for her husband.

John McGary, of Independence, discussed the "situation" with some of our citizens one day this week.

Mrs. M. A. Chance, of Minneapolis, was in town today looking after her property and visiting friends.

Frank Gorman, Buffalo's obliging liveryman, was in town Tuesday, on his way "around the horn".

Albert Sosnik and Louis Nestroy who have been west, are enjoying a visit with friends and relatives at home.

Prof. L. H. Pryor, principal of Montrose school, and Peter Marsh, of Rockford, made us a pleasant visit Saturday.

Charles Brasie and his sister-in-law, Miss Brown, of Litchfield, accompanied the remains of Mr. Brasie's father via Delano to Buffalo today.

Johnnie Cook, Jim Hill, and Mat Cernis went to Dawson, Montana, last Sunday evening to work for Jim Hill. Charley Sunday went Monday morning.

County Cullings.

Some of our candidates who ran on more than one ticket last fall, and paid more than one fee for the privilege will now have a chance to recover what they paid over the one fee; as the Supreme Court thus decides. Several defeated candidates in our county will now have a small wave of prosperity strike them.

Our local game warden made a good haul some days ago when he dropped down on Mr. and Mrs. Mattson more commonly called "Fish Mattson" taking with them three nets and seventeen fish among which was a pickerel and a pike. The parties were taken before Justice Carlson and pleaded guilty and were fined $25.00. There will be some more catch it if there is not more respect paid to the law.—Cokato Enterprise.

Late Literary News.

"Does Modern College Education Educate, in the Broadest and most Liberal Sense of the Term?" is one of the most important inquiries that could be set on foot. This discussion, which is to be taken part in by President Gilman of the Johns Hopkins, President Dwight of Yale, President Schurman of Cornell, President Morton of the Stevens Institute, Henry Thurston Peck of Columbia, Bishop Potter and others of the most distinguished men of both the United States and Europe, is begun in the April COSMOPOLITAN by a radical inquirery into the educational problem along the lines of Herbert Spencer. President Gilman will follow in a direction almost equally searching. Altogether there is promised the frankest possible expression of opinion, and it seems probable that it will be the most thorough comparison ever made of educational methods with the needs of every-day life at the close of the nineteenth century.

BUFFALO BUNTS.

John Varner visited Minneapolis Sunday.

Abe Richards left for Wyboux, Montana, last Monday.

Miss Kate Kelley has been spending her vacation from the Delano School at her home near town.

Born,—To Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Barr, Sunday April 11, a girl.

L. H. Sennet of Maple Lake was in town Saturday.

The Park Hotel has recently had a tile floor put in the office which greatly improves its appearance.

Miss Lillybelle Patterson of Minneapolis has opened a millinery store in the Baltiff building on Ash street.

W. H. Frazee of Delano was in town Wednesday.

H. B. Cady visited Minneapolis Friday.

O'Leary and Olson have moved into the Knights' store building.

C. A. Schultz of Montrose will open a saloon in the building he recently purchased of H. B. Cady, about April 22nd.

Gilchrist has opened a butcher shop in their building recently erected.

Miss Nettie Harris of Painsville has been the girl of her uncle H. S. Lord and family the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Lamson will soon occupy their residence on Court House Avenue again.

The Temperance meeting will be held in the Presbyterian church next Sunday evening.

Loren Cole, Albert Cooper and Anton Noren were brought before Justice Cochrane last Friday charged with spearing fish and each was fined six dollars and seventy five cents.

Farm, Stock and Home: It is said that Mr. Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, is going to send out some men with the ducats necessary to the building of beet sugar factories. That is now the most essential thing in the developement of sugar industry.

ROCKFORD RUMBLINGS.

Married,—at Marshall, Minn, on April 5, 1897, at the bride's father's, Mr. Samuel J. Waren and Miss Maud Downie. They came to Rockford on Tuesday, to visit his father's family, Mr. M. G. Waren. Sam made it right with the boys, so the musical programme was omitted. They held a reception on Friday evening for old friends and associates. They will be at home, at Aitkin, Minn., after April 26.

Married,—at Minneapolis, April 6, by Rev. M. D. Shutter, Mr. Ed. C. William, of Sioux City, Iowa, and Mrs. Ida Smart, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mack, of Rockford. They visited the old folks at home, on Wednesday. They held a reception at Mr. Mack's on Thursday and left for Sioux City on Saturday.

Died,—in North Rockford, April 7, 1897, Noble E. Stewart, aged 62 years. The funeral was held at the Presbyterian church in this village, April 9, Rev. Mr. Fletcher, of Buffalo, officiating.

Mr. Stewart was one of our early settlers. He came from Ashtabula County, Ohio, and went onto land in heavy timber where he has worked for more than thirty years and has a fine farm and nice home. He has always been an industrious, quiet, good citizen, and will be sadly missed in the community. He rests in Elmwood.

The water has fallen slowly in the river and the river is drying up and seeding will soon be in order.

Several citizens were quite excited on Saturday evening about nine o'clock looking at what they supposed to be the mysterious airship or something of that kind that has been seen so often in the North West during the past week. A bright light travelling slowly toward the West; no ship to be seen. The light was about like a common globe lantern at the distance of 100 feet, or the headlight of an engine at 1 mile's distance, possibly the evening star, or the star of Bethlehem, or Jim Hill's star.

P. M., D. D. Ames and children went to Minneapolis on Sunday, on the Soo. Mr. Ames is in rather poor health, hardly able to attend to the business of the Post Office. A. C. Farnham is attending to the business of the office for him this week. Messrs J. W. Powers, Alex Liederbaugh and Mrs. D. J. Drayn also went to the city on the Sunday train.

The dog law suit did not turn out big on Monday as expected. O. L. Billings and J. H. Wendell were here and Centennial Hall was engaged and the community were expecting quite a show, but the defendant, Owen Davis, waived an examination and gave bonds for his appearance before the Grand Jury at next term of court. A little bill for the county to pay, it may be several little bills before the dog is fairly dead and buried.

The creamery started up on Monday. Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday are the running days for the present.

Mr. Lawson Conklin is rather dangerously sick. Two doctors decided yesterday that it was some dearrangement of the liver and a critical case.

Our teachers, Mr. Galloway and Miss Bunker returned from their rather short vacation on Saturday and school opened again on Monday. Our school seems to run very smoothly this year and all seem to be doing well; all hard working and interested teachers.

Mrs. Lydia W. Smith and mother moved to the city last week, and will reside there in the future.

Another dog killing law suit is on the docket. This time it is Will Kesler on the State Plaintiff and Wm. Swartout defendant. Whether a civil or criminal action, is not yet determined. Very likely, Hennepin county will be called on to pay a few small dog court cost bills. Hizzonor, Judge G. W. Florida will preside.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Monday's storm will put seeding back several days.

The road was drying up quite fast before the storm but now they will be bad again.

The fish crop has been quite good this spring.

Harve Williams arived home from the woods one day last week says logging was hard last winter.

Machine agents are quite plenty this spring.

The two creameries in Independence no dout will prove to be paying inyestments to the farmers. It is said C. H. Carpenter, of Minneapolis, will stock up his farm in Independence with cows.

Most af those who have been on the sick list are improving.

Monday's storm will bring another good run of sap.

The lateness of the season will hurry the farmers up this spring but prosperity and everything else has been under water; so we must keep up courage and have confidence.

The State Legislature and the crazy house will soon be things of the past.

Some of the members of the Legislature want a state appropriation for another Normal School. We have too many of them already.

What about that firm that just failed in Chicago. Which during last fall's campaign made a great spread by putting the Mexican silver dollar on sale at 53 cents. Sometimes fools perish by their own blindness. Mark Hanna should see that the members of this firm are kept out of the poor house. Do you hear much now days about anarchists, repidiators and a 53 cent silver dollar. All are more plenty now than they were last fall. There should be a searching committee appointed with a locomotive head light to look them up.

A Washington paper in speaking of Charley Town, of Minnesota, says, in substance, that he is a tower of strength in politics. How foolish in some of the newspapers of the 6th Congressional District, of Minnesota, to be trying to put him down. All their efforts will prove a complete failure.

Will some of the republican papers please tell how many cities went democratic this spring? What about Canton, and Mark Hanna's district? Oh, they say, that's nothing; but when it is on the other side it always means something. It means just this much now if there was a Presidential election to-morrow, McKinley would be snowed under so deep that it would take a post mortem investigation to find him, people have. Found out that there are some things impossable or some things that are not possible.

If the republicans last fall had made their fight on a square deal we would not say a word, but when they called good true loyal men, Anarchists and Repudiators because they believed in free coinage of silver and the money of the constitution, we cannot pass it by without putting in a kick. It is too serious a thing to be called traitors to your country, when we were free born and have always stood by the flag paid our taxes, etc., without a murmur. But I am looking for no great reformation from any party for we have got into a Chaotic State from which we will never be pulled out by the powers that be. For it would take a ball of lobelia, as big as the moon, to purge this country of its sin and iniquity, politics and the devil have gone in partnership, have put their advertisements on the door posts, and are now ready to do business at any hour of the day or night. The sign on their shingle can always be read. A. FARMER.

DIED.

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

THE Minneapolis Tribune is booming Loren Fletcher for another term in Congress. We predict, right now, that the next Congressman from the 5th District will favor the free and unlimited coinage of silver and we don't presume your Uncle Loren will get it on those grounds

THE strong winds together with the high water along the Red River Valley have been distructive to property this week. People are suffering from cold and hunger, being driven from their homes and in many instances their houses washed away, leaving them no place to return to after the floods have subsided. Government aid has been asked for.

CONGRESS has been fooling around and voted that the new tariff law when passed shall take effect April 1, when it may not become a law for months or maybe never. What foolishness! Should the next Congress choose to they could as well vote that every man who advocated a protective tariff be confined in the penetentiary or an insane asylum: such law to take effect March 4, '97. Every school boy knows ex-post-facto laws want work in this country.

IF the story in the Globe credited London Times, concerning the brutal punishments inflicted on French soldiers by their commanders in Southern Africa is true something ought to be done about it. It is claimed that for a minor breach of discipline a soldier was tied to the tail of an unshod stallion which was turned loose in a ring, and dragged three times around the ring and then it took some time to catch the animal before the man could be liberated. This is inhuman, and if it is true ought to be stopped. If it is not true the person who gave it out for a fact should be stopped from writing such things.

MAYOR DORAN of St. Paul, ordered music and acting by female talent on Sunday evening suppressed. The Globe says it was suppressed but that male preformers from Chicago had been sent for; so the Mayor will have to order them stopped also, or have Sunday desecrated anyway. All good citizens of the cities or in the country favor observing Sunday with respect and not with carousals. There are laws on the statute books for the Governor or for the Mayor to enforce. They make oath when they accept office that they will endeavor to enforce the laws. It is not for them to say which laws they will and which they will not enforce, but to enforce the laws as they are made to enforce.

THE Scientific American says the system of insuring against want of employment which has existed for two or three years, in Switzerland has been abandoned. After June 30 no more insurance will be given. Those who have work, it is claimed have to support too many idlers. Some from a distance moving into districts where insurance can be had for the purpose of living off of the thrifty. So it seems that the insurance against want of work rather tends to make idlers, and hence its abolition.

THE genial William Henry Eustis is reported to have held the third of a series of dinners at the West Hotel Sunday evening with noted republican politcians: olive branches etc., etc. Gov. Clough, Lieut. Gov. Gibbs several senators and other leaders were present. It seems that on account of the lack of harmony between Senators Davis and Nelson things don't come to Minnesota very fast: or this may be only an excuse to put off the hungry office seekers in this "certain republican" state while the "doubtful" get the offices. At all events it looks, so far, as if William Henry didn't know so much about "putting the pin in the right place in the evener" as he claimed last fall to have known when he was a boy: or why don't Minnesota get her share of the "pull". The other fellow must have got onto William Henry's trick of "moving the bail along on the pole", and is keeping the "water" all for himself, or can it be possible that he is only attracting the attention of the "other fellow" while he moves the bail along to the advantage of William Henry as he used to do with his brother?

A YOUNG lady must be wonderfully anxious to acquire a musical education to sell her middle finger for $1000, as a New York dispatch reports one of the fair maids of that city is doing, in answer to an advertisement for such a finger to be grown onto a wealthy Texas lady's hand by a surgeon. The chances are she had better keep her finger even if she has to wash dishes until she can earn enough to graduate in music.

THE thirteenth session of the Legislature adjourned Wednesday, April 21. It was a stormy time they had. But they seem to have accomplished very little. The laws they made will be published by the newspapers in a few days. Every citizen should look them carefully over, at least, and if particularly interested in any among them he should read it until he understands what it means and then he will know and can govern himself accordingly.

ACCORDING to the Scientific American, horseless cabs have been licensed to run on New York streets. Thus the horse is still further supplanted. It looks some as if the horse would evidently become almost extinct in this country. A few years ago almost every farmer had oxen, and thought they could not farm without them, they gave place to horses. Now steam does the thrashing, and seems to be coming in for a share of other work formely done by horses. Soon steam will be superseded by electricity, compressed air, or other force. So the world becomes wiser and improvements are made.

THE Legislature missed a chance to aid their former constituents when it failed to make an appropriation to aid in checking the spread of hog cholera in Minnesota. Secretary Bracken of the State Board is reported as saying: "Last year the disease spread to such an extent that 33 counties were infested. The state lost at least $2,000,000 worth of hogs." It would be far better for our farmers to preserve what they have; to save millions already in their possession, than to venture on new and untried fields while what they have perishes. But the Hon's. seem to have thought differently, when they voted for the $5000, to send off to foreign lands, or to some speculating syndicate who has a lot of beet seed for sale, while our farmer friends have there share of it added to their taxes already high enough, and if their hogs are to be left to die with cholera, too high. If there is such a fortune in raising sugar beets why don't these manipulators build a factory and say what they will pay for beets, the farmers will do the rest, provided the price is enough to pay them well for raising beets. Anything that is not capable of making a living without a bonus is laboring under disadvantages.

Considerably Mixed.

The reporter for the Evening Press who got off the following must have been out looking for the air ship as none of our representatives sails under that name at home:

"Mr. Grondahl precipated some fun with a resolution that where Hon Nels Nyquist, the member from Wright County, had been arrested for riding his bicycle over a girl in St. Paul, and is out on $25 bail, and whereas the state constitution guarantees members of the legislature freedom from arrest, that a committee named be appointed to defend Nyquist, and the member have a half holiday on the day of the trial, next Friday.

Nr Nyquist (From his place)—'Ay tank de laggeslature of Mensota is to be proud eef only one member of laggeslature has ben riding over a girl des vinter." (Great laughter.)

The resolution was refered to the committee on public "lands"."

To Receive Proper Attention.

Complaints having become so numerous regarding the markings of High School examination papers we took the matter up, determined if possible, to find out where the trouble lies, and to aid in having justice done all around. We have not learned exactly where the trouble is; but suspect there is a little fault in several places, and from a letter received from Prof. Aiton, State Inspector of High Schools, who says it is not his work; and the lack of an explanation from President Northrop, whose name appears on each certificate issued, we are confirmed in our belief that things have been loosely run along this line.

Professor Aiton's letter is as follows:

Residence GEORGE B. AITON, State Inspector of High Schools:
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 19, 1897.
EDITOR T. J. CATLIN,
DELANO, Minn.
Dear Sir:—

Two numbers of your paper have awaited my return from a trip. So far as I know or have any reason to suppose the papers are marked with care and impartiality by those who have experience and ability Most of the cutting down of which complaint is made is due to the fact that local instuctors mark the efforts of their pupils too liberally. I know that when I began teaching my markings were from 10 to 40 per cent. higher than they should have been. Although the examinations are in no way a part of our work Mr. Rankin and I have agreed to take charge of the marking next June. A corps of markers will be brought together by the President and placed under our direction in one of the University buildings.

Yours truly,
GEO. B. AITON.

So far as the main point we tried to make, that a proper supervision of markings by the State Board be had, we feel that the agreement of the two gentlemen named in the letter, to take charge of the marking in June, is a move in the right direction, and will insure thorough work so far as they can get it.

We hope the students will do their best: that the teachers will be careful and mark papers without showing too much sympathy for themselves and their pupils, and we trust that the June examinations will prove more satisfactory than have former occasions of the kind.

Among our Exchanges.

Farm, Stock and Home: A neighbor says that dry slaked lime and sulpher—5 lbs. lime to 1 oz. sulpher—sifted on, will give cabbage worms that tired feeling.

Poultry Keeper, Parkersburg, Pa: Canada sold us $2,000,000 worth of eggs every year until we put a tariff on eggs. But she know sends them to England and buys many of her goods where she sells her eggs.

It is said that gold is soon to be put up another notch in value, owing to the active demand for the yellow metal from Russia, Austria and Japan. Another burden for the man in diet. —St. Clould Times.

Duluth Herald: An immense beet sugar factory of 3000 tons of beets capacity daily, is uncer construction at Saline, Cal. It will be finished by the spring of 4898, and the product of 40,000 acres will be required to feed it.

Minneapoplis Tribune: Gloating over the personal or pecuniary misfortunes of a political opponent is hardly high class journalism but some of the newspaper enemies of ex-Governor Merriam lose no opportunity to do so.

St. Paul Globe: Thanks to the rush of merchants to get goods out of bond under the Wilson tariff, the receipts of the government for March were $9,000,000 more than the expenditures. it want be long before we will hear Republicans blowing about this as an evidence of prosperity under McKinley's rule.

The state senate is a true friend of the railroads. The bill to have the railroad commissioners elected by the people, the Douglas bill to regulate freight rates, and other acts calculated to correct abuses by these corporations have been promptly killed in the senate when they reach that body. If Jim Hill himself were the entire senate he could not be more friendly to the railroads than is a majority of that august body.—Litchfield Independent.

Evening Press; Henry Clews, in his weekly letter, touched the appointment of the monetary commission with very long tongs. He said:

"At present it would be premature to say what are the chances for bringing about another convention, or of such a convention agreeing upon a plan of international cooperation; but even should neither be accomplished, the effect will be a large contribution towards a final disposal of our own silver question; for the failure would deprive the the silver party of its most conservative and influential element, the intelligent bimetallist; and composed of free coinage advocates pure and simple that faction would stand more than ever discredited before the country and deprived of a very essential element of political support."

Pioneer Press: Ex-President Harrison says that nearly the whole business of the country is now done by corporations and that their organization was invited by the people themselves. No one disputes this latter assertion, nor the fact that the work of corporations in building up the country has been in the main highly beneficial. But the abuse of the corporation idea in fostering monopolies and trusts has awakened the people to the necessity of some check upon organizations which, as was remarked by Judge Peckham in the recent supreme court decision, have acquired a power dangerous to the whole country. Hence General Harrison is again right when he says that "five sixths of the voters of the country favor revision of corporation laws, limiting the purposes for which corporations may be organized, supervising the issuing of stocks and bonds, and putting other restraints upon them."

Contagious Disease.

Pioneer Press: The carelessness or ignorance of some parents in regard to the spreading of contagious diseases is shown by the fact that a single day's investigation, by the inspectors of the New York board of health recently, showed that, out of 4,255 children examined, 140 were found suffering from diseases such as made them dangerous centers of infection, and justified their exclusion from the schools. Fourteen appeared to have diphtheria, and from this, the most alarming disease, the complaints graduated down to various skin diseases.

Ice Cream.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman says that the unhelesomeness of ice cream is most apt to result from the character of the flavoring extracts used therein. Vanilla is a drug which should under no circumstances be taken into the stomach too freely and when adulterated it is sometimes virulently poisonous. The only safe flavorings are pure, expressed juices of fruits. Next to the flavoring extracts come stale eggs which more often than dirty milk are responsible for unholesome ice cream.—Oregon Agriculturist.

Nest Eggs.

An egg will remain fresh but a short time during very warm days and especially if left in the nest to be occasionally warmed by the hens when they go on the nest to lay. When they become very stale, there is sometimes an accumulation of gas, the consequence being that the egg will burst in the nests discharging its contents over the materials in the nests and over the hens. As the lice delight in filth, this condition of things will be very favorable to them, and they will multiply so rapidly as to cause surprise. Never use eggs as nest eggs at any season of the year.—The Poultry keeper.

Conquered Cargill.

The following is taken from the St. Paul Globe:

Some time ago J. P. Moran, of Degraff, Minn., filed an informal complaint with the railroad and warehouse commission against the Cargill Elevator company of Minneapolis, against which concern there has been two or three other complaints during the past year. Mr. Moran says that he placed some wheat in one of the Cargill elevators last fall, and on the afternoon of the same day he attempted to sell the wheat, but was given two cents less for wheat in stock than while in the wagon. Mr. Moran claims this was unfair and discriminating. The commission took the matter up, and yesterday the Cargill Elevator Co. agreed to pay the difference which amounted to two cents per bushel. The law onder which the commission proceeded is called the "farmers' law", and its practical value is seen in the success of the above issue raised by Moran.—Benson Times.

Late Literary News.

"Does Modern College Education Educate, in the Broadest and most Liberal Sense of the Term?" is one of the most important inquiries that could be set on foot. This discussion, which is to be taken part in by President Gilman of the Johns Hopkins, President Dwight of Yale, President Schurman of Cornell, President Morton of the Stevens Institute, Henry Thurston Peck of Columbia, Bishop Potter and others of the most distinguished men of both the United States and Europe, is begun in the April COSMOPOLITAN by a radical inquirery into the educational problem along the lines of Herbert Spencer. President Gilman will follow in a direction almost equally searching. Altogether there is promised the frankest possible expression of opinion, and it seems probable that it will be the most thorough comparison ever made of educational methods with the needs of every-day life at the close of the nineteenth century

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16, 1897.

Senator Gorman took occasion to give the republicans a little plain talking to concerning their failure to accept the very fair proposition made to them for filling the committee vacancies and the consequent failure to give the appropriation bills which failed at the last session the proper committee consideration, just before the Indian bill was taken up. The total of these appropriations will be more than $73,000,000, and Mr. Gorman said that a careful consideration of them might result in a reduction of at least $10,000,000. He also said that it was time to call a halt in the vast expenditures authorized by Congress; that the limit of expenditures ought to be near now that an era of peace seemed tobe at hand, and that he thought it was also time to limit the expenditurers on rivers and harbors. He closed by saying that the demo crats could do no more than call the attention of Senators on the other side to the urgent need of retrenchment. It is not expected that Mr. Gorman's warning words will have any effect, but all the same they were timely, and it was entirely proper that they should have been spoken by a democrat. The country will heed, if the republicans in Congress do not.

Nothing in the eloquent address made by Mr. Bryan at the Jefferson birthday banquet, a gathering of democrats that will not soon be forgotten, was more important or significant than the following words: "The position taken by the democratic party in 1896 will not be surrendered. If you doubt the permanency of the Chicago platform as a party creed, go among the rank and file of the party and measure the zeal and enthusiasm which that platform has aroused, and you will realize the impossibility of taking a backward step. True, the present administration is to turn public attention to the tariff question, but if our reasoning is well-founded, an increase of taxes cannot restore prosperity to the producers of wealth. In fact, we contend that neither high taxation nor low taxation can bring prosperity to the people, so long as an appreciating dollar continues to give the money owner an advantage over the rest of the people. The money question must be the paramount issue of the next campaign, as it was of the last. If the Dingley bill brings genuine and permanent prosperity, the democratic party will not be in a position to win a contest by opposing it. If on the other hand, the Dingley bill proves a disappointment to those who advocate it, our position of 1896 will be strengthened, and public attention will be riveted upon the fact that the cause of financial depression is to be found in our monetary system."

Senator Nelson, of Minn. although a republican, is in sympathy with the efforts made by the democrats in the House to amend the tariff bill by authorizing the President to suspend the collection of duties upon any imported article, the home product of which is shown to be controlled by a trust, as he has given notice of his intention to offer the same amendment when the tariff bill gets before the Senate.

Secretary Gage's answer to the Senate resolution concerning the issue of orders by the Secretary of the Treasury to Collectors of Customs in relation to carrying out the retroactive clause of the republican tariff bill not being at all satisfactory, Senator Vest offered a resolution declaring this order to be without authority of law and in violation of the statutes, and by a bare majority of one it was referred to the Finance Committee, to be pigeon-holed.

Democrats would be delighted to see Mr. McKinley's bluff, otherwise known as the special diplomatic commission to visit Europe with power to negotiate with the governments of that section in behalf of international bimetallism, succeed in accomplishing something tangible, but none of them have the slightest idea that it will. The Commissioners, Senator Wolcott, Gen Paine, of Mass., and Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson, of Ills., are capable men, and their failure to accomplish an impossibility will be no reflection on them.

Senator Morgan closed his long speech in favor of his resolution recognizing the Cubans as belligerents by declaring that whatever action this country might or might not take towards Cuba the freedom of the island was written in the stars.

Senator Chandler's bills for the seizure of the armor plants of the Bethelehem and Carnegie Steel companies by the government, represented a very dangerous sorrt of bluff, for it is evident they are nothing else. That these companies have been extortionate in their dealings with the government is true, but that does't give Congress any right to confiscate their properity.

This country is hardly fenced in yet as far as new railroads are concerned. The United States has only 5.7 miles of track per square mile, compared with 11.5 in France, 13.6 in Germany, 16.6 in England, and 29.1 in Belgium.

Under an act passed by the last congress a person defacing a gold or silver coin of the United States is liable to a fine of $2,000 and five years in prison. This stops the bangle fad along with other forms of coin defacement.

A Boston paper says: "Spring is here at last. A butterfly was caught at the South end yesterday." This may be the proper way to catch a butterfly, but when you grab a wasp it is better to catch it about the middle, shifting northwesterly toward the head.

Russian women are said to be the most brilliant and accomplished in Europe. They are great linguists, too. At a swell function recently given in Vienna Princess Helene Gottschofskoskyposkovsky was the only one present who could pronounce her own name.

A scientific man is putting forth the claim that insanity can be cured by music, and yet it is not many months since an oboe player, convicted of kleptomania in Ohio, set up the novel plea that his malady was directly caused by performing on the instrument, and three patients in an asylum in New York were driven mad by the incessant playing of an accordion in a boarding house.

Things are older in Japan. There they have just celebrated the accession of Jimmu, the first emperor, who began to rule 25 years before Christ was born. The present emperor is deeply interested in the advancement of women and their work, and so he caused the celebration to assume the name and character of "The Feast of Women." Women are making themselves heard the world around.

Felix S. Rively, an electrical and mechanical engineer of Pittsburgh, has made public an invention which promises to revolutionize the methods now in use for street car and motocycle locomotion. Mr. Riveley's invention is an electric storage battery which will far surpass anything which is now in use. A severe test was made in Philadelphia which was perfectly satisfactory in every respect and demonstrated the advantages of the invention.

Zachariah F. Lewis, of Ohio, evidently believes that anything worth doing at all is worth doing well. He carried that idea into certain forgery transactions with such effect that no less than 157 indictments have been found against him. Were he to be tried, convicted and sentenced on each one of these charges he would require the years of a Methusaleh to serve out his term. Zachariah's record is already sufficiently long, and it is just as well that he will be given no opportunity to add to it.

That the people of England and other European countries are progressive is shown by the fact that American baggage checks have at last been adopted on the leading railways of England and the continent. Hereafter when an American goes abroad he may travel in real luxury on American vestibuled trains, secure in the knowledge that when he reaches his destination it will not be necessary for him to waste a half hour and any amount of temper in searching out and identifying his luggage. It has taken a long time for Europeans to realize and admit the superior advantages of the American system.

Reference has been made in recent telegraphic dispatches to the anniversary of the massacre of Scio as being a dangerous day in Greece. It ought to be one of bitter memories. In 1822 Scio, with a population of 104,000 Greeks, joined the Greek revolution. In April of that year came the massacre. Within two months 23,000 Sciotes, without distinction of age or sex, were put to the sword, 47,000 were sold into slavery and 5,000 fled to other parts of Greece. By the end of August only 2,000 Christians remained. Little wonder that memories of Scio should make Greeks furious against the Turks.

A quarter of a century ago the Modoc Indians under Capt. Jack won unenviable notoriety by reason of their treachery, resulting in the murder of Gen. Canby. The remnant of this same band is now said to be starving, half their number having already died of starvation. The Modocs have always posed as "bad Indians." They have never made any pretense of being peaceable and friendly, and as a result they have never benefited from government aid, as have the Sioux, Cheyennes and other wards of the nation. Even with hunger and death confronting them they have made no appeal to Uncle Sam.

INTERESTING NEWS COMPILATION.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

A test vote on the tariff question in the United States senate on the 14th showed a majority of one in its favor. The Indian appropriation bill was discussed. A message was received from the president urging that suitable provision be made for adequate representation of the United States at the Paris exposition in 1900. The nomination of James H. Angell, of Michigan, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Turkey, and of George D. Meiklejohn, of Nebraska, to be assistant secretary of war, were received from the president. The house was in session but ten minutes and then adjourned until the 17th without transacting any business.

The United States senate spent the time on the 15th considering the Indian appropriation bill, but did not complete it. Senator Davis endeavored to secure unanimous agreement upon a time to take a vote upon the Anglo-American arbitration treaty, but failed. Senator Hansbrough introduced a bill authorizing the appointment of a commission to introduce and popularize the bread foods of the United States among the peoples of the orient. The house was not in session.

The United States senate was not in session on the 17th. In the house a bill was introduced by Mr. Lewis (dem., Wash.) providing for the repeal of the act for an international monetary conference. Mr. Grosvenor (rep., O.) introduced a bill to declare the true intent and scope of the civil service act. Adjourned to the 21st.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The veteran senator from Vermont, Justin Smith Morrill, celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday in Washington. Mr. Morrill completed his 30 years of continuous service March 4 last.

While at the congressional library in Washington Judge James J. Storrow aged 60, a well-known Boston lawyer, dropped dead.

In the United States there were 207 business failures in the seven days ended on the 16th, against 232 the week previous and 222 in the corresponding period of 1896.

The war news from the east was the topic of discussion in diplomatic and official circles in Washington. Secretary Sherman said that this country would observe strict neutrality.

GREEK AND TURK.

Cruel War Has at Last Broken Out in the Orient.

Diplomatic Relations Are Completely Severed—Greeks Suffer Defeat in a Fierce Battle at Milouna Pass.

London, April 19.—War has broken out between Greece and Turkey. Fierce battles have been fought at Karya, at Milouna pass and at Prevesa on the Gulf of Arta. The most desperate battle was fought at Milouna pass, where 20,000 men fought more than 30 hours without food or sleep. Diplomatic relations between the two nations have been severed.

A detailed circular sent Saturday evening to the Turkish representatives abroad recalls the week's invasions and states that the newest incursion was participated in by the Greek troops, which therefore establishes war. The circular expresses the hope that the powers in a spirit of justice will agree that the entire responsibility for the war falls on Greece. Turkey has no idea of conquest, and as a fresh proof of pacific sentiments offers to retire the Turkish troops on the frontier if Greece will retire hers from the frontier and from Crete.

The Greeks hold that it was an attempt upon the part of the Turkish forces to occupy a strategic position near Mount Analipsis, not far from Nezeros, in the neutral zone, which led to the encounter on Friday between the Greeks and the Turks. This, it is added, was used at Constantinople as a reason for ordering Edhem Pasha, the Turkish commander in chief, to assume the offensive, and led to the rupture of diplomatic relations between the countries.

Greeks Gain an Advantage.

A dispatch to the Daily Chronicle from Athens, dated midnight, says the Greeks have captured Menaxa after severe fighting. The Turkish losses were very heavy; the Greek comparatively light. The correspondent adds: "The Greek fleet has destroyed half the fortresses at Prevesa and silenced the guns. The latest news received here is that the Greeks have captured and hold all the positions except Ana and Milouna along the Thessalian line. It was Germany that urged Turkey to declare war."

Turkish batteries at Prevesa opened fire on a Greek vessel in the Gulf of Arta and compelled it to run ashore. Consequently the Greek flotilla in these waters furiously bombarded that town, and the Greek land battery at Kefalopanaghia also poured shot and shell into Prevesa, demolishing the Turkish batteries. Official dispatches announce that Turkish stations from Nezeros to Koutra are occupied by the Greeks, while repeated attacks by the Turks on Analipsis have been repulsed with heavy loss.

Twenty Thousand Troops Engaged.

Foot of Milouna Pass, April 19.—A fierce battle raged in the pass all Saturday night. The Greeks, who entered and descended toward the valley, encountered four battalions of Turks, who drove them back and at the point of the bayonet rescued the force garrisoning the Turkish blockhouse, which the Greeks had encircled before entering the pass. Neshad Pasha, commanding the Fifth division, occupied Mount Harnia with a great force, while Hairi Pasha, commanding the Sixth division, prepared to enter the Tchaisan pass, and Haidar Pasha, with the Fourth division, occupied the Milouna pass. Before dawn Edhem Pasha rode out to direct the disposition of these divisions. A general engagement ensued.

The Greeks swarmed down from the hillsides, pouring deadly volleys on the Moslems. The two armies met and 20,000 men fought fiercely and madly. Around the Greek blockhouse the battle raged. The withering shrapnel fire from the Turkish batteries mowed down the Hellenes, but the brave soldiers battled with the courage of despair against the advancing Turk. Slowly the Greeks were forced back.

Point after point was abandoned by the Greeks. Late in the afternoon the soldiers in three of the Greek outworks surrendered and asked the Moslems to cease shell firing. The effect of the firing had been such that few but wounded men were left on guard.

So fierce and continuous had been the battle during the night and day that it was impossible to estimate the number of killed. Hundreds were lost on both sides and the number of wounded was very great.

Turks Defeated at Reveni.

Larissa, April 20.—The Greeks have defeated the Turks at Reveni and two Greek brigades have entered Turkish territory in different directions and penetrated to Damasi, northesa of Zarkos.

The news of this success at Reveni and of the imminent fall of Prevesa has changed the dismay caused at Athens by the loss of Milouna into the wildest rejoicing. The latest advices are that the Greek troops are advancing to reoccupy their positions at Milouna and at Gritzovali, the latter of which, it is alleged, was abandoned owing to a misunderstanding by the general in command who interpreted as an order of retreat what was really intended as an order of advance.

Bank Cashier Murdered.

Somersworth, N. H., April 17.—While resisting the entry of two desperate and determined robbers, and during a heroic but futile struggle to protect $150,000 or more in money and securities in the compartments of the open vault of the Great Falls national bank of Somersworth Friday afternoon, Cashier Joseph A. Stickney was struck down and brutally murdered near the desk which he had occupied for years. After killing Stickney, the murderers ransacked the vault and fled with all the cash it contained with the exception of a five-dollar gold piece. As near as can be estimated, about $6,000 was taken, but it is possible that the loss will considerably exceed this sum, as no one but the dead cashier knew the exact amount that was in the institution at the time.

Our Flag Insulted.

Sagua La Grande, via Key West, April 16.—News has just reached here of an outrage perpetrated near the town of Encrucijada by Spanish troops, who destroyed the property owned by the wife of the British vice consul, Mr. Harris, of Sagua, and tore up an American flag which the manager of the estate, George Harris, who is an American citizen, had draped over his bed

THE FLOOD SITUATION.

Much Suffering Results from Breaks in the Levee System.

Vicksburg, Miss., April 17. — The levee at Biggs, 2½ miles below Delta, La., broke at ten o'clock Friday night. The crevasse was 120 feet wide 20 minutes after it gave way. Delta is directly opposite Vicksburg.

Washington, April 17.—It is suggested that a ten days' supply of rations be sent at the earliest practicable moment to supply 1,000 destitute persons and 100 head of stock in Quitman county, Miss., in which 13 townships are inundated; also for 5,000 destitute persons and 500 head of stock in Coahoma county where 12 townships are flooded; for 8,000 destitute persons and 600 live stock in Bolivar county, where nine townships are inundated. On the Arkansas side it is reported there are 5,000 destitute and 400 live stock in Phillips and Monroe counties requiring assistance. Thirty to 40 days is the estimated period of time before laborers can go to work in the inundated area.

Natchez, Miss., April 20.—The first break in the Concordia parish front occurred on Sunday morning last, when the Glasscock levee gave way. This is located about 28 miles below Natchez and is near the lower end of the levee system of the parish. It is an old levee and has received no attention since 1891. There was a large force of men at work on it, raising and strengthening it. They were working their way to the lower end of it, when suddenly the laborers saw the muddy water begin to bubble up at the lower end, and in less time than it takes to tell it the seething water tore a great hole through it. After the break started it was impossible to stop it, and work on the embankment was at once stopped. The water rushed through at a great rate and began spreading out in the low lands adjacent.

The catastrophe was not unexpected, and its disastrous effects were in a measure discounted by reason of all the stock and other perishable property having been previously removed. The water from the break will inundate the lower part of the parish of Mooreville, down to Brabston, covering a number of fine plantations, but it was expected that most of this section would go under anyhow from the overflow that will take place in Black river from the Biggs crevasse below Delta. It will entail a vast amount of suffering on the people of the neighborhood and relief will have to be extended to them.

Memphis, Tenn., April 20.—The situation at Biggs, where the water is running through the crevasse in torrents, is growing worse. Madison parish is fast becoming inundated and the water will extend to other parishes, destroying thousands of acres of newly-planted crops. Vicksburg, Natchez and other river points are crowded with refugees and everything possible is being done to alleviate the suffering of the poorer classes. Calls for aid have been sent out from sections of the overflowed Mississippi delta, and, while the waters are slowly receding, the suffering and destitution increases.

New Orleans, April 20.—The river has attained the 19-foot stage. There are now several hundred additional laborers engaged in strengthening the embankment and all necessary vigilance is being exercised by the local authorities. The levees are patrolled night and day, and fascine work is being executed all along the line. The levees are also being raised.

Baker City, Ore., April 20.—Powder river is higher than ever known, and is doing great damage. Only one bridge remains in this city and if the warm weather continues it will go out. The Sumpter Valley railroad is flooded for miles and trains will not be running for weeks. The northern residence portion of the city is inundated.

Wellington, N. Z., April 20.—The Napier district of Hawkes bay, on the east coast of the North island, is suffering from severe floods. Napier itself is almost inundated. It is estimated that the damage will reach $100,000. Twelve persons have been drowned while trying to effect the rescue of others hemmed in by the waters.

Burlington, Ia., April 19.—The river at Burlington is now eight miles wide and extends over the low lands at Gladstone, Ill., 12 miles from Burlington. The roadbed of the Burlington system has the appearance of a dyke, running for miles through a lake which extends to the Illinois bluffs in the distance.

Omaha, Neb., April 19.—The river is not likely to resume its old channel at the foot of the bluffs on the Nebraska side, as many have feared. It receded three inches Sunday, but work on the levees has not stopped. No lives have been lost in the locality thus far. Several thousand dollars' worth of live stock has perished, however. The total loss is estimated at from $100,000 to $500,000. The foundations of many of the big buildings and perhaps of one of the bridges are permanently impaired.

Defied the Three-Cent Law.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 17.—For the present, at least, the Citizens' Street Railroad company has decided to give up its fight against the three-cent fare law. A. Mason, president of the company, says that until the case is settled in the courts, three cents will be accepted as fare. The street car company's officers and employes have been indicted and arrested under that section of the new law prescribing a fine of from $50 to $500 for every time a five-cent fare is collected after the law went into effect. Indictments have been returned against President A. L. Mason, Superintendent Miller Elliot, and a dozen conductors and other road officers. Mason and Eliott were arrested late Friday afternoon, and gave bonds in $200 on each case.

Hunter Indicted.

Frankfort, Ky., April 19.—The expected indictments against Dr. W. Godfrey Hunter and ex-Congressman John H. Wilson for conspiracy to bribe in connection with the senatorial contest were returned by the Franklin county grand jury Saturday morning. In addition indictments were returned against Representative E. T. Franks, of Daviess county, Capt. Noel Gaines and Thomas R. Tanner, of Frankfort. The last two named preferred the bribery charges against Dr. Hunter and ex-Congressman Wilson.

Will Vote on the Treaty.

Washington, April 20.—During the executive session of the United States senate Monday it was agreed to vote on the arbitration treaty May 5.

LEGISLATIVE ROUTINE.

St. Paul, April 15.—The senate yesterday passed Keller's beet sugar bill, also the game and fish bill under suspension of the rules. Several local bills were passed.

The house spent the entire day in committee of the whole. The Sperry printing bill was recommended for passage.

St. Paul, April 16—The Senate yesterday passed the following bills:

The new state printing bill, amended so as to restore the $2,400 appropriation for the state horticultural society.

Providing for a rebate of 25 cents a ton of royalty paid by any mining company operating state lands in those iron is smelted within the state; amended, to limit the operation of the law for ten years.

For a continuational amendment increasing the gross earnings tax of railroads from 3 to 4 per cent.

Extending the operation of the law relating to the issuance of bonds to all independent school districts.

To provide for a lien upon logs for unpaid personal property taxes.

To amend S. F. No. 129, relating to loaning the permanent school and university funds.

Requiring county funds to be deposited in national or other banks.

Requiring county auditors and city comptrollers to issue certificates showing taxas unpaid to persons applying for the same, upon the payment of 25 cents.

Providing for the incorporation of creameries with a capitalization of $25,000 and upwards.

Amending the law relating to the capital stock of co-operative associations, increasing the maximum limit to $300,000.

Providing that the securities of building and loan associations held by the state treasurer shall be examined as to their value.

Providing that interest shall be paid on money required by corporations from employes, as a guarantee of honesty.

St. Paul, April 17.—The senate yesterday passed the following bills:

To amend laws relating to boiler license. Providing that the state can inspect all boilers unless private inspectors insure them.

To authorize villages to make certain improvements.

To legalize bonds issued by county commissions for roads and bridges under the law of 1895.

To amend section 3, chapter 297, laws of 1895.

To amend laws relating to appropriations for bridges.

To enforce payment of taxes which became delinquent on or before Jan. 1, 1897.

The house passed a number of bills, none of which were of importance.

St. Paul, April 19.—After an hour's debate in the house Saturday, the Dyer bill to tax express companies was re-passed, some radical amendments having been made by the senate. These amendments include the reduction of the tax from five to three per cent, the substitution of the name of the state auditor for that of state railroad and warehouse commission as the party responsible for the enforcement of the act, and what appeared to be the bone of contention, a change in the wording of that paragraph referring to the extent of business subject to taxation.

The house voted, upon the motion of its author, to recede from its amendments to the Foss bill providing for a graduated and progressive tax upon legacies, inheritances, etc., and passed the bill.

St. Paul, April 20.—Senator George T. Barr was yesterday elected president of the senate pro tem. The following bills were passed:

To establish a board of surveyors.

Requiring a power of attorney to be filed before foreclosure proceedings are taken.

To license insurance agents.

The anti-contract bill was laid on the table to be taken up for amendment.

To provide the rules under which the state printing commission shall operate.

Allowing incorporated cities and villages to maintain a certain height of water in lakes adjoining their boundaries.

To encourage the manufacture of beet sugar.

To continue the term of the state drainage commission.

To authorize the formation of corporations for securing stray logs, timber, lumber, etc., and defining their duties and powers and the duties of surveyors of logs and lumber.

Authorizing the formation of corporations for mining and smelting ores.

The house passed the following:

To inaugurate a new good roads system.

Relating to indexing of public instruments.

Relating to building and loan associations.

To establish the institute for crippled and deformed children within 10 miles of the state university.

Fixing prices for feeding stock at the stock yards.

Important Decision.

An important decision, affecting nearly all the saloonkeepers and brewers, was rendered by Judge Orr, in the municipal court of St. Paul, when the case against August Kroenin, accused of selling liquor without a license, was dismissed. The case relates to the transfer of saloon licenses, and as announced by Judge Orr practically prohibits any such transfer and renders illegal those made under conditions which obtained in the Kroenin case. The scope of the decision is almost limitless, as the process in the case decided is that in general use among the brewers who obtain licenses for individual saloonkeepers, and are repaid on the installment plan.

Brief Minnesota Items.

The village council of Wells has adopted a curfew ordinance.

A postoffice has been established at Espevet, Polk county.

John B. Iverson has been commissioned postmaster at Hardwick.

The comptroller of the treasury has given his consent for the consolidation of the German American and Merchants' National banks of St. Cloud.

Fire at Mankato destroyed the Odd Fellows' building, which cost $10,000. Insurance, $6,000.

At the little town of Byron, three boys, all under 16 years of age, have been apprehended for burglary. They have been working all winter, the last scene of their operations being R. Middleton's hardware store. One was found with some of the missing property in his possession and told their story.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

—M. Jules Claretie is putting the finish strokes to a fantastical tale called "The Eye of Death," which will appear in serial form in the Annales Politiques et Litteraires.

—Mr. Clinton Scollard began a serial in the February Chautauquan. It is a historical novelette which he has named "The Son of a Tory." The scene is the Mohawk valley; the period, the American revolution.

—Mrs. Oliphant is a rarely bright woman at 68, Miss Braddon still a prolific novelist in her 60th year, and Ouida as capable as ever of writing startling romances, although she confesses that she is 56 years old.

—Says a London literary weekly: Miss Mildred Howells, daughter of Mr. William Dean Howells, the American novelist, has a studio in her father's home in New York, and has done some clever illustrating for books and magazines.

—Sunnyside is suffering changes. The new owner, Alexander D. Irving, is building an addition to it, and he has closed up Sunnyside lane, all of which, Tarrytown tradition asserts, is in direct opposition to the known wishes of Washington Irving.

—The best description of mountain scenery was written by a man who had never climbed a mountain, and Miss Nora Hopper, the most distinctive Celtic of the new Irish school of writers, has never so much as set foot in the Green isle in her life.

—Germany's new poet, Johanna Ambrosius, is being well treated. The empress has paid the expenses of her trip to Italy. The poor woman has had a life of drudgery, but her genius has lifted her out of it at last, for her books are not only popular, but profitable.

Breakfast Biscuit.

A nice breakfast biscuit can be made as follows: Slightly warm a pint of sweet milk, stir into it half a cupful of melted butter and half a teaspoonful of salt; sift a quart of flour with two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and stir into the milk; make a stiff batter; drop from a spoon into a buttered pan, and bake in a quick oven.—Albany Journal.

THE SOUND OF LITTLE FEET.

I listened in the morning
For the sound of the little feet
That patter'd along in the sunshine
Over the quiet street;
For the tones of the sweet voice singing
Some quaint lov'd strain of old,
As I saw the wee hands full of flowers,
And the sunny head crown'd with gold.

I watch'd when the noon was over,
And the clock in the tow'r struck four,
As the children came slowly homeward,
The hours of school time o'er;
And I heard 'mid the ripple of voices
The one that my heart lov'd best,
And I saw a smile like a sunbeam
Stray'd out of the glowing west.

And now, in the hush of gloaming,
I watch and I list again;
But the little feet come no longer,
No more do I hear that strain;
For the flow'rs and the tir'd little child-heart
Are hush'd into slumber sweet,
Tho' I know that in Heaven the angels
Hear the sound of the little feet.

—Augusta Hancock, in Lady.

ADVENTURE IN A CAB.

I will wager my chances for the throne of France against a box of cigars that there never was a marquis so diffident, so timid, so irresponsible, as Marquis Suetone Amentor de Longuerne. My hero possesses a heroine, that is to say, a legitimate heroine, a 24-year-old heroine, as beautiful as you might wish and as unmusical as you can imagine. From the rising of the sun till the last flicker of the nightlamp, she was constantly at the piano. She strummed with such untiring zeal that it was impossible to keep servants in the house. There were times when the marquis, surfeited with Schumann, tortured by Mendelssohn, and dead weary of Saint-Saens, even envied the good fortune of his servants, who could escape the instrument of torture.

"Will the marquis please settle my account?"

"Are you going to leave us?"

"Yes, sir, on account of—"

"The piano? I know—you have had enough of it."

"If it were only enough, I could stand it, but it's too much; it is driving me crazy."

"I understand."

"You are not angry, then?"

"The deuce, no! but how can I replace you?"

"I know a man who would suit the place—he is quite deaf."

"Lucky dog!"

Even the neighbors were driven to rebellion. Petitions and threatening letters poured in daily, until at last the poor marquis determined to move to some isolated quarter near the barracks, where the cornetists and drummers were sent to practice scales.

It is scarcely to be credited, but the marquis deeply deplored the absence of a better rival to his wife's affection than the piano. He hated it with a deadly hatred, and it is not surprising that he seized the opportunity to escape when the misguided virtuosa said to him:

"Can I count upon your escort Monday evening, dear? I have promised to play a fantasie from 'Henry VIII.' at Mme. la Marechale's. Are you fond of 'Henry VIII.?'"

"Yes—since I've learned to feel for him."

The intended sarcasm passed unnoticed his wife thought he alluded to the bold harmonies of the modern school.

The marchioness, however, was obliged to go unattended to Mme. la Marechale's. Monday evening at ten o'clock, she dropped her husband at his club, and, extending the soft little hand that was so soon to torture poor "Henry VIII.," she said to him:

"Will you call for me? I play at half past 11. No applause would give me so much pleasure as yours."

The marquis bent his head over the extended hand, and disappeared without a word.

He played at the club and lost, so heavily, in fact, that he soon found himself wishing he had gone to the reception, thinking that even "Henry VIII." would be preferable to this. From "Henry VIII." to thinking of his wife was but a short step, and he determined to go after her. For you will remember that Elizabeth Alida Marcelline de Longuerne, away from a piano, was a very charming little woman.

Hardly conscious of what he was doing, the marquis allowed himself to be driven to the house of Mme. la Marechale. Not caring to enter at once, he remained outside, listening to the hideous fantasie being performed by his wife. "It is half past eleven," he thought to himself. "It is she playing—those discords are unmistakable. Anne Boleyn and Catherine Howard are at last avenged. Henry the Eighth, go thou to thine execution!"

The noise of a passing cab momentarily drowned the sound of the piano, and the marquis forgot his wife's musical shortcomings in mental contemplation of her shoulder, her arms, her eyes, her luxuriant hair, and her other perfections. This vision appealed to his aesthetic side. He felt that he had been too exacting in the face of so many alluring charms.

"By Apollo! if a piece of ill-luck should come my way, I'd get no more than I richly deserve. What if her heart is wrapped up in those little black hieroglyphics with the long necks! She loves me with a constancy that is really touching. I can put up with a little music; at any rate, I shall not care the less for her on account of it. Poor woman, how abominably she plays! But they applaud her. And I—I have played the coward. I will wait outside here for her, if it takes an hour, to make up for it."

But his ardor was doomed to be dampened by a fine, cold rain that now began to fall. Suetone Amentor grew impatient and was conscious that he was getting tired. He had waited a full half-hour. Just then he noticed a coupe come out of the courtyard and draw up near the kerb behind a line of carriages. "This rain will not last long," he said to himself; "in all probability, the last guest to arrive will be the last one to go. I shall wait in her coupe and rest."

Taking advantage of the absence of the coachman, who had sought shelter in a neighboring doorway, he entered the coupe. It was a bijou little conveyance, upholstered in blue silk and exhaling an aroma of youth and elegance. The marquis settled back in the corner, which was still warm, and availed himself of a wrap that had been left behind, and in that blissful state of comfort he soon fell asleep. How long he slumbered I cannot say, but he suddenly awoke as the coupe drew up in Mme. la Marechale's courtyard.

The door was thrown open and a young woman of extraordinary beauty approached. When she saw that the coupe was not empty, she suppressed an exclamation, and, hastily divesting herself of her wrap, threw it in upon the astonished occupant.

"Are you mad, to throw off your cloak here in the court!" exclaimed the young man, who had escorted her to the carriage. "The air is freezing."

"I am suffocating," she replied; and, stepping hastily into the coupe, she closed the door with a bang.

"If you care to drop in at mother's, I will go with you."

"No, no; I have changed my mind. I am tired. Goodnight. I am going directly home."

The coupe rolled rapidly away. The marquis did not stir. Not a word was spoken until they reached a dark street, when the lady withdrew her mantle.

"Gaston!" she exclaimed, "what recklessness! You might have been my ruin!"

As the marquis was about to reply, she laid a little hand on his lips.

"No—not a word. I know what foolish excuses you will make. I will not, I dare not listen. My mind is made up. He is breaking my heart, but what is the difference? First take back this ring. I have no right to keep it."

The marquis was conscious that a ring was being slipped on his finger.

"And now kiss me, sweetheart—you deserve that much for your silence and devotion."

The marquis spent five ecstatic minutes, which, however, neither you nor I need dwell upon.

"And now leave me. In another moment I shall be home. Make haste—make haste!"

She let down the right-hand window and addressed a few words to the coachman, to divert his attention from the supposed Gaston, who alighted on the other side and disappeared, filled with regrets that he had not been able to follow up to the end this unexpected and delightful adventure.

The coupe drove off straight ahead, and was soon lost in the darkness.

A clock was striking two as our hero reached home. The marchioness was just alighting at the door. The marquis passed her without seeing her.

"Why, my dear, have you been asleep in the vestibule? You must help me upstairs whether you want to or not. They improvised a cotillion, and I'm simply exhausted."

As he offered her his arm she noticed the ring he had forgotten to remove from his finger.

"What a beautiful ring!" she cried. "Is it for me? I'm sure it was meant for a surprise."

The confusion of the marquis was only equaled by his wife's delight.

"Yes, it is a—a surprise. I shall tell you about it in the morning."

For the next three days the young wife was in the most affable of moods in expectation of the diamond. She didn't open the piano once.

While the jeweler was making a facsimile of the ring, the marquis endeavored to find his charming unknown.

"I'm a thief," he said to himself. "I'm a thief, and here's the ring to prove it. What will Gaston—the real Gaston—say to her? Poor thing, what a beautiful trinket she lost. Poor fellow, what kisses he lost. The recollection of them makes my head swim."

This little adventure cost my friend just 8,000 francs, and to help him out of his embarrassment, I am sending the following notice to the newspapers:

Lost, Monday, 8th, in a coupe with blue livery, a diamond ring worth 8,000 francs. A liberal reward offered to the owner.

BRAID ON EVERYTHING.

Spring Costumes Lavishly Adorned with This Garniture.

The winter fancy for braiding upon the street gowns has grown into a perfect frenzy, and every gown possible is elaborately decorated in this manner, not always to their improvement, for it is a mode of trimming to be treated only with artist fingers, and by one who has learned the value of stopping in time.

The mohair and silk braids used this season show beautiful floral designs. Insertions of black net increase their rich effect when placed over a light colored cloth. Soutache is also extensively used, but is no longer sewed on flat, but so arranged as to have the edge stand up. On bodices of tailor gowns and on smart coats, graduated loops of braid, with or without buttons, or olives, are considered the correct thing, giving an air quite militaire.

If you intend braiding your own gown decide first whether the style is to be severe or elaborate, which, of course, depends upon the lines of the gown, and then do not allow yourself to be beguiled into choosing an inappropriate pattern merely because it is striking.

Militaire effects are wisely used on severe tailor-made gowns having jacket bodices. When the skirt is trimmed at all let it be in rows placed closely together, in clusters or single sections. The trimming may begin at the foot and reach to the knee, or begin at the knee and reach to the waist.

With a bolero the braid design may be more elaborate, and show graceful arabesques.

A smart gown of this sort is built in tea-green broadcloth of light weight, lined with taffeta of the same color. The narrow, circular skirt has a braided design beginning at the knee and reaching to within a few inches of the belt, showing rolling arabesques, bordered top and bottom with clusters of narrow braid set close together.

The straight-cut bolero is entirely braided over to match the skirt, as are the sleeves and flaring collar. A smart gown is made up of gray cloth with a smooth surface, having a small bolero jacket trimmed with black galloon, opening over a soft vest of white chiffon. The stock and collar are of velvet, the same color as the gown.

The plain cloth skirt is trimmed with mohair galloon similar to that used on the bodice.

There are as many ways of using braid on a dress as there are leaves on a tree, but after all it isn't every woman who can wear such an elaborate gown, so it's something to leave alone unless one is perfectly sure of its being becoming.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

COLONIZING HENS.

A Plan That Has Worked Well Wherever It Has Been Tried.

An excellent plan for keeping a large number of hens on the farm is to place them out upon the rough land in colonies of 15 or 20 each. Oftentimes pasture land can thus be utilized. Several hundred hens can thus be given free range during the summer, their living being half supplied by themselves, and a large proportion of the care that must be given to yarded fowls thus removed from the attendant. Those who practice this colonization scheme build small houses at some little distance apart along the course of some pasture stream, or upon other rough land, the houses being just far enough apart so that the different flocks will readily distinguish their own homes. To help them do this, each house may be painted a different color, cheap ochre paints being suitable for this purpose.

Where running water is at hand the work of caring for 200 or 300 fowls during the summer would be reduced to a minimum. In the winter the fowls can most readily be cared for in quarters close to the house, two-story buildings being suitable for this purpose, as the fowls cannot be turned out when snow is on the ground.

Now, the average poultry keeper will be averse to building two sets of houses for summer and winter use; but he can reflect that during the summer the fowls can occupy quarters that are exceedingly inexpensive; a roof to cover them being about all that is necessary. Two illustrations are given herewith that show cheap structures that will provide all needed shelter for fowls during warm weather. The one elevated upon supports has no flooring; the fowls flying up on to their roosts at night or up to their nests, that are reached from the outside by the narrow-hinged door at the end. A part of the roof can be hinged to give access to the interior.

One will not go far wrong in selecting either the white or barred Plymouth Rocks, or the silver laced or white Wyandottes. The Brahmas and Cochins give excellent results under proper conditions, but for colonization on a free range these breeds are not suitable.—N. Y. Tribune.

PURCHASING A HORSE.

Rely Upon No Man's Judgment and Keep Your Own Counsel.

If you want to buy a horse don't believe your own brother. Take no man's word for it, says an old horseman in Horseshoer's Journal. Your eye is your market. Don't buy a horse in harness. Unhitch him, and take everything off but the halter, and lead him around. If he has any failing you can see it. Let him go himself a way, and if he walks right into anything you know he is blind. No matter how clear and bright his eyes are, he can't see any more than a bat. Back him, too.

Some horses show their weakness or tricks in that way, when they don't in any other. But, be as smart as you can, you'll get caught sometimes. Even the experts get stuck. A horse may look ever so nice and go a great pace, and yet have fits. There isn't a man who could tell it until something happens. Or he may have a weak back. Give him the whip and off he goes for a mile or two, then all of a sudden he stops on the road. After a rest he starts again, but he soon stops for good, and nothing but a derrick can start him.

The weak points about a horse can better be discovered while standing than while moving. If he is sound, he will stand firmly and squarely on his limbs without moving them, with legs plumb and naturally poised; or if the foot is taken from the ground, and the weight taken from it, disease may be suspected, or, at least, tenderness, which is the precursor of disease. If a horse stands with his feet spread apart or straddles with his hind legs, there is a weakness in his loins and the kidneys are disordered.

Heavy pulling bends the knees. Bluish, milky-cast eyes in horses indicates moon blindness or something else. A bad-tempered one keeps his ears thrown back, and a stumbling horse has blemished knees. When the skin is rough and harsh and does not move easily to the touch, the horse is a heavy eater and digestion bad. Never buy a horse whose breathing organs are at all impaired. Place your ear at the heart, and if a wheezing sound is heard it is an indication of trouble.

Balance for Grindstones.

One of the most satisfactory little improvements I have lately made is a balance on my grindstone. I turn with a treadle, operated by my foot, and this balance not only makes the stone turn easier, but also makes it run much steadier. To make the balance, I got a piece of iron about five-eighths of an inch thick, 3½ inches wide and 10 inches long. Had blacksmith punch a hole in iron 2½ inches from one end, of size to fit on grindstone shaft, on end opposite treadle. It should be put on so that long end of iron would be opposite the little crank that treadle is fastened to, so that when treadle is being pressed down by the foot the long end of iron will be going up, and when the treadle is going up the weight of iron will be going down and help raise treadle, thus forming a balance.—Farmers' Union.

CORN A CHEAP FUEL.

It Pays to Burn It in Western States in These Times.

The existing plethora of corn, resulting in fabulously low prices, has occasioned much speculation as to its fuel value. There is such a diversity of opinion and so little actual knowledge regarding the profitableness of burning corn instead of coal that it seemed desirable to conduct a comparative test that would show the relative heating power of the two materials. The interests of the large number of people living in the region of cheap corn led to the determination of its most profitable use after it is upon the market by the authorities of the Nebraska agricultural college.

To make the test, a good grade of yellow dent corn, on the ear, of last year's crop, and not thoroughly dry, was burned under the boiler used to supply power for the department of practical mechanics, and the amount of water evaporated by the burning of a known quantity of corn was noted. The test lasted 9½ hours, and 5,232 pounds of corn and cob were consumed. The next day the same boiler was heated with screened Rock Springs nut coal, and the amount of water evaporated was recorded.

The data thus obtained show that one pound of coal evaporated 1.9 times as much water as one pound of corn. In other words, 1.9 times as much heat was liberated in burning one pound of coal as in burning one pound of corn. Several calorimeter tests were made which agreed very closely with these results.

The coal used cost at Lincoln $6.65 per ton. With coal selling at this price, and worth 1.9 times as much for fuel as an equal weight of corn, the fuel value of the latter would be $3.50 per ton, or 12.25 cents per bushel. The following table shows how much coal is worth per ton when its heating power is the same as that used in the experiment, and when corn is selling at a certain price per bushel:

Corn per bu.	Coal per ton.
9 cents	$4 87
10 cents	5 41
11 cents	5 95
12 cents	6 49
13 cents	7 11
14 cents	7 57
15 cents	8 11

It will thus be seen that if this quality of coal were selling at less than $6.50 and corn were bringing 12 cents, it would not pay to burn corn, while coal must sell as low as $5.41 per ton to be as cheap fuel as corn at ten cents per bushel.

A very complete and thorough investigation of this subject is being conducted at the university. It was thought desirable, however, to publish the results already obtained, although they were based upon the performance of but one quality of coal. This coal is well known, and largely used in the state.

SIEVES ON THE FARM.

Useful in Sorting and "Sizing" Beans, Peas and Grain.

Few farms are fitted out with a proper assortment of sieves. When at hand they come into use almost every day in the year, and the owner wonders how he ever got along without them. They will sort and "size" various articles, beans, peas, grain, etc., and will clean the dirt out of many farm products. They will take out the coarsely-cracked corn for the older fowls, and separate the finer parts for the chicks, and so one might go on enumerating their conveniences.

Sieves are easily made. Get wire-cloth with mesh running from coarse to fine, and saw sections from grocery boxes for frames, on which to tack the wirecloth. Nail a small strip of wood over the edges and the sieve is complete. The cut shows a deep sieve with an arrangement for "sizing" an article into three or more grades. The sieve in the position indicated by the dotted lines is permanently fastened in place, and is very coarse in mesh. Below are two sliding frames with meshes finer and still finer. Thus with one shaking three, or even four, assortments can be made.—N. Y. Tribune.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

Have troughs in which to feed all soft feed.

If your hens lay soft-shelled eggs they need more lime.

The sitting hen now has the floor. Take care of her.

Is there not room for a flock of geese on your farm? Study the situation.

A warm feed for breakfast goes a long way in inducing hens to lay now.

Pure breeds are rapidly superseding the old style cross-bred mongrels, and we are glad to note it.

A generous application of lime on the chicken yard and in the sheds and runs is now in order. It may prove a cheap prevention of disease.

Keep the direct rays of the sun from shining through glass on the incubator. They are growing stronger every day now, and may suddenly run the temperature up and spoil a hatch.

Ducks, if reasonably well cared for and in good condition, ought to commence laying during this month and continue well into warm weather. Raise more ducks and geese—they are profitable on the farm.—Rural World.

Plowing Prevents Drought.

It will be found that where the soil is kept loose by plowing and cultivation its capacity for absorbing and holding water is much greater than where it is neglected. Thus every weed and surplus growth must be scrupulously kept down, as everything that grows is constantly drawing moisture from the soil. If we can get the upper and lower moisture in the soil to meet the battle is won, for the cultivation is favorable to the capillary action of the soil in drawing moisture from below, and cultivation will prevent its evaporation from the surface. If, however, there is a dry streak of soil a foot or more below the surface, vegetation will suffer accordingly.—Rural World.

Among the Cherokeeans.

Interesting Items from the Women of This Wide-Awake Town.

From the Sentinel, Cherokee, Kansas.

Mrs. A. J. Ausmeus has resided in the vicinity of Cherokee, Kansas, for a number of years and is much esteemed by a wide circle of friends who will rejoice to learn that after many years of suffering she has finally been restored to health. Wishing to learn the particulars of Mrs. Asmeus' wonderful cure, a reporter called at her residence and asked for an interview. Mrs. Ausmeus talked freely of her case and made no objections to stating the facts for publication. She said:

"I have been sorely afflicted with stomach trouble for upward of fifteen years. The suffering I endured during that time is beyond description. I was taken with a dull pain in the back which never left me. I had to be very careful in my diet as my stomach would stand only certain kinds of food. For fifteen years I could not eat fruit of any kind. I was treated by a number of the best physicians in the county without receiving any permanent benefit. Last fall while looking over an Illinois newspaper my attention was attracted to an account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was so impressed with the statement of a cure these pills had effected that I made up my mind to give them a trial. I accordingly purchased a box and began their use, and they helped me from the first. When I had taken three boxes my health was fully restored and there has been no return of the disease or any of its symptoms.

"The pain in my back has left me entirely and now I can eat fruit or anything else I desire. I feel better than I have for fifteen years. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for they accomplished what a number of physicians failed to do."

Mrs. J. F. Morrison, wife of Mr. Fred Morrison, the ice dealer, of Cherokee, Kansas, when questioned by a reporter as to the cause of her restoration to health, said:

"For more than three years I was a sufferer from stomach trouble. I had no appetite for anything and became so weak and emaciated that I could not attend to my household duties. I was treated by the ablest physicians in Cherokee, but received little or no benefit. A neighbor seeing that the doctors had failed to do me any good advised me to try Pink Pills. You know that when you are sick all of your friends know of some sure cure remedy which they insist upon you taking. I had little faith in any medicine but I finally consented to give the pills a trial. So I sent to Boyer & Graves' drug store and got a box of the Pink Pills and began to take them. I took two boxes without feeling much improvement and was about to discontinue their use when Fred urged me to try another box. I did so and before half of the third box was taken I felt so much better that I became greatly encouraged and kept on taking the pills according to directions. When I got the fourth box of Pink Pills my health was completely restored, and I feel better to-day and weigh more than I have for a number of years. I keep a box of Pink Pills in the house and would not be without them. The trouble with most people who use Pink Pills without receiving any benefit is because they do not give them a fair test, but abandon them because they do not get immediate relief."

Mrs. Mary Jones, wife of Wm. Jones, the blacksmith, a resident of Cherokee, Kansas, for twenty years was a sufferer from a severe pain in the head and nervous prostration. She noticed an advertisement of Pink Pills in the Cherokee Sentinel and concluded to give them a trial. The result was that one box of Pink Pills restored her to complete health. Mrs. Jones is enthusiastic in her praise of Pink Pills.

Mrs. Meda Walker, of Cherokee, Kansas, has probably suffered more with neuralgia than any other woman of her age in the state. In an interview with a reporter she said:

"Ever since I can remember I have been a great sufferer from neuralgia. About three years ago the disease seemed to grow worse. The pain in my head became almost unbearable. I had some decayed teeth extracted thinking that perhaps they had aggravated the malady but no relief resulted. I was treated by the best physicians, among them a faith cure doctor, but none of them could do anything for me except give temporary relief.

"About a year ago I saw an advertisement of Pink Pills in the Cherokee Sentinel and thinking they might help me I sent for a box. As soon as I began taking them I commenced to improve, and when I had used two boxes all symptoms of neuralgia had left me. That was about ten months ago and I have not felt a touch of the malady since. My cure was certainly due to Pink Pills alone, and I regard them as a blessing to mankind."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Large Movement of Settlers.

The first week in this month witnessed the largest movement of settlers to North Dakota known to the history of that state. It is doubtful if a larger number of actual settlers was ever before moved at one time in this country than the Great Northern Railway took out of St. Paul on April 2. The train consisted of 152 cars of passengers, household goods, farm implements, etc., and was divided in five sections. The total number of men, women and children was 1,357. They came from various states, Indiana, Virginia and Missouri contributing more than any other. Many of them are known as Dunkards, or German Baptist brethren, and went to join colonies previously located in the Turtle Mountain and Devils Lake regions of North Dakota, where their brethren have been very successful. Many of the newcomers will locate on government land, of which millions of acres still remain open to settlement. The Dunkards are American born and English speaking, an industrious farming class, and have already proven themselves an important addition to the population of North Dakota. They have now along the Great Northern Railway no less than seventeen settlements in that state.

The Ideal Line.

The members of the Baptist Young People's Union who contemplate attending a national meeting of that body in July, should bear in mind that there is no better equipped line from the East, North or Northwest, than the popular Big Four route via Cincinnati or Louisville. All through passenger trains on this line are vestibuled, equipped with Buffet sleepers, with Hotel Dining Cars on day trains. At Cincinnati direct connection is made in the same depot with the Queen & Crescent Route, the Short Line to Chattanooga, via the famous High Bridge. At Louisville, with the Southern Railway and the Louisville & Nashville, via Mammoth Cave, and Nashville, allowing stop-over at both these points.

The Best. The Best. The Best. Test.

There are two kinds of sarsaparilla: The best—and the rest. The trouble is they look alike. And when the rest dress like the best who's to tell them apart? Well, "the tree is known by its fruit." That's an old test and a safe one. And the taller the tree the deeper the root. That's another test. What's the root,—the record of these sarsaparillas? The one with the deepest root is Ayer's. The one with the richest fruit; that, too, is Ayer's. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has a record of half a century of cures; a record of many medals and awards—culminating in the medal of the Chicago World's Fair, which, admitting Ayer's Sarsaparilla as the best—shut its doors against the rest. That was greater honor than the medal, to be the only Sarsaparilla admitted as an exhibit at the World's Fair. If you want to get the best sarsaparilla of your druggist, here's an infallible rule: Ask for the best and you'll get Ayer's. Ask for Ayer's and you'll get the best.

—Nevada to-night at the City Hall.

—See "Dad's Farm" at the City Hall Thursday night.

—Get your seats for "Dad's Farm" at the City Hall Thursday night.

—C. G. Roosen has had his "Lotta" painted and fixed up for summer use.

—MetropolitanStars at the City Hall Thursday night. Dont miss a good thing.

—Barber Bohn is decorating the front of his place of business with red paint.

—Molander & Cady's Metropolitan Stars at the City Hall for three nights, comencing Thursday, April 29.

—High water is subsiding the raging Crow is once more within the confines of her banks, and resumption of business of all kinds is again taking place.

--Quite an interesting Epworth League meeting was held at the M. E. Church on Sunday evening. Several toak part in the discussion of the subject "The Adder and the Cup".

—Druggist Wittman has caught on to the prevailing prosperity wave sufficiently to have laid a nice new Washington fir floor in his drug store. Elmer Babb assisted in the operation.

--The Village Council have purchased a compass and level combined, and a steel tape measure and propose to have things done on the square and to the level in future. L. M. Maxfield has been appointed Surveyor.

—Our Station agent, Geo W. Bolton informt us that on Sunday the Great Forthern inteeded to begin runing the morning train through to Fargo; instead of stoping at Monris as before. Time will be changed also.

—We are in receipt of the anual Summary for 1896, of the Minnesota section of the climate and crop service of the weather bureau. This is handy for referance, and people who have made up their minds that this is the finest weather or the the most disagreeable, are sometimes wonderfully surprised when they compare notes with that of one year ago.

--On the list of Post Masters appointed appears the name of E. E. Castle, at Lyndale, Hennepin County, vece, J. C. Johnson, removed. Mr. Johnson says he was post master four years and expected a change. This is quite a small ofice to do much crowing over. Mr. Castle will doubtless handle the mail in as satisfactory a manner as did Mr. Johnson and that is what people want.

—The Easter entertainment given by the M. E. Sunday School on Sunday evening was not very well attended; the evening being cold and disagreeable. About half the scholars took part in the singing: but they enjoyed it, and things passed of pleasantly. The class exercises were good and the recitations by the Misses Bessie Wilder, Mollie Mazfield, Iona Dannehr and Annie Zimmer were especially well received.

—Village Surveyor Maxfield had the compass set up Monday at the corner of R. R. Ave and River street and was trying to run a line down River street. He said he didn't think there was so many people in town. The line ran dangerously near to E. W. Carver, and bisected John Coolen, neither very small men; it cut Nick Frank's foot off, and disappeared in Dr. Ames' ear, just as he put in an appearance to view the construction of new buildings in the "burnt district".

—The Band Concert on Monday evening was the best yet given. The boys are learning to blow in harmony, melody and music generally. "Eversonian" composed and arranged by the leader was well rendered and well received. Miss Mable Young and Mr. Everson gave a duett, and as an encore Miss Mable gave a solo in her usual happy manner. Mr. W. I. Nolan, the Impersonator, took the audience by storm, and carried them right along with him. His rendering of "The Vagabond" was a temperance lecture well worth hearing, and which only the most hardened and vicious could hear without resolving to do more than ever to aid in making the use of intoxicating liquors still more unpopular than they now are. Mr. J. C. Buckley also sang a very pritty solo.

—While in Rockford a few days ago George W. Florida showed us through his mills. They are all torn up on account of the recent freshet. The ice piled up above the dam at one time he told us, to the eaves of the mill. The fish ways went out and by diligence and perseverance, a pile of big bowlders now do duty as a portion of the dam that is out. The floor of the saw mill and parts of the machinery were taken up to keep them from washing away or being injured. Water stood six inches deep on the grinding floor, all belts elevators and loose things had to be taken to places of safety. Boys caught pickerel weighing more than 20 lbs, from the platform at the front door, spearing them from the road. He expected to run the feed mill this week and the balance of the business as soon as the water will allow and things are restored to their norma condition.

--A meeting of the Delano Cemetary Association will be held at Dr. Catlin's office, Monday evening May 3.

—Rockford's full Juicial Bench visited Delano this afternoon. They did not forget to call on the GAZETTE.

--Three horse teams are occasionally seen in town with loads; hitched with eveners from binders, for rough roads they appear to work well.

—"Do good unto all men." Rev. T. Davies requests us to make it known that he will be glad to receive subscriptions on behalf of the sufferers from famine in India. 17,000,000 are starying. Two cents a day will feed one man. $1 will keep a man alive till the next harvest. Who will give it? Any sum however large or small will be thankfully received and sent direct, without expense to where it will do most good, through the Christian Herald Fund.

—The Village Council held a session at their room, on Tuesday evening. The usual routine of business was gone throtgh with, and, besides the Delano Band was granted the use of the City Hall one night each week for practice, free when not interfearing with the renting of the hall. The Buffalo Gazette being the only paper to bie for the printing was make the official paper of the Village for one year. Maxfield and Horsch were appointed as a committee to re con struct the bell tower on the City Hall at a cost not to exceed $75. $50 was voted for the village part of the new bell. L. M. Maxfield was appointed Surveyor.

County Cullings.

The Sherburne County Times wants to know if Hon. Dare expects that Sherburne County will ever have two members of the Legislature again. She is apt to have a Senator anyway.

Dr. Ridgeway, of Annandale, has resigned from the Board of Pension Examiners.

It looks as if it might be Judge Tarbox or Judge Latham soon; and County Attorney Alley again.

The County Commissioners are to convene Monday April 26, to arrange for repairing the Hanover bridge.

A. Reinmuth, of Howard Lake, is County Auditor Swanburg's able assistant.

AMUSEMENTS.
Molander and Cady's Metropolitan Stars Coming.

It is seldom Delano is visited by an attraction of such merit and the amusement loving public of this community will hail the appearance of the above company with delight. The management has arranged with the company to appear here three nights, comencing Thursday, April 29th, their opening bill being the successful 4 act comedy drama "Dad's Farm", which had such a lengthy run in all the Eastern cities last season, running in New York City alone 100 nights. All the latest songs, dances and specialties of the year will occupy a place on the program, making each bill one of solid amusement from 8 to 11 o'clock. Plays for Friday and Saturday nights will be anounced from the stage. Prices of admission 10, 20 and 30 cents. We take pleasure in recommending this organization to our readers andthe public at large and we feel assured they will play to packed houses during their stay in Delano. It

ROCKFORD RUMBLINGS.

The principal work in and about the village during the past week has been cleaning up about house, barn and other buildings, raking lawns and flower gardens and putting in early peas and some other vegetables. The Board of Health will soon commence inspection. Be ye also ready for in such an hour as ye know not the examination cometh.

The farmers are busy this week seeding but many of them come to the creamery each morning with milk. They are much pleased with the new creamery, and the new rules and regulations especially with the patent check lock pump that gives just so much skimed milk and no more: it is really a good, useful and honest invention.

The nickel sociable given by the Magazine Club at their hall, on Friday evening April 16, was well attended. The stock of ice cream went like hot cakes, and was all sold. About twenty entered the list to win the prize offered, a cup to the one who should give the most correct answers to the 69 illustrated advertisements hung up about the hall; many of them selected from newspapers and from almost every business known, the picture with no name; and the question to answer what did the picture or illustration mean or represent? The solutions were in many cases very amusing and wide of the mark. Mrs. F. H. Johnson was the winner, 39 right. The next highest was 36. D. R. Farnham, Lee Gallaway and Miss Mary Warner Judges.

D. D. Ames and children returned from Minneapolis Friday he is not able to attend to the business at the Post Office.

Miss Cora Belle McCarter of Hamline is visiting old friends and acquaintances in and about Rockford this week.

Mr. J. Benner has had a tussel with his old enemy the Erysipelas during the past ten days, but is now out and attending to business. He will start up the woolen mill in a few days, the water is nearly down to a working stage. The price of wool will start out 2 cents higher than it was last spring.

H. S. Pitt is out again after a weeks confinement with his old malady varicose ulcers on his legs.

Lanson Conklin is decidedly better today and will probably pull through this time; but folks say that it was a close call. Good care and good medical attendance made a favorable turn.

Amos R. Kinney takes the cake on big fish. He took in a pickerel or muscalonge on Saturday out of Crow River that weiged 26 lbs.

New bicycles appear on the streets most every day. The latest today is Roy Miller. The practice of shooting guns and pistols within the corporation limits has been entirely stopped during the past three or four weeks. Not a gun was heard after the Village Dads made the emphatic request that it should be heard no more. Now the same old gray heads say to the boys: Please don't play ball, or throw and catch ball, or bat any balls on Bridge Street or Mechanic's Street above Plumb St. or Maine St. from Bridge to Linden Streets. There are plenty of other places to play ball. Several complaints have been made, and there is no other way,and the Village Council says Stop it at once and for all the time B. F. Mattison and A. A. Farnham are in the painting business. E. E. Darrow's new store, and the inside of I. P. Harvey's store look much better after this work. Much paint is needed in the village.

Quite a number of Rockfordites went to Delano last Monday evening to attend the band concert.

Mr. Calvin Mooers a former resident of Rockford returned from N. D. after a long residence in that state. He brings a herd of 26 Holstein cows. He will locate in Rockford and contribute to the success of the creamery.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

We are anxiously waiting for spping and prosperity but hardly think either one will be premature.

The air ship did not call on Independence people. It is thought now, by many that we can have aerial transportion. If so will Jim Hill have the right of way? Or will it pe given to a syndicate? If this air ship business proves a success it will be only a little while until we will be taking excursions to the moon.

The maple sugar season was not overly good this spring.

If the weather keep fine farmers will be busy seeding this week.

The roads are drying up quite fast now.

School will be out in District 102 last of this month; will be out in District 81 (Armstrong) a little later.

Local news is not very plenty this week. The news agent has not been around for sometime, and I expect he may be overloaded with prosperity.

Easter Sunday was observed in the usual way among the churches, families, etc., also the egg industry suffered quite severely.

Hugh Hanlon drove to Minneapolis one day last week, went down on business.

Frank Hortenback, of Minneapolis, is spending a few days with Hugh Hanlon and family.

Charley Gould has 2 fine horse teams now since he bought the team of black mares from Al Hitsman Charley is always looking for a good team.

All the creamery stock in Independence is worth 100 cents on the dollar. It is thought the investments are good.

There was a very little seeding done last week.

Most of our sick are improving in health.

B. Drake has recovered from his throat trouble and is able to be out and around.

The fishing season like everything else has come to an end.

Yes President McKinley has appointed an International Monetary Commission. For what? Where will he send them? To the infernal regions or to Mexico? For a big country like this and a free republic too. To appoint a commission to trot around after some other country, and ask them what our monetary system shall be, is enough to stir the war like spirits of Revolutionary fathers and bring them from their dusty beds to put in a protest against such simple and foolish childs play, besides, all this red tape will amount to nothing,and does not mean anything, only what it shows on paper. Will those countries that are on a gold standard basis agree to monometalism? No, no more than the devil does in a revival in his dominion. If this country hasn't wealth enough,and enough, and brains enough to run its own business had better sell out to the heathens. Men that will swell up and strain their pants' buttons to talk about Liberty, Freedom and the Rights of American Citizens, and then crawl inthe dust after other foreign countries, are only a make shift and a mushroom substitute in the place of a man of iron nerve and warlike constitution.

If we have one or two more sickly consumptive administrators like the one just gone out of power this country will be fit for most anything but Heaven.

If the nations of the earth are not fulfilling the Scriptures to the very letter, then my understanding of the Bible is not what I take it to be.

To the casual observer it looks as if the nations were preparing for war. But in the Good Book we read that we should occupy until His comes whose place it is to reign. But before that time shall we sell ourselves into bondage and be servants to another people under heavy task masters. But I fear that the love of money, alcohol, politics, foolishness and frivolity have got a death grip upon us and we will have to bow to that which is inevitable.

Now Mr. Editor this may not make very interesting reading matter for your patrons, but when I think of the lives and the Treasure it cost to make this country a free republic. There is a burning sensation within my breast, that unnerves me when thinking of how we are squandering our money and our patrotism. A. FARMER.

THE FEMALE VEGETARIAN.

She will not eat the flesh of fowl
Nor of the meek quadruped;
And wonders that we beefeaters
Can be so cruelly stupid,
To kill the pretty birds which bring
To her but thoughts of heaven;
Or masticate the lowly steer
To give our muscles leaven.
But when she lies to church Sunday,
In a pretty Easter bonnet,
She cares not whence the feathers came
That gaily wave upon it.

STATE AUDITOR DUNN with an eye to business, offers the site of the Fourth Hospital for Insane, at Anoka, for rent. Bob evidently wants the state to make the most of its bargain.

ARRANGMENTS for the unveiling of the Ole Bull statue in Loring Park, Minneapolis, on May 17, are being completed. This will be a big day among the countrymen of the renowned violinist, who will come from far and near to be present on this occasion.

Beet Sugar Seed!

The Pioneer Press says State Treasurer Koerner has ordered, under the new law, 2500 lbs of "beet sugar seed" to be here May 1. That ought to solve the beet sugar factory business. If farmers are supplied with "Beet Sugar Seed" they ought to be able to raise beet sugar, and of course all the fuss about a factory would be done away with.

The Press also says the seed will be sold, at cost, to farmers! We supposed when the legislature voted $5000 to buy seed that the farmers would have to pay thir share of the tax; but didn't suppose they were going to to have the National Banking business played on them. Once is enough to pay for sugar beet seed. But "Beet Sugar Seed" may be more valuable.

Knute Gets to the Top.

Knute Nelson, Minnesota's junior United States Senator has reached the climax of his ambitions. He has been as high as he can go under the laws of this country, if not a little higher. On Monday while Vice-President Hobart and President Pro Tem Frye were absent Knute presided over the United States Senate. He, our Knute, Senator from Minnesota occupied the seat of Vice-President of the United States! The Constitution says. "No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to to the office of president." As a matter of course then, the same rules would apply to the Vice-President, who might be called upon to fill the President's place. Anyone acting as Vice-President, would be expected to fill the requirements of eligibility to the office of President. From the Legislative Manual of Minnesota for 1893, we learn of the then Governor: "Knute Nelson, of Alexandria, Minnesota, was born in the parish of Voss, near the city of Bergen, Norway, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1843." It is then quite evident that Mr. Nelson was not present at the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, September 17, 1787, and that he was not born in this country, consequently he is ineligible to the highest office in the gift of the people, likewise to that of Vice-President. Then when he is selected to preside over the United States Senate it looks as if he had been accorded privileges just a shade beyond the power of the Constitution to grant him.

And then, if the United States Senate should take a notion to adopt the questionable precident established by the Senators home State, in declaring Hon Frank Day's seat in the Minnesota Senate vacant, because he had acted Lieutenant Governor after Knute went to Washington and Dave Stepped into his old shoes, and declare the seat of Senator Knute Nelson in the United States Senate vacant, wouldn't we be left without our quota of representatives at Washington? If a Norwegian, foreign born can be a United States Senator from Minnesota and President of the United States Senate at the same time why couldn't Frank Day, born in Wisconsin, in the United States be Lieutenant Governor a little while without loosing his seat in the State Senate?

THE National Democrats are reported to have held a meeting in New York City, on Sunday, April 25, (couldn't they spare time for any other day?). Representatives from several other states were present (none from Minnesota on the list!), also, gold democracy men from New York and Brooklyn. No business seems to have been done and no future plans decided upon. That's about the best they can do under existing circumstances. The National Democrat party has evidently done about all the damage it could. If its members are democrats they should join the democratic party, and aid in voting much needed reform in money, tariff and other things that would benefit, people and not for millionair monopolies alone. They should vote for equal and exact justice to all men. If they are tied up to the root of all evil, so badly as to think that by contracting the money to a single gold standard, which they can control and manipulate, as they would the mercury in a thermometer, by blowing their breath upon it, holding it on ice, not forgetting salt, they had, if they hope to succeed better join the gold republicans and be done with it.

Criticisms.

Says a new poet "Fluttered a moth to a bright blasing lamp's banquet." Now what is a "lamp's banquet?" Or does he possibly, mean "banquet lamp".—Pioneer Press.

The Pioneer Press says Treasurer Koerner has ordered some "beet sugar seed". Now what is "beet sugar seed"? Or does it possibly mean "sugar beet seed"?

Gold Going Glimmering.

"A dispatch emanating from Chicago today said that $1,500,000 in gold has been exported from New York in the last two or three days and that $25,000,000 will go before the movement is over."—St. Paul Dispatch, April 22, 1897.

What, and Bryan not elected! Didn't we hear from every stump and read from the papers of the Dispatch stripe that "When McKinley is elected gold will cease to leave our land?" Wasn't we told to have confidence and hold on until McKinley is inaugurated? Then till Congress meets? And haven't all these things come to pass? And isn't the gold passing to foreign lands, just the same as it has for years under the gold standard plan? And wan't it continue to leave so long as it is the only money our government allows us? And wan't, what little is left here become very much more valuable, just the same as the farmers' wheat in his bin becomes more valuable, when his neighbors have sold all they had to spare, and more too?

Didn't no less an authority than the William Windom, tell us just before late lamented Secretary of the Treasury his sudden death, that there was in his opinion, not enough gold, or silver in the world for money? Didn't he advise the use of both together, the double standard, of the Constitution and of the country? And haven't we been forced by money powers into the single gold standard? And hasn't the gold been leaving our shores ever since? and haven't we been selling bonds to replace it? And wasn't the people given to understand that when Cleveland was out and McKinley was in this thing would at once, and for ever cease? And didn't Grover help elect the new administration? And aint things moving in the same old rut and practically under the same gold standard management? And is not this last scare in line with former ones? And is not the administration under the direction of the powers that control getting ready for more bonds? With less gold in the country want they bring lower prices? And want our produce do the same? And isn't it about time for this country to return to the "dollars of the daddies" and to a tariff "for revenue only" or to free trade, and to many more things of Jeffersonian simplicity?

Democracy not Dead.

Republican papers are very solicitous of the wellbeing of their long time enemy the democratic party. They are constantly assuming that it has been wrecked. They endeavor to make us believe that the few deserters from the ranks last fall, many of whom are now holding paying positions under appointment of those they aided to office, while the long and tried veterans of the G. O. P. with mouth agape are quietly awaiting a crumb of comfort which each day but seems further off and less likely to come their way. The republican party has blundered. It has, instead of putting on guard only tried and true men of the rank and file, placed in some of the conspicuous posts of honor, to the exclusion of their battle scarred wariors new acquisitions from the enemies camp. Their mistake is becoming apparent to themselves; they are calling a halt to look about for some way out of the difficulty. Instead of the newly found friends drawing to them the entire party from which they sloughed off, the wounds of Democracy are nicely healing, and the intended magnets are without force to attract, but on the other hand the negative pole is repelling from the ranks of true republicanism the best the most patriotic, the reform element.

When at an election the "bosses" of two parties figure together as did the political chieftans of former days in the last campaign to beat William J. Bryan and John Lind in Minnesota, and five neighboring counties go republican and each elect a so called, or a formerly democrat, Sheriff, as did the counties of Ramsey, Hennepin, Sherburne Wright and Anoka, it may be only a coincident; but it certainly looks more like a premeditated arsangement to leave a mother for more vinegar; a seed for next year; a nuculious around which may gather a nebular system to obscure the political skyes upon another occasion; a gold standard nest egg; a "boss" to keep the boys in line for the next campaign. But Democracy, true and tried, died in the wool and a yard wide, is not dead. Democracy the friend of the people long since learned not to be discouraged. Its motto has ever been "just and equal rights to all men". They have ever been in favor of gold and silver coin, the money of the Constitution. They have advocated giving the people not monopolies a chance in this country. The constitution was made, so the preamble says, for ourselves and our posterity, and reads as follows: "Preamble. We, the people of the United Stated, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our prosterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America."

For a century and a decade has this Constitution been maintained inviota. Democracy says it is fit to be the governing power of our land for years to come. It was bought with blood of patriots, it has been preserved through trials and vicissitudes and handed down to us. We should leave it as we found it and bequeath it to the generations to follow us. We do not desire to mar it; to obliterate its wisdom, but to preserve it in all its sacredness as becomes patriots, true Democrats. In this way we will prove that Democracy still lives.

Rank Republicans.

Editor Rank, of the Annandale Post, says, in last week's issue, that he has been "frequently called the 'rankest republican in Wright county'". In the next column he attempts to explain the mystery of the air ship, and runs it into politics, which, if he calls republicanism is surely Rank Republicism. After giving his own version of the disease, or mental ailment to which he atributes the wonderful advertisement the air ship received recently he says: "It is very closely allied to the 16 to 1 microbe; that persons "having succumbed to the bliting influence of the one are quite liable to the attacks of the other; and we therefore counsel the adoption of rigid measures for its extinction." This we consider rather rank. Just how nearly half of the voting population of the United States who supported free silver views at the last election and have declared themselves favorable to such views since election, can be placed in the same line with a few sensational newspaper writers seeking to earn their salaries by exciting the immaginations of the unwary by writing the fabulous air ship stories, to sell their employers papers could only be told by "the rankest republican in Wright county". And his treatment! Just think of such advice being given by a man who has taught school! as for the air ship stories being wrong, we heartily agree with the Post that they were. But as for people who believe in a larger amount of primary money, real money, of gold and silver; the money of the constitution being classed with these fake writers, we object, seriously object. And when Mr. Rank askes people who think that we would be better off if we had a few more dollars to jingle instead of so many debtors to dun; and so many creditors to shun, to take his treatment we differ from him.

Think of Mr. Rank administering to his poor readers affected with what he holds up to be akin to Rabies or Smallpox, such treatment. He says: "as soon as the disease manifests itself assume indifference."

He must be something of a believer in faith cure; and thinks that all you have to do is to think you are well and you will be well. Such fellows said: "The day McKinley is elected times will be good." Then they concluded to put off the restoration of prosperity until "When McKinley is Inaugurated"; next "Until Congress is convened"; And now they are not quite sure when we will raise on the wave of good times; unless the other nations of Europe conclude to take sides on the Greco-Turkish war.

Then Dr. Rank says: "Apply, also, occasional expressions of contempt, carefully compounded with disgusted incredulity". He must of course mean "cold expressions". He says "Most cases will show marked improvement in the space of a few minutes", and recommends repetition of the remedy, and the turning over of incurable cases to the "fool killer." Now this is Rank indeed! Turn over to the fool-killer such a large body of the voters of this country! What can Rank be thinking about? He must have had "Air-Ship" nearly as bad as any of the boys when he penned that fearful pescription. Why, his remedy would be worse than the disease. The established rules so far, seem to have been the placing in office by the new administration of such as were "cured" much to the chagrin and discomfiture of those who entirely escaped the ravages of the fearful malady, for which Dr. Rank prescribes. The Dr. may not appriciate this treatment as much as do the "saved" nor entirely agree with the common republicans; but it is more humane than the Rank's receipt for having so many of our people handed over to the tender mercies of the fool-killer.

And then there have been some pretty loud charges made that the common everyday republicans and the single standard people had made use of another remedy which we trust Dr. Rank don't approve of; since he proposes the more heroic treatment, and we think he is right in leaving out this element from his prescription; We refer to the "gold cure". But the wholesale fool-killer prescription is too Rank even for republicans.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23, 1897.

The gentelmen engaged in attempting to organize a revolt in the House against Czar Reed's high-handed way of doing things have zeal, will, brains, audacity—in fact everything necessary to succeed; but votes enough to outvote Reed's supporters. There is lots of talk about a large number of republicans being ready to join the revolt, but if brought to an issue it will be found that the "large number will be about a dozen or possibly as many as 20 at the outside. This being the case it strikes me that these gentelmen are, with the best intentions, wasting time that might be put to a better use than raising expectations, that cannot be realized among those who are not fully acquainted with the situation in the House. That there are enough republicans in the House who are at heart opposed to Mr. Reeds policy and methods to make a majority of the House when combined with the democrats and populists is probably true, but they all want the best committee asignments they can get and are notgoing to vote against the man who makes those asignments; they also want favors from the administration, and they know that Mr. McKinley is in favor of the Reed policy. Enough republicans to make a majority of the House will support Reed regardless of what they think.

"Billy" Mason, of Ills., this week established his record in the Senate as a "Kicker", by making a speech in favor of his resolution for a cloture rule, in which he rediculed the methods of that august body and charged its members with caring more for the individual power than for public welfare. Refering to act on the Morgan Cuba resolution he said that it was impossible to tear down the golden god of the Senate in order to act, and closed by saying: "I would not scuttle the old ship, but I would like to put her in dry dock long enough to have her bottom scrapped."

While no gold democrat has been appointed to a prominent place by Mr. McKinley, he is indirectly showing his gratitude to the gold democrats by allowing a number of them to remain in very desirable offices. Mr. Conrad N. Jordan, Assistant Treasurer of the U. S., at New York, is a conspicuous example, although Senator Platt and the entire New York machine made a hot fight for his place for Ellis H. Roberts, a Platt republican. Mr. Jordan was in Washington this week to renew his $400,000 bond that expirid at midnight on the 22nd inst. His renewal of the bond makes it certain that he has been assured of his retention in office for an indefinite period, as a reward forbeing a gold democrat. And the same policy is being pursued towards Claude M. Johnson, of Ky., Chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; ex-Representative Forman, of Ills., Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and others who fill places of less importance.

The professional office holders—those who have been in office before—have secured about nine-tenths of the pie distributed up to date by Mr. McKinley, which seems to show that experience is as necessary in office seeking as in any other business; but that doesn't lessen the disappointment of the experienced reachers after official pie.

Senator Morgan has given notice that he would insist upon a vote next week upon his resolution for the recognition of the belligerency of the Cubans. The resolution can command a majority in the senate all right, but there it will stop, unless Czar Reed sees fit to allow the House to do some business at this session out side of the tariff bill and the left over appropriation bills.

The adverse decision by the U. S. Supreme Court in the case of Chapman, the N.Y. broker who refused to answer questions in the Senate sugar scandal investigation, leaves Chapman with only one hope of escaping the thirty-day jail sentence imposed upon him when he was found guilty of contempt in a Washington court. That is, in his being pardoned by Mr. McKinley. Strong pressure is being brought upon Mr. McKinley to issue a pardon to Chapman.

Democratic Senators have been notified that if they would not force Senator Vest's resolution, declaring the action of Secretary Gray in issuing orders for the enforcement of the retroactive clause of the tariff bill to be illegal, to a vote, that olause would be either made satisfactory or dropped entirely before the bill is reported to the Senate. This confession that the clause in question was merely put in the bill to bluff importers is not surprising It never had many advocates in the Senate.

Duluth News Tribun: Mr. Cleveland seems to be another gentleman that imagined the Republican party was voting for the gold standard and a low tariff.

Col. Bixby and Col. Nimocks should arbitrate. But come to think of it, either is in any immediate danger of being appointed to anything. Their are a few patriots in Ohio and the south yet to be provided for, to say nothing of the demands from republistic Nebraska and Kansas.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Litchfield Independent: John Kolb, a gold Democrat, has been appointed postmaster at Melrose, Stearns county, on the recommendation of Page Morris, who defeated C. A. Towne for congress last fall. There were several lifelong Republicans including one old soldier, after the appointment, and the selection of a Democrat gives anything but satisfaction among the faithful.

The Public Does Need Moral Growth.

Prof. T. J. Caton who addressed the temperence meeting at No. 29 Hennepin avenue yesterday afternoon expounded the doctrines of successful political reform in a way that put a new light on the temperance movement. He showed it to be the great financial question, and cogently gave his reason for the belief that if it were put before the voting public in its economic light that it would gain a hearing in a few years that cenutries will not accord it so long as it is presented from the standpoint of the weeping philosopher only. He stated that, deplorable as the fact may be, the general public has not sufficient moral development to appreciate a purely moral question, whereas all mankind is touched by an appeal to economic principles - or averice.

The attendance was large, the hall being well filled. Rev. Dr. Charles. B. Mitchell, who was detained from speaking as per announcement yesterday will speak next Sunday.—The Evening Press.

A Newspaper Change.

Rev. J. B. Starkey has become identified with the fortunes of the Minneapolis Evening Press as responsible manager, and announces to the public that the paper is now on a solid foundation. He is creating an impression that he will succeed in his new venture. That he has been in another line of business before, and also a presiding elder and pastor, does not specially qualify him for his present work, except that such diversified opportunities to study human nature bring a wide-awake mind to a vantage ground valuable for any line of business. He has never acquired the characteristic of a certain type of the clerical mind that would cause him to shrink from contact with the crowd. And so far as his influence may be felt in the editoral department, it will be to strengthen the moral and ethical tone of the paper and increase the venturesome faith that would sqeak the unpopular truth. Many of our readers would not indorse the politics of the Evening Press, but all should welcome men of proved integrity and moral worth to positions of responsibility on our daily papers.—Methodist Herald.

CONGRESSMAN BAILEY.

Tells of Differences Between Him and Mr. Bryan, of Neb.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(Special.) The New York World to-day contains the following statement from the Hon. Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas in regard to the differances that are said to exist between the leader of the minority in the House and Mr Bryan:

During the contest oyer the Democratic nomination for the speakership I refused to discuss my relations with Mr. Bryan because I felt that an explanation at that time might be construed as an effort to influence the rest of the caucus, and I preferred to be defeated rather than place myself in the position of explaining my attitude toward any man. But now that the contest is over and my nomination has been so extensively advertised as an evidence of a division in our party, I am entirely willing to answer your question. In the letter which I wrote declining a renomination for Congress, I said: "Mr. Bryan is not only one of the most brilliant men in this or any other country, but he is a man of exalted character and sincerely devoted to the welfare of the people." That was my opinion of him, and that is my opinion of him now.

It is very true that I differed with him upon certain questions, and I frankly said so to my constituents. I have not changed my opinion on those questions, and I do not expect to, nor have I ever regretted for a single moment the course which I pursued at the Chicago convention and afterwards.

But the story that my nomination by the Democratic caucus was an anti-Bryan victory hardly deserves to be dignified by a denial. The truth is that many of my warmest friends are ardent supporters of Mr. Bryan, and as matters now stand I am myself cordially in favor of his nomination in 1900.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

DELANO, Wright Co., - MINN.

The weak platform which falls and kills people who occupy it has started upon its bone-breaking career very early this season.

The Pennsylvania woman who left her husband one cent, to be paid him five years after her death, evidently had a grudge against him.

President McKinley has had the pleasure of appointing to West Point the 17-year-old son of Gen. Phil Sheridan. His mother is glad, the boy is glad, and so the country should be.

The log of the Mayflower is to be returned to America. The log is not a part of the lumber in the shape of furniture that the Mayflower brought over in such surprising quantities.

A woman in New York who has nine husbands has given herself into custody. No wonder the poor woman grew discouraged; times are hard and she couldn't support such a family.

The airship seems to be in too many places. The person who is looking eagerly for a certain thing usually finds it, even if he is perfectly honest. Human testimony is a very strange thing.

Women in Burmah propose to men whom they seek in marriage, and when they tire of them a divorce can be had for the asking. Boats run regularly between the United States and Burmah.

We are still a trifle skeptical about that air ship, but this is certainly an age of inventive wonders, and who shall say that anything is impossible since a Maine man has invented a pencil sharpener which works?

The occasional benevolent intervention of the government for the relief of a distresssed section of the United States is one of the most beautiful exhibitions of the efficiency of our federal economy. Such benevolence is rarely, if ever, misplaced, and always intensifies the coherency of state and nation.

A widow with seven children has just married a widower with 12 olive branches in a New York village, while a woman in Oklahoma has sued for a divorce from her husband and in the petition she asks for possession of 11 youngsters, the fruits of the marriage. And still there are some who insist that love for children is on the wane.

A man in Iowa has drunk so much hard cider that a "mother of vinegar" has formed in his stomach, and a surgical operation will be necessary. Thus even the mild seductiveness of cider has its dangers. The man who drinks hard cider is exposed to the inward pangs of "mother of vinegar" and perhaps the outward attacks of mother-in-law.

Dr. J. Mount Bleyer, an ear and throat specialist of New York, has been able to photograph sound. The idea is an elaboration of that wherein the voice is recorded on the cylinder of the phonograph. Instead of the vibrations being imprinted on wax, they are caught by the camera in the shape of the geometrical figures they produce. Thus fond mothers may be able to get a picture not only of the baby but of the geometrical figure his little yell produces.

Mrs. U. S. Grant has written a book. It is the home story of Gen. and Mrs. Grant as it has never been told before. Mrs. Grant said, when asked concerning it: "Yes, it is true I have written a book, but have decided nothing as yet in regard to its publication. Perhaps I shall not have it published at all. My children will, you say? Yes, I suppose so. The book is for them. They can do as they wish in the matter. I write solely for my own pleasure—never for publication in any paper or magazine.

The question of the right of an attorney to shed tears in defense of his client has been passed upon by the supreme court of Tennessee, which held that it was not only allowable, but among "the natural rights of counsel which no statute or constitution could take away." Indeed, says the court, "if counsel have tears at command, it may be seriously questioned whether it is not his professional duty to shed them whenever proper occasion arises." The court did not pass on the right of the client to exhibit emotion at the size of the bill.

It is stated that there are 1,000,000 blind people in the world, or one to every fifteen hundred inhabitants. A German oculist believes that a majority of the cases are due to fever, and that 75 per cent. of the afflicted persons could, by proper treatment, have retained sight. More than half of the blind population of Europe is in Russia. While the blind population of the United States is less than one-third as large as that of Russia, the number of inmates of blind asylums is larger here than in any other country. The number in these institutions was at last reports 3,489.

The plague is fast disappearing in India, and while scientific men agree that this is due in some degree to the natural exhaustion of the disease itself, it is contended that improved medical treatment and sanitary safeguards are largely responsible for the abatement of the pestilence. It seems to have been definitely proven that in this enlightened age, even in a semi-civilized country like India, no epidemic can make such headway as those which overrun Europe at periods in years gone by. Science has not yet won a complete victory over disease, but the enemy is slowly and surely being pressed back.

William Lewis, of St. Louis, had a Roman nose, but a centipede bit the organ and ruined it. The doctors took all the flesh from Mr. Lewis' nasal appendage and built him a new nose. The organ is Grecian. The operation opens limitless possibilities, and threatens national types. If Roman may become Grecian, at the scenter if not at the circumference, why should not the transfer of other nationalities be made across the bridge of the nose? Public investigations might have a different result if the smelling committee were first trimmed for action, and physiognomical changes might alter the face of events.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

Senator Chandler (N. H.) offered a concurrent resolution in the United States senate on the 21st for an adjournment of the senate and house from April 26 to May 3, with a view to participating in the Grant ceremonies at New York. The bankruptcy bill was further discussed. In the house the death of Mr. Milliken (Me.) was announced by Mr. Dingley, and out of respect the house adjourned for the day.

In the United States senate on the 22d the bankruptcy bill, which provides for voluntary bankruptcy and also for involuntary bankruptcy in certain cases, was passed. On the announcement of the death of Representative Holman the senate adjourned as a mark of respect until the 26th. In the house Mr. Lanham (Tex.) introduced a bill to reduce the expenditures of the government, to decrease federal salaries and to discourage the office-seeking industry. Mr. Steele (Ind.) announced the death of William S. Holman and the speaker appointed a committee of ten to join a committee of the senate to accompany the remains to their final resting place.

The United States senate was not in session on the 23d. In the house Mr. Dorr (W. Va.) introduced a bill to repeal the civil service law. The consideration of the senate amendments to the Indian appropriation bill were completed and the bill was sent to conference. A resolution was adopted by which a committee of 25 was appointed to attend the dedication of the Grant tomb in New York on the 27th. Adjourned to the 26th.

Tom Darben, a logging man, was absent in Virginia chopping wood, when his home at Beaver Creek, Ky., was burned and his wife and four children were cremated.

Sallie Simons, aged 11, and Pet Gamp, aged 72 years, eloped from Corbin, Ky., and were married at Jellico, Tenn.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

At her home in Canton, O., Nancy Allison McKinley, mother of the president, celebrated her eighty-eighth birthday. She is in excellent health.

An assassin made an attempt to kill the president of Uruguay, Senior Idiarte Borda. He was shot at, but the bullet missed its mark.

Greek troops under the personal command of the crown prince destroyed the Turkish battery at Ligeria. The Turks retired from Nezeros and Rapsani and were appalled by the destruction of all their stores at Katerina and Litochorion. Osman Pasha will succeed Edhem Pasha as commander in chief of the Turkish armies.

The Turks have taken Larissa. After a desperate stand made at Mati the Greek troops were driven back by force of numbers and have retreated from both Larissa and Tyrnavos. Pharsalos, a small town south of Larissa, was made the headquarters of the Hellenic army. Great Britain has taken the initiative for intervention by the powers in the war, and as a result the declaration of an armistice is a possibility in a short time.

At Guadalajara, Mex., Jose S. Guitteriz was legally shot for the murder of his brother-in-law, Jose Bobadilla, a millionaire merchant.

LATER NEWS.

Full reports from the battle at Larissa show that it was very disastrous to the Greeks, in fact was an utter rout. The Greek government has decided, according to a dispatch from Athens, that if the Greeks are defeated at Pharsala, the army is to retire to Thermopylae and there make a final stand.

It was announced the 26th that the great powers had arrived at an agreement concerning Turkey. The terms of the agreement, it is said, are that the sultan shall renounce Crete, that the czar shall be given a coaling station at Suda bay, in that island, and that in return Russia shall guarantee the integrity of Turkey. The advantage of this arrangement to the nations interessed is obvious. Russia, in command of one of the most important ports of Crete, will be greatly strengthened in the line of her coveted advance toward the south.

An explosion occurred the 26th in the underground railroad in London, which wrecked one car and blew off the glass roof of a station. Ten passengers were severely injured. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

The president the 26th sent the following nominations to the senate: William R. Day of Ohio to be assistant secretary of state Bellamy Storer of Ohio to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Belgium: George. M. Fisk of Ohio, second secretary of the embassy at Berlin: Huntington Wilson of Illinois to the second secretary of the legation at Tokio Japan.

The Grant memorial tomb in New York by the Hudson river was formally dedicated the 27th. The parade was one of the finest ever seen in the city and was carried out with military precision. Short addresses were made by President McKinley, Gen. Horace Porter and others. It was by popular subscription that the fund necessary for the erection of the tomb of General Grant was raised, and it is estimated that 90,000 people contributed sums ranging from one cent to $5,000. In all, $559,000 was secured. The unexpended balance was kept in trust and drew three per cent interest, so the sum increased until it now amounts to about $600,000. With the exception of about $50,000, the entire fund was raised in New York city.

A prairie fire near Cando, N. D., the 27th, burned James Mulcrone's residence, barn, four work horses, harness, and grain.

It was learned the 27th that the French fishing vessel Vallient struck an iceberg the 19th on the Grand Banks and immediately foundered. She had 73 fishermen on board and all took to the boats, but only one of those boats has thus far been heard from.

An electric car on the City and Suburban line at Portland, Ore., left the track the 27th and plunged through a bridge spanning a slough. W. S. Blanchard, Newton, and Miss Katharine Bailey were killed. A broken axle was the cause of the accident.

A street car was wrecked by an engine at Tampa, Fla., the 27th, and three men were killed.

John Sheldon, the leading banker of Loda, Ill., committed suicide the 27th at Chicago by throwing himself into the lake.

A telegram from Kingston, N. Y., the 27th, states that a heavy snow storm prevailed in the Catskill mountains all day.

A passenger train on the Houston & Texas Central railway was thrown from the track the 27th at Fairbanks, Texas. H. S. Goldberg was instantly killed and nearly a dozen persons hurt.

Fire broke out the 27th at the wharf at Newport News, Va., and destroyed two coastwise merchandise piers, with their contents, three vessels and one tug boat, entailing a loss of about $2,000,000. The fire originated in Pier 5 and before the alarm was in flames. Over $1,000,000 worth of grain and and merchandise was stored in the two piers which were destroyed, and this is partially covered by insurance.

FALL OF LARISSA.

Rouses Revolutionary Sentiment in Athens.

Greeks Retreat to Pharsalos—Turks Are Jubilant—Ex-Minister Ralli Says Retreat Was Unnecessary.

Athens, April 26.—The Greek army has fallen back to a second line of defense. A dispatch was received from Prince Constantine Saturday to the effect that the Greek army, after a terrific battle at Mati, was driven back by force of numbers and had retreated to Pharsalos. Col. 'Mastrapas' brigade, which had been repulsing repeated attacks of the Turks at Mati with great beroism, was not able to keep its position and withdrew toward Tyrnavos. In a war council presided over by Prince Constantine it was decided to leave Tyrnavos and Larissa and withdraw toward Pharsalos, about 20 miles south of Larissa, where a decisive battle will probably take place. The Greek army withdrew in perfect order, although pursued by overwhelming numbers of Turkish infantry and cavalry. The brigades under Cols. Smolentz and Dimopoulos withdrew from the passes of Reveni and Boughazi in good order. The wounded remain at Larissa under the protection of the Red Cross flag.

Half a dozen or more attacks were made by the Turks before they finally succeeded in driving the Greeks back to Kazaklar. From Fazaklar they retreated to Larissa, which place they evacuated without a struggle simply because the Turkish troops were rapidly inclosing them in a trap. With the south still open, the Greeks took advantage and withdrew to Pharsalos, where it is expected the next battle will take place. Upon reaching Pharsalos the troops began to intrench themselves in anticipation of pursuit by the Turks.

Feeling at Constantinople.

Constantinople, April 26.—The triumph of the Turkish arms has caused the liveliest satisfaction here. The following telegram from Edhem Pasha is posted everywhere: "Larissa was occupied to-day by the cavalry of the imperial army. The Hellenic troops fled in disorder, abandoning a large quantity of arms and ammunition."

Amhed Hifsi, commander of the Turkish forces in Epirus, telegraphs that the Turks have recaptured Pentepigadia fortress. The Greeks had 300 killed and 219 wounded. The Turks had 51 killed and three wounded, and they captured 62 Greeks. A large quantity of stores, ammunition and Gras rifles was abandoned by the Greeks.

Anger at Athens.

London, April 27.—The most serious feature in the Greco-Turkish emergency is the revolutionary feeling displayed at Athens. Ex-Minister Ralli, leader of the principal opposition group in the legislative assembly, threatened that unless the military staff was changed he would issue a proclamation to the people. His statements acted like oil upon fire, and the popular excitement has flared up. Crowds assembled in the streets to discuss them and wanted to march to the palace to read them to King George. Fortunately, heavy showers drove the people indoors.

Delyannis Forced to Act.

M. Delyannis, keenly alive to the necessity of immediate action, had an audience with the king, and after the interview announced that the staff of the crown prince would be recalled and that ex-Minister Ralli, with three of his nominees—Gen. Smolenski, Gen. Mavromichali and Col. Dimopoulo—would be appointed to replace them.

Ralli Denounces the Prince.

In an interview M. Ralli unsparingly denounced Constantine's staff, which he holds responsible for all that has happened. He denies that there was any real battle at Mati; says the Greek troops were never defeated at that point, and attributed the sudden decision to abandon Tyrnavos and Larissa to the cowardice and incapacity of the general staff.

Whatever may be the value of M. Ralli's strictures, they seem for the moment echoed by the voice of the multitude. Newspapers which only the other day were eulogizing King George and M. Delyannis for having placed themselves at the head of the national crusade are now hounding on the people against the constituted authorities.

Says Retreat Was Unnecessary.

M. Ralli believes the abandonment of Tyrnavos and Larissa to have been not only unnecessary but most ill-advised, as it endangered the safety of Gen. Smolenski's column, which, however, fortunately succeeded in making its way to Pharsalos. One Greek battalion, entering Tyrnavos after the Turkish occupation, was compelled to surrender. The army, as a whole, retreated in small detachments to Pharsalos.

Advancing on Prevesa.

Athens, April 27.—A dispatch from Arta filed at 2:45 Monday afternoon says the left wing of the Greek army at Epirus, under the command of Col. Goliphinopulos, was advancing victoriously on Prevesa. It was garrisoned by 2,500 Turks. For two days there had been heard the continual booming of cannon from the Greek war ships, but the garrison still held out.

Cleveland Speaks.

New York, April 26.—The annual Reform club dinner at the Waldorf hotel Saturday night was the largest function of the kind ever given by the club. The attendance was greater than ever before and there were more eminent speakers than at any other dinner the club has ever given. Former President Cleveland delivered a speech on "The Present Problems;" former Secretary John G. Carlisle spoke on "Sound Currency;" former Postmaster General William L. Wilson, author of the democratic tariff law, spoke on "Tariff Reform;" Edward M. Shepard on "Municipal Administration;" former Representative W. D. Bynum on "The National Democracy;" Congressman H. G. Turner, of Georgia, on "The Political Outlook," and Josiah Patterson, of Tennessee, on "Andrew Jackson and the Restoration of Gold Currency." Mr. Cleveland in his address severely denounced the free silver democrats, and condemned the republicans, who, he said, were traitors to a trust. Mr. Carlisle warmly opposed a monetary conference.

Department Store Closed.

Warsaw, Ind., April 27.—The Enterprise department store has closed its doors. Liabilities, from $50,000 to $70,000.

INCALCULABLE DAMAGE.

Done to Railroads and Other Property by the Floods.

Ottumwa, Ia., April 27.—The Des Moines river is higher than it has ever been known before. It is 15 inches higher than the famous flood of 1892, and higher than in 1876 and 1888, when a large amount of damage was done. All small streams in southern Iowa are also out of their banks. Bridges are gone, communication by highway is cut off and railroad traffic is almost at a standstill. The Chicago & Denver line of the Burlington is cut in two by five miles of inundated track. Railway traffic is practically at a standstill, and the damage to the roads is incalculable.

Half of the town of Eddyville, 18 miles north, is under water, 150 houses are vacated. People have been riding on the main business streets in boats. In Ottumwa no less than 300 families have been compelled to move. Many persons were rescued in boats, so rapid was the rise. In South Ottumwa, where 5,000 people live, the river flows parallel with the main street. It broke across this street early Monday morning, and poured down on the residence and business streets, causing a panic and scramble to move to higher lands. Most of the household goods and stocks in the stores were saved. A large corps of men worked all day and are still working trying to stop the flow of water, and prevent breaks in other places. In the central addition the water is up to the roofs of the houses. In Stiles' addition the water is five feet deep on the main street. In Shickville, a western suburb the water is up to the eaves of the houses.

Quincy, Ill., April 27.—The town of Alexandria is all under water except a narrow strip of land about 20 feet wide and 500 feet long, and the whole population of the town is camped on that little island. Steamboats are taking them off as fast as possible. The town of Canton, Mo., is also submerged, and the only way to get through the streets is in boats.

Superior, Wis., April 27. — Three bridges were washed away by the breaking of a 1,000,000-foot log jam and gorge on the Amnicon river, 12 miles from this place. The greatest damage was done to the iron bridge at the head of the St. Croix river, the loss being about $9,000. The damage to the other bridges and the loss of logs will aggregate $20,000.

Jackson, Mo., April 27.—Four persons were drowned here. Joe Johnson was coming to town in a covered wagon, accompanied by Mrs. Bugg, her son, five years old, and her baby, and Miss Minnie Frazer. Johnson attempted to ford the creek just east of this city, which was much swollen, when the wagon was overturned. Johnson swam to the bank, but the remainder of the party were drowned.

EFFECT OF THE WAR.

Dun & Co. Tell How It Influences the Market.

New York, April 24.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their weekly review of trade say:

"If either Turkey or Greece had been wholly buried in the sea, markets might have been affected less than by the outbreak of war in Europe. Like fire in the heart of a crowded city, it raised the question if a general conflagration might spring out of it. To this possibility, and not to the direct influence of either Turkey or Greece upon the world's money or produce markets, was due the excitement in grain and stocks. As the unknown is magnified, American markets were much more flighty than European, where the possibilities have been discussed and partly discounted for months. But the uncertainty remains, and will affect the movement of money and staples until it disappears, creating a larger demand for American produce at higher prices, causing hasty speculative selling of securities at times, but also more continuous buying by foreign investors, and not improbably influencing the attitude of foreign powers on questions important to this country.

"Wheat rose six cents from Thursday to Monday, and has retained most of the rise. Since Russia and the Danubian state will be likely to ship wheat scantily, especial needs and higher prices being possible there, a larger share of the requirements of western Europe may naturally be drawn from this country, and the chance of a war between the great powers has the more influence, because supplies there are not large.

"The past week, like others of late, has witnessed the starting of operations by several iron works, especially in black sheets for tinning, and yet prices of pig iron and unfinished products are lower, demand not yet equaling the supply. Eastern works have orders for 15,000 tons of steel rails.

"The end of stipulated curtailment has been reached by some cotton mills, and nearly by all, and since the auction sales some bleached goods have been slightly advanced, but actual buying does not increase, and print cloths do not improve. Manufacturers are doing scarcely anything, and orders for goods improve very little, though for somewhat better grades of goods.

"Failures for the week have been 218 in the United States, against 238 last year, and 21 in Canada, against 44 last year."

Two Fatal Pugilistic Encounters.

Philadelphia, April 23.—"Billy" Vernon, the Haverstraw (N. Y.) pugilist, who was injured in his fight with Leslie Pearce, at Athens, Delaware county, on Tuesday night, died at five o'clock in the morning in the Presbyterian hospital. From the moment he collapsed in the fourteenth round Vernon remained unconscious up to the time of his death. Leslie Pearce is in jail at Media, being held without bail.

San Jose, Cal., April 23.—Frank Evans, lightweight pugilist, died in the morning of concussion of the brain, caused by a right-hand blow on the chin delivered by Matt Semichy, in the fourteenth round of a fight before the San Jose Athletic club. Semichy is in jail charged with manslaughter.

Big Mills in Trouble.

New Bedford, Mass., April 24.—The embarrassment of the Howland, Rotch & Bedford company mills is announced. The total liabilities are $4,521,628; total assets, $5,098,555. The mills are practically under one management. Morgan Rotch is president of them all, and William D. Howland treasurer. It is said that the creditors will be paid in full. The stockholders may lose 25 or 50 per cent. President Rotch said notes had come due for which there was no provision. This had led to an examination of the books, and a statement would be made to the creditors of the actual state of affairs.

Going to Fight for Greece.

New York, April 24.—Five hundred and sixty-two Greek recruits sailed on the French line steamship La Champagne for Havre. From this they will be transported via Marseilles to the scene of the conflict between their countrymen and the Turks. The recruits come from different cities, as follows: Chicago, 250; Birmingham, Ala., 15; Atlanta, Ga., 8; Minneapolis, 26; Boston, 25; Lowell, 8; Hartford, 6; Trenton, N. J., 6; Baltimore, 6; Indianapolis, 12, and about 200 from this city.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

A Dairy Board of Trade.

An important business enterprise was launched at the Commercial club in Minneapolis, when the representative dairy manufacturers and dealers from the northwestern states consummated their plans in the organization of a permanent Dairy Board of Trade.

The election of officers was then in order, and Mr. Eustis was elected president by acclamation.

The following were appointed on the board of directors:

Manufacturerers—C. D. Belden, Fergus Falls; Lieut. Gov. John T. Gibbs, Genoa, Minn.; John Morton, Havana, Minn.; H. M. Slocum, Cannon Falls; E. E. Kaufman, Fargo, N. D.; C. P. Sherwood, De Smet, S. D.; A. M. Bingham, Jesup, Iowa; ex-Governor Hoard, Fort Atkinson, Wis.; A. R. Runke, Minneapolis; Frank Barrie, Faribault.

Dealers—J. W. Brown, of Chicago Butter Board, Chicago; James Butler, New York; Levi Longfellow, Minneapolis; Orin Douglas, Boston; G. H. Leonard, Crescent City company, St. Paul; E. G. Potter, Minneapolis; R. Y. McAdam, Minneapolis.

Commercial Bodies—S. H. Hall, Commercial Club, Minneapolis; Colonel G. D. Rogers, Chamber of Commerce, Minneapolis.

It Is Settled.

The long controversy between the government and the owners of the property on the river between Minneapolis and St. Paul, upon which lock and dam No. 2 is to be located, has been settled. Representative Stevens had a lengthy interview with the secretary of war, and in a short time thereafter an order was signed by Secretary Alger locating this lock and dam on the first site selected. There is now no further bar to the commencement of this improvement, but it has not yet been decided just when work upon the new dam will be begun. It is understood that satisfactory arrangements have been made with property owners and there is no longer any cause of complaint.

Sugar Beet Seed.

The seed firm of Northrup, King & Co., of Minneapolis, have received the contract from State Treasurer Koerner to supply the German sugar beet seed to farmers who are to experiment with the raising of the beet for sugar purposes.

The legislature appropriated $5,000 for the purchase of seed, and it will be given at cost to those who make the proper application to the state treasurer. Northrup, King & Co. will distribute the seed as directed by the warrants issued by the state treasurer. The seed is to be imported directly from Germany, and will be of the very best quality. It is selected from the grade of beets giving the highest percentage of sugar.

Our Flax.

Representative Young, of Philadelphia, has received a letter from a flax spinner at Belfast, Ireland, containing some interesting facts about Minnesota textile products.

This manufacturer states that the first consignment of Minnesota flax arrived at Belfast in March last. Experts, he states, in passing an opinion upon its strength and quality, pronounce it to be equal to any grown in Ireland. In length it surpasses the Irish flax and this is attributed to the strong virgin soil of Minnesota, but notwithstanding the strength of the soil, the fibre shows a peculiarly fine texture that makes it suitable for spinning high class yarns.

A Runaway Train.

An ore train of 44 cars got away from the trainmen on the Duluth, Messabe and Northern road and ran down a steep grade on Hillside upon the ore dock. Two miles from the dock the control of the air brakes was lost and the train flew down the hill at a tremendous rate of speed, crashing into a row of cars standing on the docks. The cars were badly smashed up, and 15 were piled up in pieces in the pockets of the ore dock. The train crew jumped and escaped with a few bruises.

Binding Twine.

Large orders for binding twine received at the prison make it necessary to operate the factory over time. The convicts employed in the twine factory now work 12 hours a day, and their time will soon be increased to 13 hours. The factory is turning out 15,000 pounds of twine per day, and the stock on hand amounts to 2,500,000 pounds. This will be increased to 4,000,000 pounds by the time harvest begins.

News in Brief.

Feung Hung-Feung, a Boston Chinaman, on his way to his native land, died at the Union depot in St. Paul.

Frank Witmans, a pioneer resident of Mankato, committed suicide by hanging.

The statute of Ole Bull will, after all, be placed in Loring park, Minneapolis, where it will be unveiled and dedicated to the city of Minneapolis May 17.

Judge Buck, of the supreme court, decides that that section of the statute providing that a deserted wife may prosecute actions in her husband's name and is entitled to all his powers and rights therein, is constitutional.

The new directory of Mankato, just out, contains 4,985 names, which, using the usual multiple of 2½, gives the city a population of 12,462. The population, according to the census or 1895, was 10,173.

The state game and fish commission expects to make heavy seizures of partridges next fall. The new game law forbids the shipping of partridges and yet it is thought commission houses will not scruple to try to continue their old time arrangement with the Indians whom they for years have supplied with guns and ammunition and whose supplies of game they have purchased.

The Northern Pacific has filed with the state auditor its list of unused lands still unsold, under the law passed at this last session of the legislature.

After a brief illness, Gen. Richard W. Johnson, one of St. Paul's pioneers, died of pneumonia at the Metropolitan.

Gov. Clough has vetoed three bills since the legislature has adjourned. One declaring Bridget Wolf the heir of Daniel Rierdon; the second, changing the title of janitor of the state to superintendent of public property. The third was that repealing the law under which Fire Warden C. C. Andrews was operating.

H. F. Brown, of Minneapolis, has been indicted for borrowing city funds from A. C. Haugen, the city treasurer. C. E. Dickinson, alderman from the Twelfth ward, was indicted for bribery.

The Bright Drug Company, of St. Cloud, has assigned.

MANY MERCHANTS SUED.

Users and Selling Agents of Imperial Cash Registers Brought Into Court.

St. Paul, Minn., April 27.—Suit has been filed in the United States Circuit Court here, against McCormick, Behnke & Company, of this city, by The National Cash Register Company, of Dayton, Ohio, asking for an injunction and damages. Messrs. McCormick, Behnke & Company are the selling agents for the Imperial Cash Register, sometimes known as the Osborn, which is manufactured by the Osborn Cash Register Company, of Detroit, Michigan, and which The National Cash Register Company claims infringes cash register patents owned by them.

Anderson & Buscho, of Wells, Minn., Charles E. Ward, of Bement, Ill., Kennedy, Hungerford & Kools, of Kalamazoo, Mich., John A. Rosinbush, of Union City, Ind., and more than twenty other individuals and firms, who are either using or selling Imperial Cash Registers, have also been sued.

Scrofula Tumors

Broke Out and Caused Intense Suffering — Hood's Sarsaparilla Keeps the Blood Pure.

"Several years ago I had scrofula which appeared in tumors in different parts of my body. It took five weeks for them to develop so they could be lanced and I suffered intensely. Physicians failed to cure me. After three years of great suffering the trouble reached my throat and my tonsils were consumed. I read of cures of scrofula by Hood's Sarsaparilla and procured six bottles. After taking a few bottles I felt better. I continued until I was eventually cured. I have never been troubled with scrofula since that time. Hood's Sarsaparilla keeps my blood pure in spring and fall." MRS. SARAH G. DALES, Rutland, Ill. Be sure to get Hood's because

THE OLD SLATE.

I came upon it yesterday up in the garret old,
A homely object, yet to me 'tis worth its weight in gold;
Its frame a little set awry, its body cracked, you see—
But as I held it in my hands what scenes came back to me!

Upon its surface long ago I solved the problems dread
For masters who are sleeping now beneath the flowers dead;
And many a message here I wrote for only one to see—
The little lass who used to sit across the aisle from me.

I found initials in the frame by jack-knife lettered there,
They stand for one who was to me the fairest of the fair;
And every mark upon the slate that cruel time has spared
Recalls some lesson which in youth that fairest lassie shared.

Ah, here's the crack which long ago was was made by Jerry Call
When to the floor my precious slate he purposely let fall;
We did not speak for near a week, his mischief caused me pain,
But when he drew me from the creek we friends became again.

How often o'er this ancient slate with many a scar and nick,
I wrestled with the myst'ries of the old arithmetic!
How proud I used to hold it up whenever I was right,
But when I failed how glad was I to keep it out of sight!

What victories from my "Webster" on this old, old slate I won;
What little rhymes I used to write when other tells were done;
How in my seat behind the stove the muse I tried to woo,
And glibly wrote of "roses red" and violets soft and blue!"

I seem to see those little rhymes upon its surface now;
I seem to catch some cherished names breathed oft with boyish vow;
And 'round me from the misty past where recollections meet,
I hear the merry patter of a score of youthful feet.

I see the stern old masters, kind for all their stately ways;
They brightened though sometimes they clouded o'er my boyhood days;
And, grateful, I would weave a wreath and place it where they lie
With folded hands to-day, beneath the gentle, starlit sky.

I hear the merry laughter of the girls we used to swing
Beneath the hoary beach that cast its shadow o'er the spring;
But from among them all there comes from out the far away
A sweet and loving face upon the olden slate to-day.

The pencil of my memory brings out every graceful line,
Until there stands before my gaze a figure half divine;
And neither sponge nor moistened hand, with mischief all elate,
Can rub a single lineament from off my treasured slate.

The spiders shall not spin again their filmy silver thrall
Across the old slate resting long against the garret's wall;
I'll set it in the sunshine like a queen in vestments fine,
For it whispers of a boyhood wh... day seems half divine.

THOSE M'CARTHY BOYS.

BY GEORGE ADE.

Mrs. Skinner's brother James was late at dinner time. The others were at the table when he came. His sister rebuked him mildly and said it wasn't her fault if the soup was cold. He replied with great enthusiasm that the soup was "just right," and, to prove that he meant it, he consumed his entire portion. Then he leaned back and looked inquiringly at his nephew Willie, who had been scolded twice already for whistling at the table.

Uncle Jim winked and little Willie began to snicker.

Willie—I did.

Uncle Jim—Did you?

Willie—Yes; and you ought to have heard Ed McCarthy laugh.

Uncle Jim—What did the teacher do?

Willie—Oh, she didn't do much. It made her kind o' mad, I guess. She said: "I'll declare, Willie Skinner, you're one of the worst boys in the school."

Mrs. Skinner—What's this all about?

Willie—Aw, it ain't much. Uncle Jim taught me to speak a piece that he used to speak when he was a kid.

Mrs. Skinner—When he was a boy.

Uncle Jim—It's a good piece, isn't it, Bill?

Mrs. Skinner—James, it sounds awful to call a little boy by such a name as that. What was it you spoke, Willie?

Willie—Aw, it was just a piece.

Uncle Jim—You must remember it. It's about the captain's daughter. "We were crowded in the cabin," and so on.

Mrs. Skinner—Yes, of course. Did you teach it to Willie?

Uncle Jim—You ought to hear him. Go on and speak it for them, Bill.

Willie—Aw, I don't want to now.

Uncle Jim—Go on. I'll bet your father wants to hear it; don't you, Tom?

Mr. Skinner (taking a sudden interest)—Yes, of course. What is it?

Uncle Jim—I knew he wanted to hear it. Your mother will like it, too.

Ethel—I guess he's forgotten it.

Willie—Aw, forget it! I know it easy. It's just:

"We were crowded in the cabin,
Not a soul had dared to sleep:
It was midnight on the waters
And the storm was on the deep.

"'Tis a fearful thing in winter
To be shattered by the blast
And to hear the rattling trumpet thunder:
'Cut away the mast!'

"And as thus we sat in silence,
Each one busy with his prayer,
'We are lost!' the captain shouted,
As he staggered down the stair.

"But his little daughter jollied him,
As she took his icy mitt.
'Ain't you afraid?' the captain cried,
And she bodly answered: 'Nit!'

"So we—"

Mrs. Skinner—Willie Skinner! Stop that this minute! Well, Thomas, I think that you, at least, ought not to laugh at anything of that kind. He's bad enough without being encouraged. (To Willie) Did you get up in school to-day and recite that piece?

Willie (half-frightened, but also emboldened by Uncle Jim's winks)—W'y, yes. Ain't it all right?

Mrs. Skinner—Willie Skinner, you're getting too old to play innocent. You knew that wasn't in the piece.

Willie—Uncle Jim said it was.

Mrs. Skinner—Well, it seems to me your Uncle Jim is all the time trying to get you into trouble. I should think you'd find him out after awhile.

Uncle Jim—Why, there's nothing bad in what he said. It was just a little variation on the old verse.

Mr. Skinner (trying to keep a straight face)—What did your teacher say, Willie?

Willie (encouraged by his father's mirth)—Oh, gee! She was hot under the collar!

Mrs. Skinner—Willie Skinner, where do you learn such language?

Uncle Jim—What did she do?

Willie—Aw, she just stopped me and made me go back to my seat, an' said next time she'd send me home.

Mrs. Skinner—If I'd been your teacher I'd have whipped you good.

Willie—Ho! Ho-ho! That just shows all what you know. Teacher can't whip kids any more. Any teacher that whips a kid gets fired— that's what Ed McCarthy says.

Mrs. Skinner—Well, Ed McCarthy needs a whipping if any boy ever did.

Mr. Skinner—It's a good thing for you that you haven't got my old teacher. If you tried one of those funny recitations on him he would have tanned your jacket.

Willie—Huh! I'd like to see some teacher lick me!

Mrs. Skinner—I wish sometimes that teachers could inflict punishment. I know if I was a teacher I'd whip those McCarthy boys if I lost my job the next day.

Ethel—When we're bad in our room the teacher sends us home.

Mrs. Skinner—That must be terrible punishment for some children.

Uncle Jim—I'll bet Bill would hate to be sent home one of these pleasant afternoons.

Willie—Aw, I wouldn't care.

Uncle Jim—Would you come right home?

Willie—Aw-w-w! One day way last summer Ed McCarthy kep' on throwin' paper wads so the teacher would send him out, 'cuz he wanted to see a ball game, an' I guess she was on to him, for she didn't send him home at all. She put him in the corner and made him stay after school, an' then all us kids waited to holler at him when he came out, an' he was so mad he run after Bob Ellsworth an' chugged him right in the stomach an'—

Mrs. Skinner—Willie, you'd better eat your dinner. You can finish that some other time.

Uncle Jim—Who is your teacher now?

Willie—Aw, it's ol' Miss Sanders.

Mrs. Skinner—Willie! Don't let me hear you speak in that manner of your teacher again. Do you hear?

Willie—I guess if you had to go to school to her every day you wouldn't be so stuck on her.

Mrs. Skinner—Never mind talking back. If you have anything to say about her, call her Miss Sanders.

Uncle Jim—Do you love your teacher?

Willie—Aw, keep still.

Uncle Jim—Why, every little boy ought to love his teacher. Ethel loves her teacher, don't you, Ethel?

Ethel—I liked her the first day.

Willie—Oh, gee! You can do anything you want to the first day. We thought Miss Sanders was a dandy when she first come, but she's got so cross now us kids can't do a thing.

Mrs. Skinner—No wonder. You boys would spoil the temper of a saint. It's bad enough to take care of one. I don't know what I'd do if I had 20 on my hands.

Uncle Jim—You'd do what Miss Sanders does. You'd put up with them as long as you could and then send them home.

Mrs. Skinner—Well, I'd get even with those McCarthy boys. I'm sure Willie would never have got to reading those cowboy stories if it hadn't been for them.

Uncle Jim—Probably Mrs. McCarthy thinks it was Willie that led her boys astray.

Mrs. Skinner—Indeed! I don't see what reason she has to think anything like that. Willie behaves himself very well when he keeps away from those boys. They are always getting him into some trouble.

Mr. Skinner—I'm afraid they don't have to pull at him very hard.—Chicago Record.

ABOUT HOUSECLEANING.

Some Valuable Suggestions for the Careful Housewife.

Never use soap of any kind upon painted woodwork, as the alkali softens the surface and causes white paint to turn yellow.

Genuine sapolio or borax is a safer detergent than ammonia, but even these should be used sparingly.

Clean woodwork that has been oiled or varnished with clean water or tepid tea. After cleaning rub lightly with a soft cotton cloth, add a mixture of two parts raw linseed oil and one part turpentine. Rub dry with a soft woolen cloth.

Use the same mixture, and in the same way, for furniture that only needs freshening.

Never apply oil to furniture until it has been thoroughly cleaned; nor in a room where it is dusty or will be during the process of drying. The cleaning can best be done with a soft cotton cloth and a medium-sized flat pointed brush. If badly soiled, or the dust in carved parts and corners is obstinate, add a little ammonia to the water.

If tinted willow furniture is very dusty, wash in clear water using a brush in the crevices, and dry in the shade. Willow or rattan furniture in natural color may be thoroughly scrubbed with a stiff brush, warm water and white soap. Dry in the sun and wind.

Carpets or rugs can be as thoroughly beaten spread on the grass as hung over a line, and with much less danger of injury. In either case they should be beaten on the wrong side first.

All things considered, a solution of ox gall and warm soft water, in the proportion of one pint of the former to two gallons of the latter, is the best cleansing and freshening agent for carpets. If spots are obstinate use white soap also. Ox gall soap can be bought at any drug store, if the pure gall cannot be obtained.

Gasoline is a most effective cleanser, but it often leaves a dark circle about the soiled spot that is more disfiguring than the original one, but draperies, no matter whether on delicate silk or heavy chenille that are streaked with dust and grime can be beautifully cleansed by a thorough washing in gasoline. Do it in the open air, and as expeditiously as possible washing and rinsing one before wetting another. Cover the curtain with gasoline; work it up and down and rub spots with the hands; fold lengthwise and put through the wringer. Rinse in gasoline; wring out; pull carefully into shape; hang lengthwise of the line and in the shade. —Washington Home Magazine.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

THE ROAD QUESTION.

How Progressive Farmers Should View This Important Problem.

It is only during seasons of abnormal rainfall that the average farmer feels disposed to manifest a more than lukewarm interest in the subject of road improvement. In most sections the settling of the roads late in the spring settles, for the time being, the general agitation of this question. That it will bob up again with renewed emphasis is just as certain as that the roads will "break up" in the fall, for neglect of highways at any time only intensifies their bad conditions. Eternal vigilance and eternal agitation seems to be the price of good roads in this country. It would seem that the most conservative man would need only to open his eyes to the miserable condition of country roads in many of the states during a great part of the year, and consider carefully the annual cost of maintaining them in such condition, to realize that road-making methods, and the system under which they are applied, are seriously at fault. We believe a majority of the farmers in the states referred to know the present system to be wrong; otherwise they would show their faith by their works; they would no longer feel justified in performing $3 worth of labor on the farm one day, and $1.50 worth on the road the next.

WHAT A ROAD SHOULD BE.

We have long stood with those who think the road tax should be collected in money, and have paid cash for several years, but under the present system of road management it cannot always be applied to the best advantage.

In some sections even where great claims were made for the "naturally good" condition of the roads, the bountiful crops sometimes lie unmoved through a period of high prices, simply because the naturally bad condition of the roads at certain seasons of the year, forbids the hauling of loads. Farmers study and plan, and work, to increase production; they study the law of supply and demand; they watch the markets that they may be enabled to sell their produce when prices are best; in short, they, many of them, do their part as well, as far as their own private business is concerned. On the other hand, the railroads and elevators are ever ready to do their part, as far as their private business of handling the farmers' produce is concerned. Under these conditions what is to hinder the intelligent farmer from always pushing his produce into market at such time as his best judgment dictates? Simply the weakness of the connecting link—the highway—the one thing over which the people have full control. There are times when the farm is practically much farther from the nearest village than the village is from the great mart to which it is tributary, and until the weak link is made strong, farming will not be as generally profitable as it otherwise would be.—The Epitomist.

DAIRY SUGGESTIONS.

Milk of different temperatures should never be mixed.

With cows long in milk the butter will come slowly.

The only way to keep cows is to keep them perfectly clean.

An absorbent of some kind should be kept to retain the valuable constituents of the droppings, both solid and liquid.

The oleo law has been sustained in West Virginia by the supreme court of that state. The law requires that oleo be colored pink, and for a violation of it by selling it in the guise of butter a fine of $20 and costs was imposed. An appeal affirmed the decision.

At ten cents a bushel, potatoes do not pay the grower, but they will pay the dairyman who purchases them at that price to feed his milch cows. Farmers who are hauling potatoes out to the field to be used as fertilizers will find it will pay better to first put them through live stock.

Water cools the milk much more rapidly, says a writer, than air will do, and on this account the water setting must be used in the winter as well as the summer. It would be a simple matter to set the water to be used out of doors to get cold before putting it in the tank.

MUD IS EXPENSIVE.

It Entails an Annual Loss Estimated at $250,000,000.

It is an inside figure to put the amount this country annually contributes to the mud fiend at $250,000,000, of which amount Iowa pays at least $8,000,000. A total loss. Mud does not give back anything to anybody. There is nothing reciprocal about it. It is a loss complete, absolute and irrecoverable even in part. A man loses $1,000 by his house being destroyed by fire, but somebody is benefited by that loss. In rebuilding, the sawmill, the sash and door manufacturer, the carpenter, the painter and the plumber find a market for material and labor. If a bank discounts a note which proves worthless, the money, while a loss to the bank, goes about on its mission and is not a loss without somebody's gain. Mud knows neither friend nor foe. In the natural organization of matter mud may have a place, but that place is not in the road.—Judge Thayer, Clinton, Ia.

A Farm Journal's Opinion.

The country highways should be made the park system of the farming communities. Smooth driveways lined on each side by level grass plats interspersed by such ornamental trees as do not overshadow the streets. To say nothing of the satisfaction, the farms would be increased in value a large per cent.—Farmers' Union.

FARMERS AND BIRDS.

Why the Feathered Visitors Should Be Carefully Protected.

The farmer who pretends to "keep up with the times" provides himself with all the modern appliances which are adapted to his business.

If part of the land is marsh, he will underlay it with the most approved system of drainage; if it has not been properly cultivated, he buys the best subsoil plows in order that the riches which lie just below the surface may be brought to light. The fertilizers which he thinks best adapted to the crop which he wishes to cultivate are procured and applied with a lavish hand; knowing as he does that this expenditure will repay him, perhaps, a hundred fold. The enterprising farmer calls to his aid not only all the improved tools and improvements for cultivation, irrigation and protection, but invokes also all the forces of nature, which can in any way assist him. He lifts the subsoil and invites the air to help him pulverize it; he erects a windmill and asks the wind to aid in raising the water with which to irrigate; he digs ditches, and calls upon the water, which the wind power has lifted, to do its part in nourishing the parched earth. Thus his vegetables, his grain and his grasses, through an intelligent use of nature's forces, spring up and flourish for a time; but only to meet new dangers. Now the insects appear upon the scene and the aspect changes.

Can it be that the farmer has put himself to all this great expenditure of labor, tools, material, and time, only to be thwarted at last? It certainly looks so. But nature, which was responsible for the danger, now provides the remedy—and that remedy is the birds, which come in regular order each spring, almost as regular as the seasons. In the "Bigelow Papers" this reference is made to the blackbirds in "A New England Spring:"

"Fust come the blackbirds clatterin' in tall trees,
'An' settlin' things in windy congresses—
Queer politicians, though, for I'll be skinned,
Ef all on 'em don't head against the wind."

Then the blackbirds are soon followed by others, and when the proper time comes each family does its full duty, and the insects are obliged to succumb. It is stated by competent authority that the red-winged blackbirds destroyed in a single locality more than 16,000,000,000 insects during one season. The blackbird does not rival Patti as a singer, but it does attend strictly to business; and its business (like that of an entomologist) is bugs. But long before this, other birds have been working for the farmer, searching all the hidden places, under the bark of trees, about old stumps, amidst the moss and dead leaves, and in other places which the farmer never dreams of, for the concealed "larvae" where the embryo insects are thus destroyed by the million. One of the most industrious of these early workers is the "Brown Creeper," which searches every tree, as if it had a special contract to secure a certain number of specimens of "larvae" every week. Thus does this bird (like many others) "take time by the forelock" and destroy millions of insects before they have a chance to emerge from this first stage of their existence.

But we must not forget our old friend the robin, of which it is said:

"By some name or other,
All men who know him, call him brother."

The robin is more than a brother to the farmer, for, by his activity in devouring insects, he sometimes benefits the farmer more than could a real brother.

Have the farmers any adequate idea of the value of the services rendered them by the birds? The best authority states that the birds effect saving to the country each year of not less than $100,000,000. The farmer should be the bird's best friend and stanch defender, for it is the birds alone which stand between the farmer and the loss of his crops. "But," argues some picayune tiller of the soil, "the birds eat my cherries, and the crows pull up my corn, and I'm bound to kill 'em."

The Smithsonian Institution long ago sent out a warning to the farmers of the country regarding the impending extinction of the birds, and the direful results which are sure to follow. When the last bird yields its life to the pot hunter, or is offered up to satisfy the demands of that tyrant, Dame Fashion, then, and only then, will some farmers see where they have erred—but it will be too late. The ruin will have been wrought, the damage done. The time to act is now. Every farmers' organization should make the salvation of the birds its special business. Every farmer should appoint himself a "committee of one" to see that the birds in his vicinity are protected; that the laws of his state relating to birds are enforced. Let him begin by enforcing the law in his own home, and see that the women of his family cease to use the bodies or the feathers of birds as part of their wearing apparel, or as trimmings for their bonnets.

The farmer should see to it that the boys and girls of his neighborhood are taught that the killing of birds, or robbery of their nests, is a crime; not only an injury to their neighbors, but an actual harm to themselves—for beyond all question the destruction of the birds will cause the boys and girls of the present day to weep bitter tears of repentance later in life, when they realize the harm which has been done, and they will reap the penalty. Under the old English law (and ours as well) "a man's house is his castle," and the man has a right to defend his home—even to the extent of killing the man who tries to enter without permission. Will anyone attempt to say that a bird who builds a nest, in which it lays its eggs and rears its young, has no right to protection? It has the right of ownership, given by a power higher than the authority which granted the titles to the land on which we live; a title from its Creator, and yours.

"Why should I deprive my neighbor
Of his goods against his will?
Hands were made for honest labor,
Not to plunder nor to steal."

He who robs a bird's nest not only wrongs the bird, but he deprives his neighbor of the protection which nature has provided. He who does something, be it ever so little, to protect the birds, does something not only for himself and for his neighbor, but for posterity as well.

H. H. WATERS.

DON'T LIKE THE COUNTRY

Destitute Women Would Rather Starve in Cities.

House servants have such a dislike to the country that it is almost impossible to keep them there. This has long been acknowledged, but it is rather a surprise to the State Charities Aid association that even the women who have been reduced to utter destitution will not remain in the country, even for the sake of a home.

The association has been trying to assist widows, deserted women and young girls, who are friendless, by finding homes for them in families. In all cases where there are babies it is difficult to find places for the women in the city, and the association, therefore, sends them to the country.

In town, housekeepers will not be bothered with servants with babies, but country families cannot afford to be so fastidious. They are glad to get servants, anyhow, and the baby is made welcome with the housemaid or maid-of-all-work perforce.

The association has done much for the unfortunate women who find themselves thrown on the world without a natural protector, with a helpless infant in their care. Some of the women are taken to the workhouse for unskilled labor, at 47 Prospect place, and kept there, with their babies, until it is found that the mothers can get a living for themselves.

Generally it is found that they cannot do anything but plain laboring, and the only chance for them is in domestic service. It is desirable that the babies shall have fresh air, and that the mothers shall retain their offspring. So every effort is made to find country homes for the unfortunates.

In some instances the arrangement is satisfactory on both sides. Often, however, the woman and her babe come back to the city in the course of a week or two. There is a fascination about town life to those that have never had any enjoyment out of it which is remarkable.

These poor women, who have known all kinds of misery in the city, hurry back to it as soon as possible, when there is nothing to look forward to when they get there. Officers of the association have become so used to this kind of human nature that they think nothing of it.—New York Press.

Elephant Nurses in Siam.

The women of Siam trust their children to the care of elephant nurses, and it is said the trust is never betrayed. The elephant, not being susceptible to the charms of the sauntering policeman, nor the social claims of its friends and relatives, is consequently able to devote its entire attention to its charge. The babies play about the huge feet of the elephants, who are very careful never to hurt the little creatures. And if danger threatens the sagacious animal curls the child gently up in its trunk and swings it up and out of harm's way upon its own back.—N. Y. Sun.

The Ideal Line.

The members of the Baptist Young People's Union who contemplate attending a national meeting of that body in July, should bear in mind that there is no better equipped line from the East, North or Northwest, than the popular Big Four route via Cincinnati or Louisville. All through passenger trains on this line are vestibuled, equipped with Buffet sleepers, with Hotel Dining Cars on day trains. At Cincinnati direct connection is made in the same depot with the Queen & Crescent Route, the Short Line to Chattanooga, via the famous High Bridge. At Louisville, with the Southern Railway and the Louisville & Nashville, via Mammoth Cave, and Nashville, allowing stop-over at both these points.

The fare from Chicago will be extremely low. For rates, time cards, etc., address J. C. Tucker, G. N. A., or H. W. Sparks, T. P. A., No. 234 Clark St., Chicago.

A Strong Point for the Winchester.

In time everything breaks or wears out. Ofttimes a break can be repaired if the proper means are at hand. One of the many great advantages of using a Winchester make of rifle or repeating shot gun is that, if any part of the gun is broken, it can be easily replaced at a trifling cost. All Winchester guns are made by a system of interchangeable parts so that a part will fit any Winchester gun of like model. This permits the owner of a Winchester to renew any part of the gun without the aid of a gunmaker. Parts can be obtained through any gun dealer in the country. This feature alone should recommend strongly guns made by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct. Send for their large illustrated catalogue free.

For the Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs.

THERE is only one way by which any disease can be cured, and that is by removing the cause, whatever it may be. The great medical authorities of the day declare that nearly every disease is caused by deranged Kidneys or Liver. To restore these, therefore, is the only way by which health can be secured. Here is where

Warner's Safe Cure

has achieved its great reputation. It and by placing them in a healthy condition, drives disease and pain from the system.

ACTS DIRECTLY UPON THE KIDNEYS AND LIVER

Large bottle or new style smaller one, at your druggists. Its reputation—"Twenty years of success," in four continents. Warner's Safe Cure Co., London, Rochester, Frankfort, Melbourne, Toronto.

"When I Saw —your advertisement

I thought that it was probably like the announcements of many other makers of harvesting machinery—big blow and little show; but I'm ready to surrender; go ahead, gentlemen, you're all right; I bought one of your binders last season and it is equal to any claim you ever made for it."

This is the condensed essence of what Mr. Thomas Carney, of Washington Court House, Ohio, has to say about the McCormick Right Hand Open Elevator Harvester and Binder. The claims made for McCormick Machines are strong claims. That's because Machines are so constructed that strong claims for them are justified. The machine you want will cost you more than the other kind, for the simple reason that it is worth more; that's all — there's no other reason — and in the end you'll be glad you paid the difference, because there's nothing cheaper than the best.

REASONS FOR USING

Walter Baker & Co.'s

Breakfast Cocoa.

1. Because it is absolutely pure.
2. Because it is not made by the so-called Dutch Process in which chemicals are used.
3. Because beans of the finest quality are used.
4. Because it is made by a method which preserves unimpaired the exquisite natural flavor and odor of the beans.
5. Because it is the most economical, costing less than one cent a cup.

Be sure that you get the genuine article made by WALTER BAKER & CO. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass. Established 1780.

Grin and bear it.

That's what you'll have to do, if your housework tires you out and you won't take away the hardest part of it with Pearline. That's what women have had to do for lo, these thousands of years. Pearline has done, and is doing, more to lighten and brighten woman's work than any other one thing. It saves her time, her money, her health and strength, in hundreds of ways. BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, APR. 30, '97.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven May 15 and 16. 3t.

—Coffin and Babb are at work on the new belfry for the City Hall.

—Last Thursday was about the only real all day spring we have had yet this year.

—A bran new sidewalk has been built in front of Frank Scherer's place of business.

—The Delano Furniture Co. made an outfit of boxes for the new Post Master at Lyndale, last week.

—People are begining to make garden. In case there is no more cold weather, the sooner the better.

—Last week three horse teams hauled wheat, this week two equines are enough to bring a load. The roads are dryer.

—Architect Erickson has some very nice plans of a fine residence to be erected soon in Waverly, by Dr. John O'Connor.

—Geo W. Bolton, had repairs and alterations made to his residence last week. He wants to keep along with the precession.

—The hog industry seems to thrive in this vicinity, scarce a week but carloads of live hogs find a market here and are shipped citywards.

—Mrs. Annie R. Quinn has had her newly purchased property on Third Street put in repair. Mr. Stone the new blacksmith, will reside there.

—Grass seems to be growing finely, notwithstanding the coolness of the atmosphere at times. Stock can about make its own living from now on for the summer.

—Andrew Ames is painting portraits in his fathers office. He is a rapid and neat workman. His father Dr. C. B. is awful proud of him and and of his work.

—It has been said that it requires a good actor to smile on the stage. Mr. Molander did last evening; likewise on the audience, and it was no put on smile either; it was genuine.

—Quite a number of farmers have finished seeding and are hauling their surplus wheat to market this week, getting their granaries ready for the next crop.

—John Rader, of Independence, says their creamery is doing fine: making good butter; they got 19 cents for March butter. He wants his paper sent to Lyndale. He evidently has faith in building a business center there.

—Last Sunday the G. N. changed its time card and now runs as follows:

EAST.	WEST.
No. 10. 6:24 a. m.	No. 11. 10:06 a. m.
" 12. 4:22 p. m.	" 9. 9:29 p. m.

The morning train west now runs through to Fargo, and the evening train east comes from there. Trains from here to the cities come along a few minutes later, but we understand they run faster consequently arrive in St. Paul about as soon as before.

—Rev. Tabor Davies gave an interesting and instructive lecture on India, at the City Hall, Monday evening, and at the close a collection was received to be sent to the suffering in the famine districts of that country. Mr. Davies lantern is a little dim; the pictures don't appear plain; but Mr. D. has the advantage of the audience; he has been there and knows how the real looks, and with his good descriptive powers is enabled to make things seem quite natural. India is certainly a wonderful country. Mr. D's. lecture, at the present time when India is so prominent before the people is well worth listening to.

—Dlano seems to be making more improvements and of a more perminent kind than ever before. Commencing on lower River street we have Schaffer's new store: thirty feet addition to the rear of Plattner's store; Weldelee's double building store and saloon; Janikula's saloon; Mowatt's store, and Borsch's store, all of brick. And on Railroad avenue Dedrick is putting up a brick veneered 20 by 40 for a resturand. Then Nick Frank is preparing for building a machine warehouse on River street, and Charley Conzet is to build a harness shop. Ludenia, on N. Second street has a large addition to his residence; and many others have made improvements. Never before has our town seen the like of such improvements. It begins to look as if some of our citizens had realy concluded to locate in Delano.

—People living in town like to have a few flowers, and some shrubbery; and some try to have vegetables for table use. But when on going into their yards in the morning they find it full of chickins, dogs and occassionally a cow or horse they get tired of gardening very soon. People who keep poultry are supposed to do so for profit but if they allow their hens to lay in their neighbors barns and other places away frof home, unless the neighbors are pretty good the profit will be small and the profit on the gardens will not be large. Beasts birds and animals of all kinds kept by people should be kept on their owners premises. Gardens stay at home and attend to their own affairs so long as they are not molested and a town with nice yards and gardens looks beter than if turned into pasture for fowls and animals. Complaints are numerous and from all over town.

—"Beyond the Rockies," at the City Hall, tonight. Four acts.

—A number of K. P's from Delano, went to Dassel during the day and night of Wednesday. to help organize a new lodge at that order.

—The six new wheel road scrapers ordered by Bock Bros., for the Town of Franklin, are here. We expect Franklin will soon be noted for its good roads.

—Dad's Farm, by Molander & Cady Metropolitan Stars, at the City Hall, last night kept the audience interested from start to finish. The company is a strong one.

—For lack of having the grade established on River street pointed out properly, in time, some of the builders have sunk several dollars worth of stone and labor beneath their foundations.

—When our citizens read of snow storms in New York and cold weather and storms and floods in other places they smile more pleasantly even if they do occasionaly don their winter over coats.

—One of the home guard pall bearers in Richard III, smiled while the corpse was awaiting orders. He says he couldn't help it, when he saw a woman taking on so over a couple of old bannana boxes, covered up.

—The back water in the alley adjoining Mrs. Johnson's Third Street residence should be let out. If the village can put the grade up to people's windows, they can't drain the neighboring country on to people's lots.

—Richard III, at the City Hall, Wednesday evening, was way above the usual travelling troups that stop at small towns. Sanford Dodge and Mr. Soares are a team on the stage. The rest of the players acted well their parts.

—Steve Stansburg, Post Master at Willmar drove through town today on his way to St. Paul with a fine team of horses to deliver to Dr. Stone, for $300 cash. There has been more horses sold within the past few weeks than for several years past.

—Farmers and gardeners near town have secured some fine manure from alleys in town. It is more profitable to use manuer for fertilizing than for filling holes about town and contamin ating surrounding wells for years to come. Let the farmers have it.

—We are in receipt of a couple of fine engravings with the complements of Bramblett and Beygeh, engravers, 320 Wabasha street, St. Paul, and Boston Block, Minneapolis. Thanks, gentlemen, thanks. Persons desiring work of this kind should call on them before sending it elsewhere.

—The National Bimetallist, one of the staunchest supporters of the cause its name implies, has started up in Washington, D, C. If you desire to aid the cause, or to be posted so you may answer arguments against silver, or wish fairly to judge for yourself whether or not bimetallism is desirable send a dollar for the semi monthly, National Bimetallist, 1114 and 1116 F. Street, N. W. Washington, D, C.

—Through the ingenuity of J. P. Berneck and the indomitable pluck and perseverance of himself and assistants, the Bock boys, an elevator run by steam, was rigged up to carry the fine sand for use on the business buildings being erected, from the island in the Crow river below the bridge to the bank in the rear of Bock's mill, from whence it is an easy mater to transport it by team to its destination.

County Cullings.

Among original pensions granted last week, we find the name of Edson D. Washburn, St. Michaels, Wright County.

Alexander Cooper, held temperance meetings at Buffalo last week he is spoken of as an interesting and effective worker in the cause.

Wright County former Republicans are so torn up over the prospective distribution of political plums as to make it altogether probable that the next election will see several Democrats, of the good old Jeffersonian stripe getting elected to paying positions, or to posts of honor.

When it came to re-apportionment it looks as though Mr. Dare, of Sherburne County was bigger than all the rest of our delegation. At least he voted for seperating Sherburne from Wright County and won. Belden, Bontwell and Mattson voted against it and lost. So Sherbune is no longer the tail to the Wright County republican kite. Mr. Dare will doubtless be the firs Senator from the new district Sherburne has joined.

The Waverly Tribune says Waverly has robbers. Several have suffered from their depredations. M. F. Jennings' store was broken into, watches, jewelry and other things taken; several parties lost meat, hams, etc. Several boys were caught coming after meat that they had hid in the woods. Boys ought to have work to do; something to employ body and mind and not be allowed to run wild and pilfer from industrious people.

SAM JONES.
"THUNDERBOLTS,"
the latest and grandest book by this world-wide celebrity now out and for sale exclusively by subscription. The only book given to the public by Sam Jones in ten years. Edited by Rev. B. F. Haynes. Introduction by Bishop Joseph S. Key, of the M. E. Church, South. 600 pages. 122 splendid illustrations. A bonanza for agents. Most rapidly, easily selling book of the age.
AGENTS WANTED.
Send 85 Cents for Agent's Outfit, and 10 Cents for Our 70-page, Illustrated Catalogue of Bibles, Albums, Etc.
WONDERFUL SALES.
$10 Every Day Can Be Made by Agents.
To prove it, we give a few items from actual sales made within the last few weeks: One agent sold 27 copies in two and a half days. Another sold 15 copies in two days, and another 20 in three days. One agent in Indiana sold 15 copies in two days. An agent in South Carolina sold 43 copies in three days. One agent in Georgia sold 25 in two days. An agent in Central Georgia sold 82 copies in ten days. When you consider the commission we allow agents, and the immense popularity of this wonderful book, and the ease with which it sells, there is nothing in which a live, pushing man can engage which will yield such profits. For instance: one agent made $108.25 in ten days selling "Thunderbolts." Another made $39.60 in three days; another $9.25 in one day; another $33 in two days; another $56.75 in three days.

WORTH WHILE.

'Tis easy enough to be pleasant,
When life flows along like a song;
But the man worth while is the one who will smile
When every thing goes dead wrong;
For the test of the heart is trouble,
And it always comes with the years,
And the smile that is worth the praise of earth
Is the smile that comes through tears.

It is easy enough to be prudent,
when nothing temps you to stray;
When without or within no voice of sin
Is luring your soul away;
But it's only a negative virtue
Until it is tried by fire,
And the life that is worth the honor of earth
Is the one that resists desire.

By the cynic, the sad, the fallen,
Who had no strength for the strife,
The world's highway is cumbered to day;
They make up the item of life,
But the virtue that conquers passion,
And the sorrow that hides in a smile—
It is these that are worth the homage of earth,
For we find them but once in a while.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

GOV. CLOUGH has issued a Memorial Day Proclamation that, whereas, Memorial Day falls on Sunday this year, Saturday the 29th day of May be observed as Memorial Day.

MINNESOTA has finally been recognized by the admiuistration. John Hancock Merrimam, son of ex-Governor Merriam, has been appointed assistant paymaster of the navy.

THE Duluth Herald had a fire last Sunday night, destrcying its typesetting machines. Through the kindness of the News-Tribune the Herald has been able to go on with business. Both papers are a credit to Duluth, and have lost nothing in the good will of their patrons through this union of forces during the adversity of one of them.

WE are in recept of the Anuual Report of the Railrord and Warehouse Commission of Minnesota for the year ending Nov. 30, 1896. From it we learn that the railroads were doing well that year; their net income being (exclutive of taxes) for 1896, $18,854,004: for the previous vear it was $13,672,205, showing an increase of $5,181,or 37.9 per cent.

IT is reported that Grover Cleveland wants to be peesident. Why can't he arrange with James J. Hill. Perhaps he would let him be president of the Northern Pacific. The people of this country are not ready to turn the government into a monarchy. President Cleveland evidently forgot to to put the presidency on the civil service list, or trusted too much to the people and his luck.

WILLIAM HENRY, of Minneapolis, lately visited Dassel to attend the organization of a new K. P. loge. It is reported that he said "He just came up to see the boys, and have a little fun," and that one of the citizens with a political turn of mind said: "Aye tank yo ban kumin up har for fixin up your fences a little bit, Mester Eustis." Such is reputation.

SEVENTY-FIVE old veterans were given their discharges from the Minnesota Soldiers Home last week, on short notice. It is claimed that the room is to limited to take care of all. It seems strange that this state of affairs should come about all at once just now. Spring is opening up and quarters that would not do well in winter could be pressed into service in summer. Many of the old soldiers haye slep in tents or in the open field for months. They might be much more comfortably fixed with tents at the home if sleeping rooms are scarce, and surely they could be provided with enongh to eat.

HENRY WATTERSON, or the Louisville Courier-Journal is out in an editorial going for the democratic party of Kentucky, for renominating men who favor silver, for state office. That paper wants the National Democrats to put up a ticket for themselves, and try to keep the gold standard to the front. It looks as if Mr. Watterson had lost whatchance he had of being President. Perhaps he is like another distinguished son of the Blue Grass State who "had rather be right than be president." But should Grover Cleveland succeed in getting the "National Democratic" nomination for president in 1900 what will the "Star Eyed Goddess of Liberty" do then? Will he follow Grover?

Excuse us.

"Omaha World Herald: Mr. Cleveland will please excuse about 6,700,000 of us if we decline to measure our democracy by the $12 per plate method."—Evening Press.

We are of the opinion that 6,700,000 wouldn't begin to be the number who would now decline to have their democracy measured by the $12 per plate plan. Nor yet by the single gold standard mistake. What our people want is money with which to pay their debts. Money of the same kind and value of that with which they did business when they went in debt.

Bound to Beat us if They can.

For years Minneapolis has selected the judges for the 4th Judicial Dist. from among its own attorneys, regardless of the wishes of counties other than Henepin that formed a part of the District. Wright County used to be in the 4th Judical District; but was this winter put into the Eeghteenth, and Gouernor Clough has appointed J. C. Tarbox, of Monticello, who was last fall elected County attorney of Wright County, as Judge of the new Eighteenth Judical District, consisting of Wright, Sherburne, Anoka, and Isanti Counties. We then supposed that the Minneapolis papers had got done picking out judges for us; but when we found the following clipping in the Minneapolis Tribune of May 5, we learned that at least the Tribune was not through:

"C. Tarbox, of Montivideo, has received the appointment as judge of the Eighteenth judicial district. His appointment was expected, as he has been a prominent candidate for the place."—Minneapolis Tribune.

We don't hatdly suppose the Tribune ment this mixing up of Geography to injure Wright County. That is if Minneapolis conventions hadn't so conducted things before as to haye been denominated "hogs" we would not have thought it other than a mistake. But under the circumstances it would be well for the Tribune to say to Wright County people that in omitting the first initial of Judge Tarbox's name, and giving his residence at Montivideo which is in Chippewa County, and many miles the from Eighteenth Judicial District, they did not intend to convey the impression to their readers that the Eighteenth Judical District did not contain sufficient legal ability to furnish its own Judge, and that the Governor was obliged to appoint a man from another part of the state; or that they were grossly ignorant of men and of State Geography, or that the mistake was such a one as is apt to occur in any printing office occasionally. Tribune, correct the blunder and let your readers know who is judge of the new Eighteenth Judical District and where he lives.

Good men to the Front.

The Reform forces in Minnesota and especially in the 6th Dist. are growing larger and stronger daily. The late candidate for Governor, John Lind, has the dirty spot on his reputation washout by the courts; thus spiking one gun made use of for all it was worth in the last campaign. C. A. Towne, although the dailies loose few opportunities to make him appear a small potato is succeeding. He is more than holding his own. He is gradually gaining ground. And is respected wherever he appears, Several changes haye been made in re-appotientments, of Representatives which is likely to aid Democracy a little. The republicans rows, all along the line about dealing out offices where they will do the most good is working wonders for reform forces.

With the Reformers of the stamp of T. J. Caton, of Minneapolis, who was a power in the last campaign. Presiding Elder Starkey, who is at the helm of the Evening Press, Minneapolis, and the general tenor of reform that is in the air, everything now points to one of the grandest and most triumphant victories for reform that ever occurred in any country.

Political parties haye become so corrupt; haye become so brazen, in their tricks and trades, as to expose themselves to the better thinking men of all parties; as to awaken the fires of patriotism in the brests of men who heretofore have cared little for politics; who have kept out from political fights. Ministers of the gospel, professional men, merchants, farmers, laborers all, are interested in the general welfare; all have become aroused to the fact that trusts, syndicates, and monopolies must not be allowed further sway, must not be allowed longer to trample on the rights of the citizens of the United States. Men of all classes are equal before the laws of our land.

Men who can't keep sober a week at a time; men who are known as dishonest, treacherous and not to be depended on; whose very names are synonyms of dishonor and of trickery, no matter how high they may try to hold up their heads, have no place on a reform ticket. Tickets should be carefully made. Not made to pander to the worst elements of society by putting representatives of such classes in positions for which no one knows better than the very associates whose votes they are put up to catch, are totally unfit and incapable of filling. Good men with good principles will win.

HENRY VAN EVERY, known as "King of the Island", died suddenly at Minnetonka Beach, Thursday, April 29.

KENTUCKY finally elected W. J. Deboe U. S. Senator to succeed Joe Blackburn, 112 ballots were required to reach this result.

JUDGE HENRY C. BELDEN has resigned, and Gov. Clough has appointed Edward M. Johnson, of Minneapolis to succeed him on the bench.

THOMAS KURTZ, of Moorhead, and John Knuteson, of Pelican Rapids, were successful aspirants from the 7th Dist., for cadet and alternate to the Annapolis Naval School.

Walked off Democracy.

The recent gathering, of $12 a plate National Democrats at the Waldorf Hotel gave rise to the name Wadorf Democrats, Senator —— of Tennessee, in speaking of it, called them "Walled off Democrats", our compositor in setting it up got it "Walked off Democrats". We believe our compositor struck it about right.

Sheriff Business.

"A very queer surprise is expressed at the disclosures in the republican administrations of the office of sheriff of Hennepin county. Were not the people onto it, else why the extraordinary change last fall by election of the people's candidate? Sheriff Phillips was elected to effect a change and a reform. Will he proceede to do it is the question?"—Evening Press.

Was the Democratic Sheriff of Hennepin elected (while the republicans carried the county) to effect a change and reform? Or was he elected by the aid of National Democrats and Gold Standard Republicans for a nucleus, around which to gather a nebular system of gold standard votps ot the next election? It loods awfully strange that Hennepin, Ramsey, Wright, Sherburne and Anoka counties should elect Democratic Sheriffes and go republican at the same time.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30, 1897.

The democratic members of the Senate Finance Committee very properly declined to agree to the proposition to allow the amended tariff bill to be reported to the Senate as soon as the republicans have finished work upon it which they say will be the first of next week. The democratic members of the Committee do not expect to be able to get the bill changed in committee, nor do they desire to unnecessarily delay either its report to the Senate or its reaching final vote, but they insist upon taking time enough to go over the bill, which has been so extensively changed that it is practically a new one, in order to acquaint themselves sufficiently with it to inform their colleagues in the Senate, and the Country, why they oppose it, before it is reported to the Senate. To show that the demand is not made for delay, the democrats of the committee have employed two outside tariff experts to assist them in going over the bill.

The belief that Mr. Cleveland wants to be the democratic candidate in 1900 is prevalent among democrats in Congress, and that his New York speech was his first move in that direction. Speaking on the subject Representative Richardson, of Tenn., said: "As soon as he was out of office before a plan of campaign was organized in his behalf. Although his nomination seemed to be the result of a popular wave in his favor the fact is that a sentiment for him was adroitly stimulated by articles in the country press and by literature sent out by mail, emanating from a headquarters in New York. His friends had plenty of money and the same organization is at his disposal today." Representative Bland, of Mo., said: "Yes, Cleveland hopes to be nominated, and he will be, but not by the democratic party, which will remain true to the principles declared last year. He will be the candidate to the handfull of people at the Reform Club dinner. I shall be very glad to see the issue directly made, for I do not believe Mr. Cleveland will find a corporal's guard to follow him. There is one good thing about the dinner. It shows that there is to be no concession and no compromise, and that the Cleveland party will not coalesce with the 6,500,000 who followed the regular standard bearer." Representative Stallings, of Ala., said: "I should not wonder if Cleveland hopes to gather to himself the republicans, especially in the West, who are not favorable to a high tariff. He will get support from wherever he can and from whatever party that is willing to help him in his ambitions. The democracy, however, will go ahead and make its fight without him." Representative Carmack, of Tenn., said: "I have heard the gentleman who participated in the Reform Club dinner called Waldorf democracy, because they met at the hotel of that name, but I call them the walled-off democracy, because they are by themselves, representing nobody, and unable to influence a vote. I have no doubt that Mr. Cleveland or his friends are scheming to have him nominated in 1900, but they will certainly not be successful if they hope to have him at the head of the regular democracy. He will never be in the ranks of our party again."

"Teddy" Roosevelt was acting secretary of the Navy for a whole week but about the only indication the public had of it was "T. Rosevelt Acting Secretary" printed at the bottom of an advertisement for sealed proposals for the purchase of the waste paper of the Navy Department for the fiscal year beginning July 1st, next. The suggestion has been made that "Teddy" is a victim of the "tired feeling" incidental to the coming of warm weather, and that he will have to brace up on tonic before starting to get friskey.

Mr. Lorin A. Thurston, who was early in the Cleveland administration given a hint by the late Secretary Gresham that his resignation as Hawaiian minister to the United States would be agreeable and who was wise enough to accept the hint and go home, has been in Washington for several weeks. He is now a special annexation Commissioner of the Hawaiian government. He thought the annexation business was all fixed, but the fight that is being made to have a clause inserted in the new tariff bill abrogating the Treaty with Hawaii, under which sugar comes into the U. S. free of duty, has frightened him. Next to annexation his government values that treaty, which practically amounts to commercial annexation. Mr. Thurston has filed a long argument against abrogation of the treaty with the Senate Committee on Finance, in which he endeavers to prove that the treaty is of great financial advantage to the United States.

It is believed that the action of Pension Commissioner Evans, in calling for the resignation of every democratic chief of division in the Pension Bureau, to take effect May 1, indicates what will be done in all the other departments with the chiefs and other high salaried positions.

Republicans Rewarded.

A few of the faithful republican politicians of our state have at last received their reward, by having their names sent to the Senate for confirmation to the following positions:

Auditor of the Post Office Department, Henry A. Castle.

Minister to Holland, Stanford Newell.

Receiver of Crookston Land Office, August F. George.

Indian Commissioner, Tams Bixby.

Among Gov. Clough's recent appointments to office appears the name of one of Wright County's Editors. Lieut. Col. H. S. Saylor, Howard Lake, assistant adjutant general. The Lieut. Col. will look real spruce when he gets his uniform on.

Among our Exchanges.

Prison Mirror: Money may purchas a very enticing bed but it requires a clear conscience to ensure refreshing sleep.

Valley Herald: The Hon. J. P. Heatwole is getting in his work. There has been more changes in 4th class post masters in this district since the change of administration, than in the balance of the state.

A Georgia Methodist preacher who turned Republican last fall is said to be booked as minister to Greece; and yet both Minnesota and North Dakota are full of pioneer republicans qualified in every way for delicate diplomatic functions. Will this cup never pass, or rather will the pie plate never be passed?—Minneapolis Tribune.

Evening Press: Even the Chicago Tribune for sees a bond issue. The tariff importations will operate, it says to reduce revenues, so that there may be a deficiency, and a bond issue, along sometime next year, be unavoidable, and the Tribune actually admits that if in the face of the Republican platform pledge this hapens it will look bad.

Aitkin Republican: Minnesota flax seems to be all right, according to a prominent flax spinner of Belfast, Ireland. In a letter to Congressman Young, of Philadelpha, this gentelman writes that the first consignment of Minnesota flax arrived at Belfast in March last, and experts in passing an opinion upon its strength and quality, pronounce it the equal of any grown in Ireland. In length it surpases the Irish flax, and this is attributed to the strong yirgin soil of Minnesota. The manufacturer above referred to advises the Irishmen in America to cease serving on the police force and emigrate to Minnesota and raise flax.

Waseca Herald: A Waseca goldite, with a Minneapolis Journal as his authority, was telling a group of street corner politicians that no one but the bankers of this country knew anything about finance, and that what this country needed to bring "prosperity" (it seems, after all, that prosperity is not here yet) was a commission of bankers, composed of republicans and democrats (see!) to devise a financial scheme to be adopted by Congress. So it seems, after all, that the gold men have elected a set of congressmen who do not know enough to preform their duties. What a confession! But did it ever occur to these wise (?) gold men that to allow the national bank men to enact our money laws would be exactly like allowing our wholesale liquor dealers to enact our excise or saloon laws; or like employing a commission of railroad presidents to enact laws for the regulation of railroad rates and traffic? Ah, ha! The fools are not all dead yet.

For the New Hat.

The most notable changes this season, as compared with last spring, are confined more particulary to materials. A fine straw woven to look like canvas, salled Batavia cloth, and a silkey Malines net in all colors, are the real novelties. Taffeta silk, chiffon, can hardly be called new materials, but they are distinct features among this season's hat trimmings. Velvet appears in large quantities, even on Legborn hats for mid-summer wear. Moire ribbon is very fashionable, but it is oftener used four inches wide than narrower. For those who like more fanciful things there are tiny checked ribbons with a half-inch stripe of contrasting color down each edge, besides many others, all beautiful; but on the imported hats moire predominates Steel and Rhinestone ornaments appearon many of these.—From "Spring Millinery," in Demorest's Family Magazine for April.

The publishers propose to send a copy of "Word and Works" five months, from June to October inclusive, to new subscribers only as a trial order, for 25 cents and in addition thereto, give each trial subscriber free, a copy of a little book of 64 pages, which contains select chapters of a work by Rev. Ed R. Hicks which is to be the crowning work of his life. This is a rare opportunity for any one to study the storm forecasts throughout the coming season, besides the many other good things in Word and Works of interest to each member of the family. The new tariff bill seems to be having about as hard sledding in this Congress as the one now in use had under Grover Cleveland's administration.

The vote in the U. S. Senate on the Arbetration treaty with England fell four votes short of the necessary two-thirds to carry it. So we will settle our differances with that country as we do with other people.

St. Paul and Minneapolis are having a tilt over the construction of dams in the Mississippi, for stock water navigations, which the Minneapolis papers claim Loren Fletcher has arranded for building, or rather having the government build.

A Boston poet says: "Oh, would that it were possible after long grief and pain to find the arms of my own true love around me once again." We suggest that the first step to take is to quit writing such stuff.

Gov. Adams denies that the women of Colorado have been admitted to the state militia. Colorado women still continue to do their fighting in unorganized fashion, using such potential weapons as tears, rolling pins, sarcasm and mop handles.

Sunnyside, formerly the home of Washington Irving, has been closed to the public. The present owner declares that the worshipers of Irving have tramped over his grounds, chipped corners from his house, worn out his carpets, carried off his bric-a-brac, and so disturbed his household that his patience is exhausted and he has decided to fence them out.

Santa Rosa, Cal., has a Baptist church which holds over two hundred people built entirely from timber sawn out of a single redwood. Timbers, weather boarding and inner lining are all of wood, there being no plaster or bricks and mortar about it. The roofing, too, is of shingles cut from the same tree, and after it was all finished there were 60,000 shingles left.

The thrift of Europe is too little appreciated in this land of prodigality and plenty. In Brussels the public school children were told when going and returning from school to pick up such castaway metal objects as met their eye. In eight months they gathered 7,781 pounds, of which 1,925 pounds was tinfoil, and with the proceeds clothed 500 poor children and sent 90 sick to sanitariums.

A man hypnotized and buried in the ground at Simcoe, Ont., for three days had been disinterred. Great crowds followed the box containing the body to the opera house. As the man was being brought back to a normal condition he was restless and finally smashed the box he was in to pieces. It required five men to control him in his struggles until he was fully restored to consciousness.

Morris poem, "Woodman, Spare That Tree," is familiar to every schoolboy, but how many persons know that it was a gigantic elm which stood on the corner of Vesey and Church streets, New York, that was memorialized in the verses? Henry Weld, who was sexton of St. Paul's chapel 41 years, had a big stock of reminiscences of that part of the city, and he remembered well the old tree. It was cut down to extend the vestry offices of Trinity parish.

In these days of nervous exhaustion and premature breakdown in health, conditions exceedingly common, there is a growing fear and dread of work. If the busy man finds himself ill it is because he has worked too hard. If the society woman has a nervous headache it is the result of "too hard work"—shopping or some other light occupation. Thousands of persons drop out of business and official positions suffering from conditions which are supposed to be due to overwork. The brain and nerves will bear an enormous amount of work provided the rest of the body is kept in good condition.

It was nearly two years ago that the South African gold bubble was first pricked, and it has been shrinking ever since. Securities that were valued at $605,000,000 18 months ago now represent not more than $215,000,000. This shrinkage in value means that the loss has been sustained largely by the small investors, while the Barney Barnatos and Cecil Rhodeses managed to increase their fortunes. The more this nineteenth century "South Sea Bubble" is studied the more nearly criminal do the acts of the mine promoters appear; yet there is no prospect whatever of punishment being meted out.

Uncle Sam's torpedo fleet embraces the Stiletto, Cushing, Ericsson, Farragut, Porter, Du Pont, Foote, Dahlgren, Craven, Rodgers, Winslow, Rowan, Davis, Fox, Morris, Talbot, Givin, McKenzie and McKee. Of course, names like Farragut, Ericsson, Dahlgren, Porter, Foote and Cushing at once revive the fighters who bore them, but others of the list may not find so complete recognition in the public mind. John A. Winslow commanded the Kearsarge; George V. Morris the Cumberland, when she went down beneath the fire of the Merrimac, and Charles H. Davis was the fleet captain of the South Atlantic squadron.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

In the United States senate on the 29th Senator Allen introduced a proposed amendment to the tariff bill providing for the abrogation of the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty on July 1, 1898. A resolution was offered by Senator Morgan and adopted requesting the president, if not incompatible with the public interests, to transmit to the senate all correspondence with the consul general and consuls in Cuba since the beginning of the war, not heretofore published. Adjourned until May 3. In the house no business was transacted, and an adjournment was taken to May 3.

FROM WASHINGTON.

New one, two and five dollar silver certificates issued last year are to be withdrawn from circulation as rapidly as possible and destroyed.

In the United States there were 237 business failures in the seven days ended on the 30th ult., against 218 the week previous and 238 in the corresponding period of 1896.

A statement of the public debt issued on the 1st shows that the debt decreased $5,718,068 during the month of April. The cash balance in the treasury was $876,746,655. The total debt, less the cash balance in the treasury, amounts to $998,244,132.

In April the total coinage at the United States mints was $10,410,080. Of this amount $8,800,400 was in gold, $1,555,000 in silver and $74,680 in minor coins.

Government receipts during April were $37,812,135 and the expenditures $32,072,097, leaving the surplus for the month $5,740,038, against a deficit for April, 1896, of $4,704,488.

The total circulation of national bank notes in the country on April 30 was $232,802,244, a gain for the year of $8,700,899.

THE EAST.

Jesse E. Peyton, "the father of centennials," died at his home in Haddonfield, N. J., aged 81 years. He originated most of the great celebrations commemorating important events in American history.

In Philadelphia several hundred women assembled to take part in the national convention of working women's societies, whose chief object is the betterment of the condition of the working women.

The death of Dr. Traell Green, an eminent physician and famous scientist, occurred at his home in Easton, Pa., aged 84 years.

At Nashua, N. H., the New Hampshire Banking company suspended, owing depositors $849,352.

At the leading clearing houses in the United States the exchanges during the week ended on the 30th ult. aggregated $855,566,196, against $934,219,710 the previous week. The decrease as compared with the corresponding week of 1896 was 13.3.

In all sections of the country a five per cent. advance in the price of window glass has been made.

In New York old Trinity church, which for 200 years has stood at the top of Wall street, began its bicentennial celebration.

At Bonny Eagle, Me., John L. Lane, wife and child were found dead. All had been shot.

At the age of 86 years ex-Congressman John J. Perry died suddenly at his home in Portland, Me.

For the week ended on the 1st the percentage of the baseball clubs in the National league was: Philadelphia, .889; Baltimore, .875; Cincinnati, .857; Louisville, .833; Pittsburgh, .600; Brooklyn, .333; Washington, .333; St. Louis, .286; New York, .286; Cleveland, .236; Chicago, .250; Boston, .143.

Fire, fed by petroleum, swept through several big business buildings in Pittsburgh, Pa., causing a loss estimated at $4,000,000.

WEST AND SOUTH.

Rain and windstorms throughout the lower Mississippi valley did great damage to levees and caused great suffering among refugees camped on the levees without shelter of any kind. Nearly half the people in the overflowed section of Louisiana were without shelter.

In St. Louis David H. Hays, for 18 years cashier of the post office, was arrested on a charge of embezzling $15,000.

At Spokane, Wash., Gin Pon, a Chinaman, was hanged for the murder of Lee Tong.

Fire nearly wiped out the village of Carterville, Ill.

President McKinley decided not to interfere in the case of Joseph Dunlop, proprietor of the Chicago Dispatch, who was sentenced to two years' imprisonment for sending obscene matter through the mails, and Dunlop was taken to prison at Joliet.

Fire destroyed the business portion of St. Augustine, Ill.

In Cleveland, O., the national congress of the Sons of the American Revolution elected Edwin S. Barrett, of Massachusetts, president.

Upon confessing to three murders, ravishing two girls and burning down the humble home of Henry Daniels, at Sunnyside, Tex., a mob lynched four brother named Thomas, and Fayette Rhine, W. Williams and W. Gates (all colored).

At Nashville the Tennessee centennial exposition opened with appropriate exercises. At noon President McKinley started the machinery by pressing a button at Washington connected with a telegraph wire at the exposition grounds.

By a fire at St. Paul Park, Minn., Miss Lydia Butscher was burned to death and her sister, Mrs. Charles Fiehern, was fatally burned.

Near Larimore, N. D., August Norman cut the throats of four children of Knute Hillstead, a farmer, who was away from home, assaulted Mrs. Hillstead and escaped.

On White Oak creek, in Tennessee, a waterspout wrecked the house of a farmer named Branders and killed the farmer, his wife and one child and two farmhands.

At Menominee Falls the Wisconsin Beet Sugar company, which has just completed a plant, failed for $100,000.

Fire destroyed the bakery of Nicholas Sinnig in Detroit, Mich., and two of his children perished in the flames.

On a bicycle J. D. Langdon left Washington for his home in Fargo, N. D. The distance is 2,300 miles, and he has made a wager of $150 that he will cover the distance in 23 days.

Flames wiped out the business portion of the village of Bradner, O.

Sid Larkins was hanged at Blackfoot, Idaho, for the murder of Josie Hill.

In Chicago Charles W. Spalding, the president, and four other officials connected with the defunct Globe savings bank have been indicted by the grand jury.

In portions of Indiana and Ohio snow to the depth of four inches fell and heavy frosts were reported in Illinois.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

A decree has been signed by the queen regent of Spain providing for the application of the agreed upon reforms for the island of Cuba.

Advices from Athens say a great battle was fought at Velestino between a Turkish force of 8,000 and Gen. Smolentz's brigade and the Turks were repulsed with enormous losses. The Greek forces which have been operating in Epirus against the Turks were said to be retreating.

Dispatches from London say that European intervention between Turkey and Greece in the present situation of affairs is regarded as wholly impracticable, both Greece and Turkey having resolved to continue the war.

Throughout the chain of Leeward islands in the West Indies a series of earthquakes destroyed numerous buildings and many persons were killed.

The Greeks have again invaded Epirus and the troops have advanced as far as Philippiada, which they have occupied for the third time. Capt. Radbek, of King George's personal staff, said that all hope of continuing the war had been virtually abandoned.

All official timekeeping throughout Belgium will hereafter be done on the 1-to-24 o'clock principle.

LATER NEWS.

A special from Washington, D. C., the 3d, says that an additional tax of 50 cents per barrel on beer has been voted into the senate tariff bill by the republican sub-committee.

John V. Crum, the well known runner, died at Des Moines, Io., the 3d, after an operation for apendicitus.

Heavy snow was reported in the North of England the 3d.

A heavy snow storm prevailed throughout southwestern Virginia the morning of the 3d.

Several cities in Virginia experienced earthquakes the 3d. At most places there were two shocks, one shortly after noon and the other about 4 p. m. Radford appears to have been the point of the most pronounced disturbance.

The Mutual Life Insurance company of Indiana was placed in the hands of a receiver the 3d.

John Miller, a farmer near Nettleton, Mo., was shot and killed the 3d by John McGluthlin. The motive was apparently robbery.

An Athens dispatch the 3d asserts that King George is suffering from cardiacal spasms and that his physician insists that a change of air to the island of Milo or to the island of Syra is necessary.

The banking house of F. I. Wheeler, at Aspen, Colo., failed to open its doors the 3d. The company's bank at Manitou also suspended.

About $1,500,000 in gold went to Europe the 3d.

The dispatches the 3d denote little change in the eastern situation. Intervention is in the air and will probably take definite from speedily. There is no doubt the Greeks are about ready to confess failure and the reported sickness of King George perhaps foretells his departure from the country. The representatives of the powers at Athens have held frequent meetings, and it is believed they are drawing up a plan to terminate the war.

The U. S. senate the 4th passed the bill to provide free homes on the public lands for actual bona fide settlers, known as the "free" homestead bill.

Fire at Mineral Point, Wis., the 4th, destroyed half a block of buildings.

Admiral Meade (retired), U. S. N., who has been sick for three weeks past, died at Washington, D. C., the 4th, after an operation for apendicitus.

In a fight with tramps at Marshfield, Wis., the 4th, Chief of Police Germing and Fred Meyers were fatally stabbed.

Fire broke out the 4th in a crowded charitable bazar in Paris. The building being a temporary structure of wood, the fire department could make no headway toward stopping the flames. A terrible panic and crush followed the alarm of fire and in the wild rush for the exits the weaker ones were borne down and trampled upon. One hundred bodies were taken from the ruins, and it is believed there are yet a hundred more under the debris.

A royal proclamation was gazetted in England the 4th, enjoining all British subjects to maintain strict neutrality in the war between Greece and Turkey.

The U. S. treasury the 4th had a gold reserve of $149,854,337.

The Gilbert Manufacturing company, dealers in woolen and cotton goods in New York, assigned the 4th, with liabilities of $500,000.

Five of the anarchists convicted of participation in the bomb outrage at Barcelona, Spain, last June, were shot the 4th.

The steamer Lahn took $1,500,000 in gold to Europe the 4th.

The tariff bill was reported to the senate the 4th. Later in the day Senator Aldrich announced that he would call up the bill Tuesday, May 18. The republican members of the committee say there is no statement to be made now as to the effect to the bill, the amount of revenue to be raised by it or the reductions. When the bill is taken up in the senate, Mr. Aldrich will make such a statement in the opening speech.

A collision has occurred off Girdelighthouse, Scotland, between the British steamer Collynee and Gringoe. The Collynee sank and eleven of her crew were drowned.

A ponderous rock weighing ten tons, while being swung from a flat car at at Chicago, the 4th, crashed through the sides of two cars of an Alton passenger train, injuring several people.

THE WOMAN'S BUILDING.

Formally Opened and Dedicated at Nashville.

Nashville, Tenn., May 4.—The assembly hall of the beautiful Woman's building was the scene of a brilliant gathering Monday, it being the day set apart for the formal opening of the Woman's building, which is one of the chief features of the exposition. At the hour fixed for the ceremonies Mrs. V. L. Kirkman, president of the woman's board, entered, accompanied by Mrs. Charles N. Grosvenor, vice president for West Tennessee; Miss Mary B. Temple, vice president for East Tennessee, and Mrs. Joseph Thompson, of Atlanta, who was president of the woman's department of the Atlanta exposition, and took places on the platform. Mrs. Kirkman rapped for order and Mrs. Matthew McClung, of Knoxville, opened the exercises with prayer, invoking the Divine blessing upon the exposition, the ends sought to be accomplished, and especially for the women of the land.

Mrs. William D. Beard, of Memphis, then in a telling address presented to Mrs. Kirkman a gavel of oak made from the corner log of one of the first capitols created in Tennessee. Mrs. Kirkman responded in graceful and felicitous language, thanking the federation of clubs on behalf of the woman's department. After these preliminary proceedings Mrs. Kirkman delivered her address of welcome. Mrs. Corrinne Moore Lawson rendered musical selections. Mrs. Grosvenor and Miss Temple, vice presidents, made brief addresses and Mrs. Kirkman declared the building open. An informal reception was then held.

NOT YET WHIPPED.

The Voice of Greece Apparently Still for War.

London, May 4.—The chief points of interest in the situation are: First, that the decision of the ministers who have returned from the Greek frontier seems to be in favor of a continuance of the war, and, second, that fighting continued almost incessantly at Velestino from last Tuesday until Sunday, with the result that Gen. Smolenski has been prevented from actually assuming his new duties as chief of staff. As a further result, the Greeks at Velestino have managed to retain their positions, but they are too much fatigued to follow up their success. Altogether 14 officers have been recalled from Crete to be sent on to Thessaly, and this also is a proof of the intention of the new cabinet to continue the war. The movement is actuated by necessity. All the best officers are being sent to the front, nor is there any intention yet displayed to evacuate Crete.

Paris, May 4.—An Athens dispatch to the Figaro asserts that King George is suffering from cardiacal spasms and that his physician insists that a change of air to the island of Milo or to the island of Syra is necessary.

Athens, May 4.—The Greek government has recalled Col. Vassos from Crete. He will be replaced in command of the Greek forces in the island by Col. Staikos.

REED UPHELD.

House Refuses to Order Appointment of Committees.

Washington, May 4.—"The issue was made," as Speaker Reed put it in the house Monday, on the speaker's policy of postponing the appointment of committees. Mr. Simpson (pop., Kan.) brought it on by another attack upon the speaker which moved Mr. Reed to challenge him to propose a resolution instructing the speaker to appoint the committees. The Kansan evaded this challenge, but Mr. Lewis, a new democratic member from Washington, took up the gauntlet which the speaker had thrown down and moved the adoption of a resolution of the tenor suggested by Mr. Reed. Then Mr. Fleming (dem., La.) offered a substitute embodying the instructions in different terms and Mr. Dingley, the republican leader, to make the issue plain, as he said, presented another substitute directing the speaker to appoint the committees "immediately." When the vote was taken on the proposition the speaker was sustained by practically the solid vote of his party, assisted by 33 democrats under the leadership of Mr. Bailey. The resolution was defeated, yeas, 52; nays, 124.

MILES MAY GO.

President Grant's Permission for His Trip Abroad.

Washington, April 30.—Gen. Miles has received the formal assent of the president to his projected trip to Turkey and Greece. The order reads:

"The president grants you permission to proceed as soon as practicable to the seat of war in the Levant, and, if authority therefor be granted to you by the respective governments concerned, to visit the Turkish and Greek armies, or both, as in your judgment may be desirable. The president further grants you authority while in Europe to visit such other countries as may in your opinion offer the best opportunities for military observation and at such times as you may deem most expedient."

Gen. Miles will be gone two or three months, as in addition to making a personal study of the military features of the contest between the Turks and the Greeks, he proposes to inspect the military establishments of the principal European powers, Germany, France and England, and possibly Russia

Pittsburgh's Big Fire.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 4.—One fireman is dead and four others are hurt as a result of Monday morning's fire, and the losses aggregate $1,700,000. Fifteen hundred persons are thrown out of employment. It is the worst conflagration Pittsburgh has had since since the memorable railroad riots of 1877. The dead fireman is George Acheson. His body was found under the debris of the Citizens' Traction railway shed. The great wholesale grocery establishment of Thomas C. Jenkins and the mammoth retail store of Joseph Horne & Co. are in ruins. The burned section extends from Fifth street to Cecil alley on Pennsylvania avenue and from Cecil alley to Fifth street on Liberty street, covering an area of several acres.

Cashier in Trouble.

St. Louis, May 1.—David H. Hays, for 18 years cashier of the St. Louis post office, was arrested Friday, charged with the embezzlement of $15,003. The accused waived examination and was held to the federal grand jury in the sum of $3,000. The shortage was made good by C. M. Hays, general manager of the Grand Trunk railroad, who came here several days ago on receiving word of his brother's trouble. Despite this, the Washington officials have sent word here to begin the prosecution.

GREEK CABINET CRISIS.

Tension of Public Feeling Causes Change of Ministry.

M. Ralli, Opposition Leader, Is King George's New Premier—His Policy—A Greek Victory at Velestino.

Athens, April 30.—King George summoned M. Delyannis, the premier, Thursday morning, and called upon him to tender his resignation. His majesty subsequently intrusted the opposition leaders with the task of forming a new cabinet.

The New Cabinet.

Following is the official list of the new cabinet ministers: Premier and minister of marine, M. Ralli; minister of war, M. Tsamavos; minister of finance, M. Simopoulo; minister of education, M. Carapanos; minister of the interior, M. Teotaoki. Demetrius Ralli, the new premier and minister of marine, was the leader of the opposition.

The public tension is much relieved by the change of ministers, and it is now believed that all serious danger of internal disorders is removed.

Ralli's Policy.

London, April 30.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Athens had an interview with M. Ralli, during which the Greek statesman outlined his policy. M. Ralli said: "My policy will consist in the reorganization of the army, whose recuperative resources are practically inexhaustible, and the re-establishment of order, together with a satisfactory solution of our foreign relations. We refuse to accept a mandate from the king or from the chamber. We must have an absolute free hand."

Women and Children Suffer.

Rome, April 30.—A dispatch from Athens to the Messagero says that 600 women and children died during the terrible retreat from Tyrnavos to Larissa.

A GREEK VICTORY.

Turks Defeated with Heavy Loss at Velestino.

Athens, May 1.—A telegram just received here says a great battle has been fought at Velestino between a Turkish force of 8,000 and Gen. Smolenski's brigade. The dispatch states that the Turks were repulsed with enormous losses.

The Turks attacked Velestino Junction Tuesday night with four squadrons of cavalry and a battery of horse artillery. The large force of Greeks there easily beat the Turks off, but not before they had displaced half a dozen rails and cut the telegraph wires. The latter were repaired, and on Wednesday the train service was resumed. Fighting was renewed Wednesday night, but without special results. Thursday night the Turks assembled in great force in the direction of Velestino, and, as it was suspected that they were also between this point and Trikhala, a general attack was believed to be imminent. Fighting, however, occurred only in the vicinity of Velestino.

The Turks made an attack before dawn, but were successfully repulsed. Three times in the course of the morning was the attack repeated, each time from a different direction, and each time the result was a repulse. Apparently it was intended that the attacks should be simultaneous, but this plan falied, owing to the lack of proper organization. The Turks, however, pushed the attack with the utmost determination for six hours, and only abandoned the attempt to seize the junction about noon.

Royal Family Threatened.

London, May 1.—The Standard's correspondent at Athens says: As Crown Princess Sophia was returning from a visit to the ambulance hospital, she was hissed and jeered by the crowd, which forced her to return to the hospital. The royal carriage was then summoned and the princess drove to the palace at the top of the speed of the horses. The royal arms have been stripped from the carriage in order that the occupants may drive about unrecognized, and thus avoid similar experiences. As another indication of popular feeling, I may point out that many of the tradesmen who have been wont to display the royal escutcheon in front of their shops have removed it. While a priest was offering prayers for King George and the royal family in one of the great churches Friday he was interrupted by protests from the congregation. The ringleader was arrested, but the disorder was so great that many women fainted in terror.

Turkish Victories Reported.

Athens, May 1.—The report of the retreat in Epirus is confirmed. The Greeks are abandoning all positions they had occupied except Salagora. Philippiada is among the places evacuated.

Constantinople, May 1.—The porte announces that the heights commanding Nechesta and Craven-Seria, beyond Pentepigadia, Epirus, have been occupied by the Turkish troops.

Constantinople, May 1.—The Turkish government has issued the following announcement: Edhem Pasha telegraphs that the first division occupied Trikhala on Wednesday. Two hundred convicts were released and armed on the previous day and 20,000 rifles were distributed among the inhabitants by the Greeks, who also permitted the pillage of arms and ammunition. The Turkish commander ordered the arms to be restored under severe penalties.

Victims of a Fiend.

Larimore, N. D., May 3.—August Norman Friday night cut the throats of four children of Knute Hillstead, a farmer, and escaped. Of the victims, Thomas, aged 13 months, and Oscar, four years old, are dead, while Peter and Adolph, aged 15 and 11 years respectively, are not expected to recover. Norman, who is well known in the neighborhood, went to the Hillstead home early in the evening and asked to be allowed to remain all night. Hillstead was not at home. About one o'clock in the morning Norman knocked at the door of Mrs. Hillstead, who refused to admit him, and becoming enraged, Norman went upstairs, where the children were sleeping, and attacked them one after another with a razor. Mrs. Hillstead and two small children escaped from the house.

Chicago Publisher in Jail.

Chicago, May 1.—Joseph R. Dunlop, proprietor of the Chicago Dispatch, was taken into custody late Friday afternoon by United States Marshal Arnold. The prisoner asked for a few hours in which to arrange his affairs, and was given until Saturday morning, when he was taken to the penitentiary at Joliet, under a two years' sentence, for using the mails for obscene matter.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Game Laws.

Hunters and fishermen will get all the information about the opening and closing of the seasons for the different kinds of game from the following statement which has been prepared by the state agent of the game and fish commission, S. F. Fullerton:

Hunting—Upland plover, golden or prairie plover, July 4 to Oct. 31.

Prairie chickens, white breasted or sharp tailed grouse, woodcock and snipe, Sept. 1 to Nov. 1.

Quail, partridges or ruffled grouse, Oct. 1 to Dec. 1. The sale of partridges prohibited at any time.

Ducks, geese, brant or any aquatic fowl, Sept. 1 to April 15.

Deer, Oct. 25 to Nov. 15. It shall be unlawful to ship venison at any time unless the owner accompanies it.

Moose, having horns, may be shot from Nov. 1 to Nov. 5 only.

Fishing—Bass of any variety, May 15 to March 1.

Brook trout, including rainbow, loch loman, German brown spotted and all varieties found in the waters of Minnesota, from May 1 to Sept. 1.

All other food fish, May 1 to March 1.

It is unlawful to sell or expose for sale at any time any brook trout or black bass in any place in Minnesota.

Pickerel may not be speared during March and April.

Important Decision.

Judges Baxter and Searles have rendered a decision in the case of Rasnick vs. Avon School Dist. No. 60, in Stearns county, and Mary Tschamperlin, in which it is held that the school house shall not be used for religious exercises or instruction of any nature or teach- of the catechism. This is one of the most important decisions ever handed down in this county and is a victory for Oliver Kasnick, the plaintiff to the action.

The decision of Judges Baxter and Searle in granting the restraining order was a carefully prepared document and far reaching definition of the law. It is held that sectarian prayers and instruction constitute religious worship, and this is prohibited at any time of day in the public schools. It is also held that the practice is a violation of law outside school hours. Other state institutions of learning will come under this sweeping decision.

For Flood Sufferers.

The committee appointed by Governor Clough to distribute the appropriation for the flood sufferers, met at Crookston, and adopted a plan to be followed in the work. The applicants for relief are to be required to fill out blanks stating age, sex, residence, number in family, etc., and give separate lists of all property owned before and remaining after the flood. Applicants must also state what they need most. These blanks will be distributed through the flooded districts and will be returned to the nearest member of the committee. Mr. Brown, of Crookston, is chairman of the committee and the work of relief will be commenced at once.

Deserted by Their Parents.

The attention of the St. Cloud Humane Society was called to the sad condition of a family of Melrose children. The children are six in number and range in age from 11 years downward to an 18-months old babe. Two weeks ago the little ones were deserted by their parents and since then have been living by themselves. When found they were occupying a tumble down shanty containing but one bed, and there was scarcely the proverbial crust of bread in the house. The children will be cared for by the state, and the parents punished if they can be found.

Arrested.

W. F. Bickel, vice president of the Minnesota Savings bank, of St. Paul, was arrested and being unable to obtain bail at once, was confined over night in the Ramsey county jail. The complainant is E. J. Lucius, a depositor of the bank, who charges Bickel with stealing $2,000 from the bank. The missing money was deposited several months ago by Mr. Lucius, who accepted Bickel's note for the amount.

News in Brief.

G. W. Rowell has been appointed postmaster at North Branch, Chisago county, vice M. F. Vaughn, removed.

In the French salon of this year will be hung a picture by Cadwallader Washburn, son of ex-Senator Washburn. At present young Washburn is in Spain with his master, William M. Chase, and fellow artists.

Gov. Clough has issued a proclamation calling upon the citizens of the state to lay aside their respective employments May 29th, and join the Grand Army posts in fittingly observing Memorial day.

Michael Maher, watchman at the high trestle near Chaska, was killed by a freight train as he was returning to Chaska from his post of duty, on a velocipede. He leaves a wife and six children and was a member of the A. O. H.

Mrs. Lillian B. Ford, of Angus, was granted a decree of divorce from her husband, Charles Ford, on the grounds of desertion. She resumed her maiden name of Dean, and proceeded to the Commercial hotel at Crookston where, in 30 minutes, she again changed it. Fred Stevens, also of Angus, was waiting with a marriage license, and they were made man and wife.

Fire originating in the linotype room of the Duluth Evening Herald building ruined the plant of linotype machines and accomplished $30,000 damage, practically all of which is covered by insurance. The Herald's loss is $20,000, insured for $22,000. The paper will continue its regular issues, using the News-Tribune plant temporarily. Electric wires are believed to have caused the fire.

Two United States prisoners from Sitka, Alaska, occupied quarters in the Ramsey county jail over night, enroute to Washington, D. C. The men are insane and will be confined in the government hospital in the capital city.

At Swanville, ties belonging to the railroad company, and after being inspected and spotted, were stolen, their ends sawed off and again sold. Ties belonging to Fred Muske were stolen and again sold to him. This crime was traced to a man named Dell Rasseter, leader of the gang, and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Thomas Kertz, of Morehead, son of T. C. Kertz, won the appointment as naval cadet. John Knudson, of Pelican Rapids, was selected for alternate.

Edward Bachelor, a resident of Swanville, was seriously injured by falling from a barn.

OREGON WOMEN.

How They Were Coaxed Into the Territory in Early Days.

"There are plenty of women in Oregon now," observed a prominent Oregon politician who is here to see that that state is not forgotten in the matter of patronage during the next administration, "but it is within the memory of many of us when women were very scarce there. We gave it out that we wanted them for school teachers and the like and encouraged them to come out there, but the truth was the men wanted them for wives. I remember once we sent a young man to Massachusetts, where he was well acquainted, with orders to collect 100 young women and to escort them back to Oregon. We guaranteed every one of them one year's employment. The active man in the matter was a fine looking young man, who afterwards served two terms in congress from our state. He spent two months in selecting the party, and started west with them. On the trip out he courted one of the school teachers on his own hook and actually got her consent to a marriage on the arrival of the train at Portland. The boys howled considerably about it, claiming that he had treated them unfairly in having first choice, but there was a lot of fine marriageable material left. Some of these women are today the leading ladies of the society of the state. More than three-fourths of the hundred were married inside of three years, and many in less than one year. A few of the lot, however, are teaching school there today, not that they did not have offers, but because they would not accept any of the fellows who offered themselves. Now that Senator Mitchell has about given up his contest to return as senator, he will likely be succeeded by a gentleman who married one of the party of school teachers to which I refer. He will bring his wife here with him, and your Washington folks can see for themselves the kind of ladies we had out there for school teachers. They can't be surpassed, even if equaled, anywhere. I may be an interested person, though, for it happens that my wife was one of the same party."—Washington Star.

Schools Two Hundred Years Ago.

Woman teachers and girl scholars were of small account in New York in early days. Girls did, however, attend the public schools. We find Matthew Hillyer, in 1676, setting forth in New York that he "hath kept school for children of both sexes for two years past to satisfaction." Dame schools existed, especially on Long Island, where English influences and and Connecticut emigration obtained. In Flushing, Elizabeth Cowperthwait was reckoned with in 1681 for "schooling and diet for children;" and in 1683 she received for 30 weeks' schooling of "Martha Johanna" a scarlet petticoat—truly a typical Dutch payment. A school bill settled by John Bowne in Flushing in 1695 shows that sixpence a week was paid to the teacher for each scholar who learned reading, while writing and ciphering cost one shilling two pence a week. This, considering the usual wages and prices of the times, was fair pay enough.—Alin Morse Earle, in Book Buyer.

A Picturesque Betrothal.

There was a picturesque scene in Cettinjeu when the betrothal of Princess Helene and the prince of Naples was announced by the old king from the balcony of his palace. The piazza in front was thronged with Montenegrins, who had gathered to hear the news from the lips of their "father." Princess Helene stood beside her father, her betrothed near at hand. A solemn Te Deum followed in church, the prince and his financee walking arm in arm. When the royal party left the church the rain came down in torrents. This however, is considered in Montenegro a happy omen. The prince of Naples, like his father, King Humbert, has a horror of holding up an umbrella, and will stay for hours in a drenching rain rather than use one.—Chicago Chronicle.

HOW EASY IT IS.

How easy it is to spoil a day!
The thoughtless words of a cherished friend,
The selfish work of a child at play,
The strength of a will that will not bend,
The slight of a comrade, the scorn of a foe,
The smile that is full of bitter things—
They all can tarnish its golden glow,
And take the grace from its airy wings.

How easy it is to spoil a day
By the force of a thought we did not check!
Little by little we mold the clay,
And little flaws may the vessel wreck.
The careless waste of a white-winged hour,
That held the blessing we long had sought,
The sudden loss of wealth and power—
And lo! the day is with ill inwrought.

How easy it is to spoil a life!—
And many are spoiled ere well begun—
In home light darkened by sin and strife,
Or downward course of a cherished one;
By toil that robs the form of its grace,
And undermines till health gives way;
By the peevish temper, the frowning face,
The hopes that go and the cares that stay.

A day is too long to be spent in vain,
Some good should come as the hours go by:
Some tangled maze may be made more plain.
Some lowered glance may be raised on high.
And life is too short to spoil like this;
If only a prelude, it may be sweet;
Let us bind together its thread of bliss,
And nourish the flowers around our feet.

HEART OF THE WORLD.

BY ADELINE KNAPP.

Gray shadows were creeping over the sand dunes beyond Pacific Heights. Only here and there a lanceolate beam touched the hills, from the crimson ball going out to sea through the golden gate. There was a scent of lilies in the air, mingling with the more wonted perfume of February roses. The hum of the city sounded far away, and the song of a meadow lark could be heard from a treetop.

The door of the house stood open, revealing a broad hall. There was a suggestion, in the dim light, of waving ferns and the silvery gleam of a fountain, in the conservatory at one side. From the doorjamb there swayed in the breeze long ends of soft, snowy ribbon, holding in place a cluster of white roses.

In the center of a stately apartment that opened upon the hall stood a tiny white casket on slender pillars. Two candles burned at its head. By a window a man sat gazing with unseeing eyes, in the creeping shadows of the trees. A woman lay in a crushed heap among the pillows of a divan. Neither had moved for a long time. The little form in the white casket had been their all. Now it lay scarcely stiller than they.

Suddenly the silence was broken by the sound of a woman's voice, high-pitched and clear.

"Willy! Willy! oh, Willy!" it cried. A friend within the house hastened to the door. Along a pathway through the shrubbery a handsomely-dressed woman appeared. "Oh!" she exclaimed, advancing; "have you seen a little boy about four years old? My little boy is lost! Some one said they saw him come in here. I cannot find him; and I am afraid he has fallen somewhere in the sand dunes."

"Have you notified the police?"

"Long ago. They are all on the lookout for him. But he may be buried in the sand. We have been searching for hours. Oh, I have lost two little ones through death, but I never felt as I do this moment!"

The mother's heart wailed forth behind the cultured woman's enforced composure.

The woman who had been lying among the cushions came through the hall to the door.

"What is it?" she asked.

The friend put her arm about her and would have drawn her back; but the stranger spoke.

"My little boy is lost," she said, excitedly. "He is only four years old. We are afraid he is among the sand dunes."

"Oh!" cried the younger woman, "I am so sorry! Is there nothing we can do? Cannot we help you look for him? The poor little fellow! Think of him all alone in the dunes! How did it happen?" And she put her hand in the stranger's for sympathy.

The latter was full of her story of coming home from a round of calls to find the child missing and the other children seeking him. Even as she spoke, voices could be heard calling from the sand dunes: "Willy! Willy! oh, Willy!"

"I must go," cried the mother. "Oh, my heart is breaking! Willy! Willy! Where can he be?"

As she turned a passing zephyr blew the white ribbon on the doorpost straight out across her cheek. She started back, dismayed.

"Why," she cried, "you have a dead child in this house!"

"Yes," said the other mother; "my only child, a little boy just four years old, died this morning."

Tears came into the stranger's eyes. "Oh," she cried, "do forgive me! I am so sorry. I did not know. Dear heart! to think I should have troubled you. I, too, have lost two children by death; but this is more terrible. My little boy! You see, I do not know where he is."

"I know," the other said, calmly. "You must let us do what we can for you. Oh, I am sure you will find him. Let me go with you. We will search together. Not to know where your baby is! Ah, what trouble there is in the world!"

She seized a wrap, and the two women went down the walk together. At the corner they were met by a boy of perhaps a dozen years.

"Some children say they met a little boy like yourn goin' down toward North Beach," he said.

They hurried down the hilly street.

"Have you seen anything of a little boy, about four years old, playing about here?" asked Willy's mother of a homeward-bound laborer. "My little boy is lost."

"Shure, mem, now, that's very bad, an' I'm sorry," the man said, halting; "mebby he'd be at th' p'lice station?"

"No, I've telephoned all the stations. Some one thought they saw him down here. What shall I do?"

The face of the big, rough man worked sympathetically.

"I'll kape me eyes open ez I go along home, mem," he said; "an' mebby I'll see th' little feller. Tut, now! What if 'twore me own little Tim? He's just four years old, the rascal, an' 'twad kill 'iz mother, shure. Ah, but it's wearyin' an' comfortin to th' heart, mem, the childhren bez."

The way grew more squalid as they kept on toward the Beach. On a doorstep a young woman sat holding a little child, and looking anxiously down the street.

"Have you seen a little boy?" the older mother began, and again the sad little tale was told.

"No," said the other woman; "but I hope you'll find him, lady. I know how you feel. Me heart's sore over me own little Joey, here, and me man away looking for worruk. The baby is that sick! an' Jim, me other lad, he's gone for medicine. I don't know what's keeping him."

"Let me see the baby;" and the mother, whose little one lay dead at home reached out her jeweled hands. The child was placed in her arms.

"Why, he is very ill indeed!" she exclaimed. The little one's face was livid. The baby's fingers were clutched over each tiny thumb, and the tiny body shivered convulsively.

Willy's mother eyed the little form knowingly. "The child should be put into a warm bath at once," she said.

The three women entered the house and busied themselves over the sick baby. She whose child was lost found a battered kettle and put water to heat over the single-burner lamp. The other one undressed the little form, while the wee sufferer's mother stood wringing her hands in helpless pain.

They worked rapidly, tenderly; but it was nearly an hour before the terrible convulsions were over and the baby was resting on the bed.

"God bless you, ladies!" the poor woman cried, as she saw relief creeping over the drawn face; "you have saved my baby's life!"

"But oh, my own little boy!" and the other mother hastened to the door. "It is quite dark and I do not know where he is."

"Sure, lady, the good God will never let your baby be lost!" but the two strangers were gone.

"Oh, where will he sleep to-night?" murmured Willy's mother. "Your boy is safe with God, but where, where is mine?"

Up the street an older boy came tearing. "Mamma! Mamma!" he cried, while yet afar off; "a policeman's found Willy and taken him home!"

"Oh, thank God!"said she whose child was with the All-Father—"thank God!" but the other could not speak.

It was a triumphal progress back to the more aristocratic quarter.

"They've found yer bebby, ma'am," a street urchin cried, who was calling papers on the street corner. A Mexican tamale vender volunteered the same information in broken English, and in the next block a woman threw open a window and leaned forward.

"A policeman took your little boy home, madam!" she called, joyfully.

Near home a gleeful band of children met them.

"He's found—he's found!" and the chorus rang throughout the neighborhood.

The two mothers kissed tenderly and parted. As the younger one turned to enter her childless home her eyes were swimming with the first tears she had shed that day; but they were tears of thankfulness.

On the doorstep of the other nome a man stood, holding a child in his arms.

"We've got him," he called, quickly, as he bent to kiss his wife; and then his arms closed tightly around them both.

"O, Willy!" he said, "how could you frighten us so? Why did you do it?"

The curly head was raised and the blue eyes opened in surprise.

"Why, papa," said the little voice, "Mary said they wuzzent any or'nges for dinner, an' I went out to buy some!" —N. Y. Independent.

AN OLD MINISTER.

A Character of Early Times in Massachusetts.

Many stories are told of Dr. Gad Hitchcock, who was a minister in Pembroke, Mass., before and during revolutionary times. He was noted for his patriotism and the fearless expression of his views when opportunity offered. He was chaplain of the army at one time, and preached many a stirring sermon to the men.

The first sermon he published was addressed to a military company at the time when the French were making inroads on the northern frontier. The year before the breaking out of the revolution, he preached his famous "Election Sermon," which roused Gov. Gage to great wrath, and struck even the minister's stanchest friends as ill-advised. It is said that when Dr. Hitchcock wrote it, the governor was not expected to be in the audience at the time of its delivery.

When it was found that he was there, one of the minister's friends suggested that a slight modification of some of the strong expressions in the sermon would perhaps be advisable; but Dr. Hitchcock was of another mind.

"My sermon is written," he calmly said, "and it will not be altered."

On his journeyings to and from Boston he usually fell into conversation with anyone with whom he was thrown. One day he traveled to Boston in company with a sailor of whom he asked many questions as to his name, residence, habits and tastes.

At last the sailor began questioning in his turn. "What is your name?" he asked.

"I am Gad Hitchcock, from Tunk" (the name of his parish).

"Three of the worst names I ever heard!" cried the sailor, bluntly, greatly to Dr. Hitchcock's delight.—Youth's Companion.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

HOMEMADE BROODER.

Constructed on Simple and at the Same Time Correct Principles.

The incubator has come to stay in the poultry world, and many farmers are also availing themselves of its advantages. Where incubators are used, one must have brooders, and unless these can be made at home, the expense of a hatching "plant" is very materially increased. Fortunately, brooders can be constructed that will do very good work, though of course they must be watched a little more closely than would be necessary with the self-regulating brooders that one can buy.

A plan is shown herewith that gives a brooder constructed on simple and at the same time correct principles. The diagram, Fig. 1, is very nearly self-explanatory. A box three feet square, or thereabouts, has in the bottom a brooder lamp or stove. Above this is a sheet of iron as large as the inside of the box, and supported at the four sides, and by an iron prop near the lamp, if it is inclined to sag. Make the edges air-tight with cement, so that no fumes from the lamp can get up above the sheet iron. Have a sheet iron drum made as indicated in Fig. 3 and set this into the brooder floor, filling in the rest of the floor about the drum with cement, that there may be no danger from fire. The drum need not be over six inches in height. It has a half dozen openings under the top, as shown in the sketch. When the lamp is lighted, air enters at one side above the sheet iron, is heated and rises in the drum, passes out through the openings into the chick chamber and is diffused about it. Three or four ventilating holes are in the wall near the floor, for the exit of cold air. This gives a constant movement of warm air into the brooder. These openings can be partly closed when desired. An opening in the side near the bottom of the lamp chamber, and one near the top on the opposite sides, give fresh air for the lamp and an exit for its fumes. The lamp is inserted through a small door in the side of the box. One whole side of the brooder chamber is a drop door, for the easy sweeping out of the floor. The top (in door) can have a pane of glass in it, so one may see the chicks, and the thermometer hanging against one side. Glass on two sides gives light. The top must fit very tightly. If this brooder is to be used out of doors, a roof must be added, as indicated by dotted lines. The corners of the brooders are cut off, as seen in Fig. 2, so that the chicks may not crowd into them and the weak be trampled upon and smothered by the stronger, should the chamber ever become cold. This is an important matter and should not be overlooked. — Orange Judd Farmer.

CORNER AND DRUM.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

Save all the feathers.

Wheat is one of the best egg producing foods.

Sunflower seed promote laying and good health.

Keep the tail and wing feathers separate from the others.

Chaff is a good material for the nests of the early sitting hens.

The secret of raising goslings is to keep them dry and warm.

Young fowls need bone meal to supply strength and vigor to the growing frame.

It will require an average of one pound of grain per week for ten weeks to feed a chick.

If chicks are allowed a free run on light warm days it will add considerable to their vigor.

The use of cross-bred cocks often prevents uniformity in the color and characteristics of the chicks.

New blood in poultry is the basis of beauty, vigor, prolificalness. Introduce it at least every two years.

If the large white breed of ducks are kept the feathers will be nearly as valuable as those from the geese.

If cracked oyster shells are kept where the fowls can help themselves there will be no soft-shelled eggs.

Winter layers depend upon early pullets. Early pullets depend upon early setters and early setters upon winter layers.

Keep the yard and poultry-house floors sprinkled with air-slaked lime and there will be fewer cases of roup.—St. Louis Republic.

Horses Holding Their Own.

An observing gentleman from the west says he believes the market for horses is rapidly improving. He says people got the idea that electricity and the bicycle were going to render the demand for horses less than they have. In some parts of the west horses are now becoming scarce because they have been disposed of at an astonishing rate. Electricity has about run its length as a displacer of horses and the bicycle is covering its own field pretty thoroughly. What the horseless wagon will do in the future is a problem, but until highways are materially improved, it cannot come into general use.

Prospects Are Promising.

The opinion seems to be general among sheepmen that prospects are better this year than they have been any time since 1892. A better demand for both wool and mutton is anticipated, but, of course, much depends on the general improvement of the times. There is little reason to doubt but that the sheep on an average will show better quality, for not only have feeders been careful in the selection of their stock sheep, but they all realize the importance of feeding to a general finish, and the cheapness of feed will give them an opportunity of doing this.—Dakota Field and Farm.

BUSINESS METHODS.

Why Farmers Should Look After Their Insurance Policies.

Farmers sometimes forfeit their insurance by neglect. While the mutual companies do not, as we understand it, hold farmers to the strict letter of the law, as do the stock companies, but go more on the equities of the case in their settlements than on strictly legal points, nevertheless it is wise to have everything straight at the start and keep it straight. For example, many farmers during the year make additions to their buildings. The company should be informed of this fact and additional insurance, whether against fire, lightning or tornado, should be taken out to cover the increased value. Many farmers sell or trade properties during the year and this vitiates their policy unless an assignment is made, returned to the company, and a new policy issued. Where farmers do not sell outright they frequently deed portions of their property to their wives or members of their families, thus making a change of title and in each case the policy should state the facts.

Another matter. In making out a policy always see that the property that you wish to protect is specifically mentioned in the policy and that it is so mentioned that there can be no dispute about it. For example, we heard of a case lately that is likely to lead to litigation in a stock company. The farmer so insured carried so much insurance on grains. A fire occurred and in addition to the grains a lot of clover seed was burned. The question came up at once, is clover seed a grain? It will be very difficult to prove that it is. Therefore the policy should read grain and clover seed, or any other kind of seed.

Another matter. Always keep your policy where you will know where to get it should it be needed for any purpose and if possible keep it in a fireproof safe. Bankers usually take care of papers of this kind and it would be a good thing to leave your policies together with your banker, or in some other place where they are as safe as possible from fire.—Wallace's Farmer.

RENDERING LARD.

Simple and Handy Device Which Makes the Task Easy.

The illustration portrays a simple and handy device for heating water and rendering lard in kettles. I made the pieces, c c, out of the iron gangs of an old cultivator; any kind of light iron will do for balance. Set two parts, a a, (common fence posts) in the ground. Cut a mortise in top for crosspiece b and pin them so the weight of the kettle will not pull them together. Get two eyes, f f, for bottom (gate eyes will answer). To make them stronger, the two top eyes, f f, should be fitted with nuts. Make bottom of beams, c c, so they will go in bottom eyes and make the other end with a small crook for kettle to hang in. Take two pieces of iron, d d, and rivet them on each side of beams, e e; rivet a hook in the other end to hook in top eyes. Bolt the piece of iron, e e, to crosspiece b, so they will drop down between pieces d d, and lock beams so that they cannot swing from over the fire. To remove the kettle from the fire, remove lock e and the beam can be swung either way. I find it a very convenient way for rendering lard. If lard is foaming or getting too hot, it can easily be swung from over the fire until danger is over and when done, the kettle need not be removed from the beams until the lard is taken out.—H. M. Hodson, in Farm and Home.

CONVENIENT FRAME FOR LARD MAKING.

OILING THE HARNESS.

If Undertaken at All, This Work Should Be Done Well.

Harness will last much longer and look much better if kept well oiled, and will not get so stiff after being exposed to a day's rain. During the spring it is difficult to keep harness from getting wet, and it will pay well before the season's work begins to see that it is thoroughly oiled. In doing the work, the harness should be taken apart and washed clean, using warm water and castile soap, and then wiped dry, when the oil should be applied. If so clean that washing is not needed, it will be better to wipe off with a wet rag as the oiling can be done better. It is best to take harness all apart, in order to get at all of the parts and oil thoroughly. Good harness oil can be purchased all ready for use, or neatsfoot oil, with a little lamp black, will be found good. If the harness has not been oiled for some time and is hard and dry, it will be best to go over them twice, finishing all up, and then commencing with the first piece and going over again. After every part has been thoroughly oiled, it should all be hung up over a frame of some kind and allowed to dry. It should not be hung in the sun or where the wind strikes, as it will dry too rapidly. The oil should have plenty of time to soak in. Like most other work on the farm, if undertaken it will pay to do well.—Journal of Agriculture.

Feeding the Laying Hens.

It is a mistake to keep the laying hens with those which do not produce eggs, for the reason that the layers require more food than the others, and do not receive it. Usually when hens do not lay they are too fat, and should be fed on foods containing but little grain, and also fed sparingly; consequently, when all the hens are together, the non-producing hens may become fatter while the layers do not receive enough. It does not pay to feed hens that do not give a return for the food consumed.—Farm and Fireside.

Separate the Flocks.

The first thing to do with flocks that are kept on farms rather than on ranches is to separate the flock into a number of small ones, each composed of one kind, and having a regard to sex, age and general condition. The weak ones should not be placed with the strong. The weather or stock flock should be in one flock, the breeding ewes in another, and the lambs in another, if the best results are to be secured.

AN OPEN LETTER.

From the Herald, Sauk Centre, Minn.

The following communication was recently received by the manufacturers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People:
Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

"I was born in Germany and I am thirty-seven years old. I live with my husband on a farm. For ten years I suffered with leucorrhoea so that I was a burden to my friends and myself also. I had tried a great many doctors and different kinds of medicines without securing any benefits. My condition had become so deplorable that I had almost given up hope of recovery, when one day I saw in the Sauk Centre Herald an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as 'a drowning person catches at a straw,' so I grasped this chance and purchased from Hanson & Emerson a box of Pink Pills. I commenced taking them in March, 1896, and after taking one box I felt so much improved that I bought more.

"After taking them for a time I found to my surprise that I was entirely cured. Ever since then I have been as strong and well as I ever was, and am able to do the arduous duties which fall to the lot of a farmer's wife without feeling the least fatigue or inconvenience.

"I hope this will be the means of placing your wonderful pills in the hands of some sister sufferer, who may rejoice with me. I am satisfied that no woman need suffer as I did, when such an efficient remedy is so close at hand."

(Signed) MRS. H. STENERAGEL."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Why McCormick Changed from the Left to the Right Hand Binder.

It has been said that the conveniences of one age become the necessities of the next; but no ordinarily sane man will contend that the necessities of one age should become the inconveniences of the next. When binding was done by hand the left hand cut harvester was a necessity. The grain fell on the platform of the harvester and was delivered into the receiver with its heads towards the rear of the machine. The men stood in the receiver facing the grain. With the left hand machine the heads of the grain are at the left hand of the man doing the binding, so in taking out the bundle with the band around it, whether the man turned to the front table or to the back table he kept his position toward the bundle itself—that is, with the heads toward his left hand; hence, in making the tuck he shoved the ends under the band toward the heads. Grain is handled by the shocker by grasping into the heads, as shown in the illustration, and the tuck should therefore be toward the heads, so that it will not pull out.

The hand binding harvester with men to do the binding is out of date, and so is the left hand machine, which has been superseded by the McCormick Right Hand Open Elevator, the success of which makes it seem highly probable that there will be no progressive manufacturer building left hand machines in three years.

The application of roller bearings to grain cutting machinery was made by J. G. Perry in 1869, and his patent, No. 86,584, for an improved reaper, showed and described various ways of using roller and ball bearings in harvesters. In view of these facts it is somewhat amusing to read the claims of a certain reaper maker of the present day, who says he was the first to introduce roller bearings in harvesting machinery. As a matter of fact this manufacturer is comparatively a beginner in the art of reaper building and has originated nothing.

Unquestionably the most practical and satisfactory application of roller bearings to binders and mowers has been made by the McCormick Harvesting Machine Company. The Particular form used by them was patented in 1882 and is now to be found in all McCormick machines. The especially valuable feature of the McCormick roller bearing is seen in the form—or cage as it is called—which holds the rollers from running together, and if for any cause the cage is taken from the shaft the rollers will not fall out and get lost. In order to avoid the McCormick patent the other harvesting machine company who claims to be the originator of roller bearings in harvesters has cut out the metal in the ring at the ends of the rollers. If the cage is taken out the rollers slip out and become filled with grit, or worse, get lost.

The methods of the McCormick Company result in an annual saving of many thousands of dollars to the farming public. New devices are not embodied in their machines until long and oft-repeated trials have shown them to be practical. It has been the same with the roller bearings as with everything else—McCormick experimenting is done at McCormick expense, and not at the expense of the farmers, who are too often duped by manufacturers who rush into print for notoriety and bull the market with impractical forms.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

The Ideal Line.

The members of the Baptist Young People's Union who contemplate attending a national meeting of that body in July, should bear in mind that there is no better equipped line from the East, North or Northwest, than the popular Big Four route via Cincinnati or Louisville. All through passenger trains on this line are vestibuled, equipped with Buffet sleepers, with Hotel Dining Cars on day trains. At Cincinnati direct connection is made in the same depot with the Queen & Crescent Route, the Short Line to Chattanooga, via the famous High Bridge. At Louisville, with the Southern Railway and the Louisville & Nashville, via Mammoth Cave, and Nashville, allowing stop-over at both these points.

The fare from Chicago will be extremely low. For rates, time cards, etc., address J. C. Tucker, G. N. A., or H. W. Sparks, T. P. A., No. 234 Clark St., Chicago.

Success and Its Cause.

The phenomenal popularity of the guns and ammunition made by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., is not surprising when the great pains and care taken by this celebrated house to put nothing but perfect goods on the market is considered. Every gun they make is tested for strength, action and accuracy and unless it comes up to the high Winchester standard it never leaves the factory. Winchester ammunition is made with equal care, every different cartridge or load being tested before it is loaded for market. Winchester guns and ammunition are unsurpassed as results show. For a world in which there is nothing new under the sun there are a lot of discoverers.—Truth.

Rocked on the Crest of the Waves,

The landsman, tourist or commercial traveler, speedily begins, and not only begins, but continues, to feel the extreme of human misery during the transit across the tempestuous Atlantic. But if, with wise prescience, he has provided himself with a supply of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, his pangs are promptly mitigated, and then cease ere the good ship again drops her anchor. This is worth knowing, and thousands of our yachtsmen, summer voyagers, tourists and business men do know it.

Overwork is a thief of time.—Ram's Horn.

The trouble with worthless people is that they are the ones who worry about it.

No-To-Bac for Fifty Cents.

Over 400,000 cured. Why not let No-To-Bac regulate or remove your desire for tobacco? Saves money, makes health and manhood. Cure guaranteed, 50c and $1.00, all druggists.

We recently heard a doctor say a piece of pie was good for a person just before retiring in the evening.—Atchison Globe.

Fits stopped free and permanently cured. No fits after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Free $2 trial bottle & treatise. Dr. Kline, 933 Arch st., Phila., Pa.

When a man gets so mean that his wife won't live with him, he says marriage is a failure.—Washington Democrat.

Pleasant, Wholesome, Speedy, for coughs is Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar. Pike's Toothache Drops Cure in one minute.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the fond father, anxiously. "Whatever can be the matter with the baby? It isn't crying!"

Piso's Cure cured me of a Throat and Lung trouble of three years' standing.—E. Cady, Huntington, Ind., Nov. 12, 1894.

One of the most pitiable things in the world is the mutual disappointment of a man and wife.—N. Y. Weekly.

"For 6 years had neuralgia." You haven't used St. Jacobs Oil to cure it.

The world demands that a poor wife be loved by her husband as much as a good one.—Atchison Globe.

Cascarets stimulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe, 10c.

A really smart preacher is one who knows when it is wise to be "called" to another field.—Atchison Globe.

"Can't cure my rheumatism!" You can, you must use St. Jacobs Oil.

Some people spend a great deal more time being mean than it would take to be courteous.

When bilious or costive eat a Cascaret, candy cathartic, cure guaranteed. 10c, 25c.

Charity robs herself when she frowns while bestowing a gift.—Ram's Horn.

Like an electric current St. Jacobs Oil seeks and cures Sciatica.

It is not the women who look at the most dry goods, who buy the most.

Just try a 10c box of Cascarets candy cathartic, finest liver and bowel regulator made.

A man is a fool for betting the opposite way from which he votes.

A sprain cannot cripple if you use St. Jacobs Oil. It cures it.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, MAY 7, 1897.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven May 15 and 16. 3t.

—Dr. Niven will satisfy you with Dental Work of any Kind. In Delano May 15 & 16; Waverly 17; Howard 18 and 19. 2w.

—That Hustling Hitsman is still handling farmers hogs. Delano is the boss swine shipping point; and Al gets his share.

--C. M. Conzet has just completed a fine new team harness for his brother Fred. Fred's team will be dressed in the latest style now.

—Dr. Soper struck one of the worst cases yet this week. It was the bicycle disease, and he has almost succumbed: himself being the patient.

--The new fire bell was put in place Saturday morning and it is hoped our citizens will have no further trouble finding out when there is a fire in town.

—Pat Greear the gentlemanly insurance man from "Old Kaintuck" was at Waverly Monday. He says it did not take him long to write up a couple of risks.

—Mr. Doran preached twice on Sunday last at the Union Grove M. E. church. Mr. Doran is an interesting speaker and had good sized audiences. Litchfield Review.

—The scales, eminating from the elevator at times, seem to have taken on a different kind of a squeak, if possible more rasping than before. "Fiddling Fred" has joined the band, and istrying to break in an "E" clarinet.

—Professor Hawker has been engaged to deliver the Memorial oration at Maple Plain, on Saturday, May 29. That insures a good one, as the professor's ability as an orator has already been established, and that at home among his fellow townsmen.

—A few reckless riders on bicycles seem to think it "looks smart" to ride on the side walks and over crossings as fast as they can go. The Village Council should make an ordinance, if they can't stop it any other way, to suppress the outrage on the rights of pedestrians.

—From the Pioneer Press we learn that Prof. R. C. Dewey, formerly Principal of the Delano School, has left Morris where he has been Superintendant of Schools since leaving here and will be Superintendant of the Litchfield School next year.

--When you go to Minneapolis you must be on your guard. But a little while ago and people had their heads cracked by the posts along the moter line. Then the Typhoid germs got to depopulating the city. Now it is the "bicycle beast" that rides people down. Nearly every day accounts of accidents from reckless riding are seen in the city dailies. Look out for them.

—John Brandser's youngest boy aged about four years received a severe cut on the back part of the top of the head. His brother older brought the ax down on his head while he was stooping to gather horse-radish, cutting through the cap and making a cut an inch long in the scalp. A couple of stitches had to be taken to bring the edges of the wound together. He is doing nicely, and is likely to recover.

—Several new bicyclists appeared on our streets this week. Some of their wheels appear to have imbibed too freely, from the anties they cut, and the tracks they make. While it would take a detective to say who some of the beginners are when their countenances are lighted up with the blush of victory or cast down and bergrimmed by the lack of success, in at once, becoming a first class bicyclists.

--One of the traveling telegraph line men with a velocipede with a sail on reached town Tuesday and made the discovery that the telephone wire of the Delano and Watertown line was below that of J. J. Hill's Railroad. This was wrong; it might in case of sagging from any cause, catch a man on a boxcar and jerk him from the car, or injur him. Steps were at once taken to have the telephone wire put on top.

--Frauds are reported as having been perpetrated on the unwary in several places, agents are around selling and buying bargains for various things. Be sure to sign no notes, or contracts, or orders for anything you are not sure is all right. Don't let smooth talkers work you for fhat you do not want or need. Deal with people you know and you will not be so apt to be bit. Keep out of debt as much as possible. It is awful hard to keep even, now-a-days if you once get behind. Get cash and pay cash as far as possible.

--About the best way to crush out the sugar beet craze is to supply every farmer with enough seed to raise a hundred or two bushels of beets and have him spend all his odd hours and a part of the time he ought to be attending to something else, tending sugar beets, and when he gets them raised find that he can't sell them for anything, there being no factory near. As for experimenting, that has been done, several of our farmers near here raised beets and they were analyzed and pronounced sugar bearing in paying quantities. There can be little object in any more of our farmers going to any expense of time or trouble to find out the profitableness of the buisness until they see at least some signs of a place to sell their beets when they are raised.

—Paul Plotnik has a new wagon with his machinery add painted on.

—Tomorrow will be Fair Day. Farmers are about done seeding and will, doubtless, be in town in large numbers.

—Rev. A. A. Abbot, of Rockford will preach at the M. E. Church on Sunday evening at 8: o'clock. League at 7: p. m.

—The Delano Band has had its band wagon house reshingled and repaired. It will now keep the band wagon from being further injured by wind and weather.

--Mr. Merriman the pictur canvasser had a runaway and got several pictures spoiled several days ago. He has canvassed this part of the country pretty thoroughly.

--Arbor Day was duly observed by the schools. A partial holiday was enjoyed by teachers and pupils. Trees were planted, exercises indulged in and all went off pleasantly.

--We just received word from Rockford that Lawson Conklin Sen., an old settler in that township, and a soldier in the late war, died this morning at 1 p. m., after a lingering illness.

--According to the new law if you have any notes or other papers falling due on a legal holiday you must pay the day before. Don't get caught by putting off paying until after the holiday.

—While watching the new blacksmith shoe a horse the other day we were surprised by musical tones, and learned that Mat Tomper's successor is a singer: and sings while he shoes horses.

—Charley Carlton and family have moved into the Sutton house, in South Delano. Charley says he fooled the boys this time. and has been married about three months before the news got out.

—We send our readers each, in supplement form, a copy of the General Laws passed by the Minnesota Legislature session of '97. Look them carefully over and see what you must do to comply with the new laws.

--On Monday evening, at 7 o'clock, the fire bell called out the Fire Companie's, in a hurry for a little practice. Practice makes perfect, and some practice to see that things are working right and are in order, should be had often.

—The Delano Cornet Band is now holding regular meetings on Tuesday evening at the City Hall for practice. They are getting so they can play in the hall without making the audience wish themselves or the band in some other place.

—Beach & Guptil, of Rockford, are selling a new patent device for changing the shafts for the tongue, and vice versa, with much less trouble and vexation than usual, and in much less time. Look at the rig when Will or Charley come around with their buggy.

--Delano's brick building boom goe merrely on. There are a great many more brick buildings in Delano than most people think. If you don't think so just count them up once. With the new ones now being built, you wan't have fingures and toes enough to keep tally.

—Moving time has arrived John Coolen has moved into the Haffner house. F. H. Lindsley took breakfast for the first time this, morning in his new Third Street residence. John Kappe will occupy the Lindsley property on the corner of Bridge and 4th streets in a couple of weeks, having purchased it for $800.

County Cullings.

Pay your real estate tax before this month ends On June 1 you will find the 10 per cent penalty added to what the tax now is if you don't have it paid before that date.

The Cokato Enterprise claims to be doing job work for Albert Lee and Minneapolis parties, and wants to know "How is that for a country shop?" We thought the Enterprise advocated "having your work done at home".

Buffalo pupils are working up some athletic sports, for field day of the commencement exercises of their High School. That is a good move. Some of our boys have already caught the inspiration; and even old men can be seen showing the boys how high they use to jump.

It is now Judge Tarbox, Your Honor, of Monticello, Governor Clough having appointed him judge of the newly formed Eighteenth Judicial district consisting of the counties of Wright, Sherburne, Anoka and Isanti. So now when Minneapolis wants a Minneapolis man for judge she can have him. We have a judge of our own.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

After a long and tedious winter we hear the first rumblings of spring and the farming community is improving the time by putting in grain and all kinds of produce.

The Lewis Cemetary Association will hold its annual meeting at the Town Hall, Armstrong next Monday evening May 10, at 7:30 p. m. Everybody interested should come out. There are several offices to elect.

Painter Bros. have set up their saw mill at the narrows, on Lake Sarah. They will saw quite a bill of lumber for John Berg.

John Berg has been in Minneapolis serving on the jury.

On Saturday afternoon the house of W. J. Stinson was burned to the ground including contents. No insurance.

A good shower of rain would be a benefit to the sowed grain and pastures. The ground is inclined to bake.

All things continue as they were from the begining. No change of business for the better.

It is said that Cleveland has put in a bid for the presidency of 1900. It seems he could not be so foolish as to think this country would want him for president again. No, Mr. Cleveland can never be president again, unless it be that of some chewing gum factory or a monkey show. He has had his pound of flesh. A man that will sell himself to the gods of Memmon is not fit to be the ruler of a free people. It is an insult upon the American people (If he has done so) to make any outward manifestation by speech or act that he would again like to be President of the United States. His speeches are like empty vessels; they are as clouds without water. should such a thing happen that he would again be made President it would be the inaguration of a monarchial government, or a revolution. he must think that New York City, and Wall Street, is the Government. It may be for banking purposes and money loaning; but not when it comes to defying the flag and the constitution. Brave men of all political parties, in times past, have walked through blood to save this Nation, and perpetuate its free institutions and they would do it again. The less the common people of this country hear from Grover Cleveland the better it will suit them. He is very small potatoes and few in a hill. His talk about loyalty and the poor people is as sounding brass and a tinkling symbal.

JOHN H. MCGARY.

THE FEMALE VEGETARIAN.

She will not eat the flesh of fowl
Nor of the meek quadruped;
And wonders that we beefeaters
Can be so cruelly stupid,
To kill the pretty birds which bring
To her but thoughts of heaven;
Or masticate the lowly steer
To give our muscles leaven.
But when she hies to church Sunday,
In a pretty Easter bonnet,
She cares not whence the feathers came
That gaily wave upon it.

SAM JONES.
"THUNDERBOLTS,"
the latest and grandest book by this world-wide celebrity now out and for sale exclusively by subscription. The only book given to the public by Sam Jones in ten years. Edited by Rev. B. F. Haynes. Introduction by Bishop Joseph S. Key, of the M. E. Church, South. 600 pages, 122 splendid illustrations. A bonanza for agents. Most rapidly, easily selling book of the age.
AGENTS WANTED.
Send 85 Cents for Agent's Outfit, and 10 Cents for Our 70-page, Illustrated Catalogue of Bibles, Albums, Etc.
WONDERFUL SALES.
$10 Every Day Can Be Made by Agents.
To prove it, we give a few items from actual sales made within the last few weeks:
One agent sold 27 copies in two and a half days. Another sold 15 copies in two days, and another 30 in three days. One agent in Indiana sold 15 copies in two days. An agent in South Carolina sold 43 copies in three days. One agent in Georgia sold 25 in two days. An agent in Central Georgia sold 82 copies in ten days. When you consider the commission we allow agents, and the immense popularity of this wonderful book, and the ease with which it sells, there is nothing in which a live, pushing man can engage which will yield such profits. For instance: one agent made $108.25 in ten days selling "Thunderbolts." Another made $39.40 in three days; another $9.25 in one day; another $33 in two days; another $56.75 in three days.

"I'LL DO WHAT I CAN."

Who takes for his motto: "I'll do what I can,"
Shall better the world as he goes down life's hill,
The willing young heart makes the capable man.
And who does what he can, oft can do what he will.
There's strength in the impulse to help things along,
And forces undreamed of come to the aid
Of one who, though weak, yet believes he is strong,
And offers himself to the task, unafraid.

"I'll do what I can" is a challenge to fate,
And fate must succumb when brought to the test,
A heart that is willing to labor and wait
In the tussel with life ever comes out the best.
It puts the blue imps of depression to rout,
And makes many difficult problems seem plain;
It mounts over obstacles, dissipates doubt,
And unravels kinks in the life's curious chain.

"I'll do what I can," keeps the progress machine
In good working order as centuries roll,
And civilization would perish, I ween,
Were not these words written on many a soul,
They fell the great forests, they furrow the soil,
They seek new inventions to benefit man.
They fear no exertion, make pastime of toil—
Oh, great is earth's debt to "I'll do what I can."

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

A BILL has been introduced into the United States Senate and has been referred to the Committee on Patents, making it unlawful for any person or persons to award their business correspondents or clients any gift, prize or chance toward a medal of honor, certificate of stock or other thing of real or supposed value.

THE Annandale Post, a Rank Republican paper, laments the fact that our forests are being cut off so fast, and thinks it a cause of the terrible freshets. The Post says it is led "to think that our government should provide for the replanting of timber or else remove all tariffs on lumber so as to make our own forests last so that the natural growth would replace what was removed". What other view could any sensible person take of the matter? And why ask our farmers or others to pay one or two dollars per thousand feet, more for lumber than it is really worth, by putting that much tariff on it? Does the tariff on lumber benefit anybody in Minnesota? We are glad to learn that even the Post has been "led to think" on these matters. There's lots of company, Brother Rank, many have been "led to think." And as soon as our people begin paying protective tariff on tea, beet sugar, wool, lumber, shoes and such to raise revenue to run things at altogether a too expensive rate there will be lots more "led to think." Some will be even driven to think. And after a few months thinking there will be an opportunity to vote. It is hoped that Brother Rank and others will be prepated to vote as they think.

The Howard Case.

The Howard case has again been postponed. Howard, Wendell and Dodge were indicted by a Wright County Grand Jury last December. The two latter were, on motion of the newly elected County Attorney Tarbox, discharged. Howard got a change of venue to Hennepin County where the trial has again been put over till the fall term, on account of the absence of important witnesses. The Juror Otto, who is the man claimed to have been offered a bribe is working his farm; Billings, who claims to have been a go-between the Railroad Attorneys and officials and the Juror, is living in Delano, practicing law; the others are, so far as we know, following their usual avocations. It would be more satisfactory to the people of Wright County to have Mr. Howard tried, and put where he belongs in the eyes of the law, whether it be to find him guilty or establish his innocence beyond a doubt. Too many people are connected with the charge of bribery, or attempted bribery, and the crime is too serious, if there is a crime, to be fooled along with as this one appears to have been. Wright County is entitled to more speedy justice than she is getting in this matter. The Great Northern Railroad may be content while doing business with officials under indictment, with their trials put off from term to term, but most folks would, if innocent, desire to have it so understood as soon as possible.

Et Te Globe.

Even the St. Paul Globe is whipping araund into the anti-Republican ranks once more after going for the Journal for not answering "what it thought the proper time" for considering the currency question? The Globe says: "There will be no attempt to legislate for correct finance and no republican permission to legislate at this session or at any other. We admit that the course of the republican party, when reviewed in connection with its professions, pretenses and promises during the last campaign, puts its defenders in a wide deep hole. It would be better for them however to confess the obvious truth than to try to wriggle out, as the Journal does, of a position from which there is no escape."

The Globe don't seem to fully appreciate the tariff legislation now being fixed up for the people of this country. But what financial legislation does the Globe banker after? Is it the Nelson Bankruptcy Bill?

Knows the Man at the Helm.

From Monday's Evening Press, of Minneapolis, we clip the following, believing that with such a man at the helm, and in so good a cause, the Evening Press will prove a winner with the people. Honest men have, for a long time, been looking for just such a paper as such a man as "Col. Allen says J. B. Starkey is will run.

"In 1861 a little, slight boy enlisted in the Twelfth Wisconsin and marched south with his regiment, and for four long years was at the front in everything, whether fun or fight, his jolly good nature ever ready for anything that came up, whether a midnight raid on a—chicken coop, or a rebel rifle pit, it was all the same to Starkey—never sick, but the life of his company. He kept many a despondent, homesick one from being discouraged. Four years later he came home, and, like hundreds of others, disappeared from view of his comrades, to take up the problem of life that was laid aside to save his country or die for it. A few years later the boys began to hear of Starkey again. He had enlisted, but this time in the ranks of the M. E. church, to fight the devil, and he went at it with all his might and energy, just as he did in '61, and we always thought he entered that branch of the service because of the appetite he had acquired in the army for chicken. Comrade Starkey fought in this service twenty years, and was successful in reaching the topmost round in the service, and only left because of a failure of voice, although he informs u that he is preaching every Sunday in Minneapolis just to help some one out. He became financially interested in the EVENING PRESS, and finally bought it and assumed the management of the same, and, while we do not agree politically with Brother Starkey, we want to inform the readers of the Press here that a man is at the helm who is terribly in earnest, and is putting his whole energy into it. That the silver party of Minnesota has a man as editor of its organ that is honest in all the word implies. That we do not believe there is money enough in Minnesota to influence him to do what he thought was wrong, and the people of Minnesota will discover they have one standard-bearer that is devoted to them and their cause, and that they never will be betrayed. Mr. Starkey is a man of tremendous energy and personality, and he will put it all into his paper. WE PREDICT SUCCESS FOR THE PRESS, FOR WE KNOW THE MAN AT THE HELM."

New Tariff Bill.

Our friends the Protectionists appear to be getting down from their high horse; or rather Elephant protective tariff views. Why, they have gone and put 10 cts. a pound tariff on tea. Who do they expect that will protect? Perhaps some poor old grandma who has drinked tea all her life and now must have it. Maybe they think she is drinking too much and needs protection. And then the idea of making a specific duty of 10 cts per pound. If tea must be taxd why dont they adopt the advalorem duty, a certain percent of the value. Then the rich would pay his share in proportion to what his tea was worth. Now under this 10 cts a pound plan, if some poor family buys tea worth 40 cts a pound they pay 10 cts of that for tariff, that is 25 per cent of what they spend goes to help run the government. The rich family can use tea costing two dollars a pound and pay 10 cts tariff on the pound that would only be 5 per cent of the amount invested. But that seems to be the plan for equalizing tarff according to the new tea tax.

The tax on beer is at 44 cts per barrel. If people must drink, they must pay 44 cts tax to the government on each barrel, provided the beer is imported. If it is made in this country the brewery gets the 44 cts. Tea don't grow here. The barley for beer does.

Then the new tariff is higher on wool. When you want some nice warm woolens for yourself or family and have to pay old prices, or a little more, while your grain and stock is selling cheap, just remember that the tariff has been raised for protection to wool industries.

When the shoe maker asks you a quarter or so more for a pair of shoes than he did the last time you bought, just remember that a protective tariff has been put on hides, that have been on the free list for years, and that the foreign market for American shoes will soon be done, and our manufacturers will have to cut down prices for labor and sell their shoes at home, and under protective tariff can ask more than they could before.

When you want a few boards for a granary or other building and think they come high just remember the two dollars per thousand protective tariff has been added in order that our forests may be gotten rid of as soon as possible.

All in all it don't look very much as if the people in Minnesota would be helped a bit by the tariff now in course of being enacted by the special session of Congress. We won't raise any more tea than before the "protective" tariff. We wont have any more hides on our cattle; the wool on our sheeps backs won't be any heavier. Our big woods will disappear more rapidly than ever.

When we buy a pound of tea Uncle Sam will get his ten cents; when the drinker buys a barrel of beer the brewer will get $.44 tax. When 500 families buy woolens at protective prices maybe one family will get a few cents extra for wool, and maybe he won't. We understand the price was to be two cents per pound higher at Rockford to start in with this spring, and that under the Wilson bill, with wool on the free list. The two dollars on lumber, the wealthy pine men make mostly, we think.

State Examinations.

"State examinations will soon be here with the accompanying trouble and worry. Scholars and teachers will both be anxious, but if faithful work has been done, there should be no fear of the result. Several schools are complaining that the examiners are unfair in their markings and that too many papers are sent back with marks cut down too much. Fortunately Morris has no such complaint; of the 46 papers sent down last winter only 3 were lost. It is the local teachers who are at fault; if they understand the subjects, they can mark properly, otherwise they cannot. Besides they have a recourse if they think they are unjustly treated. The papers will be returned if the express be paid, and the justice of the marks be seen."—The Morris Sun.

In a copy of the Morris Sun sent us by Professor Dewey formerly principal of our school we find the above among "School Notes". It seems Morris was not one of the schools to be marked down, badly; Delano was. Prof. Aiton has promised that himself and Prof. Rankin will oversee the marking next month. We have every reason to believe that they will do justly with all. If they should not succeed in getting fair markings there will be a reckoning all along the line, as everybody will know who to blame.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7, 1897.

"Killed by an overdose of tariff", may be the epitaph on the tomb of the republican party, if the tariff bill which was this week reported to the senate is not radically changed in many of the schedules. It has started a fight among the republicans that may result in killing the tariff bill as well as the republican party; although, of course, the chances are that the differences will be patched up in some way and a bill of some sort put through at this session of Congress. That the fight is now raging is shown by the open threats of the New England Senators to stay in Washington all summer rather than see the duty on hides, which the Senate Finance Committee has put in the bill, remain in the bill, and these Senators are already trying to get democratic Senators to promise to vote with them to strike out the duty on hides when the bill is voted upon by sections in the Senate The western Senators who forced the duty on hides into the bill, have informed the New England Senators that they were not going to stand idly by and see that duty on hides struck out of the bill, when they could get even by combining with the democrats and adopting an amendment providing for a horizontal reduction in all cotton, woolen and steel manufactures. Representative Grosvenor, of Ohio, says of the new bill, for that is what it practically is: "So far as relates to the wool schedule, the bill is unsatisfactory, and cannot be passed. I do not believe it can pass the Senate, and I know it cannot pass the House. The sugar schedule will be very gratifying to the American Sugar Refining Co., and unsatisfactory to the best sugar producers in the country. The New England manufacturers are fully provided for. The bill will probably not reach the House in the form reported to the Senate, and if it should it would meet with very strong opposition. The duty on tea will be very unpopular. Those republicans representing districts having large brewing interests are much worked up over the increase of 44 cents a barrel in the tax on beer and will fight it.

Senator Jones, of Ark., who is regarded as a tariff expert as well as one of the most careful political observers of the time, said of the present situation: "This tariff bill means the disruption of the republican party. The taxes imposed by it will be resented by the people. New England will certainly go democratic on the question of a duty on hides, but the lesson that will be taught by this one item might be applied to every other section of the country. The next House of Representatives will be democratic by a very large majority." Senator Jones, in reply to a question, said he thought the debate on the tariff bill, which is to begin on the 18th inst. would last until about the first of July.

It is the general disposition in Congress to regard the trip to Europe upon which Senator Wolcott, ex-Vice President Stevenson, and General Paine will start this week, with credentials authorizing them to negotiate with European Governments in behalf of international bimetallism, as nothing more than a pleasant summer junket for these three gentlemen. There are not a dozen men in Congress who seriously think international bimetallism more than a dream, concocted to stave off an independent settlement of the financial question by this country.

In place of the retroactive tariff in the Dingley tariff bill the republicans of the Senate Finance Committee have inserted a clause making July 1st the date upon which the new duties will go into effect, and unless all the Congressional-prophets are away off the date will have to be changed again.

The fact was made very plain by the assignments of republicans to the committee vacancies made by the republican caucus that boss Hanna isn't the whole thing in the Senate whatever he may have been in the campaign or may be with the administration. He didn't even get a chairmanship. The only other republicans left without chairmanships are Penrose, of Pa., and Deboe, of Ky., who took his seat this week. Boss Platt also got turned down by the republicans. He wanted a place on the Finance Committee, and is doing a lot of kicking because he didn't get it.

The Senate rejected the arbitration treaty this week by a vote of 43 to 26. Everybody is glad it is out of the way. The Senate also passed the free homestead bill.

Instead of increasing the issue of pie, Mr. McKinley is curtailing it, much to the disgust of the hungry horde. He is keeping it back because he thinks it will be needed to get the tariff bill through, and for the same reason he has not made the modification in the civil service rules that he has decided to make.

Among our Exchanges.

If Mr. Bryan remains any considerable length of time in Mexico, his admiration for the silver dollar of that country may suffer diminution.

Anoka Herald: When Clough has appointments to make, he looks among his friends for material. This is to his credit. Dave realizes that his friends helped to make him what he is, and believes in rewarding them. That is a good quality to cultivate—gratitude.

Brainerd Journal: Congressman Bailey, of Texas, very truthfully says to the republicans: "If you succeed in restoring prosperity, the democratic party might as well make a nomination in the next presidential election. If you fail, you might as well not make a nomination.

It is rumored that F. B. Lamson will soon start a new paper at Buffalo. Wright county is well supplied with papers and we should not think that there was an "opening" in any town in the county. But Mr. Lamson probably bases his proposed enterprise on the old saying that "there is always room for one more."

Duluth Herald: Senator Fuller of the Little Falls Transcript sarcastically asks how the Republicans of Minnesota will carry the next campaign? Bixby is going to negotiate with the Indians, and E. M. Johnson, secretary of the committee, has been appointed a judge of the district court in Hennepin county. Perhaps Senator Fuller might be induced to take hold of the Republican campaign.

Minneapolis Tribune: A New York letter says that ex-Senator David B. Hill has already begun systematic operations for the reorganization of the democratic party with a view of resuming the leadership and succeeding Senator Murphy, whose term will expire in 1899. To do this Mr. Hill must wrest the state from the republicans in 1898, and as a preliminary he must in some way harmonize the gold and silver democrats. How he is going to accomplish such a task is an enigma.

You Can't Tell by the Looks of a Toad How Far He Can Hop.

Last Saturday's Dispatch contained a picture of the G. O. P. Elephant sitting erect and laughing at "Old Pease" in a coat of mail and with shield and a pen lance, with Anoka Union for a flag, astride a frog coming on for an attack. It reminds us of the story of David and the Giant Goliah. The battle may turn out the same way. The victory is not always to the strong. Besides the elephant need not laugh at Old Pease "horse". You can't tell by the looks of a toad how far he can hop.

Northern Pacific Control.

The resignation of E. W. Winter from the presidency of the Notthern Pacific railway for the reason, as stated by himself, that J. J. Hill has secured control of the majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific road, and that he does not wish to be employed on a road controlled by Mr. Hill is conclusive evidence that the recent rumors in regard to Mr' Hill's efforts to secure control of the Northern Pacific road were true. What effect the change will have upon the interests of Brainerd remains to be seen. The prevailing opinion here seems to be that Brainerd will not lose anything by the change.—Brainerd Journal.

Cigarette Had Set Fire to the Couch on Which He Slept.

A burning lounge, thrown from the window of 190 West Fourth street, caused considerable excitement yesterday morning. Marvin P. Sherman had gone to sleep on the lounge, smoking a cigarette. The cigarette set fire to the lounge and Sherman awoke as the fire reached his shirt. Sherman promptly threw the lounge out of the window. Officer Scannell extinguished the fire with a few pails of water. —Pioneer Press.

Students of ancient history will remember Pharsalos, for it was on the plain adjoining the town where (48 B. C.) the battle of Pharsalos was fought, in which Cæsar defeated Pompey. It has always been regarded as one of the most important military positions in Greece. On the hills east of the town the Romans under Quintius Flaminius defeated the Macedonians under Philip. It is all historic ground.

A man who had once been tried for murder and acquitted walked into a New York court and said that his conscience troubled him; that he was guilty of the murder of which he had been accused, and that he wanted to be punished. The judge informed him that, having once been put in jeopardy of his life, he could not again, under the constitution, be tried on the same charge; but, being a wise judge and willing to accommodate, he ordered the man taken into custody and inquiry made as to his sanity.

Paris has contributed to the record of the century one of the most conspicuous disasters. The fire which suddenly enveloped a gala assemblage of some of the most notable men and women of the French capital and transformed a scene of fashionable splendor into a terrible harvest of death was in many respects a horror unparalleled within the memory of the present generation. Within 15 minutes after the first outcry of terror the battle for life was over. The great bazar was in ruins and buried beneath the ashes were over 100 human sacrifices, each one of whom was connected with the fashionable life of the city.

The Turkish soldiers who murdered Frank Lenz, an American bicyclist, in Armenia a few years ago have been acquitted. The news which reached Washington of the result of this trial also contained a statement as to the motive for the murder. It does not appear that the murderers were governed by any other motive than curiosity. When they saw the bicycle approaching one asked the question: "Is that a man or a devil?" "Shoot at it and see," was the reply. "If it falls, it's a man; if it doesn't, it's a devil." Curiosity is laudable if not carried too far, but the Turks went to an extreme in this case.

BEGINNING OF THE END.

Greeks, Forced to Evacuate Pharsalos, Now Sue for Peace.

The Government Is Ready to Comply with the Demands of the Powers—Volo Occupied by Turkish Troops.

Constantinople, May 7. — Edhem Pasha, the Turkish commander in chief in Thessaly, has sent the following dispatch to the ministry of war, dated Thursday morning: "The imperial army while marching to Pharsalos met the enemy in the villages of Soubathi, Souledji, Turcomanli and Landa. After a severe engagement lasting 15 hours we dislodged them from their positions and advanced to Pharsalos, which the imperial army has just victoriously occupied."

Pharsalos, May 8.—An engagement began early Friday near Velestino and lasted several hours, the Greeks being finally beaten back. They have retreated upon Volo, sharply pursued by the Turks.

Smolenski at Almyros.

Gen. Smolenski's brigade reached Almyros at 11 o'clock Friday morning, after its retreat from Velestino. Another portion of the Greek forces has retreated by the coast road to Almyros, from which point it will probably be conveyed by sea to Lamia and rejoin the rest of the army at Domokos.

The retreat to Domokos is regarded by some as a strategic movement dictated by prudence. It is generally felt that Gen. Smolenski's defense of Velestino has vindicated the reputation of the Greek army and wiped out the disgrace of Mati and Larissa.

Great skill is displayed in the strategy of the Turks. Four divisions from Trikhala and Larissa are being simultaneously concentrated at Pharsalos.

Peril of the Royal Family.

Rome, May 8. — Private news from Athens which has escaped censorship shows the position of royalty there to be more perilous than ever. The members of the royal family rarely leave the palace and their portraits have been withdrawn from public view. When the queen and princesses visit the hospitals they are openly insulted in the streets. The palace is watched by revolutionary agents, lest their majesties should attempt to flee the country.

Terrible Slaughter of Greeks.

Pharsalos, May 8. — The Greeks, in retiring across the plains toward the town, suffered terrible loss from the murderous fire of the Turkish artillery. During the retreat the Greeks were compelled to cross the river by a single bridge. As the Greek troops were massed at that point the Turkish artillery wrought fearful havoc among them. Nevertheless, the Greeks fought desperately until nightfall.

Greece Now Wants Peace.

Athens, May 11.—It is stated that the government has drafted a note to the powers requesting mediation. The conditions insisted upon by Germany, the chief of which is that Greece shall give her formal consent to the principle of autonomy for Crete will be accepted by the Greek government. The note of the powers is to the following effect: Upon a formal declaration by Greece that she will recall her troops and agree to such an autonomous regime for Crete as the powers in their wisdom shall deem best and accept unreservedly the counsels of the powers, they will intervene in the interests of peace.

Public Is Resigned.

The recall of the forces from Crete has been received with resignation by the public. The Delyannis organs attack the government bitterly for appealing to Europe, but most of the papers accept this as inevitable, and violently attack the Ethnike Hetairia, asking it to render an account of its action.

Turkey's Terms of Peace.

Vienna, May 11.—It is reported here that Turkey's terms of peace with Greece includes payment of an indemnity of £3,000,000 ($15,000,000), a rearrangement of the Greek frontier, the annulling of the treaties favoring the Greeks, the cession of the Greek fleet to Turkey and the settlement of the Cretan question.

Turks Confident.

Larissa, May 11.—The Turks have no doubt whatever as to the speedy capture of Domokos, although the place is fairly well defended.

London, May 11.—The Athens correspondent of the Times says: "The Greek army has been compelled to abandon Salagora and Fort Imaret, the Turks having occupied the heights commanding the latter."

Greek Fleet Leaves Volo.

Larissa, May 11.—The Greek fleet has left Volo, but the French, Italian and British guard ships remain. The town is quiet, and has been occupied by the Turkish troops. A considerable number of the latter have taken up positions on the surrounding heights. The bulk of the Ottoman army, however, has been withdrawn, and is marching in another direction. The Turkish officers complain of the nonresistance of the Greeks, and declare it is not war, but merely a military promenade.

Military Athletic Carnival.

Chicago, May 11.—The military athletic carnival opened at the Coliseum Monday night in the presence of a large crowd. The opening exercises consisted of a parade by all the military organizations taking part in the carnival, a special drill by the regular artillery, infantry and cavalry, bicycle corps of the regular army, and United States life saving crew. The military feature caught the crowd and was wildly applauded. There was considerable disappointment at the small number of entries in many of the events. Brig. Gen. T. H. Staunton, U. S. A., was present as the representative of the secretary of war.

Triple Alliance Renewed.

London, May 7.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Rome says that the pact of the powers constituting the triple alliance was renewed Thursday for a period of six years. The right to withdraw, under the terms of the original agreement, expired on May 6, and Germany has succeeded in persuading Italy not to exercise the right of withdrawal.

A Vote of Censure.

Cleveland, O., May 8.—In the bankers' convention the resolution introduced earlier in the week censuring the American Federation of Labor for indorsing the free silver movement was adopted. The delegates took the ground that the federation, by its action, had entered politics. All the international officers were reelected.

FIRE AT SEA.

Thirteen Passengers on Board the Steamship Leona Perish.

New York, May 10.—The Mallory line steamer Leona, which left her pier on Saturday, bound for Galveston, took fire at sea, put back and arrived in port Sunday night with 13 corpses on board. The dead were steerage passengers who succumbed to a terrible fire which occurred off the Delaware capes at an early hour Sunday morning.

The horror of the story can hardly be told. Those who are dead were penned up below decks, and although frantic efforts were made by the officers of the vessel to save them, the fire had gained such terrible headway before the danger was discovered that all escape was cut off.

The steamer carried in her cargo many bales of cotton. It is not certain how the fire originated, but when it was discovered it burst forth with such fury that it was impossible to reach the steerage. Even then the steerage passengers apparently were unmindful of the danger, else the smoke and flames would not have reached them. The saloon passengers were first aroused, and in such a manner as to occasion little alarm. When it became apparent that the fire had cut off the steerage the captain and his men poured great quantities of water down the ventilator, and the most frantic efforts were made for the escape of those penned up. In this way eight of the steerage passengers made their escape.

New York, May 11.—It was a grewsome sight on board the Mallory steamer Leona on Monday morning. Thirteen dead bodies, blackened by fire and smoke, were lying in the steamer's steerage and men and women were on the deck looking as though they had passed through an awful ordeal. Nobody was allowed to either leave or board the vessel until after the coroner had arrived to view the bodies and give permission for their removal.

Coroner Hoeber arrived about 2:20 in the morning at the pier, and found Charles H. Mallory, one of the owners of the vessel, in conversation with Capt. Wilder, in the latter's cabin. Accompanied by Mr. Mallory and the captain, Coroner Hoeber went to the steerage and viewed the charred bodies. Then he gave permission for their removal. The coroner told Capt. Wilder that as a matter of form he would be compelled to have him placed under arrest. He was immediately paroled in the custody of Mr. Mallory, who was instructed to produce the captain when the inquest is held.

One of the steerage passengers said the general impression was that the fire was caused by a lighted match dropped by one of the crew into the cargo. He declared that he saw a number of the crew smoking, and that they were very careless in throwing away their matches. The officers, he said, made no attempt to stop the smoking among the crew, which is very strange, considering the inflammable nature of the cargo in the forward hold. Along shore it was thought strange that the fire was not discovered earlier. It must have been smoldering several days, and yet neither the captain nor any of the officers knew anything about it until the vessel was filled with smoke.

GOMEZ STRIKES A BLOW.

Inflicts Severe Defeat Upon the Spaniards in Havana Province.

Key West, Fla., May 11.—There is rumor of an engagement near Guines, Havana province, between Gen. Gomez and the Spanish troops, in which the Spaniards were severely defeated. One hundred and fifty were killed and 90 wounded, who were taken to Havana. The town of Canai, in Pinar del Rio province, has been raided again. The insurgents, after cutting the wire fences, entered the town, passing before several of the forts without resistance from the garrison. The stores were sacked and 20 houses burned.

The Murcia battalion encountered the insurgents at Bamburanao, and after three hours of hard fighting the Spanish were defeated, losing 17 killed and 26 wounded. The insurgents attacked the garrison of the sugar plantation of Pastore, in Santa Clara province, killing several soldiers and the captain and capturing considerable merchandise, arms and ammunition. Gen. Gomez has captured the guerrilla forces of Vieja and Bermeja, Havana province, composed of 42 men, among whom were 32 Cubans, who were immediately executed. The rest, the Spaniards, were set at liberty.

WINS ITS CASE.

Bell Telephone Company Sustained by Supreme Court.

Washington, May 11.—The Bell Telephone company won the case brought against it by the United States to annul the last Berliner patent. This decision has the effect of continuing the control of the telephone by the Bell company for 17 years from the date of the last patent, which was granted in 1891.

[The case has attracted wide attention because of the extensive interests involved in the settlement, and the opinion of the court has been anxiously awaited. The suit, it was claimed, involved the practical contral of the art of telephoning. It originated in a charge of collusion in the patent office, and was brought to obtain the repeal and cancellation of letters patent of the United States No. 4,635,669, dated November 17, 1891, granted to the American Bell Telephone company as assignee of Emil Berliner, the alleged inventor. The repeal and cancellation of the patent were sought upon the ground that the application for it while filed in 1877, was not issued until 1891. The suit originated in the United States circuit court for the district of Massachusetts, where it was decided in favor of the United States. Upon appeal to the circuit court this decision was reversed and the contentions of the Berliner claimants upheld. From this opinion the United States appealed to the supreme court.]

Brussels Exposition Open.

Brussels, May 11.—The Brussels exposition was formally opened at two o'clock Monday afternoon in the presence of the ministers, the diplomatic corps and the civil and military authorities. Immense crowds of people were present. M. De Mot, president of the executive, and M. Nyssens, minister of public works, made speeches. The inaugural cantate were executed by a choir of 1,800 voices. King Leopold arrived on the ground at 2:45 p. m.

Another Levee Breaks.

New Orleans, May 11.—A big crevasse has occurred in the levee at Baton Rouge, the state capital. Fifteen feet of the levee gave away and the break is fast spreading. The people are leaving town. A break which was closed occurred there last week, but the levee is weak. The break is 98 miles above New Orleans, on this side of the river.

VICTORIOUS TURNERS.

Crowns of Laurel Awarded the Winners at St. Louis.

St. Louis, May 10.—The twenty-seventh national festival of the North German Gymnastic union, or Turnerbund, on Sunday, closed a most successful meeting of four days, and prizes were awarded to the visitors. Like those given by King George of Greece to the successful competitors in the Olympian games at Athens last year, they consisted of laurel wreaths. Each wreath was tied with a white satin ribbon, inscribed with the words: "Twenty-seventh Bundes-Turn-Fest, St. Louis, Mo., May 9, 1897." A diploma accompanied each wreath.

The great work of computing the results of the many contests was done under the managemnt of Mr. Guenther, of Allegheny, Pa., with a corps of ten men. These were kept busy night and day from the beginning of the contests until late Sunday evening. The results of the different contests follow:

Group 1, in class competition, 115 classes competing—Division A, Philadelphia T. V., won first prize; division B, Denver T. V., first; division C, Holyoke (Mass.) T. V., first; division D, Plattsmouth (Neb.) T. V., first.

Group 2, in class competition, ten classes competing—Central T. V., of Plattsburg, first.

Group 3, in society competition, ten classes contesting—South St. Louis T. V., first.

Individual contests, sharpshooting, ten men competing—W. R. Roessler, St. Louis T. V., first.

Club swinging, 15 competitors — Fred Metz, Newark, N. J., first.

Wrestling, catch-as-catch-can, heavy weight, 14 competitors—F. G. Eisner, Aurora T. V., Chicago, first.

Middleweight, 14 competitors — H. W. Abecken, Concordia T. V., St. Louis, first; lightweights, 12 contestants, Theodore Koppin, South St. Louis, first.

Individual work on apparatus and infield sports, 100 contestants—George Vervalin, Denver T. V., first.

Fencing with foils, 33 competitors—A. Zeger, Chicago T. V., first.

Fencing with broadswords, 10 competitors—F. Turnt, Chicago T. V., first.

Swimming, distance 1,580 feet, 14 competitors—John T. Taylor, Central T. V., of Pittsburgh, first. Time, 9 minutes, 51½ seconds.

Individual contests in high jumping, putting up the 80-pound weight and hop-step and jump—Christ Wegel, Buffalo, first.

DEATH OF D'AUMALE.

Awful Fate of Duchess d'Alencon Causes a Fatal Shock.

Paris, May 8.—The Duc d'Aumale died Thursday at Zucco, Sicily, of the shock he experienced upon hearing of the death of Duchesse d'Alencon. The immediate cause of death was cardiac apoplexy. The relationship of Duchesse d'Alencon and Duc d'Aumale was that of uncle and niece by marriage, Duc d'Alencon having been the second son of Duc de Nemoure, brother of Duc d'Aumale.

[Duc d'Aumale was, perhaps, one of the most liberal-minded of the royal family of France; in fact, he often expressed himself as by no means opposed to any form of government desired by the people. He was elected to the national assembly of 1871 to represent the department of the Oise, and in 1872 he was made a division general in the army. As a soldier he had ample experience with his brother, the duke of Orleans, in the Algerian campaign in 1840. He was made a member of the French academy and the Academy of Fine Arts, but was expelled from France by law while Boulanger was minister of war. After he had gone it was learned that he had given his chateau at Chantilly, with its priceless treasures, to the institute in trust for the French nation, and in 1890 the decree was revoked, and he returned from England and took up his residence in the chateau, in which he lived up to the time of his death. In the same year that he returned to France he was elected president of the academy for three months. He was 75 years old at the time of his death, having been born in 1822. He was the fourth son of King Louis Phillippe.]

FILLED WITH LEAD.

Capt. Strong's Dead Body Found in the Road in Kentucky.

Cincinnati, May 10.—The Commercial-Tribune's special from Lexington, Ky., says Capt. William Strong, leader of the faction that bears his name in the Strong-Amos and Strong-Calahan feuds which have cost more than 50 lives in Breathitt county, was found on the roadside near his home Sunday shot to death with seven bullet holes in his body.

Strong was 72 years old, a captain in the federal army. After the war the Amos family and their friends tried to exterminate Strong and his friends. They besieged Strong in his house three days, when Strong's nephew with a dozen old soldiers came to his rescue. A few nights afterwards Strong and his men met the Amos faction in an open meadow in the moonlight. A fierce battle ensued which resulted in the death of one Amos and the wounding of several more. Only one of Strong's men was wounded.

The Amos family removed to Kansas after several more of their men were killed. When the Ku-Klux rode in Breathitt county last year Capt. Strong denounced them in unmeasured terms, and when it was told to him that the Calahans were the leaders he made war on them. In this war three have been killed, and the authorities, realizing that Breathitt county would witness another bloody mountain war, summoned the leaders of both sides to appear before County Judge Day, with the result that peace was supposed to be restored. Strong's friends will never rest till this murder is avenged.

Two Banks Closed.

The Dalles, Ore., May 8.—The Dalles national bank was closed by Bank Examiner Charles Clary, against the advice and in spite of the protest of the bank's officials. The immediate cause of the closing, it is said, was a disagreement among the stockholders.

Lincoln, Neb., May 8.—The Exchange bank of Atkinson, State Treasurer Bartley's bank, was taken in charge by State Bank Examiner Coad. The bank had a capital of $30,000. Its last statement shows assets amounting to $117,367. Liabilities were $110,934.

Will Discard the Stripes.

Lansing, Kan., May 10.—The board of directors of the state penitentiary have announced to the convicts that the regulation striped uniforms will be discarded, beginning on the 4th of July. The new garb of the convicts is to be of gray material, with black stripes along the outer seam of the trousers and around the coat sleeves. The old striped uniforms will be worn only in the coal mine and by offenders against prison discipline.

Goff to Succeed Justice Field.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 10.—M. M. Davis, an intimate of Judge Goff, of the United States circuit court of appeals, says there is no question as to the future of the judge. He has been offered and has accepted the place which Justice Field, of the supreme court, will vacate within a few months.

A WELL-KEPT HAND.

No Woman of Refinement Will Neglect Manicuring.

To paraphrase an old epigram, a well-kept hand does not necessarily bespeak a woman of refinement, but no woman of refinement will have other than a well-kept hand. The gentlest lady's hand may be hard of palm and red of knuckle, because they are no strangers to the broom and dish mop, but they need never seem coarse or neglected. Just at present gloves are being sold to meet the special needs of a practical housekeeper—big, loose, red gauntlets, that are for slipping on when tender fingers must go in hot water. There are white rubber ones, too, for use when kneading dough; big chamois skin ones to wear on days when the family silver must be polished or the brass andirons touched up. The outside surface of these last acts as a polishing cloth on all metals, and when the chores are thus effectually handled with gloves and more or less completed for the day, let the finger nails be brushed in tepid soap and water and manicured.

Nails that are tough, lusterless, dotted with white bruises, surrounded with hangnails, or are painfully brittle and ragged, tell a simple story of neglect. One dollar and a half will purchase all the manicure tools and supplies necessary, and these will easily last three years, so no great expense is involved. This estimate includes a cleaner and file in one, a pair of small curved scissors, a large wood-backed polisher, a box of nail paste and one of powder. After nails have been brushed in tepid suds and dried, use an orange-wood toothpick to gently push back the skin about the sides and bottom. With the scissors clip close off all the hangnails and then cut every nail to the shape you wish, beveling the cut edges with the file. Rub ever so little paste on every nail, dust a pinch of powder on the polisher and then polish with an even stroke a few times. Don't let either paste or powder work into the skin around the nails, and don't manicure two mornings and neglect the hands for four. Don't try to have long nails or glittering ones. Be satisfied if they take on a pink, healthy glow, have white, rounded tips, and grow as strong, yet flexible, as the best whalebone.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Whole Steamed Potatoes.

Pare the potatoes, choosing those as nearly of a size as possible. Cook till done, pour off the water, cover them with hot milk and stew ten minutes. Take the potatoes in a hot vegetable dish; thicken the milk that is left with a tablespoonful of butter rubbed into a heaped tablespoonful of flour, let boil up and season with salt and pepand pour over the potatoes.—Detroit Free Press.

They say that the ostrich can digest stones and broken glass. We wonder if an ostrich ever tried to digest an American radish?—Atchison Globe.

"I WONDER WHY."

There comes a query oft to me,
From one who thinks I ought to know,
The height and depth and mystery—
The "wherefore" of the "it is so,"
And childish form, with bated breath,
With parted lips and pleading eye,
Stands waiting for the "What he saith,"
In answer to "I wonder why?"

"What gives the violet its hue,
The fern its fragile form and grace?
Why doth the rivulet pursue
Its ceaseless course for us to trace?
Why bloom the flowers, why grow the trees,
And spread their branches wide and high?
Why sing the cheerful chickadees,
On leafless bush? I wonder why?"

All these I answer as I can,
And yet the little maid asks on,
And her soft eyes my own eyes scan,
Perchance a new reply to con;
Till I am fain to ask with zest
For clearer knowedge from on high
Of my own duty, God's behest,
And, like my child, "I wonder why?"

Deep problems meet us in the wood,
Afield, and by the stream and sea.
We see what is not understood
About us, and that ne'er can be,
Whether we wander far or stay
In cloister, hid from mortal eye:
We 'bide with mystery night and day,
And of it all we "wonder why?"

So 'tis not strange a child oft asks
To know the "wherefore" of the fact;
To understand what vainly tasks
Philosophy with all its tact:
We all are children, striving oft
To know what comes before the eye;
Childlike, we vainly look aloft,
And ask and ask: "I wonder why?"
—Boston Transcript.

CRITICISM.

Scene: A studio.

Characters: Bernard Farrant, a rising painter; Clement Mordan, his friend: and visitors (to see the latest portrait of Josiah Plumpmore, Esq., M.P., J.P.), including Lady Bankwell and her daughter Maria, Mrs. Plumpmore and her daughter Sophie, Surgeon-Col. Greene, Frank Fordham, and Joe O'Connor.

FARRANT (arranging cakes, teas and etceteras along a side table) — You must do the honors for me and be civil to the women. I'm no good at that sort of thing.

Mordan — O, all right. I'll feed 'em. They always eat as though they hadn't seen a meal for days.

Farrant—And you'll point out the pictures—

Mordan—Never mind the pictures—they won't trouble to look at 'em.

Farrant—Mrs. Plumpmore said she was sending a party of friends on purpose to criticise her husband's portrait.

Mordan—A fig for their criticism; they're sure to know nothing about it.

Farrant (eying his picture of Mr. Josiah Plumpmore that stands on an easel)—They know the man and I'm not sure that a good deal mayn't be learnt from impromptu remarks. A genuine opinion now and then is salubrious, and better worth listening to than balderdash cribbed from the papers and hashed up as original.

Mordan—They're bound to butter you up; that's part of the programme.

Farrant—We must prevent that. You can draw them out while I sink in the background and play the eavesdropper. They don't know me and— Hush! they're coming.

(Enter visitors, including Lady Bankwell and her daughter Maria, Mrs. Plumpmore and her daughter Sophie, Surgeon-Colonel Greene, Frank Fordham and Joe O'Connor).

Mordan (receiving them)—So good of you to come. * * * You'll have some tea, won't you? * * * O! your sister? Delighted—thanks very much. This way. * * * There is a chair yonder. * * * Allow me.

Farrant (by the refreshments)—Some tea? * * * Coffee? * * * Two lumps? I thought you'd like two. * * * A biscuit? No, nor a cake? You can't refuse a muffin?

Mordan—O, Lady Bankwell, I didn't see you; and Miss Maria — charming! Of course you've come to see the portrait. Let me * * *

Lady Bankwell (grandiosely)—My nephew particularly asked me to express an opinion. He has great respect for—

Mordan—Oh, of course, of course; I forgot your love of art. Are you exhibiting anything this season?

Lady Bankwell (uneasily)—No, not this year. The fact is, social demands on my time and the * * * Well, the academy is not what it used to be. (Sighs.)

Mordan—No? More critical? Wants ideas, you think? Has higher standards?

Lady Bankwell—Far from it, I regret to say. Now, four years ago a little picture of mine was hung; not on the line, certainly, but—

Mordan—Was it square or oblong?

Lady Bankwell — Oblong — about eight by four. Why?

Mordan—O, nothing—I mean—I must have seen it. Won't you inspect Mr. Plumpmore's portrait? Here we have it in an excellent light.

Lady Bankwell (lifting lorgnette)—Ah, yes; there he is. My nephew is rather thinner than the portrait, I think.

Mordan—The likeness is good, eh?

Lady Bankwell—Very fair. But the collar—the coat! My nephew is more particular about his clothes.

Farrant (pretending to be a visitor, and wedging in)—Anything amiss with them?

Lady Bankwell—The collar is not white. I am a realist in art, and like a collar to be a collar—immaculate. The suit seems altogether rather shabby. What do you think, Maria?

Maria—Well, it does look as though it would be the better for a brush. Isn't the nose a bit too flaming?

Lady Bankwell—Your uncle's complexion is florid, my dear.

Maria—But still, don't you think the artist should have idealized it—done something to touch it up or tone it down, or whatever they call it?

Lady Bankwell (beckoning suddenly)—Ah, Col. Greene, come and see the portrait, and tell us what you think of it.

Surgeon-Colonel Greene (fronting the easel)—Ho! ho! ho! There's the old chap with his grasp on the precious vase—

Mordan (explaining)—That was one of the conditions of the picture. Mr. Plumpmore wished to go down to posterity with it on his right hand.

Lady Bankwell—Yes; there's not another like it in England. It cost Josiah its weight in gold.

Surgeon-Colonel Greene — Ah, I see. If that picture were mine I'd have a curtain or something in the background. That port-winey color in the corners looks a bit suggestive, don't it? Reminds one of the fellow that was drowned in a butt of—Maria—O, that was Malmsey. . . . I am afraid your history is defective.

Surgeon-Col. Greene (galantly)—You see, I'm not an recently from school as you are.

(Maria, whose age is on the wrong side of 30, blushes happily and smiles.)

Lady Bankwell (ruminating)—Yes; a curtain, that would be a good idea. It could be easily put in even now. I have often altered a background at the last moment with great success.

Mordan (hurriedly)—Let me offer you some tea. Colonel, will you be good enough to conduct these ladies to the refreshments? (They go off. Frank Fordham and Joe O'Connor advance and shake hands.)

Fordham—Hallo here's old "Pumps."

O'Connor—Take care, my dear fellow. There are hosts of his relatives about.

Fordham (lowering his voice)—He looks more like a silver side o' beef than ever.

O'Connor—Yes. But his eyes don't play hide and seek round the bridge of his nose, as they ought to. He never looks you straight in the face like that.

Fordham—Now you say so I think the left one might be a trifle more — Hush! here's Mrs. Plumpmore and the girl.

O'Connor (holding out his hand)—How do you do, Mrs. Plumpmore? We are admiring your husband's portrait—rattling good likeness. Doesn't do him justice, though, does it?

Mrs. Plumpmore—So glad you like it. Let me introduce you to my daughter. (They bow.)

Sophie—We ought to apologize for pa's hair. It is not as tidy as it ought to be. Bennet's bandoline is supposed to keep it smooth for hours, but somehow here— O, Mr. Farrant, I didn't see you. I hope you'll excuse my remarking the hair.

Farrant (smiling blandly)—Certainly, certainly. It's too smooth, I think you said?

Sophie—O, no; not quite smooth enough. It's just a little ruffled there—at that side of the head. Pa's nothing, you know, if he's not smart.

Mrs. Plumpmore patronizingly, to Farrant)—We have all been admiring the portrait so much. I am sure everyone will be talking about it. You see, the vase alone—

Farrant—Yes, the vase will be sure to attract attention.

Mrs. Plumpmore—The mouth is the only thing I complain of. It really should be slit with a penknife. Josiah's mouth is merely a gash, though I say it. I suppose a wife is allowed to observe her husband's little defects.

"AH, YES: THERE HE IS!"

Mordan—Naturally; it's the sacred prerogative of the sex.

Mrs. Plumpmore—And now we must be off. We have heaps more studios to visit. Come along, Sophie.

(Mordan escorts them to the door, whistles for a cab, and assists Lady Bankwell into a cloak. More visitors continue to troop out till all are gone.)

Mordan (crossing the studio and seizing a cup of cold tea and a hunch of cake)—Well, have you overheard the remarks?

Farrant—Yes.

Mordan (with his mouth full)—Pleased?

Farrant—Delighted.

Mordan—Learnt anything?

Farrant—Lots.

Mordan—O?

Farrant—That if it weren't for the collar, and clothes, and background, and hair, and mouth, and nose, and eyes, the portrait would be a chef d' œuvre.—Black and White.

The Wrong Boy.

A teacher in a large public school at Peckham has recently been much annoyed by the persistency with which one of her scholars plays truant. She was on the point of reporting his case when she spoke to one of the lady supervisors. The lady believes in kindness rather than harsher measures, and told the teacher to send the offender to her house the next time he was troublesome. So one afternoon there appeared at the lady's house a boy. The supervisor was all smiles and attention, and she treated him to a "spread," the like of which he probably had never enjoyed before. He was soon made to feel perfectly at home. "Now," thought the benefactress, "is the time to preach my little 'sermon.'" So she put before him the evils of playing truant and besought him to be a model boy in the future. Imagine her surprise when he said to her: "I ain't the boy that runs away, ma'am. He gave me a penny to come here in his place!"—Scottish Leader.

Customs of the Ancients.

The ancients, in order to enjoy the scent of roses at meals, had an abundance of the fragrant petals rained down upon the guests; Heliogablus, in his folly, carried the matter so far that the cloud of blossoms he ordered shaken down over one of his banquets actually suffocated some of his friends. The Romans, during their meals, reclined on cushions stuffed with rose leaves or made a couch of the leaves themselves. The floor, too, was strewn with the lovely blossoms. Cleopatra, at an enormous expense, procured roses for a feast which she prepared for Anthony; they were laid two cubits thick on the floor of the banquet room and nets were then spread over the fragrant bed to give an elastic footing.—Detroit Free Press.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Appointments.

Gov. Clough has made the following appointments:

John Neal, of Minneapolis, to represent the colored interests of Minnesota at the Nashville exposition.

Commissioners for Cass county: T. J. Mary, Walker; P. H. McDerry, Walker, James F. Middleton, Lothrop; George H. French, Cohasset; O. T. Wilson, Cass.

S. S. Brown, reappointed surveyor general of logs for the Minneapolis district.

William Getty, reappointed surveyor general for the Duluth district.

F. E. Hertz, new appointee for surveyor general for the Crookston district.

James C. Tarbox, of Monticello, Wright county, to the position of judge of the district court of the new 18th judicial district, recently formed by the legislature, and consisting of Wright, Anoka, Sherburne and Isanti counties.

Flax and Hemp Bounties.

The commissioners on flax and hemp bounties have been appointed by the governor. They are: A. Barto, St. Cloud; V. M. Bayless, Minneapolis; W. M. Liggett, dean of the agricultural school at the state university. The law provides that one member shall be a regent of the university, and Mr. Barto was appointed on this account. One must be a practical flax and hemp manufacturer, hence the appointment of Mr. Bayless. Mr. Liggett is an ex-officio member of the board. This commission was created by an act of the last legislature, and will endeavor to promote the flax fibre and hemp industry in the state.

Indian School.

W. H. Johnson, superintendent of the new government Indian school at Morris, has just brought down from White Earth agency 18 Indian children. He states that it is very difficult to induce parents to allow their children to be taken away to school. He was at White Earth 10 days and could only get 10 although there are many times that number of children of school age who should go to school. Mr. Johnson says it is very expensive work hunting up the children, and it will cost the government $10 for each of the 18 children to get them to the school. Those he has brought are bright appearing youngsters, ranging from 6 to 14 years, and several are half breeds.

Will Make Sugar.

The Minnesota Beet Sugar company is the title of a concern that has been formed in Minneapolis, and which is looking for a location to erect its factory buildings. The company has a capital of $250,000, and among the incorporators are Senator G. Theden, of Minneapolis; Senator Keller, of Sauk Center; Timothy Foley, of St. Paul; James Doran, of St. Paul; Judge Lusk, of St. Paul, and other men of money with faith in the industry.

Arrested.

H. H. Harmon, a university student, was arrested at Minneapolis upon the charge of forgery and for tampering with the mails. He opened a letter addressed to Harry Morcon, a fellow student, and finding a postal money order attempted to have the same cashed at a drug store. The clerk in the store was a personal friend of young Marcon and he immediately had Harmon placed under arrest. Morcon refused to prosecute and Harmon was released.

Smothered to Death.

Martin Welch, residing on the German road near Inver Grove, St. Paul, was smothered to death. He was driving to his home with a load of wet screenings, when his wagon overturned. The wagon box fell across Welch's chest and the screenings poured over him. Before he could be extricated he was dead. He leaves a wife and two children.

News in Brief.

Mabel Wiggen, of Minneapolis, aged 8 years, died from an ulcerated tooth.

The residence of John Marshall, near Stewartville, was burned.

O. B. Turrell, ex-cashier of the insolvent Citizens' bank at Redwood Falls, on an indictment for receiving money after he knew the bank was insolvent, resulted in acquittal, the case never going to the jury, as the state failed to show that the bank was insolvent at the time the money was received. The other three indictments were dismissed.

William Tubbs, one of the pioneers of Olmsted county, is dead. He was a veteran of the Mexican war. He came to Stewartville 40 years ago, where he has since lived on his farm. He was 77 years old.

Owen Quailly, of St. Paul, aged 19 years, had a miraculous escape from death at 4 o'clock in the morning. He fell from his bed room window, a distance of 25 feet. The only injuries he received was a slight bruise on his right cheek and a cut on his nose.

Fire at Mankato destroyed Wiltgens' new livery stable and 23 of the 25 horses therein. The loss will be $3,500 on a building which he had only occupied two weeks, and $3,500 on 23 horses, with small insurance. L. L. De Rosia loses $800 on hotel barn. M. Jost $300 on fur factory.

L. A. Jordan, foreman for the Mississippi and Rum River Boom company, has put a crew of 80 men at work driving the logs to Minneapolis. He estimates that there are about 250,000,000 feet between Little Falls and Minneapolis.

Payson Colwell has effected the organization of a Minnesota athletic association for the purpose of holding an annual state field meet. The purpose is to form and make such a compact for track sports as will enable the institutions of the state to compete for the elegant silver cup recently presented by T. H. Colwell, of the University Press.

The selection of the commissioners for Beltrami county made by Governor Clough will, beyond a doubt, fix the county seat near Bagley Dam, a place located by S. C. Bagley, one of the commissioners and a very close friend of the governor.

Some individual, who had evidently just arrived from the country, attempted to post a letter in fire alarm box 34 at 6th street and Hennepin avenue, Minneapolis. The result was that the letter was not posted there, and the fire department had a run for nothing.

A warrant has been issued at Little Falls for George Lamphear, charged with forgery. Lamphear forged the name of O. Declos to a check, and passed it on J. W. Berg for a bicycle.

Fred Aanenson, of Evansville, aged 15, fell under the cars and had his foot crushed, compelling amputation at the knee.

THE EARLY MOTH.

This Is the Time to Take Up Arms Against It.

Any unlighted corner that harbors a woolen garment or a fur wrap in springtime is the camping ground for an advance guard which does deadly work before the actual battle is on. House cleaning week scatters these voiceless "harbingers of spring" and puts them to rout, but it is ten chances to one that while Mary Ann is viciously slaying the white-winged enemy fluttering forth from hidden nooks and crannies she is blissfully ignorant of the fact that at that stage the moth is no longer dangerous. In silence and darkness it has deposited its eggs and left them to do their worst, and, indeed, this airy flutter through lighted rooms is after all only a sort of bravado, which leaves the same Mary Ann content to kill the only thing that is no longer a menace to her general thriftiness. As these airy travelers then begin to appear, as they will in a short time now, the thing to do is not to fly after them in mad haste and lose breath, temper and perhaps the intended victim itself in a mad desire for murder.

If moths could laugh (and who can prove that they don't?) such periodical chasing must be wondrous funny. But when the wary housemaid smiles scornfully at the fluttering bit of life before her and goes, brush in hand, toward the darkest pegs in the wardrobe, then must the early moth confess itself undone. A few vigorous shakes, a sound, sharp swish of brush or whisk, and hour's sunning in the open air, these are the deadly foes of hidden things whose work goes bravely on if they are left alone until the coming season finds the unbrushed, unshaken wrap falling to pieces in its dismayed owner's hands. Now is the proper time, then, to begin active warfare; it is a little too early to pack heavy clothing away, but it is not a day too soon to give it constant dustings, shakings and beatings; by and by camphor or tar or all other abominations may do their work, but if women only knew that a little vigilance in time makes all those ill-smelling things unnecessary there would be such a panic in mothdom as this world has not yet witnessed.—St. Louis Republic.

THE FIRST STRAWBERRIES.

How They Should Be Served to Please Eye and Palate.

Strawberry Shortcake.—Allow one quart of strawberries to five persons. Wash the berries and add one-half cupful sugar and crush them.

Crust—Two cupfuls flour, two tablespoonsful baking powder, a piece of butter the size of an egg, milk to make a soft dough. Sift the flour and baking powder together, rub butter well into the flour. Add milk and toss together with a fork. Put into a pan and bake in a quick oven. When done and cold split with a sharp knife and put half the berries on top and half between the layers. Have cream to serve with it, and if you have cream that will whip, it may be piled on top of the cake and make a beautiful dish.

Strawberry Ice Cream.—One and a half quarts of new milk, one pint pure cream, one quart crushed strawberries and sugar to make very sweet, as some of the sweetness will be lost in the freezing. This amount will make three quarts when frozen. Have the ice chopped very fine and over every layer of ice sprinkle a liberal layer of salt. Do not stint the quantity of salt, for the faster the salt melts the ice the sooner the cream will be frozen.

Strawberries on the Stem.—Have the strawberries carefully selected and put about a dozen or more on a small plate, with a tablespoonful of pulverized sugar beside them, on the same plate. They are to be picked up by the stems, dipped in sugar and eaten as soon as served at the table.—Philadelphia Times.

The New Fabrics.

Broadcloth has never been more popular, and is worn in all shades of every color.

Mousseline de soie bodices are a pleasing feature of the velvet gowns this season, and are made in light, dainty colors, which afford a pretty contrast.

Braiding embellished with small belldrops covered with silk, such as were worn years ago, is a novelty in trimming.

Pearl-gray grenadine with black trimming forms a pretty and unusual combination for a house or early spring street gown.

Checked wool gowns in green and black, black and white and brown and white are made with plain cloth bolero braided with black, and worn over vests of white lisse, lace or silk.—Chicago Record.

Ambition to Do.

It is not enough that one possesses a talent. It languishes like a morning glory at noonday unless accompanied by the characteristics which develop it. The unity of purpose, ambition, courage and industry must go with the gift. Sometimes these qualities have even been made to take the place of heaven-born talent. If we wait for the opportunity it will never come. If we work for it it is already in sight, but everything then accomplished is in spite of obstacles. The phrase is a good one. Write it, if you will, in plain, large letters, and pin the slip of paper on your desk or some other place where it will constantly greet the eye and encourage the possibly flagging heart.—Detroit Free Press.

Eggs Poached in Tomatoes.

Stew slowly for ten minutes half a can of tomatoes and one small onion, cut fine. Season highly with salt and pepper. Break six eggs in to a bowl without beating and when everything else is ready to serve slip them into hot tomatoes. Lift the white carefully with a fork as it cooks and then prick the yolks and let them mix with the whites and tomato. It should be quite soft, but with the red tomatoes, the white and yellow of the egg, quite distinct. Serve at once on toast.—What to Eat.

Orange Custard.

Turn a pint of hot milk over two cupfuls of stale bread crumbs and let them soak until well softened; add the yolks of two eggs and beat all together until perfectly smooth; add a little of the grated rind and the juice of three sweet oranges and sugar to taste. Lastly, add the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth, turn into cups and place them in a moderate oven in a pan of hot water and bake 20 minutes, or until the custard is well set, but not watery. —Good Health.

—Your fate is that of a woman and your wishes are those of an angel.—N. Y. Weekly.

The Ideal Line.

The members of the Baptist Young People's Union who contemplate attending a national meeting of that body in July, should bear in mind that there is no better equipped line from the East, North or Northwest, than the popular Big Four route via Cincinnati or Louisville. All through passenger trains on this line are vestibuled, equipped with Buffet sleepers, with Hotel Dining Cars on day trains. At Cincinnati direct connection is made in the same depot with the Queen & Crescent Route, the Short Line to Chattanooga, via the famous High Bridge. At Louisville, with the Southern Railway and the Louisville & Nashville, via Mammoth Cave, and Nashville, allowing stop-over at both these points.

The fare from Chicago will be extremely low. For rates, time cards, etc., address J. C. Tucker, G. N. A., or H. W. Sparks, T. P. A., No. 234 Clark St., Chicago.

Cheapest and Best.

Very few shooters load shot gun shells now that factory loaded shells can be bought so cheap. It is cheaper and easier to buy than to load shot shells, and there is no question that the machine loaded are better than the hand loaded. The shells loaded by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., are the standard of the world for reliability, uniformity and strong shooting qualities. They are used by all the best shots in preference to any others. Winchester loaded shells can be bought of all dealers in all gauges and loads. Results show them to be the best on the market. A Dangerous Lethargy.

The forerunner of a train of evils, which too often culminate fatally, is inactivity or lethargy of the kidneys. Not only is Bright's disease, diabetes, gravel, or some other dangerous integral disease of the organs themselves to be apprehended, but dropsical diffusions from the blood, rheumatism and gout, are all traceable to the non-removal from the blood by the kidneys of certain impurities. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters depurates the blood, renders the kidneys active and prevents their disease.

Heart Failure

Of course the heart fails to act when a man dies, but "Heart Failure," so called, nine times out of ten is caused by Uric Acid in the blood which the Kidneys fail to remove, and which corrodes the heart until it becomes unable to perform its functions.

Health Officers in many cities very properly refuse to accept "Heart Failure," as a cause of death. It is frequently a sign of ignorance in the physician, or may be given to cover up the real cause.

THREE HAPPY WOMEN.

Each Relieved of Periodic Pain and Backache. A Trio of Fervent Letters.

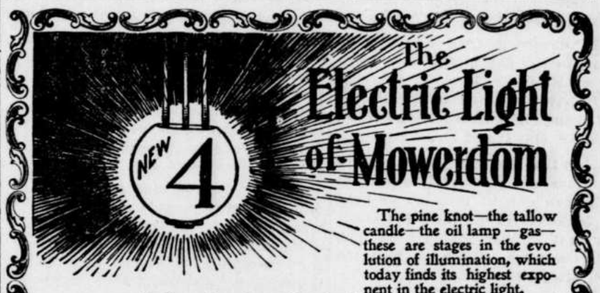
Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, my health was gradually being undermined. I suffered untold agony from painful menstruation, backache, pain on top of my head and ovarian trouble. I concluded to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound, and found that it was all any woman needs who suffers with painful monthly periods. It entirely cured me. MRS. GEORGIE WASS, 923 Bank St., Cincinnati, O.

For years I had suffered with painful menstruation every month. At the beginning of menstruation it was impossible for me to stand up for more than five minutes, I felt so miserable. One day a little book of Mrs. Pinkham's was thrown into my house, and I sat right down and read it. I then got some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. I can heartily say that to-day I feel like a new woman; my monthly suffering is a thing of the past. I shall always praise the Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me. MRS. MARGARET ANDERSON, 363 Lisbon St., Lewiston, Me.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of painful menstruation and backache. The pain in my back was dreadful, and the agony I suffered during menstruation nearly drove me wild.

Now this is all over, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine and advice.—MRS. CARRIE V. WILLIAMS, South Mills, N. C

The great volume of testimony proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a safe, sure and almost infallible remedy in cases of irregularity, suppressed, excessive or painful monthly periods.



The Electric Light of Mowerdom

The pine knot—the tallow candle—the oil lamp—gas—these are stages in the evolution of illumination, which today finds its highest exponent in the electric light.

Similar and no less striking has been the evolution of grain and grass cutting machinery. In 1831 the scythe and the cradle were superseded by the McCormick Reaper. The intervening years have seen many improvements, until now we have that model Harvester and Binder, the McCormick Right Hand Open Elevator, and that veritable electric light of mowerdom, the

New 4. It is not only the handsomest mower ever built, but it is, in every sense of the word, the best—and if your experience has taught you anything, it is that there's nothing cheaper than the best.

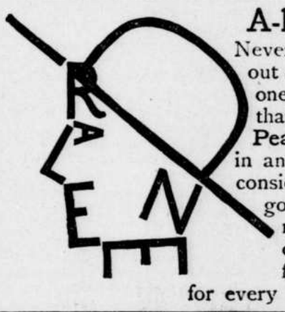
REASONS FOR USING

Walter Baker & Co.'s

Breakfast Cocoa.

1. Because it is absolutely pure.
2. Because it is not made by the so-called Dutch Process in which chemicals are used.
3. Because beans of the finest quality are used.
4. Because it is made by a method which preserves unimpaired the exquisite natural flavor and odor of the beans.
5. Because it is the most economical, costing less than one cent a cup.

Be sure that you get the genuine article made by WALTER BAKER & CO. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass. Established 1780.



A-head of Pearline?

Never! Not a bit of it! That is out of the question. Probably not one of the many washing-powders that have been made to imitate Pearline would claim to excel it in any way. All they ask is to be considered "the same as" or "as good as" Pearline. But they're not even that. Pearline is today, just as it has been from the first, the best thing in the world for every kind of washing and cleaning.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, MAY 14, 1897.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven in Delano Saturday and Sunday, May 15 and 16.

—Ice Cream will be served by the Ladie's Aid, at Mrs. Green's, this afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock.

—Rev. Nugent, of Watertown, will preach at the Catholic church, in Delane, on Sunday, May 15, at 7:30 p. m.

—Assesser Valentine Eppel was around this week inquiring of people what they have and how much it is worth.

—The last days of the school year are drawing nigh, and the teachers and pupils are preparing for commencement exercises.

—A six o'clock dinner followed by a dance in the evening will be given in the interests of the band, at the City Hall, on Tuesday May 18th.

—If you are in need of an elegant set of teeth or fine fillings; or a tooth extracted without the least pain call on Dr. Niven, at the Danforth House, May 15 and 16; Waverly 17; and Howard Lake, May 18 and 19.

—Now that the law against the use of profane and indecent language has again been brought into use we hope people can travel our streets without hearing it. It has not been confined all to one place. There has been too much altogether. Let it stop.

--C. W. Kerrick says, he has been from southern Iowa to Canada and from St. Paul to the Pacific ocean, in all kinds of towns, mining, lumber and railroad camps, and seen all kinds of times but none of them compared with Delano Fair Day. Laws should be respected. It is not helping the reputation of our town to have people here on Fair Days and obliged to tell such stories concerning it.

—A Justice Court where the bystanders are allowed to smoke till the air is blue is disgusting to many; where the jury joins in making smudge it is worse; but when the attorneys, and Justice himself assist, to the best of their ability, in making the court room intolerable to many witnesses and others entitled to pure air to breathe, it adds nothing to the dignity of the Court. Stop the smoke.

--C. A. Ingerson says on Fair Day, but for the timely assistance of two strong young men, who were working on his farm, he thinks he would probably been the unwilling witness of a brutal murder, near his place. Two men on their way home from the Fair got into an atercation; one pounded the other's face with a rock and he thinks but for interferance would have finished the job right there. These occurrences must stop.

— Fair Day on Saturday was much after the usual sort. Strangers in town note the terrible conditions of affairs much more than do those who have become accustomed to hearing "warwhoops", "rebel yells" and similar inspiring noises, as well as to seeing too many men who can't keep their own side of the sidewalk. Something must be done to regulate Fair Day or it will have to be abolished altogether before long. People simply want stand such doings. It is a disgrace to the community.

—One day last week Messrs Meister and Tou a traveling man, got into trouble at the depot. Meister had Tou arrested for assault and battery. He withdrew the complaint and Tou was dismissed from custody. Meister then expressed himself to several parties in language more forcible than fine, and J. W. McDonald complained of him for using abusive language tending to provoke an assault. After several recesses and other troubles Meister was, on Thursday, fined $10. and cost of the suit. From this sentence he appealed to the district court.

--Mr. Caffery, advance agent for I. F. Nolan, came into town Saturday afternoon from towards Watertown, and had a dreadful tale to tell of a bloody battle going on about a mile and a half from town. He said there were five men there; a woman and two small boys were holding the team. Two of the men, brother-in-laws were doing the fighting, and the others seemed willing they should. He thought it a terrible affair. Bnt there is no telling on how many other roads leading out from town similar agairs of dishonor were going on: nor in how many otherwise happy and thriving homes the demon of Delano Fair Day drinks was driving the woman and children with curses and blows from their own doors.

—In looking over the files of the Gazette of last May we find that at the meeting on Memorial Day, that a Memorial Association, whose business it would be to arrange for observing future Memorial Days was organized. Officers were elected as follows: President, F. H. Lindsley: Vice President, Tiff Hittsman; Secretary, T. J. Catlin; Treasurer, William C. Lewis. If the organization expects to observe the day this year it had better be making arrangements to that effect. Delano again has a band, which would perhaps furnish some good music. There is no need of people going away to observe the day, and leaving the graves in our own cemetaries undecorated and unvisited. Let our town turn out and observe the day as befits the memories of our countries dead heroes.

--Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—Conzet is constructing his coop on the Crow. When he is done he proposes to have the first class harness shop of the county and of the country round.

—We are in receipt of a neat little pamphlet, "Institute Manuel, 1897, Steele county, North Dakota" The State Teachers Institute held at Hope, has for Conductor W. E. Johnson, of State Normal School Mayville. That is our Willis. Good for him. Delano is occasionally heard from.

--Rev. Davies preached on Sunday morning at the Presbyterian Church. Mr. D. is very much in earnest, and would like to see many reforms, right here in Delano. The singing by Mrs. Davies and her assistants Misses Blanche Rader, Marjorie O'Hair and Queeny Buckley was well rendered.

--Justice Frazee held a session of court this A. M. hearing the complaint of Miss Edna Cooper against Frank A. Cramer for bastardy. Frank gave bonds for an appearance in one week. This afternoon the Squire will wrestle with the case of Meister vs. Tou, for damages in the amount of $100, for personal damage.

--Rev. A. Abbott, of Rockford, preached on Sunday evening at the M. E. Church, to a fair sized audience. His text was a part of St. Mark, Chap. XI, v. 22: "Have faith in God". The Sermon was a good one. Mr. A. is now 68 years old and is farming; was engaged in logging on new land, five days last week; but succeeded in doing some good head work also.

—"To sing out of 'tune' and play out of 'time' are the musicians unpardonable sins, and if those who are guilty of either could only realize, the frightful torture they inflict upon their fellow creatures, a sense of pity, if nothing else, would cause them to desist." —Eversonian Band Notes.

The Band boys certainly are devoid of all sense of pity, then; or think the world was made for them. They play at any hour of the day or night, and at all kinds of time, and all kinds of tunes, some times we are suddenly made to think a calf is bawling only to learn later that it is one or more of these pitiless fellows practicing on a new piece. May be though they ain't musicians. As for singing out of "tune", how we do love to fall in with a good lively chorus though we are not supposed to know anything about musical tones. Yet it is about as painful to keep still as it is for the author of the Band Notes to play, while the music is going on.

J. J. Buckley returned from the cities last evening.

Desmond Dugan made Minneapolis a visit Monday.

Miss Arnold returned Sunday evening from the Mill City.

Timothy Gleeson, Esq., of Minneapolis, was in town Tuesday.

One of the gradantes, Miss Francis Bauman, is teaching in Dist. 33.

Stella Davis and George Kurtz visited home last Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. J. L. Farber has been putting in some time on his farm, near Renville, lately.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolfenden are in town today. They are going to Sheldon, Iowa, soon.

Mrs. Albert Eppel can make "pi" but she says her man don't swear just the same.

Roy Wilder came up from the "U" Wednesday evening to spend a day with the folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Stacy, of Montrose, patronized some of our merchants Tuesday.

Uncle Joe Bland, of Marysville, and Dan McCarter, of Hamline, made us a brief visit on Fair Day.

A. G. Lano, a former merchant of South Haven, has moved to Delano where he expects to engage in business.

Guy Halgren, of Watertown, came over on a wheel this morning, on his way to Minneapolis. He hired Jim Hill's wheels from here.

James H. O'Leary, of Minneapolis, made us a pleasant call Tuesday, on his way home from Waverly, where he had been looking over the Tribune plant with a view to buying.

William Finkner who has for several years resided in Seattle, Wn., returned Saturday to Delano. His brother in-law, Charley Seibert is still in Seattle. Billy seems glad to be back.

County Cullings.

The laws were ready for distribution in eight days after the legislature adjourned. Pretty quick work. State Printer Whitney is receiving much merited praise. So is John J. Dobson.

According to the Howard Lake Herald the labor union of the Twin Cities have passed resolutions withdrawing their opposition to the appointment of W. E. Culkin to the Duluth Land office.

Wright County was represented at the examination for a cadet to West Point, held at St. Cloud this week, by Hugh Kennedy, Monticello, Frank J. Quinn, of Waverly Mills, and Alva G. Catlin, Delano.

It is too bad some of our politicians are so worked up because the County Commissioners voted to pay Frank Larabee $10 a day to aid the County Attorney in the Howard case. Possibly it would have been better to have given him more to have bossed the job.

C. A. Pidgeon, of Buffalo, was appointed by the County Commissioners at its last meeting, to be County Attorney instead of J. C. Tarbox, who resigned, to be Judge. The Eagle says: "There is one thing connected with Mr. Pidgeon's appointment that our friends, the enemy, may do considerable howling about. It is his connection with the Howard case." Who would have thought the Eagle would have been the first to dig that out? Why don't the Old Bird work honestly for a fair and honest trial of that case and not have such things hanging over so many of our prominent men putting them down, or unduly elevating them to positions of trust and profit, as the case may be.

Col. Saylor, of Howard Lake, intends residing at St. Paul. The Herald says:--"The Herald will be in charge of H. Tanner, the veteran writer of the county." Mr. Tanner used to run the Herald when it was Democratic.

If Frank Lamson should succeed in getting the Buffalo post office it is likely he may start up a new paper in behalf of the Great Old Elephant. From present appearances the "cause" will want many more advocates before it wins again.

Senator W. E. Culkin has, so soon, found it necessary to enter into a lengthy defence of his course in the last session of the State Senate. He was in Minneapolis recently looking up labor leaders; to see why they "whereased" him in some resolutions calculated to interfere with their appointment to the Duluth land office. In an interview the Times names about a dozen bills it says Culkin claims to have supported that were favored by labor bodies. He claims to have offered an amendment, which failed to pass, to the barber bill. Then to have opposed the bill, in response to the demand of barbors at his home. He opposed the Stephens Labor bureau bill, because it would reduce the force and cripple the bureau; and because the incumbent of that department while guilty of partisanship in office, did what is expected of all officials in office and should not be legislated out of his position for doing what his party expects him to do."!! Does then, the Hon. Mr. Culkin expect to be partisan in the Duluth land office business, if he gets a chance? Will he issue an address to the public, on "The Purchasing Power of Gold." or "Beauties of the Single Standard?" If that is what he expects to do, and is what the party expects him to do, then good for Mr. Culkin for intimating so much in advance. There is nothing like being honest.

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent:
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

A BIT OF LIFE.

CLARA F. DENTON.

A maiden sat within the door
And sang as many times before.
A man who to daily toil passed by,
No love nor pleasure lit his eye.
But when he herd that merry song
He whistled as he went along.

A woman by the window wept
For one who in the churchyard slept.
But when upon her hearing fell
That tune she knew and loved so well
The flood of burning tears was stayed
And soon a song her lips essayed.

Her neighbor heard the tender strain,
And softly joined the sweet refrain.
Thus all day long that one song bore
Its joyousness from door to door.
—The Iowa Temperance Magazine.

No wonder Rockefeller says money don't make rich men, when he reads of the terrible fire in London where people were roasted alive, and sees that the occasion of the conflagration is attributed to a poor quality of oil he has forced upon people in order to get more money.

GOLD is going to such a premium in Mexico that it is reported the country will soon drop the silver standard—Globe.

It is a wonder our enterprising merchants dont send oversome gold to that country and buy up a lot of coffee and other Mexican products to speculate on. But they appear to prefer, or are obliged to patronize England where gold is also at a premium.

JOHN GOODNOW in whom we failed to see a fit leader, even for the Republican party, at the time he aided in starting the campaign at Buffalo, a few years ago has, since his divorce suit been given the cold shoulder. With no excuses for him, if reports are true, there are others in higher position than he ever attained, who might be as unceremoniously left out of a job. The people may wake up to these facts.

Gold Still Going.

"It is somewhat remarkable that the treasury gold reserve is showing a slight increase gain, notwithstanding the liberal gold exports. It ran down from $155,060,000 to about $145,000,000 but is now slightly above $148,000,000. The gold exported has been nearly all taken out of the treasury, but there is a constant flow of yellow metal into the treasury, showing that our own people are no longer hoarding gold, because they are convinced that the quality of our money is to be maintained."—Minneapolis Tribune.

Is it not also remarkable that although the republicans and gold democrats loudly proclaimed to the people that gold would be plenty after McKinley was elected that it is growing scarcer among the people every day. Just after his election was assured some of the business houses attempted to restore confidence by paying out gold; but now how many farmers ever see a gold piece? A few weeks ago we happened to be present when a man offered a small foreign gold piece for sale at a bank, saying: That he had kept it for a long time but now must use it." Isn't that the case all along the line? Is not all the gold that was horded in this country fast finding its way into the hands of merchants, bankers, importers and thence being turned over to Uncle Sam for tariff on imports; on which the importers will grow rich when the new tariff law is enacted? Isn't the country now drained of gold about the most completely it ever was? Had the Bimettallists won the victory in the last election could the country be any more destitute of the yellow metal than it is?

The Tribune is correct when it says: "There is a constant flow of yellow metal in to the treasurery showing that our people are no longer hoarding gold," as we have said the flow into the treasury is to pay tariff on goods to be sold at a big profit after the tariff is raised; and the gold must come from those who have had it hoarded, others having none. How long does the Tribune think this state of affairs can keep up? How long will it be before the McKinley administration is offering U. S. bonds for sale, to secure gold with which to repeat this process? And will they, like the last administration, try to have the people think the "Greenbacks" are to blame for the whole business? It is not the "Greenbacks" so much as the "Greenhorns" who vote for such things that is to blame.

When the Tribune says: our own people are no longer hoarding gold, because they are convinced that the quality of our money is to be maintained, we think it is mistaken. People are now hoarding gold because they can't get it to hoard. It is going for tariff taxes into the treasury, and being shipped to Europe at a lively rate; It can't pay tariff; pay England and other countries; for goods and interest and be hoarded, all at once very well. There isn't enough of it.

Weighs its Words.

The Globe has taken a streak of weighing words. It is well. A good many conntry editors fall into a habit of using words that do not express what they desire to convey to their readers. If the Globe can succeed in making country editors consult dictionaries until they can fully express what they wish to say the country editors will keep the Globe supplied with texts for its editorials and thus working in harmony a mutual improvement in the reading matter of the country papers and the Globe may result, much to the edification of the readers of newspapers.

After refering to an article in the last issue of the GAZETTE the Globe says: "The Globe fully "appreciates" the proposed tariff legislation, but it does not approve it." Then why did not the Globe work with the Democrats to elect a Democratic President and leave the tariff alone? Why did it go in with the rest of the gold standard democrats, to organize a new party: the "National Democratic" party, and aid in defeating William Jennings Bryan nominated by the Democratic National Convention for president, on the regular democratic ticket, and supported by nearly all the democrats in the country? Didn't the Globe know the republicans were promising to restore the McKinley bill and prosperity?

The Globe also says: "If by 'financial' legislation the GAZETTE means revenue legislation, a tariff for revenue only, with the lowest tax on any import that would produce the largest amount of revenue is what the Globe and every democrat "hankers after". We are not aware that a bankruptcy act is financial legislation. Will the GAZETTE kindly explain how it is, if it thinks it is?"

If the Globe really hankers after a tariff for revenue only, why didn't it work with the party that advocated such a doctrine instead of striking out on a tangent when it was most needed? So far as accepting the term "financial legislation" as meaning "revenue legislation, a tariff for revenue only", the Globe is correct. But while the Globe is so particular about the weight of words it should allow us to place the Bankruptcy bill under the head of "financial legislation". If the Globe will consult Websters International Dictionary it will find definitions like these:

"FINANCIAL, Pertaining to finance.

"FINANCE, The income of a ruler or of a state; revenue, public money; sometimes the income of an individual; often used in the plural form funds; available money; resources."

We then can class the Bankruptcy bill as "financial legislation". The bill applies sometimes to the income of an individual, or sometimes to a firm, or more than one person. It comes under "financial legislation" even if you use the definition "available money; resources". The firm or individual making use of this bill is supposed to be short of funds to have libilities beyond his assets, often, or to owe more than he can pay. The bankruptcy bill, as we understand it is to stretch the money on hand to meet the occasion. To enable the man in debt to devide among his creditors the money he can raise, paying each creditor so much on the dollar of what is probably theirs, even 25 cts on the dollar or less and calling the business finished. The Bankrupt party square with the world, an honest man in the eyes of the law, if not in the eyes of the people, and his God,

It wouldn't require very much stretching of the term "financial legislation" to take the Bankruptcy bill in under the "public money" definition. The plan of contracting our money to a gold standard necessitates some safety value for some people, otherwise they must inevitably go to the wall; "bust up" for sure. And many of them, if they paid what they owed would have to live a long time and do well in business. It might then come under this head. If the Globe isn't satisfied with our explanation we would be pleased to know why.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 14, 1897.

The sugar trust controlled the republican sub-committee which drafted the amendments to the Dingley tariff bill, but all it will be able to get out of the sugar schedule will be the money that has already been made through speculation on the advance knowledge of what that schedule was to be, as a majority of the Senate have made it certain that the sugar schedule cannot be put through, by declaring themselves to be against it. The tariff bill is not likely to be taken up by the Senate on the 19th as agreed upon, but it will not be the fault of the democrats, but of the republicans in failing to get a trustworthy comparative statement showing the differences that will be the result of the proposed changes. There is another thing about the tariff bill that can be stated with certainty. There will be an anti-trust amendment adopted before the bill passes the Senate. The necessary votes are promised.

At last the administration has found out the bunco game that Spain plaid on the Cleveland administration and has been trying to play on the present one, thanks to the wide-awake reports of Consul General Fitzhug Lee, and justice is seemingly going to be done to poor Cuba. Mr. McKinley has had a long conference with the members of the Senate committee on Foreign Relations as to what will be done. The impression is that Senator Morgan's resolution for the recognition of Cuban belligerency hardly goes far enough and that recognition of independence would be the proper thing, in view of the facts forwarded by General Lee. A public mass meeting of Cuban sympathizers is going to be held in Washington Sunday.

The administration now wishes that it had not caused its intention to reinstate all ex-Union soldiers or widows of such who had for any reason been dropped from the payroll to be so widely advertised. Like most advertising this has brought results. These results are much more numerous than were expected; also more embarrassing. The plain truth is that many of the applicants for reinstatement, and some of those who have been reinstated, are unfited physically to perform the duties of the places they once held, some by reason of age and others by diseases. If there were only a few of these people they could be scattered around in the departments and their inability to do good work would go unnoticed, but when their number goes away up into the hundreds it becomes a serious matter, because as a rule every one of them reinstated displaces an efficient employe. This matter was discussed at a cabinet meeting this week.

Senator Kyle isn't the first man who has made a bad thing worse by trying to explain. Rising to a question of privilege he attempted to explain away the charge that he had agreed to vote with the republicans in exchange for good committee assignments, but he made a bad mess of it, especially in saying that his understanding of the policy of the populists was to help the republicans control the Senate.

Evidently the House has not been properly impressed with the importance of the policy of Secretary Wilson is trying to spred the sugar beet industry to this country, or it would not have refused to agree to the Senate amendment to the Sundry Civil bill, appropriating $5,000 for the continuation of the Secretary of Agriculture of an investigation of the sugar beet industry. Perhaps some of the members of the House have not forgotten the sugar fad of Mr. La. Due, who was Commissioner of Agriculture under the Hayes administration, which cost Uncle Sam considerable of money and did not revolutionize the sugar industry.

The House showed its belief in the laborer being worthy of his hire, by promptly agreeing to the Senate amendment to the Sundry Civil bill providing that duplicate electrotype plates, from which "Messages and Papers of the Presidents" were printed should be given to the compiler, Representative Richardson, of Tenn., notwithstanding the objection of Representative Connolly, Ills., who said that a firm had offered $10,000 for the plates. Inasmuch as Mr. Richardson had devoted two years to the work of compiling this book, the House thought he should be entitled to any profits there might be in supplying the book after the number ordered for Congress had been printed.

Albion W. Tourgee will not believe that pie hunting was "A Fool's Errand" in his case, as he captured a piece of pie that promises to be far more satisfying than "Making Bricks without Straw" was. He has been nominated U. S. Consul at Bordeaux, France. H. P. Cheatem, the negro Ex-Congressman from North Carolina also got a good thing in the Recordership of Deeds of the District of Columbia.

It is hoped that the Senatorial pilgrimage to the tomb of Jefferson, which Senator Hoar is credited with being responsible for, will result in a careful study of Jefferson's life and writings by the Senators. Edification is to be found therein, and some of the pilgrims need edification badly upon more than one subject.

INDEPENDENCE FARMER.

INDEPENDENCE, Minn., May 17, '97.
EDITOR BUFFALO GAZETTE.

The full time of spring is here. We have justed passed through a six months refrigerator and now have tumbled into the lap of spring. All nature seems full of life and animation. The blooming flowers scent the breezes with sweet fragrance. The birds upon the topmost branches are singing their songs of praise in chorus with the singing winds; and the whistling plow boy is happy in his own thoughts, thinking of brighter prospects and happier days in the future, "And far happier place than this; of Eden, and far happier days".

When the monotonous school hours, shall give place to the whirling bicycle and all seems happy as a merry-go-round. But contented should be he who sits under his own vine and fig tree and there is none to molest or make him afraid. Times are hard, but we should congratulate ourselves that we are not visited by any great calamity; neither have we pestilence, famine or war. Our greatest offliction now is the bicycle craze. It struck our town early in the spring in broad day light, and there was no way getting away from it unless a fellow went up in a baloon.

The bicycle craze and monkey show should go together for they are synonymous, except the bicycle rider is minus the one necessary appendage. The world will soon be going on wheels and the years in their flight will give no note of time, until man in his disobedence finds that all is lost. "Then backward, turn backward oh time in your flight", will be the cry of the millions who have only sought for pleasure frivolitly and the gods of Mammon. It is becoming a serious question now days to know who is going to pay the bills it is an old saying they that dance must pay the fiddler." But our country is mortgaged and bonded to death and the Dingly tariff bill nor any tariff bill let it be as high as the third heavens will pull the country out of the hole and give prosperity and happiness to the country.

The clouds of war are setting over the eastern world, and it would not be a surprise to hear at any time of all Europe being engaged in a great and bloddy war. It would seem that our people could learn wisdom by seeing the way other nations have gone, and check themselves in their mad career.

John Randolph once said I have found the philosopher's stone that turns everything into gold. "Pay as you go." But now days it is get trust-as you go. I am right in my perdiction, the people are getting just what they voted for last fall. Men who depend wholy upon the judgement of other people are often led astray.

As for Cleveland, who is only a back number of former days, getting the Presidency again is a thing that would not be tolerated by the common people of this country. It seems that money is the leaver that moves the world and brains is only a second consideration and hardly that.

Farmers have been very busy this spring putting in crop, clearing, fencing, etc., whereby they hope to get some remuneration for their labor to pay debts, buy necessary articles for their families and have a little ahead to enjoy life with and yet the prospect is not very flattering.

Corn and potato planting is under full headway this week.

But we are in need of a warm shower of rain to liven up things.

Electricity and the bicycle is no financial benefit to the farmer. Neither will eat hay, oats, or corn, and they have become the motive power instead of the horse but no doubt the horse has many times been willing to offer sacrefice to the inventor of the bicycle and electricity if they could only have done so, for now their groanings are not so frequent as heretofore.

The roads are quite good now and is easy going for hores and buggy or bicycle rider.

About all the necessary arangements have been made for memorial day at Maple Plain.

The christian workers convention will be held at Advent church, Armstrong last of this week.

O. R. Jenks, of Minneapolis, is expected to be there on Sunday.

There is no sick reported this week and all seem happy as a marriage bell.

Cigarette Had Set Fire to the Couch on Which He Slept.

A burning lounge, thrown from the window of 190 West Fourth street, caused considerable excitement yesterday morning. Maryin P. Sherman had gone to sleep on the lounge, smoking a cigarette. The cigarette set fire to the lounge and Sherman awoke as the fire reached his shirt. Sherman promptly threw the lounge out of the window. Officer Scannell extinguished the fire with a few pails of water. —Pioneer Press.

But, when the fact is taken into consideration that the cheapest grain now sold in that country brings $1.25 a bushel, the wonder is not that a state of famine should exist, but that any remnant of the Hindoo population should continue to have existence.

The full name of the king of Siam, who expects to pay a visit to America this year, is Phra Bat Somdetch Phra Paraminde Maha Chulalongkorn Maha Monghut Chow Yua. If he is compelled to attach this signature to all royal decrees and official documents, no wonder that he desires to take a vacation and travel. But he should avoid hotel registers and delegate the formality of recording his name to some member of his suite against whom he has a deep grudge.

The launch of the giant express steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, built by the Vulcan Steamship company in Stettin for the North German Lloyd in Bremen, took place at Bremen in the presence of the German emperor and of the civil and military provincial officials and thousands of spectators. The steamer is the largest ship in the world. It is 648 feet over all, 66 feet beam and 43 feet deep, with a displacement of 20,000 tons and a tonnage of 14,000. It can accommodate 350 first cabin, 370 second cabin and 800 steerage passengers. The crew of the new steamer will number 450.

Edison promises to produce in this country by means of the phonograph and the kinetoscope replicas of operatic or dramatic representations of the greatest European stage successes. This will revolutionize operatic matters and make easy the way of the managers. The phonograph will not be affected with tonsilitis at a time when salaries are unpaid, and the orchestra cannot go on a strike for the same reason. The audiences will be spared the jealousies of singers and the managers the humiliation which follows. Edison has promised all this, and what he promises he usually performs.

The recent revival of patriotic memories has been effective in producing societies whose membership looks back upon ancestors who offered their lives as pledges of their love of country. The Sons of the American Revolution, with 9,000 members in 36 states, has held a national congress and proposes union with the Sons of the Revolution. Then there are the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Daughters of the Revolution. The spirit of patriotism is infectious, and is strongest when handed down from sire to son. The world moves, and there are numerous witnesses of its revolutions.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

Senator Morgan (Ala.) made a statement in the United States senate on the 12th relative to his resolution on Cuba. He said the committee on foreign relations had considered the question of referring the resolution to the committee and had not reached an agreement, and the resolution went over for a day. Bills for a public building at Deadwood, S. D., to cost $200,000 and one at Indianapolis, Ind., to cost $1,500,000, and granting to Montana 50,000 acres of land in aid of an asylum for the blind were passed.

Senator Gallinger introduced a resolution in the United States senate on the 13th for an appropriation of $50,000 to relieve the Americans in distress in Cuba. The sugar investigation and the tariff bill caused some agitation. The committee on finance announced that action on the tariff measure would begin on the 24th inst. Adjourned to the 17th. In the house the Indian appropriation bill was disposed of. Mr. Castle (Cal.) introduced a joint resolution for the recognition of the belligerent rights of the Cubans. Adjourned to the 17th.

FROM WASHINGTON.

A movement to secure the adoption of a universal postal stamp by the postal congress has collapsed.

In ten months of the present fiscal year the exports of domestic merchandise exceeded those of the same period of 1896 by over $151,000,000. The imports were $66,000,000 less than for the same period last year.

CALLS FOR AID.

President Urges Congress to Relieve Americans in Cuba.

Washington, May 18.—The president on Monday sent a message to congress urging that $50,000 be appropriated, to be immediately available under the direction of the secretary of state, for the relief of destitute American citizens in Cuba. Prompt action was taken by the senate, which passed without division a resolution in accordance with the recommendation of the president.

Mr. Hitt (Ill.) introduced a similar resolution in the house, but immediate consideration was blocked by Mr. Bailey (Tex.), who insisted that an amendment be added embodying Senator Morgan's resolution for the recognition of the Cuban insurgents. Mr. Dingley (Me.) objected to the amendment, whereupon Mr. Bailey objected to the resolution and the whole matter was sidetracked.

Following is the message of the president as read in the senate:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States: Official information from our consuls in Cuba establishes the fact that a large number of American citizens in the island are in a state of destitution, suffering for want of food and medicines. This applies particularly to the rural districts of the central and eastern parts.

"The agricultural classes have been forced from their farms into the nearest towns where they are without work or money.

"The local authorities of the several towns, however kindly disposed, are unable to relieve the needs of their own people and are altogether powerless to help our citizens.

"The latest report of Consul General Lee estimates 600 to 800 Americans are without means of support. I have assured him that provision would be made at once to relieve them. To that end I recommend that congress make an appropriation of not less than $50,000 to be immediately available for use under the direction of the secretary of state.

"It is desirable that a part of the sum which may be appropriated by congress should, in the discretion of the secretary of state also be used for the transportation of American citizens who desiring to return to the United States are without means to do so.

"(Signed) WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

"Executive Mansion, May 17, 1897."

Following the reading of the message Senator Davis, of Minnesota, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, favorably reported with amendments the resolutions introduced by Senator Gallinger last Thursday appropriating $50,000 for the relief of destitute citizens of the United States in Cuba. The resolution as amended is as follows:

"Resolved, By the senate and house of representatives of the United States in congress assembled, that the sum of $50,000 be and the same is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated for the relief of destitute citizens of the United States in the island of Cuba, said money to be expended at the discretion and under the direction of the president of the United States in the purchase and furnishing of food, clothing and medicines to such citizens and for transporting to the United States such of them as so desire and who are without means to transport themselves."

Senator Davis asked for immediate consideration of the resolution and there was no objection. The only speech made was that of Senator Gallinger, who spoke briefly.

The resolution was then put on its passage and without division it passed unanimously, there being no response to the call for nays. It had taken exactly 18 minutes for the reading of the message, the presentation of the committee report and the brief speech and the final passage of the resolution.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

International Convention to Meet in San Francisco July 7 to 12.

San Francisco, May 15.—The local committee, having in charge the preliminaries for the sixteenth international Christian Endeavor convention, which will be held in this city July 7 to 12 next inclusive, is leaving no stone unturned to insure its success. Already most of the arrangements are complete except as to minor details. The programme for the convention promises to be one of the best provided. Its chief features are as follows:

The convention will open up on Wednesday night, July 7, with meetings in eight of the largest churches in this city and one meeting each in Oakland and Alameda. Thursday morning simultaneous welcome meetings will be held in Mechanics' and Woodward's pavilions. In the afternoon 20 or more churches will be used for denominational rallies. Friday morning practical addresses and open parliaments upon the fundamental principles of Christian Endeavor will be provided. The afternoon will be given up to a "school of methods" in the various churches. "Christian Endeavor fellowship" will be the general subject for Friday evening. Saturday morning the state secretaries are to be heard from in a symposium on the topic: "How may we make the committee work in local societies more effective?" This is an innovation which will furnish an opportunity for state and united society officers to speak on practical topics bearing on extension of work. There will be an open-air demonstration on Vannes avenue, after which the delegates are given an outing by the local committee. Sunday there will be three meetings of great importance—one for men only, another for women only and one for ministers and church officers. Monday will be devoted to the evangelistic and missionary influences of Christian Endeavor. The junior rally, one of the most important features of the programme, will be held in the afternoon, and the closing sessions of the convention will be held in the evening.

Murder Charged.

Chicago, May 18.—Adolph L. Luetgert, a rich sausage maker, is a prisoner in the East Chicago avenue police station on the charge of strangling his wife, boiling her body in a vat of diabolical fluid and then throwing the few remaining bones upon the red-hot steam pipes of his big factory smokehouse. This is the story of the police. Luetgert maintains a stolid indifference, and says he is innocent, but the police have woven around him a chain of circumstantial evidence which they claim will convince any jury of his guilt. The story of the alleged murder, as told by State's Attorney McEwen, Inspector Shaack, Capt. Schuettler, Sergt. Spengler and Detectives Qualey and Dean, if true, is almost without parallel in the annals of Chicago crime.

Unveiled by Austria's Emperor.

Pressburg, Hungary, May 17.—Emperor Francis Joseph, as the king of Hungary, arrived here Sunday to unveil the Maria Theresa monument. The ceremony was performed in the presence of an immense gathering, which included many of the great nobles of the kingdom and deputations from all the principal towns. The utmost enthusiasm was displayed. The king went at the head of a procession to the bill where the former kings of Hungary were crowned. This is the site of the monument, a beautiful work of art.

Reaches Port.

San Francisco, May 18.—The four-masted American ship Dirigo, owned by Arthur Sewall, 169 days out from New York and concerning which some anxiety was felt, arrived Monday night.

TO WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia's Monument to the Great American Unveiled.

Philadelphia, May 17.—Here in the city which first placed on his brow the laurel crown of achievement, the memory of George Washington, the soldier, the statesman and the man, was honored in monumental bronze Saturday.

The cord which released the saddling flags from the figure of the first ruler of the republic was drawn by its latest ruler.

It was a notable gathering, and representative of the country, including the president, the vice president and the cabinet officers; its defenders in the officers and privates of the army and navy, and its best blood, in the direct descendants of the molders and makers of the nation. Maj. William Wayne, president of the Cincinnati, who formally presented the monument to the city, traces his lineage straight to Mad Anthony, and William W. Porter, the orator of the day, is a grandson of David Rittenhouse Porter, twice governor of Pennsylvania, and a great-grandson of Gen. Andrew Porter, who was on Washington's staff in the revolution. Thus, no historic interest was wanting to stimulate enthusiasm.

The actual unveiling ceremony was impressively simple. Bishop Whitaker opened with prayer, and Maj. Wayne followed with an appropriate address. Then came the unveiling by President McKinley and the resultant clamor augmented by the national salute of 21 guns, by the artillery, and by the foreign and American war vessels in the Delaware. This concluded, President McKinley spoke briefly. The oration was then delivered by Mr. Porter. The formal presentation of the memorial by the society to the city was made by Maj. Wayne to Maj. Warwick, with short addresses by both, and then the mayor transferred it to the Fairmount park commission, which body exercises jurisdiction over the great pleasure ground.

President McKinley and his distinguished companions viewed the military parade and the crowd, which, while not looking at troops, reviewed the president and his party. The night was devoted to various phases of celebration, apart from the dinner. The wheelmen's parade, with nearly 20,000 in line, was the principal feature. Illuminations from the monument, the city hall, the Union League and other points added to the brilliancy of the jubilee, and closed the day in a veritable blaze of glory.

The parade was headed by a provisional brigade of United States troops, under command of Col. S. S. Sumner, Sixth cavalry. It included battalions of the engineer corps, Thirteenth infantry, Fourteenth artillery and a squadron of Sixth cavalry. The naval section which followed, was under the command of Capt. W. C. Wise, and included sailors and marines from the battleship Texas and monitor Terror, marines from the navy yard, Capt. de Saurne and crew of the French cruiser Fulton. Then came the First regiment, Delaware national guard, escorting Gov. Ebe W. Tunnell and staff. Gov. Hastings headed the west division, which comprised almost the entire national guard of Pennsylvania. Gov. Griggs followed with state troops from New Jersey, and the cadets from Girard and Pennsylvania military colleges closed the end of the line.

LITTLE IMPROVEMENT SHOWN.

The Commercial Situation as Viewed by Leading Agencies.

New York, May 15.—Bradstreet's says:

"The unexpected falling off in the request for staple goods within a month results in a period of comparative calm at a time when a general revival in demand had been looked for. Wholesalers report that the volume of business consists of filling in orders, even Chicago not claiming more than to have held its own in volume of goods distributed. Interior merchants continue to buy for near-by wants only, and in many directions farmers are too busy with field work to supply their wants at the country stores.

"The continued subsidence of the floods in the lower Mississippi river valley has encouraged wholesale merchants in that region; grocers report an unusually large distribution of canned goods west and southwest, and the extreme depression in pig iron prices is followed by large western purchases. Wholesale dealers announce an increased demand for groceries and hardware at Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Memphis."

R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"Speculators have enjoyed an advance in wheat, corn, cotton and some other products, though obliged to sell wool and sugar at lower figures in order to realize. Stocks have advanced 7 cents per $100, and trust stocks lost 38 cents, without enough demand to constitute a market. Imports of merchandise of $18,382,019 for the week at New York alone are 94 per cent. larger than a year ago, making the increase 47 per cent. for the past six weeks, and have affected the exchange markets and helped further shipments of gold, which amount for the past week to $2,750,000, but are practically balanced by receipts from the interior, and cause no serious apprehension of financial disturbance. Men feel that present conditions are only temporary, although they tend to prevent immediate improvement in general trade and hinder immediate investments.

"Nothing new can be said of the cotton manufacture, which still lacks demand enough to lift print cloths above the lowest point ever known, and prices of other grades of cotton do not improve. In general, the sales of cotton products are but moderate. Woolen goods are doing better than for weeks past, and yet there is not enough demand to create enthusiasm or to raise prices, while there is great uncertainty regarding the future of the market.

"Failures for the week were 264 in the United States, against 224 last year, and 31 in Canada, against 33 last year."

EX-SENATOR COKE DEAD.

The Distinguished Soldier and Statesman of Texas Passes Away.

Waco, Tex., May 14.—Ex-Senator Richard Coke died at 1:50 o'clock a. m.

[Richard Coke was born in Williamsburg, Va., March 13, 1829; was educated at William and Mary college; studied law, was admitted to the bar when 21 years of age, and has since practiced constantly when not in the public service; removed in 1850 to Waco, McLennan county, Tex., where he has since resided; served in the confederate army as private, and afterward as captain; was appointed district judge in June, 1866; was nominated by the democratic party for judge of the state supreme court in 1866, and elected, and after having occupied the position one year was removed by Gen. Sheridan as "an impediment to reconstruction;" returned to the practice of law the latter part of 1867; was elected governor of Texas in December, 1873, by a majority of 50,000, and was re-elected in February, 1876, by a majority of 102,000; resigned December 1, 1877, after having been elected the previous April to the United States senate as a democrat, to succeed Morgan C. Hamilton, republican; took his seat March 4, 1877, and was reelected in 1883 and again in 1889. His term of service expired March 3, 1895.]

The Human Body's Tireless Organs.

Man has within him a stationary engine called his heart, which, with its veins and arteries, constitutes a perfect system of hydraulics, compared with which man's best work is clumsy, intricate and wasteful. The lungs are a working bellows, the most perfect method of sanitary ventilation. The stomach is a working vat of marvelous perfection. The brain is a wondrous condenser, and the skin is a great working evaporator, with reserve automatic appliances, ready for extra work in moments of need. All these are in action at all times, day and night, tireless, unceasing, self-winding and repairing, for 70 years or more.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Petticoats.

Not by any means the least important part of the costome is the petticoat. Indeed it has come to be regarded necessary that petticoats should fit and hang well as that the gown itself should be well cut. Again and again a costume is seen which in itself is very smart, yet looks somehow exceedingly dowdy and quite lacking in style. The real reason for this is that the petticoats worn beneath it are not well cut. Women who are really in other ways neat never seem to realize how much thought and care should be bestowed upon this particular article of dress.—Chicago Tribune.

Excursion to Free Homes in the Canadian Northwest.

Those who are paying rent or carrying mortgages, or young men without prospects of getting a home where land is high in price, should note that the Canadian Government has a large area of fine farming land which it gives to persons over 18 years of age. Soil produces all staple crops. Climate similar to this. Good stock and dairy country. An excursion will leave St. Paul and Minneapolis, Monday, May 24, 1897, to examine these lands. Don't be misled about far-away places you know nothing about, but select while the chance is open a FREE FARM OF 160 ACRES, to which the railway fare is low and will not eat up a large share of your capital. It baffled the skill of physicians. For weeks I could not bear my weight on this foot. An abscess formed and was lanced and the humor broke out on my other ankle and threatened to repeat my former experience. Hood's Sarsaparilla attracted my attention and I began taking it. In six weeks I was better, and began to hope for a permanent cure. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla six months and was entirely cured. I have had no trouble with humor since that time." MRS. M. B. by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

A Sure Deliverance.

Not instantaneously, it is true, but in a short space of time, persons of a bilious habit are saved from the tortures which a disordered liver is capable of inflicting by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an anti-bilious medicine and a aperient of the first rank. The pains in the right side and through the right shoulder blade, the sick headache, nausea, constipation and saffron hue of the skin, are entirely removed by this estimable restorative of tone to the organs of secretion and digestion.

DOCTORS HAD GIVEN HER UP.

A Convincing Letter From One of Mrs. Pinkham's Admirers.

No woman can look fresh and fair who is suffering from displacement of the womb. It is ridiculous to suppose that such a difficulty can be cured by an artifical support like a pessary.

Artificial supports make matters worse, for they take away all the chance of the ligaments recovering their vigor and tone. Use strengthens; the ligaments have a work to do.

If they grow flabby and refuse to hold the womb in place, there is but one remedy, and that is to strengthen their fibres and draw the cords back into their normal condition, thus righting the position of the womb.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is designed especially for this purpose, and, taken in connection with her Sanative Wash, applied locally, will tone up the uterine system, strengthening the cords or ligaments which hold up the womb.

Any woman who suspects that she has this trouble—and she will know it by a dragging weight in the lower abdomen, irritability of the bladder and rectum, great fatigue in walking, and leucorrhœa—should promptly commence the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If the case is stubborn, write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn., Mass., stating freely all symptoms. You will receive a prompt letter of advice free of charge. All letters are read and answered by women only. The following letter relates to an unusually severe case of displacement of the womb, which was cured by the Pinkham remedies. Surely it is convincing:

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier cured me when the doctors had given me up. I had spent hundreds of dollars searching for a cure, but found little or no relief until I began the Pinkham remedies. I had falling and displacement of the womb so badly that for two years I could not walk across the floor. I also had profuse menstruation, kidney, liver, and stomach trouble. The doctors said my case was hopeless. I had taken only four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and one of the Blood Purifier when I felt like a new person. I am now cured, much to the surprise of my friends, for they all gave me up to die. Now many of my lady friends are using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound through my recommendation, and are regaining health. It has also cured my little son of kidney trouble. I would advise every suffering woman in the land to write to Mrs. Pinkham for aid."—MRS. EMMA PANGBORN, Alanson, Mich.

THAT OLD STONE HOUSE.

The old stone house, with its mosses gray,
Where I played in childhood, gay and free,
And dreamed many happy hours away,
Is to me a bright, sweet memory.

I stood near a creek whose blithesome song
With dreamy music filled all the air,
As it rolled and danced and gamboled along
Through the meadows with blooming clover fair.

It commanded a view more wide and grand,
Of orchard and field and wood and stream,
Than any farmstead in the land
That borrows naught from a boyish dream.

And the voices of bees and frogs and birds,
All blending a strange, glad harmony,
With the gentle lowing of he browsing herds,
Thrill me still as a lingering melody.

And the faces of those who made it home,
With smiles of affection so tender and true,
I cherish most fondly wherever I roam
As the fairest sights that ever I knew.

Oh, that old stone house, so mossy and gray,
With all that it was and once enshrined,
Has cheered for me oft life's rugged way,
As I called its vanished charms to mind.
—A. S. Brendle, in Good Housekeeping.

FORGIVEN.

Dusk was beginning to fall, and as I looked around over the long level of marshland that surrounded us, and saw no sign of our party, I felt the first thrill of a not pleasant uneasiness. I glanced at my companion. She was walking contentedly by my side, apparently secure in the assumption that I knew my way. As a matter of fact, I had the gravest doubt about it, and there seemed no possibility of making sure. For miles on either hand the marshes stretched to the low horizon; the dry tracks were few and ill-defined, and already a light white mist was rising over the numerous straight waterways. I looked at Miss Pascoe again, and my uneasiness gave place to a kind of expectant pleasure. Even supposing we were lost, there was no actual danger, and the great sense of solitude that hung about us gave me a feeling of possession that was keenly delightful. Miss Pascoe, unconscious of my doubtful cogitations, still walked on as though her feet were upon a familiar road; and indeed, as far as I could judge, we were making in the right direction. To have stopped would have been like a confession of incompetence on my part, and this, to an unavowed lover, was out of the question, at any rate until circumstances unquestionably had me at a disadvantage. So we went on, and the twilight deepened, and the mist trailed in denser wisps across the shivering reed beds.

Suddenly she turned to me.

"What a queer place this would be to get lost in!" she said.

I think the serious possibility of such a think had not occurred to her at all. She threw out the remark merely as a contribution to a flagging conversation.

"Yes," I said. "But you are not afraid, are you?"

"O, no, not at all. Of course, you know the way, and that makes all the difference."

"Of course it does," I answered, with a glimmering sense of shame.

"How far are we from home now?" she asked, after a pause, in which the darkness had perceptibly increased.

"Three miles, I dare say," I said, at a blind hazard.

"That's nothing," she said; "I thought we must be quite four."

"Are you sure you're not tired?" I asked. "Wouldn't you like to rest?"

But she persisted in walking on at that swinging pace of hers.

"Even if I wanted to rest there's nothing to rest on," she said.

"I'm sure I could find a fence somewhere," I said.

"I don't believe you could," she said, "but I'm not going to let you try. I'd much rather get home."

We walked on silently for another five minutes, and then Miss Pascoe stopped and listened, leaning forward slightly, with her hair blowing about her face.

"Is that the sea?" she asked.

It was the sea, unmistakably; the slow roll mingled with the rustle of the wind over the rushes. And then it became quite obvious to me that I had woefully gone astray, for the sea was before us instead of almost at our backs.

"It must be the sea," I said, after a show of hard listening.

"But it shouldn't be there," she said.

"Why not?" I answered, rather feebly, in order to gain time. "It always has been there, I suppose."

"Don't be foolish," she said; "you know what I mean. We must have got on the wrong path. Mr. Thirlmere," she cried, "how could you have been so careless?"

"My dear Miss Pascoe," I said, "if I have made a mistake, I am very sorry."

"And you said all along that you knew the way," she pouted, trying to shoot condemnation from her eyes at me in the darkness.

"You see," I said, "I got my directions from your brother—from Jim—and he's often so very inaccurate, isn't he?"

"Absurdly inaccurate," she admitted. "If I'd known you were relying upon Jim I wouldn't have come at all."

"And then I should have missed the most delightful walk I ever had."

She turned away from me a little, with a petulant movement of the shoulders that pleased me mightily.

"I wish we had Jim here," she said, with petty fierceness.

"I don't!" I said.

"Then perhaps you'll be good enough to find the right path. We can't stay here."

"There don't seem to be any conveniences for camping out," I said. "Will you stay here for a moment, while I explore to the right? I may get up to my knees in the marsh. You will be safer here."

"Don't be long, will you?" she said.

"O, no," I said, cheerfully; "I shall find the path in no time."

I started off, carefully exploring the ground before me with my stick as I went. There was no sign of a path, and I began to be seriously alarmed for Miss Pascoe's comfort. On consideration I came to the conclusion that I had made rather an ass of myself. Another hundred yards, and still no path. I paused and looked back. I could see a slight, dark figure moving towards me very carefully and slowly.

"Is that you?" I said.

Miss Pascoe's voice answered: "Yes; I'd rather come with you if you don't mind. When you left me I felt so lonely that I was almost afraid."

"I am more sorry than I can tell you," I said, "to have got you into such an awkward fix. Pick your way very carefully. Ah!" She had stepped with one foot into a patch of wet moss.

"Take my hand," I said; "it is quite firm where I am standing. Will you ever forgive me for this?" She took my outstretched hand, and I guided her to safety. But because the danger might be renewed at any moment, I still retained my hold of her slim fingers, and we went forward together in that pleasant, companionable way.

"Don't talk to me about forgiveness until you have found the path and made restitution," she said. My fingers tightened upon hers instinctively, partly because it was so pleasant to have them resting so unreservedly in my hand, and partly because her voice was very low and without any hint of disapproval in it.

"For myself," I said, "I cannot pretend to be sorry for this adventure. For your sake, of course I am; but it has been so pleasant to have you to myself for so long that when we hit upon the path I shall be almost in despair!"

"We haven't hit upon it yet!" she said. The ground under our feet seemed quite firm by this time. The moon was just rising, swimming upwards through the low-lying vapor in a wide luminous circle of misty silver. Right above us a star or two blinked.

"I suppose," I said, striking a match to look at my watch, "that the second dinner bell has rung by this time. In another hour there will be a hue and cry after us." I was sorry for this a moment later, because in order to strike my match I had to relinquish her hand. We had both paused and read the face of the watch together in the flickering light. Then it was blown out by a gust of wind and blank darkness succeeded. I possessed myself of her hand again.

"Well," she said, "shall we go on?"

"If you like," I said.

"I suppose we ought to," she said.

"It would be rather fun to let them find us here, wouldn't it?" I said. "Think how pretty the lanterns would look, coming glinting over the marshes."

"But they might miss us," she said, turning her face quickly towards me. I saw the gleam of her eyes and the oval shadow of her face, and all at once I realized that there was only one thing I could do at that precise moment in my life. I stooped down and kissed her.

"Forgive me for that as well, if you can," I said. It means that I love you. I suppose now I have trespassed beyond all hope?"

For a moment she was quite still, and I cursed myself for such blind precipitation; but the circumstances and the time and place had all forced me to this inevitable result.

"You think," she said, after this pause, "that you may as well pile up all your offenses at once and be forgiven or condemned on all counts at one time?"

"Precisely," I said; "I am entirely in your hands."

"I will forgive you," she said, very sweetly, "when you have found the path."

"It's a bargain, then," I said. I took a step forward and brought my foot sharply against something white that stood a few inches above the ground.

"Why," I cried, bending to examine it, "this must be the broken post that Jim told me to look out for. What a close observer your brother is! This is the path that leads straight for home."

"You knew it all the time," she said, reproachfully.

"No," I said, "I assure you that I had no idea of it. We shall be in just as the rescue party is preparing to set out." I turned to her and held out my hands. "I claim your forgiveness," I said.

And she forgave me. — Black and White.

The Best Reward.

The best reward of heroism is grateful appreciation. As a lesson in composition, the school children of a western city were bidden to write letters addressed to the veterans of the army, expressing what each child felt toward them. The result was a series of childish epistles which surprised the teachers by their genuine appreciation and understanding, as well as by the patriotic feeling implied in their expressions of gratitude. The letters remained in the superintendent's hands, and somehow the veterans of the Soldiers' home heard of the matter. For many days afterward feeble and aged men, in the old uniform, came to the superintendent, begging to be allowed to read the letters of the children—a request never to be refused; and with tears rolling down their cheeks, they stood pouring over the pages on which, in unformed and curiously-spelled sentences, warm childish hearts had set down their love and gratitude. More than one veteran offered to pay "anything wanted" for one of these letters. "It is worth all we have been through," said another. The little incident was a revelation to many, who realized, is if for the first time, how precious was the sense of being still the objects of a living gratitude.—Youth's Companion.

New Protection from Bullets.

The committee of the Federal Shooting association of Switzerland, while target-shooting at Winterthur recently, noticed that targets at the left side of the range received a majority of bullets to the left of the bull's-eye, while the reverse was the case on the other side of the range. Some quick-witted member of the committee suggested that this apparent deflection of the missiles might be due to the electric telephone wires which chanced to be strung on each side of the range. The experimental committee found that all projectiles that had been deflected from their course were magnetized. The theory of electrical action being thus supported, experiments were undertaken to put the question to a final test. The conclusion was reached that it would be feasible to protect an entire section of troops from hostile rifle fire at a distance of 300 yards by means of an electric current generated by a dynamo or accumulator at one side; and that at 900 to 1,400 yards even artillery would be thus rendered harmless.—San Francisco Argonaut.

THE TERMS OF PEACE.

Sultan Demands Among Other Things Cession of Thessaly.

A War Indemnity of $50,000,000 Will Be Asked—Greeks at Domokos Sustain a Crushing Defeat.

Constantinople, May 17.—The porte has replied officially to the note of the powers and declines to agree to an armistice until the following conditions are accepted: The annexation of Thessaly, an indemnity of £10,000,000 Turkish, and the abolition of the capitulations. The porte proposes that plenipotentiaries of the powers should meet at Pharsalos to discuss the terms of peace, and declares that if these conditions are declined the Turkish army will continue to advance. The demand for the annexation of Thessaly is based upon the fact that the province was originally ceded to Greece on the advice of the powers with the object of ending brigandage and Greek incursions into Ottoman territory, the porte believing at the time that the cession would attain these objects, but the recent incursions of Greek bands and the events immediately preceding the war have proved to the contrary. This is the substance of the reply.

Another Demand.

London, May 17.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Constantinople says the porte's reply demands in its concluding paragraph an extradition treaty with Greece, and that the ports of Polo and Prevesa be kept open for vessels carrying food supplies to the Turkish troops.

Turks Give Up Prevesa.

Athens, May 17.—A private dispatch from Arta, just received here, says that the Turkish garrison at Prevesa, at the northern entrance of the Gulf of Arta, which has been besieged by the Greek land and sea forces almost from the outbreak of the war, has sent the Greek archbishop and five notabilities of Prevesa to the commander of the besieging Greek army with a message saying that the Turkish force is ready to capitulate to the regular forces of Greece.

THE FALL OF DOMOKOS.

Greeks Sustain Another Crushing Defeat at Hands of the Turks.

London, May 18.—The Turks have captured Domokos, after one of the fiercest battles of modern times. About 90,000 troops were engaged. The fighting continued from noon until nine o'clock Monday evening. Reports thus far received are from Greek sources only, but it is feared that the left wing of Prince Constantine's army has been destroyed.

London, May 18.—The Daily Telegraph's special correspondent with the Turkish forces in Thessaly says: Edhem Pasha has moved on from point to point and finally occupied Domokos. The Greeks have sustained a crushing defeat.

Says Turks Were Repulsed.

Athens, May 18. — Dispatches sent from Domokos say that the Greek left wing has fallen back toward the center before thrice the number of Turks. The battle continued after sunset, but, despite the yielding of the left wing, the Turks were finally repulsed. Gen. Mavromichalis was wounded.

A Foolish Move.

London, May 18.—The latest news from the seat of hostilities, by way of Athens, shows that the battle Monday ceased about nine o'clock in the evening, but will probably be resumed this morning. Thus far no account of the fighting has been received from the Turkish side. It is evident from the Greek account that the Greeks have suffered a serious defeat, and if the left wing has given way, as appears probable, Edhem Pasha may be able to cut off Greek retreat and separate Gen. Smolenski, at Sourpi, from the main army.

This is Edhem Pasha's reply to the foolish attempt of Col. Manos to snatch victory in Epirus. If Greece had prevented Manos from playing this last card of a gambler, Turkey might perhaps have ceased hostilities. As it is now, she is in full possession of Thessaly, and the powers will find the task of protecting Greece more difficult than ever.

The dispatches from Athens represent the populace as astounded when the news of the fighting came. They had hoped to the last that the powers would prevent Turkey from going further. One report represents the Greek government as threatening to take extreme and desperate steps unless Europe arrests the progress of the invaders.

FLEW THROUGH THE AIR.

Short But Successful Trip of Prof. Barnard's Airship.

Nashville, Tenn., May 15.—After much difficulty in getting off Thursday afternoon at seven o'clock Prof. Barnard attempted another voyage with his airship. It soared aloft rapidly, and as Prof. Barnard vigorously worked the bicycle pedals of his steering and propelling attachment the airship turned around several times, but was drifting with the wind. It passed over the centennial grounds, floated rapidly across the city at a high altitude in a northeasterly direction and passed out of sight in the gathering twilight. At about 7:45 o'clock p. m. the machine landed near Madison, about 12 miles east of this city. Prof. Barnard says of this trial trip: "I find that I can manipulate the machine right or left even in a light wind. This is certain. I can go directly against a wind of eight miles an hour with muscular power as at present arranged, but by cutting across obliquely I can make progress in the direction desired." Further trips with changes in apparatus will be made.

Ball Players Arrested.

Cleveland, O., May 17. — The police made good their promise to prevent Sunday baseball in Cleveland if an attempt was made to play Sunday. At the end of the first inning between the Cleveland and Washington teams all the players on both sides and Umpire Tim Hurst was arrested. President Robison gave bail for the prisoners and they were released. Over 10,000 persons were in attendance. These were given the option of receiving their money back or accepting coupons for to-day's game.

Irish Jurist Dead.

Dublin, May 17.—Rt. Hon. Robert Barry, lord justice of appeal for Ireland since 1883, who as solicitor-general for Ireland conducted the Fenian prosecution of 1868, is dead. He was born in 1825.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

The Farmers Win.

A decision has been made in what are known as the Russell Sage lands, in which the farmers living on the lands have won. The cases decided were in the nature of a test, and will doubtless be carried up. The especial cases decided are those of E. A. Waller and S. J. Larson as defendants, for 120 acres in one and 40 in the other.

Some 50 farmers living on these lands were in Morris, called by the cases. They have been living on what is known as indemnity lands and have had undisputed possession for from seven to twenty-seven years. The lands were on the Hastings and Dakota land grant and the road lost its rights by passing into other hands, but seeks to recover by Russell Sage, and has attempted to oust the settlers.

A Case in Point.

W. A. Gates, of the state board of corrections and charities, has already an illustration of the careless methods which have prevailed in this state about committing the insane to the state institutions, without proper inquiry as to their residence. The relatives of John Henkel, of Colby, Wis., have been inquiring for him, because he left home some weeks ago, and had not since been heard from. He was found at the Rochester asylum, in this state. Mr. Gates will have the case investigated, and it is likely that the authorities of his own state will be required to look after him.

An Extension.

The interior department wired the land office at Crookston granting an extension of one year in which the Red Lake reservation settlers and entrymen who date prior to June 10, '96, may make the first payment on the land. Reports from the pine region in Beltrami county state that destructive fires are raging south of Red Lake. Several townships on the Clearwater and Sandy rivers have been devastated. The fire is still raging and trouble is increased by exceedingly hot, dry weather.

Killed by an Explosion.

The boiler in the Bock saw mill, located five miles above Milaca, blew up, killing James Caulfield and seriously injuring Frank Benoit and William Vinson. Caulfield was at work in the lumber yard, 50 yards away from the boiler, when the accident happened. The boiler had been condemned and four engineers refused to run it, but finally one, Herman Prieduch, of New Ulm, was induced to run it. George Bock, Jr., had charge of the mill at the time. The coroner is investigating the case.

Unable to Help.

Mrs. Fred Miller, residing on the fourth floor of a block in St. Paul, was about to leap from the window to save her son from burning to death, when she was prevented by her husband. The boy had caught fire from a bonfire which he had started in the rear of the block, and the mother, seeing his danger, was about to leap from the window when prevented. The mother then fainted. The boy was terribly burned and it is thought that his injuries will prove fatal.

Struck a Babe.

Passenger train No. 6, of the Omaha, struck Baby Sheffler, near Jordan, and the child will die or be crippled for life. This train was approaching the station of Jordan when the engineer noticed the little girl on the track. It was too late to stop the train, but the engineer did the best he could. The child was thrown a considerable distance by the cow catcher. She was living when the general officials received the last report regarding her. Baby Scheffler is a year old.

Ten Tons Per Day.

Orders for prison made binder twine are coming in at a rapid rate, and the orders booked aggregate 100 car loads. The prison will be able to supply about 4,000,000 pounds this season, and with the object in view of supplying as much as possible the machines are operated 12½ hours a day, giving them an output of 20,000 pounds daily.

News in Brief.

Wm. H. Jarvis, a market gardener of St. Paul, committed suicide by blowing his brains out.

The firm of Foley Brothers & Gutherie, railroad contractors at St. Cloud, has dissolved.

Michael Uram shot and fatally wounded Frank Pasco in the St. Louis yards in South Minneapolis. The cause of the trouble is unknown.

Minnesota ex-prisoners of war will meet regularly in St. Paul and Minneapolis on alternate months.

William H. Kelly, of Owatonna, is now the owner of the largest and best bred herd of Guernsey cattle in the Northwest, having purchased ex-Gov. Merriam's famous herd, which has been owned by Col. Liggett, of the state experimental farm, and more recently by the late Fred C. Pillsbury.

State Printer Whitney is looking over the proof for the forthcoming volume of state laws. It will probably be bound and ready for distribution by July 1.

A young son of J. DeBord, of Fort Ripley, while playing near a bonfire, was badly burned.

Charles and Eureka Borremann, parents of the young girl driven to suicide at Duluth, were indicted for manslaughter, but the indictment was quashed.

Another disastrous accident was barely prevented on the Selby avenue cable at St. Paul. A grip car and two trailers were nearly up the incline, when the draw bar and draw head connecting them broke, and the trailers and passengers started down the hill. Brakeman Cavanangh applied the wedge brakes, and stopped the car on the middle of the hill.

James A. Shannon, of Duluth, won first place in the competitive examination for the West Point cadetship in the Sixth congressional district. His general average was 97. Iver M. Ingebretsen, St. Cloud, is alternate. His average was 92.

C. O. Bjor, general merchant at Battle Lake, shot himself at his home, placing a gun at his forehead and blowing the top of his head off. He leaves a wife and eight children in comfortable circumstances. He was a prominent business man and chairman of the local school board.

One evening at Duluth a young girl jumped off the rocky shore at Twenty-first avenue east and deliberately walked out until the cold waters of the lake covered her. The body was recovered later, but there was no means of identifying her, and there is nothing to suggest the cause.

A SCIENTIST SAVED.

President Barnaby, of Hartsville College, Survives a Serious Illness Through the Aid of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

From the Republican, Columbus, Ind.

The Hartsville College, situated at Hartsville, Indiana, was founded years ago in the interest of the United Brethren Church, when the state was mostly a wilderness, and colleges were scarce. The college is well known throughout the country, former students having gone into all parts of the world.

PROF. ALVIN P. BARNABY.

A reporter recently called at this famous seat of learning and was shown into the room of the President, Prof. Alvin P. Barnaby. When last seen by the reporter Prof. Barnaby was in delicate health. To-day he was apparently in the best of health. In response to an inquiry the professor said:

"Oh, yes, I am much better than for some time. I am now in perfect health; but my recovery was brought about in rather a peculiar way."

"Tell me about it," said the reporter.

"Well, to begin at the beginning," said the professor, "I studied too hard when at school, endeavoring to educate myself for the professions. After completing the common course I came here, and graduated from the theological course. I entered the ministry and accepted the charge of a United Brethren Church at a small place in Kent County, Mich. Being of an ambitious nature, I applied myself diligently to my work and studies. In time I noticed that my health was failing. My trouble was indigestion, and this with other troubles brought on nervousness.

"My physician prescribed for me for some time, and advised me to take a change of climate. I did as requested and was somewhat improved. Soon after I came here as a professor in physics and chemistry, and later was financial agent of this college. The change agreed with me, and for awhile my health was better, but my duties were heavy, and again I found my trouble returning. This time it was more severe and in the winter I became completely prostrated. I tried various medicines and different physicians. Finally I was able to return to my duties. Last spring I was elected president of the college. Again I had considerable work, and the trouble, which had not been entirely cured, began to affect me, and last fall I collapsed. I had different doctors, but none did me any good. Professor Bowman, who is professor of natural science, told me of his experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and urged me to give them a trial, because they had benefited him in a similar case, and I concluded to try them.

"The first box helped me, and the second gave great relief, such as I had never experienced from the treatment of any physician. After using six boxes of the medicine I was entirely cured. To-day I am perfectly well. I feel better and stronger than for years. I certainly recommend this medicine."

To allay all doubt Prof. Barnaby cheerfully made an affidavit before
LYMAN J. SCUDDER, Notary Public.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk, or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

Bits of Useful Information for the Housekeeper.

The handsome and graceful baskets that may have been received filled with bonbons as a gift may be converted into beautiful flower holders by lining the empty basket with a fitted piece of waterproof cloth on a thin painted cloth and sewing it closely around the edge of the basket. Fill it with wet sand and stick the sand full of blossoms.

Rubber plants require to be nourished, and if a tablespoonful of castor oil is occasionally poured into a little trench made around the stalk and covered with earth it will be found very beneficial to the plant. And do not neglect to give the leaves a frequent sponge bath of milk and water. With such care the plant will be able to send out new leaves during the winter season as well as in the summer months.

The odor from the heating of a new iron vessel is very unpleasant, and it may be avoided in this manner: Place the kettle in the yard at a safe distance from anything inflammable and put into it a cloth saturated with kerosene; drop a lighted match upon the cloth and let the oil burn out. When the kettle is again cold wash it in a solution of strong soda water. After this treatment the vessel may be used in the house without any disagreeable odors.

Among the floral decorations at a recent English wedding, instead of a marriage bell a number of smaller bells of various sizes were hung together The bells were made of white blossoms with a small orange suspended by a white satin ribbon for the clapper. These bells were hung from an arch made of green foliage plants. A flight of white birds was another new feature among the decorations. Many of the birds were suspended by invisible wires, and one or two of them were resting upon the mounds of flowers or the handles of ribbon-trimmed baskets of blossoms.

When using dates for an after dinner sweet, after the pit has been removed, instead of filling with chopped nut meats, set in a row of peanut meats and call them "peas in the pod."—N. Y. Sun.

Easily Settled.

When the dyaks of Borneo have to decide between two disputants, they give to each the same sized lump of salt. These lumps are dropped into water, and he whose lump is dissolved first is decided to be in the wrong. Or they put two live shell fish on a plate—one for each litigant—and squeeze lime juice over them. The verdict is given according to which man's fish stirs first. An English traveler remarks gravely that the result is usually as accurate as the judgment of civilized courts.—Golden Days.

The Difference.

The veteran actor said: "Oh, yes, indeed, you certainly are quite mistaken in thinking there is no practical difference between the romantic drama and the realistic drama. Yes. Now, to illustrate, I have been hero in both, and in both have I gathered the heroine to my bosom. In the romantic drama a celluloid bosom went; in the realistic drama nothing but linen would go for a minute."—Detroit Journal.

Nothing makes a man so mad as for you to keep cool when he is abusing you.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

—The late "Oliver Optic" once wrote a play for his son-in-law, Sol Smith Russell, but it didn't seem to strike the popular fancy.

—Among the new chevaliers of the Legion of Honor are two Americans, W. T. Donnat, the painter, and John Wanamaker's son, Rodman.

—John Biddulph Martin, the London banker who married Mrs. Victoria Woodhull, died lately at Las Palmas, in the Canary isles, of pneumonia.

—Princess Marie von Hohenlohe, wife of the imperial chancellor of Germany, performed the notable feat of killing a bear while hunting on her estates in Russia. The princess is 68 years old.

—Mr. Hanna has more mail than any other two men in congress, and he never receives a letter that is not answered courteously, concisely and completely. Mr. Hanna's mail is averaging considerable over 200 letters a day.

—Roscoe Conkling Bruce, son of ex-Senator Blanche K. Bruce, of Mississippi, is a student at Phillips Exeter academy, in New Hampshire, and made a striking impression in the chapel the other day by his rendering of Blaine's oration on Garfield.

Why the Warehouse Bill Should Pass.

For a number of years the tendency in prices of grain has been downward and the intermediate charges on grain between the producer and the consumer in the way of commissions have become of more and more importance to the producer. The reduction of such charges to a minimum has become an absolute necessity. The reduction has come about naturally through active competition by dealers in a half dozen cities which are reaching out for the grain business of the west. The public warehouses have been a most important factor in furnishing to the farmers of Illinois a broad and active market. This has been done without interfering with the business of the country grain merchants. A system has been developed which has proved entirely satisfactory to the country at large, but apparently is not satisfactory to a little coterie of dealers on the Chicago Board of Trade. This coterie has attacked the proprietors of public elevators on every possible ground and has denied them the right in common with other grain merchants to buy and sell grain. The public warehousemen for years have dealt in grain and the competition stimulated by their position in the trade has been most beneficial to the interests of the farmer. While the custom of warehousemen dealing in grain has been established by custom the Illinois statutes are silent as to their rights and powers. The bill now in the legislature clearly defines their rights and meets any objection which could be raised to their acting in the capacity of grain merchants and warehousemen at the same time. The proposed legislation is in the interests of the producers of grain throughout the state and should be enacted. The opposition comes from the Chicago Board of Trade people who have been persistently fighting the elevator interests for years. They have raised the cry of monopoly and are attempting to discredit the warehouse bills. They have made the most reckless assertions as to the prospective results under the proposed law, while the fact is that the law does not contemplate any new order of things, but simply a continuation of the system which is familiar to the state at large. The people leading the attack on the bill are singularly inconsistent. Their objection to a warehouseman dealing in grain is that he is placed in a position to discriminate between himself and other owners of grain stored in his warehouse to the prejudice of the other owners. This objection is fully met by the section which provides for supervision of the warehouse business by the state. The Chicago Board of Trade less than two years ago made a demand on the warehousemen for just such supervision as is now contemplated, but which could not be granted without a change in the state laws.

A THOUGHT THAT KILLED A MAN!

He thought that he could trifle with disease. He was run down in health, felt tired and worn out, complained of dizziness, biliousness, backaches and headaches. His liver and kidneys were out of order. He thought to get well by dosing himself with cheap remedies. And then came the ending. He fell a victim to Bright's disease! The money he ought to have invested in a safe, reliable remedy went for a tombstone.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, MAY 21, 1897.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—Henry Base has bought the Hackebele farm of C. M. Conzet for $2,300.

—C. M. Conzet has one more nice House and good lot for sale at a bargains.

—G. F. Herman has manufactured a fine counter for Casper Janikula's new saloon.

—If proper police regulations were enforced our village wouldn't see so many plain, ordinary everyday drunks on the street.

—The stock markets appear to be working well. Some fine hogs are sold here and the number seems to increase rather than diminish.

—Hay is much more plenty now than last fall. With a prospect of a fine crop soon, old hay is a drug in the market and has been sold for $3.00 per ton.

—Delano is getting to be quite a center for speakers. Prof. Hawker is to orate at Maple Plain, and F. H. Lindsley at Watertown on Memorial Day.

—F. E. Lockhart of the late Ingram & Lockhart firm of Minneapolis has gone in partnership with G. W. Carver, bear after will turn off the highest grade of work.

—M. J. Stone, Mat Tompers' successor in business is more than holding Mat's old customers who like to have their horses well shod. He does a neat job and does it quick too.

—TomO'Shantar's auld gray mare, or some other white horse went through our steets at a pace altogether to lively for compliance with the Village ordinance on wednesday evening. Some say Pat McNeeley, of Woodland, held the reins.

—The Town Supervisors viewed several bridges in the south part of town Monday, and have concluded to repair damages occasioned by high water. Read their "Notice to Contractors" in another column if you are a bridge builder.

—Through mistake, Miss Gates, the Grammar school teacher, tells us, the name of Miss Addie Wittman was omitted from the list of pupils of that department. Miss Addie's name should have been written there; with an * denoting perfect deportment, and 99 for average standing. This is too good a record to be omitted.

—Several parties have learned that there is a restaurant, on Bridge St. where people can get a good square meal and be treated decently so long as they behave themselves properly. Every place in Delano is not a saloon and will not be run by intoxicating liquors even though they are obliged to pay for the privelege of preserving the peace.

—A new epidemic has sprung up in Delano. The name of it is "Tar". It affects mostely very young children who swallow chunks of tar brought home from about new buildings by their older brothers and sisters. The little fellows get quite sick vomiting and trying to get rid of the tar. Two families had their first experience Wednesday night each called a physician.

—Rev. Nugent, of Watertown preached Sunday evening at the Catholic church from the text found in Isaiah, Chapt. 62. verse 6, "I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, which shall never hold their peace day nor night; ye that make mention of the LORD, keep not silence". He is a very earnest and eloquent speaker, and pleads his cause well. He preaches next Sunday evening on The Infallibility of the Church. His sermons are in English and are quite a treat to the English speaking portion of the audience.

—A law passed by the Legislature this winter and which went into effect May 14, makes it a punishable offense to sell give or furnish cigarettes, cigars or tobacco in any form to any person under 18 years of age, or to any minor pupil in any school. The fine not to exceed 50 dollars or imprisonment not to exceed 30 days for each offense.

Any person under 18, or any minor pupil who shall smoke or use cigarettes cigars or tobacco in any form on any public highway, street, alley park or other lands used for public purposes, or in any public places of business, shall be arrested by an officer of the law, who may be cognizance of such offense. And no person shall harbor such users of tobacco. Read the law supplement.

—The Justice Court improved a little after our last write up. The Justice and one attorney managed to worry through a couple of hours session without smoking. The other lawyer, a few of the spectators and one witness made considerable of a "smudge". Keep on gentleman after awile the court may grow to have a little dignity. But not very much so long as four cigars and and two old pipes are allowed to run full blast while a young lady, hems, and hawks, while she waits her turn to testify. If lady witnesses don't wish to be made sick by so much tobacco fumes we don't think the law nor public sentiment would oblige them to go into such a place. In fact we think any lady ought, for her own self respect, to refuse to be brought into a court room so full of tobacco smoke as to sicken her. Public sentiment wants justice admmistered free of smoke.

—The Grammar department of the Delano High School under Miss Gates' direction had a fine outing at Lake Rebecca last Saturday.

—The graduating clafs of the Delano High School have arranged with Rev. J. L. Farber to preach the Baccalaureate serman, at the City Hall on Sunday evening, May 28. The other graduating exercises will follow in a few days.

—Unless you wish to sit up all night and call a doctor don't allow the baby to eat the tar the children bring home from the buildings being built. The owner of the buildings bought the tar to make roofs to their buildings. It would be better to let them keep it for that purpose.

—Most of Delano's new brick buildings have passed the half way stage of construction and may now be said to be drawing to the finishing touches. Schaffer's will be the largest and finest. It is solid brick, 25x80 feet, two stories high. Geo. P. will sell goods on the first floor. John Lohmiller will occupy the second floor as a residence, and it will be one of the most comfortable in town.

—The examination of F. A. Cramer, charged with bastardy, by Miss Edna Cooper, is being held in the council room to day. Attorneys Pidgeon and Lindsley for state: Billings and Culkin for defendant. The trial will doubtless be a hard fought one. Justice Frazee presides, and only a couple of smokers were seen sadly chewing the end of cigars. Maybe our halls of justice will be respected a little more than a plain everyday saloon after a little, there is certainly an improvement.

LATER.—The case was dismissed.

—The Health Officer submitted a report to the Village Council on Monday evening recommending that in the interest of the health and welfair of the citizens steps be taken to

1. Have all alleys cleaned and drained.
2. Have all swills and slops removed from the village limits.
3. Provide a suitable dumping ground.
4. Have all privies put where they belong and made as healthy as possible.
5. Provide for keeping down weeds.

The report was on vote unaminously accepted.

—The entertainment given in the City Hall for the benefit of the Band was a success. New suits are ordered, to be here soon.

More than twenty years' practice in answering the questions of inventors and owners of patents have given C. A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C. remarkable facility in this line as may be seen from a little book they have sent us, and which they will send free to any address. In this pamphlet, they have anticipated and answered about every question inventors have invented, and that is saying a good deal.

County Cullings.

Mrs. Topping, we understand will take charge of the Waverly Tribune. Success to her efforts.

One of the new laws passed by the Legislature last winter makes it obligatory on the judges of elections to see that the flag floats over the polling place on registration and election days and unless the judges of election make oath that the flag did so float they can't draw any pay as judges of such election. Look over the new laws.

On Sunday morning people were startled by the news of the murder near Howard Lake, of W. T. Boxell and wife. Mr. Boxell had been a widower for a short time and at the age of about 67 years recently married a young women of 19, against the wishes of his large family. They lived on a farm with two sons of Mr. B's. Bob 18 and George 13. The boys were away fishing when the murder was done. The doors were locked and Mrs. Boxell was found in her bedroom. Mr. B. in the road a few rods from the house. Evidence of a terrible struggle were all about, and both had been fearfully mangled with an old ax. The coroner's jury gave a verdict of murder by parties unknown. The County Attorney and Sheriff are trying to find the murderes.

Some of the papers are making a great cry for a reward to be offered to catch the murders of Mr. and Mrs. Boxell we have officers on purpose to attend to that business. A reward wont catch them. Too large a reward would be a temptation to evil disposed parties to try and convict the wrong men for the sake of the money. Officers who would neglect or difer to make arrests until a big reward is offered are clearly unfit for such positions, and others who could only be tempted by great personal gain to tell what they know about such an affair would hardly be believed.

Wright County people in discussing the recent appointments to political preferment in our county seldom fail to connect Jim Hill and the Courts, and legislature in a mystical way. And in discussions one may here such expressions as "Wright county courts have been very corrupt," "Bribes must have been given", "It was a surprise to everybody how the case went", "One man hung the jury", "It was a put up job", "No man has any show against the railroad". Honest people don't wish to have anything to do with such courts. They should rid themselves of such stigma. But instead of doing so one hears that the "Great Northern seems to be running everything", Howard should not have had a change of venue", "Wendell and Dodge were as guilty as Howard", "They should have had their trial and have been convicted or acquited". "Tarbox showed a weak feather when he failed to try the cases of Dodge and Wendell", "Pigeon was Wendell's partner", "Culkin got a new Judicial district made", "Tarbox was made judge because of his catering to the G. N.", Pidgeon succeeded to the position of the County Attorney and now the G. N. cases will not be brought up here". Comments of such kinds heard promiscuously among citizens of the county are not pleasant. If there is no truth in them they should be stopped, by having those accused tried instead of having their cases put off from time to time on technicalities. People don't like living in such corruption as appears on the surface to exist somewhere. If there has been bribery it should be punished, and those who have been suspicioned of assisting in the business, or in covering up its tracks should be set right before the people, and not systematically advanced to places of profit and trust, where the finger of scorn is extended at them, rather than the feeling of respect due such officers. Our county should be, and the majority of the people wish it, among the first in the state in honor. The citizens do not wish to live under clouds of this kind. The putting off of the trial of Howard, charged with bribery, and the releasing without trial of his associates who were indicted, and the elevation to higher positions, by appointment, not election, of those connected with the case don't tend to clear the moral atmosphere at all, but makes it much more murky even than before. There is not apt to be a better feeling about the matter until Howard is convicted or proven innocent of the charges against him. We are unacquainted with the man, so have no particular interest in his case more than that of any other stranger, so far as he is concerned, except as the settling of his case will tend to throw the X rays onto some of our Wright County citizens and let their neighbors know where they rightly belong. If they are knowingly assisting in covering up wrong they should be exposed. If they are innocent it is but justice to them and to the county to blow away the cloud of suspicion that has so long hovered over some of them. Let justice be done.

THE Connecticut House of Representatives passed a bill the other day by a vote of 191 to 2, requiring a person to be able to read the Constitution of the United States in the English language before becoming a voter in that state.

MINNESOTA should have an official reporter at Washington to tell us officially how our Senators and Representatives vote on important measures, and how they conduct themselves generally and not befuddled the minds of the voters, as several reports do.

EUGENE V. DEBS is said to be working up a scheme to take 100,000 men overland to Utah, to colonize them. They are to go from Chicago. He evidently counts on securing mates from the Mormans who are supposed to have more than their share.

THE vote on the Morgan bill declaring Cuba in a state of warfare shows that Senator Davis voted for it while Senator Nelson was opposed to it, being paired with Senator Vest of Mo. who favored the bill. Other papers claim Nelson voted for the bill.

THE more countries adopt the gold standard the more silver depreciates in value; or the more gold appreciates in value. Yet the republicans tell us that if the United States adopted a bimetallic system it would not raise the price of silver. It is a poor rule that won't work both ways.

IT is said an Indiana banker's friends is trying to get him out of jail, where he is confined on a charge of forgery, embezzlement and willful misappropriation of the bank's funds because he was forced to the act in order to save the name of his father. He don't seem to have saved his father's name, as the item don't even give it nor his own. Why not call the crime a plain steal and punish the criminal, if he is one, as he should be punished. Better be honest even though the bank does bust.

BEDES' BUDGET say's: "Country banks are full of farmers' money and they don't know what to do with it." If it is so why are banks breaking: paying a percentage on the dollar? In some cases less than fifty cent dollar Jadam and others referred to last fall?

Again, if farmers have enough money to fill the banks why don't they pay their debts with it? Does it look reasonable that farmers should pile pile money up in banks and let their creditors wait all these years, when banks are breaking every day? Hardly, Jadam; hardly.

Criminal Negligence.

The St. Cloud Times gives an account of a boiler explosion, in Mille Lacs county where one man was killed and several badly injured. The Coroner's jury is said to have brought in a verdict censuring Bock Bros as owners, G. A. Avery, foreman, and Herman Freitag, as engineer, for negligence in said matter. The paper goes for the state boiler inspector law, as it is claimed a man was around and agreed to give a certificate when $5.00 was deposited. There are several old boilers about Delano, have certificates been given, and are the boilers safe to use?

Bankruptcy Bill for Rich.

During the last campaign Republican politicians told us, often, that the creditor class of the people were the laborers. The firms always owed them several days, or several week's wages; this, taking the country over was a very large amount. In fact they would have us believe that most of the money of our country belonged to the poor people, even when the poor man got a few dollars ahead he loaned it to a rich neighbor and drew interest on it. This kind of argument went well with some. People who knew better, would rush around trying to make themselves and others believe that the laborers were really the capitalists of the country! Men without a dollar to their name in any bank, mortgage, or other money making investment, or even cash enough in their pockets to buy a weeks provision; with no work to do, would electioneer for McKinley and "sound" money or a gold standard, claiming it would be best for them.

It was useless, usually, where one was struck with the idea to try to talk him out of it then. But now how is this line of argument to help win the passage of a bankruptcy bill; allowing corporations, firms, or individuals who have employed a large number of laborers, and stood them off for their pay for week's, until the whole amount is really quite a sum, to close their office, suspend payment, go into bankruptcy; and pay off their men at 25 cts. or 10 cts. on the dollar. Why, a fifty cent silver dollar would be better than that.

According to the argument used last fall the larborers are the creditors, the creditors have to take what they can get, under the bankruptcy law, and must receipt in full, releasing the employer from all obligation to them. And them the boss can start up new again owing no man a dollar, and, if the laborer has a few dollars in the bank he finds its doors closed, and he must whack up with some lawyer to get anything, and then take what the bank figures out they can pay; or what the receiver gives them.

Among our Exchanges.

Wabasha Democrat: The Minneapolis Evening Press under its new management shows more vigor if not more sense.

Brainerd Journal: St. Paul is to have a new crematory. This is not an institution for making butter, but for burning the dead.

Duluth Herald: There is a rumor that Senator Fuller of Morrison county is to be appointed receiver of the Duluth land office when Mr. Ryan's term expires. Senator Culkin has been selected by Congressman Morris as Register Taylor's successor. Perhaps some other Sixth distric senator may be made collector.

Waseca Herald: An exchange says it is a notable fact that there is a very striking similarity between the McKinley badges now worn to the Cleveland badges that were worn a year ago: the only apparent difference being that they are somewhat larger, the texture of the goods are a little thinner, and that it takes a longer coat tail to hide them.

New York World: The Republicans are in supreme control of the national Goverment. They have had ample opportunity to try their hand, but prosperity has not come, nor do we see any sign of it's coming, and we cannot even see the shadow of it under the far horizon. Meanwhile the silver sentiment is steadily growing and strenghtening and the figure of Bryan as the man of 1900 looms larger and larger.

Is it Real "Ile"?

Word comes from Maple Lake, forty miles out on the Soo road, that oil has been discovered in that place, and that the town is very much excited in consequence. The discovery was made by a grocer of the town, who attempted to make an excavation for a cellar. The hole filled up with water, on the top of which was a substance which looked like oil. An investigation will be made.—Pioneer Press.

Read Good Papers.

When you are convinced that a paper is dishonest and deceitful, stop it. When convinced that it is unclean, stop it. When it lacks enterprise and fails to give you the news, stop it. But dont stop a paper that you believe to be honest, courageous, enterprising and clean simple because its editor has written his own sincere views instead of yours or somebody else's; for if you do, you are putting a premium on insincere journalism and serving notice on an editor that the way to succeed is to write what he thinks will best please his reader, instead of what he honestly believes to be the truth.—Springfield, Mass., Republican.

Is Iowa Republican?

The Ida Grove, (Iowa) Era has the above question for a headline to an article in which it says the Des Moines Register claimes Iowa Republican, by from 50,000 to a 100,000 this fall. The Era cautions republicans to not to be too sure. It says it is an off year, when all do not turn out to vote, two thirds of stay-at-homes are republicans, the silverites will be united; "many sound money democrats who were with us last fall on state issues. What's the use of deceiving ourselves? We may as well look the matter squarely in the face and go to work with a full realization of the danger before us. No republican cares a fig for the enrolements that success may bring, as compaired to the loss of prestidge and apparent repudiation of the republican policy that defeat would mean. It must not be allowed, but a little over confidence in our strength would do it. There it goes again "confidence", one while the people are suffering from a "lack of confidence" now the G. O. P. is in danger in Iowa from "over confidence".

RULES AND REGULATIONS —FOR THE—
Water Works and Electric Light Plant —OF THE—
VILLAGE of DELANO
Wright County, Minn.

AN ORDINANCE establishing rules and regulations for the Water Works and Electric Light Plant of the Village of Delano, Wright County, Minn.

The Village Council of Delano do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. That from and after the first day of July, A. D. 1897, the rules and regulations herein contained shall be and remain in force and govern the Water-works and Electric Light Plant owned and operated by the Village of Delano, Wright County, Minnesota.

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR WATER.

SEC. 2. The rules, regulations and water rates herein contained shall be considered a part of the contract with every person, company or corporation who is supplied with water through the water system of the Village of Delano and every such person, company or corporation by taking water shall be considered to express his or their assent to be bound thereby, and whenever any of them are violated, or such others as the village council may hereafter adopt, the water shall be cut off from the building or place of such violation, and shall not be let on again except by order of Common Council, and upon the payment of a fine of one dollar for shutting it off and putting it on; and where any such violation of rules shall occur, and the offender shall not comply with the rules for letting on the water again, all sums previously paid as water rents and remaining unexpended shall be and are hereby declared forfeited to said village.

SEC. 3. Every person desiring a supply of water must make application in writing therefor to the Common Council of the Village of Delano or a committee thereof duly appointed. The application must state truly and fully all the uses to which the water is to be applied, and no different or additional use will be allowed, except by subsequent arrangement therefor.

SEC. 4. All rents except for meters and building purposes are payable semi-annually in advance, on the first days of July and January in each year, and the fractional parts of the current six months pro rata to these dates. Patrons beginning to take water by meter shall pay the fractional part of the rent therefor pro rata, on the first of the month succeeding such beginning, and thereafter the rent shall fall due on the last day of each succeeding month. Rents for building purposes shall accompany the application. Ten per cent penalty will be added if the water rents are not paid within ten days after they shall become due, and if not paid within fifteen days after the same fell due, in that case the water shall be shut off and the service discontinued and the same shall not be renewed until a fine of one dollar is paid together with the full payment of all rents and fines past due. Water rents shall be paid to the Village Recorder who shall collect and recept for same.

SEC. 5. Water shall not be turned into any service pipe, except upon the order of the Common Council or a committee thereof duly appointed, nor until the applicant shall have paid the rent due for the current term. This provision does not apply where water is used by meter service. This rule shall not be construed to prevent any plumber admitting water to test pipes.

SEC. 6. Water tenants may permit others to use water from their pipes, upon being shown a permit for the same from the Common Council.

SEC. 7. The Village Council shall have the right to order a meter to be applied to any service pipe, whenever they may deem it advisable and collect meter rates for water so used thereafter.

SEC. 8. All persons using water shall keep the hydrant, tap, water closet, urinals, baths and other fixtures closed except when obtaining water for use. All water closets must be self closing.

SEC. 9. All persons taking water shall keep their own service pipes, stop cocks and apparatus in good repair, and it is expressly stipulated by the Village Council that no claim shall be made against the village or its officers by reason of breaking of any service pipe or cock, or if from any cause the supply of water should fail, or from damage arising from shutting off water to repair mains, making extensions or connections, or for any other purpose that may be deemed necessary.

SEC. 10. Every person taking water supplied through the water system of the village shall permit the Common Council, or a duly appointed committee thereof, at all hours of the day between 7 o'clock a. m. and 6 o'clock p. m. to enter upon their premises or buildings to examine the pipes and fixtures and the manner in which the water is used, and they must at all times frankly and without concealment answer all questions put to them relative to its consumption.

SEC. 11. Water for fountains and sprinkling yards, gardens, streets and sidewalks shall be used only from the first day of May to the first day of November, and between the hours of 6 o'clock a. m. and 10 p. m. If allowed to run at other hours it will be shut off without notice. Hose larger than three-quarter inch will not be permitted. In no case shall it be used without a nozzle or sprinkler, and the nozzle shall not exceed one-quarter inch in diameter.

SEC. 12. Upon an alarm of fire and while the fire pressure is on the mains, the use of water by all persons is prohibited, except only for protection against fire.

SEC. 13. No person shall make any excavation in any street or highway for the purpose of laying water pipe, or tap any water service pipe, or make any changes or extensions of service pipe upon private premises, without written permission from the common council.

Applicants for water will be charged from the city main to the city shut off for all service pipe, and tapping, without regard to the location of the mains. Water mains will not be tapped for service pipe to be used on premises fronting the mains. No one will be allowed to tap the mains except the official plumber, and no tap larger than three-fourths inch will be allowed except by permission of the Council.

ANNUAL WATER RATES.

Sec. 14. No connection will be made with the street mains for less than an annual rent of five dollars.

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

Sec. 15. The rules, regulations and electric light rates hereinafter contained shall be considered a part of the contract with every person, company or corporation who is or shall be supplied with electric lights through the electric light system owned by the Village of Delano and every such person by taking or using electric lights shall be considered to express his or their assent to be bound thereby, and whenever any of them are violated, or such others as the village council may hereafter adopt, the electric lights shall be disconnected from the system, in the building or place of such violation, and the electric lights therein shall not be again connected with the electric light system except upon order of the Common Council of said village and upon the payment of a fine of one dollar together with the full payment of all rents that may have been in arrears at the date when the lights were disconnected from said system. And when any such violation of the rules and regulations governing the use of electric lights shall occur, and the offender shall not comply with the rules and regulations for the use thereof and electric light rents have been prepaid and remain unearned, the same shall be and are hereby declared forfeited to the said Village.

Sec. 16. No person, company or corporation shall be permitted to use any electric lights without first making application to the Common Council of said village and obtaining a permit.

Sec. 17. Every person obtaining a permit to use said lights shall agree to conform to and abide by the rules and regulations adopted or hereafter to be adopted by the said Common Council.

Sec. 18. All connections with the electric light wires shall be made by and under the supervision of the electrician employed by the village council, and all inside wiring shall be done by or under his supervision.

Sec. 19. Said electrician shall be allowed at all proper times to examine the lights and inside wiring in all private buildings, to ascertain the condition thereof and to make necessary repairs.

Sec. 20. Persons applying for lights and inside wiring shall agree to use the same at least one year after said lights are put in and are in running order, and in all cases patrons will be charged for the full number of lights contracted for, until the same are duly removed upon written notice from the patron served upon the Common Council or a committee duly appointed. In no case will patrons be allowed to use electric lights during the winter months and then discontinue the same or any part thereof during the remainder of the year but in all cases patrons are required to continue the use of all their lights throughout the entire year. Provided however in case patrons discontinue any of their lights and again apply to resume the service, then in that case, patrons shall pay two dollars for each and every light replaced for replacing the same in addition to the usual rents.

Sec. 21. The following rates are established, and shall continue in force until changed by the Common Council.

Sec. 22. For lights the following scale or rates is fixed, and the consumer shall pay:

For 1	Light	60	cents	each	per	month
" 2	"	58	"	"	"	"
" 3	"	55	"	"	"	"
" 4	"	53	"	"	"	"
" 5 or 6	"	50	"	"	"	"
" 7, 8 or 9	"	48	"	"	"	"
" 10 or more	"	45	"	"	"	"

When necessary to renew lamps the same shall be furnished patrons by the village except in case of breakage.

Sec. 23. Consumers using and contracting to use the lights to nine thirty only, will be given a discount of 10 per cent on the foregoing rates with the privilege of useing the lights without limits on Saturday nights. Consumers using lights under this provision will be held strictly to the terms thereof. In case of the violation thereof full rates will be charged. It is expressly understood that the electric light service in residences is hereby excluded from the provision of this section. Patrons using lights at their place of business and residence, will be entitled to the rate covering the total number of lights and if they contract for the nine thirty rate at their place of business they will be entitled to the ten percent discount on the lights at said places of business as herein provided.

Sec. 24. Patrons installing meters shall do so and maintain the same at their own expense including lamps and fixtures and the wireing of their building from main and when installed shall own the same. When necessary to renew lamps the same shall be furnished patrons by the village except in case of breakage. The expense of wireing their building and installing meters shall be charged to patrons at actual cost, all meters to be sealed by the city engineer and remain under his charge, and the seal shall not be broken or taken off, or the meter opened, except, by, or under his direction.

Sec. 25. The rate for meter service shall be twelve cents per one thousand Watt hours.

Sec. 26. All rents and charges for electric lights shall become due and payable on the first of each month, and if not paid within ten days after due a penalty of twenty percent shall be added, and in case the said rents and charges are not paid including penalty on or before fifteen days after the same fell due, then in that case the lights shall be taken out and the service discontinued, and the same shall not be renewed until a fine of one dollar is paid together with the full payment of the rents up to and including the day when the lights were actually taken out and the service discontinued.

Patrons beginning to take lights shall pay the fractional part of the rent therefor pro rata, on the first of the month succeeding such beginning.

All rents and penalties shall be paid to the Village Recorder who shall collect and receipt for the same.

Sec. 27. All ordinances and parts thereof inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

Adopted May 27, 1897.

J. E. BORSCH, President Village Council.

Vermont's governor adds to his salary of $1,500 by tapping 45,000 maple trees and marketing 12,000 pounds of sugar annually. There is no need to talk up forestry to that governor.

A company has been formed in Maine to make silk from spruce trees. If the woods are to furnish the world with fine wearing apparel as well as paper, the cause of forestry should receive increased attention.

By the narrow majority of 479 votes in a total of 32,000 Toronto has voted to have its street cars run on Sunday for the next three years. This odd election is held every three years, but the last two decided against the Sunday cars.

A poem has been sent in, opening as follows:

"One little foot, so small it can nestle
In one caressing hand."

After a careful reading, and the other foot not showing up, the poem, says the Minneapolis Journal, is held pending an investigation by the police reporter.

American manufacturers, encouraged by the fact that paper railroad rails have been successfully introduced in Germany and Russia, are experimenting along the same lines. Paper car wheels have given satisfaction for many years, and results so far attained indicate that rails made from the same material will be equally desirable.

Secretary Long has perfected his plan for laying up naval vessels not actually needed at this time, and the necessary orders have been issued. The war ships will be gradually retired from active service, but will always be ready in case of an emergency, while a sufficient number of smaller ships will be kept in commission to perform every duty required of the navy in times of peace.

A paper at Union Point, Ga., says: "A girl in this place says her mother has promised to give her $1,000 if she will get married and keep quiet about the whole affair until it is over. The young lady herself offers to give $500 of the amount to the gentleman who will take her. Step up, boys; she's all right, and pretty as a peach." Has Cupid been driven into the brokerage business in Georgia?

Dr. J. Mount Bleyer, of New York, has invented an instrument for photographing sound vibrations in the atmosphere. He considers the invention of equal importance with the discovery of the Roentgen rays. Dr. Bleyer was associated with Mr. Edison in perfecting the phonograph, and it was then that he conceived the idea of recording the vibrations of the human voice by means of photography.

April made another good showing in the matter of fire losses. The aggregate for the United States and Canada is reported at $10,833,000, against $12,010,600 for 1896 and $11,018,150 for 1895. The totals for four months ended with April were: 1897, $42,062,400; 1896, $47,620,300; 1895, $49,513,250. This is a steady progression downward, with more than $5,000,000 less in 1897 than in 1896. May the good work go on. The country can well afford to reduce the size of its annual ash heap.

With what rapidity the "boys of 1861" are passing away is shown by the report and estimate prepared by Col. Ainsworth, chief of the record and pension office of the war department. There are now 1,095,628 survivors of the soldiers of the civil war, and Col. Ainsworth estimates that the number in 1900 will be but 999,939; in 1905, 820,687; in 1910, 626,231; in 1920, 251,727; in 1930, 37,033; in 1940, 340, and in 1950, none. The debt which the nation is paying its defenders in the form of pensions will be lessened in like ratio.

It was a significant statement made by President Clark, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, in speaking of the success of the third rail electric system. "Our locomotives," said he, "may go into the scrap heap, as the old stage coaches had to go." There seems very little doubt that steam locomotives will ultimately have to go. They may not be immediately discarded, for stagecoaches were used many years after the first railroads were built. But improvement is the order of the age, and the locomotives, which have so well served their purpose, will be superseded by something better.

Justice Stephen J. Field has completed a service of thirty-four years on the supreme bench of the United States. He was appointed and commissioned the 10th of March, 1863, but took the oath of office and entered upon his duties on the 20th of May following, his father's eighty-second birthday. He has thus served a longer period than anyone who has sat on the bench since it was organized, except Chief Justice Marshall alone, who served thirty-four years, five months and six days. Mr. Justice Story's term was the next longest, being thirty-three years, nine months and twenty-two days.

The present emperor and empress of Austria during their reign have met with a singular succession of family tragedies. Maximilian, the emperor's brother, was executed in Mexico, and his wife, Carlotta, lost her reason. Prince Rudolph, the only son of the Austrian emperor, committed suicide, and the crown will pass to the emperor's brother. Duchesse d'Alencon, sister of the empress, was burned to death in the Paris fire in the charity bazar. Before her marriage the empress was considered the most beautiful princess in Europe, but afflictions have told heavily on her health and spirits.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

Senator Foraker submitted to the United States senate on the 19th copies of correspondence Letween Secretary Olney and the Spanish minister of foreign affairs a year ago, in which this government proposed to Spain the use of our good offices in bringing about peace in Cuba, with continued Spanish sovereignty, a proffer which Spain rejected. Senator Foraker said that names of consuls making reports were withheld because of the danger of massacre. Discussion of the resolution to grant belligerency to the Cuban insurgents occupied nearly the whole session. A bill was passed regulating the pay of noncommissioned officers of the army after July 1, 1898, as follows: Sergeant major, quartermaster sergeant and first sergeant, $30 each per month; sergeant, 23; corporal, $17.

The United States senate on the 20th passed the joint resolution recognizing the belligerency of the Cuban insurgents by a vote of 41 to 14. Adjourned to the 24th. In the house the resolution appropriating $50,000 for the relief of American citizens was adopted without a dissenting vote. The democrats endeavored to force consideration also of the Morgan resolution for recognition of the belligerency of the insurgents and they accused the republicans of endeavoring to evade this issue, but Mr. Hitt made the important statement that the republicans desired not to embarrass negotiations which were being projected to secure the independence of Cuba.

BELLIGERENT RIGHTS.

Senate Recognizes a State of War in Cuba.

President's Relief Measure Goes Through and Is Signed—Capt. Gen. Weyler Angry at Action of United States.

Washington, May 21.—The long and exciting debate on the joint resolution, recognizing the existence of a state of war in Cuba and declaring that strict neutrality shall be maintained by the United States, passed the senate by the decisive vote of 41 to 14 at a late hour Thursday afternoon. The resolution as passed is as follows:

"Resolved, That a condition of public war exists between the government of Spain and the government proclaimed and for some time maintained by force of arms by the people of Cuba, and that the United States of America shall maintain a strict neutrality between the contending parties, according to each all the rights of belligerents in the ports and territory of the United States."

The vote on the final passage of the resolution was as follows:

Yeas—Bacon, Baker, Bate, Berry, Butler, Carter, Chandler, Chilton, Clarke, Clay, Cockrell, Cullom, Davis, Deboe, Foraker, Gallinger, Gorman, Hansbrough, Harris (Kan.), Heitfeld, Jones (Ark.), Kenney, Lindsay, McBride, Mantle, Mason, Mills, Morgan, Nelson, Pasco, Pettigrew, Pettus, Pritchard, Rawlins, Shoup, Stewart, Thurston, Tillman, Turner, Turpie, Walthall—41.

Nays—Allison, Burrows, Caffery, Fairbanks, Gear, Hale, Hanna, Hawley, Hoar, Spooner, Wellington, Wetmore, White and Wilson—14.

In the House.

Washington, May 21.—Cuban affairs furnished the house with a day of bitter partisan debate. The resolution appropriating $50,000 for the relief of American citizens was adopted without a dissenting vote, but the democrats endeavored to force consideration also of the Morgan resolution for recognition of the belligerency of the insurgents. They accused the republicans of endeavoring to evade this issue, but the dominant party, through its spokesman, Mr. Hitt (Ill.), made the important statement that the republicans desired not to embarrass negotiations which were being projected by President McKinley to secure the independence of Cuba.

Relief Bill Signed.

Washington, May 25.—The resolution appropriating $50,000 for the relief of distressed American citizens in Cuba reached the white house at 12:30 o'clock Monday, just as soon as it could be sent up after being signed in both houses while they were in open session. The president signed the resolution immediately, and will proceed at once to consult with the officers of the state department respecting the adoption of measures of relief in addition to those taken last week, when Consul General Lee was authorized to draw upon the state department for $10,000 for the procurement of immediate supplies.

CHARGES HYPOCRISY.

Weyler Looks Upon Relief Measure as a Piece of Impertinence.

New York, May 24.—A dispatch to the Journal from Cienfuegos, Cuba, says: In an interview Capt. Gen. Weyler, upon his arrival here from Placetas, in reference to Senator Morgan's Cuban resolution said:

"I am not surprised at the action thus far taken, nor shall I be if the house concurs in the senate resolution and sends it to the president. Your jingoes are in the saddle and evidently bent upon forcing the country in some foreign complications in order to distract attention from the fast approaching internal crisis.

"The few scattering bands of Cuban dynamiters, railroad wreckers, horse and cattle thieves, plantation burners and highwaymen now in the field here, who hold no port and possess no seat of civil government, have no right to expect recognition. Such distinction at President McKinley's hands, issued in the face of my own proclamation officially declaring the greater part of the island to be already pacified, would hold the Washington executive up to the ridicule of European powers and prompt a healthy outburst of sympathy for the Spanish cause, especially from neighboring old world governments also possessing colonies in the West Indies.

"In brief, recognition may aid the Cuban junta in placing a few bonds in the United States, but will at the same time assure the successful issue of our proposed new Spanish loan in Paris, London and Vienna and enable us to carry on the war with renewed vigor.

Will Be Glad of Recognition.

"Personally, I shall be glad. If recognition comes, our position will then be more clearly defined. It will work a virtual abrogation of our special treaty with the United States, place Yankees residing in Cuba in an identical position before the courts with other foreign residents, and I shall be troubled less by the constant complaints and often ridiculous demands from American consuls.

"It would also relieve the Spanish government of all responsibility for the destruction of foreign property not actually within the line of Spanish defenses and further simplify matters by assuring us the right to board and search American vessels whenever suspected.

Calls Us Hypocrites.

"For one I shall heartily rejoice that the emptiness and hypocrisy of the United States government's reiterated professions of friendship shall be finally unmasked. I have always had little confidence in the sincerity of its assertions. Each new declaration from Washington calculated to throw our marine officials engaged in patroling the Cuban coast off their guard, has invariably been followed by the departure of some new Cuban fillbuster from an American port with arms and munitions for our enemy."

Continuing, the captain general expressed delight at the proposition to have consuls here to furnish free transportation to all Americans who desire to return to the United States, but he said he considered the plan to distribute food to resident Americans as an indirect and unjustified attempt to interfere in local affairs.

Find Death in Play.

Chicago, May 24. — A rude raft of boards on which six small boys were navigating in Mud lake—a wide expanse of water in the south branch of the Chicago river just west of the Ashland avenue bridge—was the cause of a fatality in which five of the little fellows lost their lives. The boy who precipitated the fright, but whose advice and example, if followed in time, would have saved all the lads, was the only one who escaped drowning. He is John Honis, nine years old, living at 543 West Twenty-first street. The other five boys became panic-stricken after young Honis jumped from the frail craft in shallow water, calling upon them to do likewise, and they finally leaped into the river where the channel is deep and were all drowned. The victims are: Frank Quinn, aged 10; Charles Coates, aged 11; James Coates, his brother, aged 8; Charles and Albert Svec, twin brothers, aged 9.

Gen. Horatio King Dead.

Washington, May 21.—Gen. Horatio King, who was postmaster-general during a portion of Buchanan's administration, died in this city at 8:20 o'clock in the morning.

THE PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

Dr. Jackson, Moderator, Is Given a Gavel by Ex-President Harrison.

Winona Assembly, Eagle Lake, Ind., May 21.—Alternate rain and sunshine greeted the opening of the one hundred and ninth general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America. At the hour appointed for the opening session the platform was occupied by a long line of commissioners waiting to be assigned to permanent seats. This feature, by which delegations were seated together, was an innovation. Fifteen minutes late the assembly was opened with prayer by Dr. Arthur J. Brown, secretary of the board of foreign missions. The devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. John L. Withrow, the retiring moderator.

There were but two candidates for the moderatorship, Dr. Sheldon Jackson, the home missionary, and Dr. Henry C. Minton, the seminary professor. Both represent the work of the church on the Pacific coast, but the rank and file of the commissioners rallied to the standard-bearer of the home missions. The politicians of the assembly were treated to a great surprise, and the election of Dr. Jackson by a vote of 313 to 238 was characterized by many delegates as a "breaking of the machine." It was a victory for the more liberal branch of the church, and was in line with the election of Dr. Withrow last year.

Eagle Lake, Ind., May 25.—At Monday's session of the Presbyterian general assembly plans were submitted for retrenchment in home mission work.

At the afternoon session, Hon. John A. Wanamaker in a brief speech reminded the assembly of the celebration of the seventy-eighth anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria, and said that, inasmuch as the compact between Scotland and Ireland embraces the Westminster confession of faith, and her majesty attends the Presbyterian church while residing in Scotland, and in some measure belongs to the body from whom all her Scottish chaplains are appointed, it seemed meet that some notice should be taken of her birthday at this particular time, when the English nation celebrates her diamond jubilee. He offered a resolution, which the assembly adopted by a rising vote and ordered sent to the queen. It is as follows:

"This day being the seventy-eighth anniversary of the birth and sixtieth anniversary of the coronation of her most gracious majesty, Queen Victoria, whose reign has lasted longer than that of any other monarch in the last thousand years, this general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America deems it fitting and does hereby send most cordial Christian greetings to both the illustrious Christian sovereign and the subjects of her gentle, generous and righteous rule over the destinies of an empire upon which the sun never sets."

The afternoon session was devoted mainly to discussion of the committee reports on the Presbyterian building in New York. No action was taken, the matter going over to another session under head of unfinished business.

USED THEIR FISTS.

Illinois Legislators Indulge in a Disgraceful Scene.

Springfield, Ill., May 21.—Around the speaker's desk in the house a fierce battle raged Thursday afternoon. It began in a riot of noise from obstructionists and ended in a free-for-all fight among the representatives. Respect for the chair was forgotten, decency was ignored and the stormiest scene witnessed in many years resulted. Republicans dragged democrats from the speaker's platform and fought with them on the floor of the house. An inkstand was hurled at Speaker Curtis and stopped by Representative Patrick J. Meany, who was struck in the face by it. Bill files were smashed in pounding the desks, coats were torn to pieces and waste baskets were flung across the house. Desperate fighting would have resulted but for the action of coolheaded democrats, including Messrs. Farrell, O'Donnell, Morris, Craig and McGoorty.

The riot lasted an hour and a quarter and began over the refusal of the speaker to recognize Representative Novak and the determination of the latter to be heard. Mr. Novak wanted recognition in order to make a motion to recall to second reading for amendment the revenue bill providing for supervisors of assessments. This is the measure prepared by the Chicago real estate board. The roar of the angry men and the pounding of the desks could be heard in the Leland hotel, six blocks away.

REMEMBER THE QUEEN.

Appropriate Observances of Victoria's Seventy-Eighth Birthday.

London, May 25.—The birthday of Queen Victoria, who was born May 24, 1819, was observed with the usual artillery salutes, the ringing of church bells and reviews at the different naval and military stations. The London celebration will take place to-day.

Washington, May 25. — The president sent a cable message to Queen Victoria congratulating her on the celebration of her seventy-eighth birthday.

Windsor, Ont., May 25.—Many residents of the "other side" were among the crowds of Canadians who celebrated the queen's birthday here Monday. The Queen's Own infantry regiment from Toronto, and the Essex fusileers made an imposing turnout in the parade, and the patrol steamer Petrel was present and assisted in the celebration. In the afternoon there was a review of the troops of Walkerville and outdoor sports at the racing park. The day ended with band concerts and fireworks.

Ottawa, Ont., May 25. — The anniversary of Queen Victoria's birth was observed generally throughout Canada Monday. In Ottawa a state dinner and reception was given by Lord and Lady Aberdeen in honor of the day. The announcement of the birthday honors by the queen has been postponed until jubilee week.

Noted Swimmer Dies.

Stockton, Cal., May 24. — Charles Cavill, the Australian champion swimmer, who recently swam around the seal rocks at the Cliff house and across Golden gate, was drowned while swimming in Jackson's baths here. He was trying to beat his record of five minutes and five seconds under water. It is believed by some that Cavill was asphyxiated and not drowned. Cavill had an inverted tube in the water which he used to deceive the public in his exhibitions of remaining under water several minutes. The water in the Stockton baths comes from natural gas wells, and it is believed gas had accumulated in the tube, causing his death. Examination shows his lungs free from water.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Good Sales.

The second sales day of the Minneapolis Dairy Board of Trade was even more of a success than was the first day, which surprised both buyers and sellers. Three hundred and five tubs of "separator extra"—the only brand of butter sold on the board—were listed, aggregating in all 18,300 pounds, 236 tubs of which were sold, in all about 14,160 pounds, while 50 tubs did not reach the limit asked by the creamery offering it. Secretary Fred O. Tilton stated that he knew that the rate would be accepted by the creamery. The rate offered was 13 cents, the buyers being the Minneapolis Cold Storage company and E. P. Stacy & Sons.

Dairy and Food Laws.

The state dairy and food department is getting out a pamphlet containing all of the laws relating to that department. The new laws of the late session are given, together with amendments to old laws. The dairy and food people now have four new classes of work. In addition to looking out for skim milk cheese, and seeing that it is properly tagged, they must inspect food jellies, spices and linseed oil. Very little skim cheese is on the Minnesota market, the commissioner says, and there is no filled cheese in the state.

Southwestern G. A. R.

For the encampment of the southwestern Minnesota division of the G. A. R., to be held at Redwood Falls June 16, 17 and 18, the railroads within a radius of 100 miles have made a rate of one and one-third fare. The encampment grounds are being placed in the best of condition and connected with the city water system. Among the notables to be present is Colonel Samuel McPhail, the eccentric old Indian fighter and founder of Redwood Falls. He is now upwards of 70 years of age, and resides in Lincoln county.

Crowded at St. Peter.

H. H. Hart, secretary of the state board of corrections and charities, has been inspecting the insane asylum at St. Peter, to look into the condition of the hospital as to overcrowding. Seventy patients are now sleeping upon the floor, and into one ward which is capable of accommodating six, it has been necessary to crowd 24. He says that even when 50 of the patients are removed to Fergus Falls, the wards will contain at least 20 beyond the maximum capacity.

The City Loses.

Judges Baxter and Searle have handed down a decision in suits whereby the city of Little Falls attempted to annul contracts with its electric and water company upon the ground that it practically created a monopoly and that the contracting council had no power to limit the legislative authority of their successors. The court squarely holds that the contracts cannot be set aside.

Minnesota Butter to England.

Through the efforts of the United States department of agriculture American butter is being rapidly introduced into England. The next shipment to Europe will contain 1,000 pounds of butter from the Star Lake Creamery at Strout, and as this is practically the first sample of the north star state's product yet exported to Britain, it is looked upon as an event of no small importance by northwestern dairymen.

News in Brief.

James Nolan, of St. Paul, blew out his brains because of despondency over the loss of $690 which he had deposited in the Minnesota Savings bank. He had been janitor of the bank. He leaves a wife.

The men employed at Betcher's lumber mills at Red Wing went on a strike for higher wages, A few went back later.

Daniel Manning, a trusty at the St. Cloud reformatory, who made his escape three weeks ago, has been caught in Iowa and brought back. He will now have to begin serving his time over again.

Alfred S. Kittson, trustee of the Minnesota Savings bank of St. Paul, has been indicted for using money belonging to the bank.

The German Soldiers' society of Winona is arranging to give a celebration on Sunday, the Fourth of July, and have invited other German societies to join.

In a suit brought by Mrs. Anna Tarras against the city of Winona for $5,000 damages by reason of her horse throwing her off an unfenced city highway into a ditch last December, the jury returned a verdict for $3,000.

Members of the Boxwell family have offered $500 reward for the capture and conviction of the murderers of Mr. and Mrs. Boxwell, at Howard Lake. The county will offer $250 additional. This, with the reward offered by the governor, makes a total of $1,000.

Burglars paid a visit to Merriam Park and robbed the hardware and notion store of J. J. Wyer of property valued at $60.

George Gibson, constable of Gilbert, was arrested on complaint of Charles Woolsey, charged with brutally beating his son, Harry. Gibson and Woolsey are related.

Frank Faust, of Rich Prairie, was seriously hurt by being hit with a baseball bat while playing ball. His nose was broken and a deep gash was cut in his head.

Maude Coleman, daughter of Isaac Coleman, of Maine Prairie, was perhaps fatally injured by a shot from a revolver in the hands of Fred Greely, of Kimball. He "did not know it was loaded." The bullet struck her in the waist and was deflected downwards into the abdomen by her corset steel.

Bryon Edwards, of Morrill, was accidentally shot through the arm by a pistol in the hands of Albert Keer, of Belle Prairie.

After 13 years of continuous service Captain L. D. Frost is to resign the captaincy of the Winona guards. He has been senior captain of the Second regiment since 1887.

A new townsite has been laid out at the head of Steamboat river, on the south side of Midge lake, on the survey of the Great Northern railroad. The new town will be called Graceland. A saw mill, hotel and blacksmith shop will be erected at once.

Roland H. Hartley has been appointed private secretary to Gov. Clough, vice Tams Bixby, resigned.

Information sheet No. 2 has been issued by the citizens' committee of Princeton regarding the thirteenth annual division encampment of the Sons of Veterans, which will be held June 15 to 18.

American Ingenuity.

American ingenuity has always been a wonder to foreigners. We know of no better illustration of it than is displayed in the manufacture of guns. For instance, the repeating shot gun made by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., which retails for about $20, will outshoot foreign hand made guns costing 20 times as much. This has been demonstrated time and time again. The leading shots of the country appreciate this and have put aside their expensive guns for the less costly but better shooting Winchester. The large illustrated Winchester catalogue is sent free upon request.

IN the shade of the towering mountain,
In the beautiful valleys of sun,
Kissed by the mists of the fountain
And close to the rivers that run
With a mystical song to the ocean,
Past cypress and hemlock and yew,
At rest from turmoil and commotion,
Are sleeping the campers in blue.

No dreams of the cannon's death rattle,
No visions of charge and foray,
Although where they stood in the battle
Not a few are still camping to-day;
Oft an arrow of sunlight discloses
The camps of the gallant and true,
And shines on the chaplets of roses
That cover the campers in blue.

By thousands they sleep in their glory
'Neath the beautiful flag of the free,
And retold and rehearsed is their story
By millions from sea unto sea:
Aye, above them the robin is calling
Her mate o'er the glittering dew,
And the treasures of nature are falling
Everywhere in the camps of the blue.

They sleep side by side in the meadows,
They are comrades still under the pines,
From the sunshine deep into the shadows
Stretch Glory's magnificent lines;
From Arlington's cedars of beauty
To the fair lands of orange and yew,
Resting ever from well-performed duty,
Lie the thrice laureled campers in blue.

At the fringe of the foe-haunted thicket,
Where the challenge is heard nevermore,
Shine the stars upon vidette and picket,
The nights of their long vigils o'er;
And the drums for them no longer rattle
And silent is even's tattoo,
No more sounds the onset to battle
For the rose-covered heroes in blue.

Love fashions the wreath for their bosoms
In the heart of the southland to-day,
And the fields of the north give their blossoms
Alike for the blue and the gray;
It is o'er, the flow of war's river,
For all to one banner are true,
And peace will reign sweetly and ever
In the multiplied camps of the blue.

Let them sleep by the musical river,
Let them rest in the shadow of tree,
Their fame is our heritage ever
'Neath the star-sprinkled flag of the free;
So long as devotion's sweet story
Thrills hearts that are lofty and true,
So long will our banner in glory
Wave over the camps of the blue.

T. C. HARBAUGH.

TOLD BY THE BATTERED CANNON.

"I AM only a rusty and dilapidated old cannon, a relic of the war, placed on this lawn to recall to this generation the deeds of the past. It was a glorious past, too, though red with other things than the rust which gives me my dull, swarthy hue. They have spruced me up a little with paint that I might be in keeping with other park accessories, but you may observe that there is rust in my throat, while its marks show roughly through the thin coat of paint which but half conceals the ravages of time. I may look grim, but am not so savage as I might at first impression appear.

"When the war began I was young and handsome, not the battered veteran of these later years. The gunners were proud of my trig and trim appearance, and groomed me as carefully as if I were a prince out on parade. You should have seen me as, with other guns of my caliber and class, I started for the front in response to the first call for volunteers issued by Abraham Lincoln in 1861. Polished until every piece of metal about me shone, waited upon by brave men in uniforms as striking as my own, I attracted admiring attention from multitudes all along the line. There were six of us, all exactly alike, and we spoke with one voice when called upon to respond to the ardor of those men starting toward the front.

"It was not long before we were in the rush and war of battle. Where we were could be found the very craters of the war volcanoes, reddened with our lurid fires, enlivened by our bulldog bark, reddened sometimes with a deeper crimson than that of flame. We were sons of thunder and hurled thunderbolts, shooters of lightnings which struck with deadly effect. Our throats were often parched and our iron constitutions racked and strained, but we obeyed orders, and sullenly served Death until told to desist. They were brave men who handled us in the very center of the carnivals of blood and fire, and ever above us floated proudly our gallant comrade, the old flag, often tattered and torn, singed and ragged, but its stars shining ever as stars of promise on their firmament of good union blue. Not less courageous were the men in gray who fought under what is now the conquered banner. Even our iron souls and hearts of steel thrilled with honest admiration of their dauntless bravery. What a pity that such men must be swayed in deadly conflict, one against the other. Thank God, that is all past now, and the old flag, well beloved north and south, floats in love and protection over all Columbia's braves. If the men in gray were mistaken they atoned for their fault in countless ways known only to brave hearts who meet defeat. We love them for their courage and devotion, hail them as brothers true for evermore. But this is a digression. Old cannon, like other old warriors, become garrulous when they recall the days which tried men's souls and burned out the dross in the crucibles of affliction.

"You think my language rather choice for a grizzled warrior accustomed to camp and field? Well, I was a West Point graduate, if you please, and once shone resplendent among the ordnance aristocrats of that eminent institution of learning.

"It was at a battle on the mountain, near the sea, fighting bravely at close quarters on a ridge overlooking a deep, wooded ravine that I was disabled. There was opposed to us a battery of heavier caliber, and, after our men were nearly all down, dead or wounded, a heavy ball struck me directly in the muzzle, broke this jagged piece from my side, dismounted me and hurled me headlong into the ravine. It was a dizzy somersault, and I was made useless by many wounds, so I was permitted to lie there. The battle went on above, branches flew in the air, trees were cut in two, and into that ravine crept scores of brave men for shelter, some to recover later, but more to die. What do the nattily-dressed pleasure seekers, who promenade in this park and gaze curiously at us veterans, realize of such scenes as those I describe so imperfectly?

"At eve the battle lulled, and there crept to me where I lay, finally propping themselves against me and against each other, two badly wounded men, one in blue and one in gray. I gathered from their slow conversation that they were from the same village in Maryland, schoolmates once, friends always. They talked of other days, of the familiar home scenes, of their wives and babes, and then when the quiet stars came out and the moon lighted the scene of carnage they slept clasped closely in each other's arms. But it was the sleep that knows no waking. For these men peace had come, honorable peace, the din and danger of battle past forever. Very calm and tranquil seemed the pallid faces in the moonlight, and on each was imprinted the friendly smile of the boyhood days of which they had conversed ere they sank into perfect and dreamless repose.

"Next morning the detail of weary men burying the dead bore them away together, and gathered up letters and photographs to send home to the loved ones they would meet and greet no more.

"Years passed, time healed the scars in the landscape war had made. Not far away, on the height, national and confederate cemeteries adjoining were laid out and beautified. I still lay where I fell, reddening with rust, but I saw what was going on, and was often inspected curiously by visitors to the cemeteries and the battlefield. I could see the cemetery on the opposite declivity, its flag floating proudly as it rose each day at sound of the sunrise gun. I loved to see the care expended upon the rows of graves marked with snowy headstones, and knew by a sort of intuition where, in one corner, lay near together the schoolmates who had died that night by my side. On Memorial days there were ceremonies worth seeing, soldiers marched, sweet-faced and sweet-voiced children sang, eloquence recalled the war and its lessons, and each grave became an emerald altar on which soft-eyed blossoms breathed fragrant incense, their scented prayers rising toward heaven.

"On one Memorial day, 20 years after the war, there strolled into the ravine late in the afternoon a young man and woman. I knew them for lovers before I clearly saw their faces, for she leaned toward him as they walked with the unconscious naturalness and grace of a vine reclining toward its supporting tree. On they came through the laurels and seated themselves, with their backs against me, much as did those soldiers of 20 years agone. She was a fair-faced blonde, graceful as a fawn, dimples in her peachy cheeks, loyalty in her true blue eyes. He was dark, stalwart, manly, with the form of an athlete and the eyes of a born protector of truth and innocence. Even before they spoke I knew them, through intuition, to be the son and daughter of the men who had died where they now sat absorbed in love's young dream. As they sat there, her head on his shoulder and his arm where it should be, around her taper waist, punctuated with kisses, I heard their story and more than I had learned before of the men whose children they were. Birds chattered about them, gaudy butterflies fluttered in their faces, vines festooned like wedding decorations in dim church aisles waved lazily in the caressing breezes above, and they leaned against me as confidingly as if I belonged in love's bowers instead of in the brunt of battles. I was their friend. The brave are ever tender hearted. Iron cannon thrill to magnetic currents with greater readiness than many softer things.

"AS THEY SAT THERE I HEARD THEIR STORY."

"Nor did I look grim and forbidding. Roses of the woods had crept over me and wreathed me with bloom. Laurels leaned lovingly over me, and vines trailed in slender grace and beauty over my rusted form. I was a picture of peace, where "Winds blew sweet kisses from the scented south,

Flowers waved love-signals from the cannon's mouth.

"They talked of their parents, of their own forthcoming marriage, of affairs at home, of some property trouble wherein missing papers played an important part, which meant heavy loss to them, and of the thousand and one nothings, all somethings to young lovers, which interest those whose hearts have been touched by Cupid with the true gift of seeing. A million things deemed important by time-hardened worldlings, are less so than the gossamer filaments and trifles which love turns to threads and ingots of gold. They bring exquisite happiness to young hearts, and happiness is not a trifle.

"Suddenly Inez, that was her name, uttered a little exclamation and pointed to my muzzle. There, framed in roses, sat a small red squirrel intently regarding the invaders. Her quick motion startled him, and with a brisk chirp he whisked out of sight, taking refuge in the department of the interior. The young girl poked into the aperture with a birch wand she had cut further in the wood, and there was great commotion within. A whole family of squirrels, some of them juveniles, dashed out helter skelter, frightening the pretty damsel into a leap and scream, followed promptly by pleased laughter from the young people.

"Her lover poked farther with the rod, and little by little drew out a nest. It was made mostly of leaves, but here and there were blades of grass, floss of the milkweed, scraps of paper, and among the latter one of considerable size which the young folks eagerly opened and read. Strange and mysterious are the ways of Providence! It was the missing memoranda needed to establish the girl's title to extensive plantations, and brief messages from the parents of both, written in blood, bidding their loved ones good-by and detailing the manner of their death. I had guarded their secret well. Why should I not now yield it gladly to those to whom it rightfully belonged?

"Long they talked of their wonderful find, of the goodness of God, of the parents they both loved, and their sentiments were union sentiments of the strongest kind, emphasized and strengthened by the memory of the great conflict in which their fathers together died. Ere they walked away in the twilight they had planned to buy me, and transfer me to their native town, not far away, and the fair maid actually hugged and kissed me as she bade me a temporary farewell. There were pearly drops of moisture on me and the roses which covered my roughness, as she turned away, that were not distilled from dew or sprinkled by the long familiar rains. In old-fashioned times Cupid accomplished his best surprises with bow and arrow, but now, if you please, he can use cannon, old, rusty, rheumatic and broken, just as well. I may be an old bore, but I can do as useful things as many people who look more gracious and less grim. Never judge an old veteran's heart by his rusty exterior and time-worn marks of wind, weather or war. Rough oyster shells hide more pearls than the smoothest shells glistening on tropic beaches do.

"Well, they secured a permit from Uncle Sam to remove me, and here I am, the observed of all observers, a properly certified relic of the war. I like it, too, though I sometimes sigh moodily for the sheltered ravine and its wildwood roses. Somehow these carefully groomed roses in the park have never seemed as free and fragrant. They are too prim and precise, like spinsters on parade. And as for the laurels of praise? What are they to the laurels which rubbed their pink cheeks lovingly against me in the shaded ravine, under the canopy of vines? But they make much of me here, installed me with music and speeches, garland me with flowers on Memorial days, laud me to the skies. Lovers lean against me in the summer evenings, and whisper their dearest confidences, relying upon my discretion, and old soldiers pat me lovingly, and they tell of stirring scenes in which I and my kind played star parts and made the welkin ring. Near me stands the soldiers' monument, and nearer still the tall staff from which floats the glorious star spangled banner for which I fought and fell.

"I saw my young folks (have not I the right to call them mine?) wed and made one. They paused to greet me on their way to the church near by, and I saw through the open door the dear little bride with canopies of flags and flowers above her shapely head, and sunbeams colored gayly by stained glass windows crossing her golden hair in tinted benediction. She stopped to pat me lovingly as she leaned on her noble husband's arm returning homeward, and I verily believe they look upon me as a sort of cast-iron shrine, for they often come to see me and exchange confidences, talking to me as to a friend of the family whom they consider quite one of themselves.

"One day, about a year after the wedding, Inez brought a pudgy, small, rather shapeless copy of herself to see me, introduced us and bespoke lasting vows of fidelity between the young patriot and myself. He is about six years old now, comes to see me, hand in hand with a smaller sister, and they both sit in my lap and take liberties with me unrebuked. He once filled me with firecrackers on the Fourth of July and set them off. It took me several days to overlook that prank, for the crackers were imported Chinamen, and I did not like their weak, sputtering travesty of real explosions. On the whole, however, we get along very well. He cannot pull my hair, as he does his father's, nor poke his prying young fingers into my eyes. As to my mouth, that is toothless, and barks only at enemies of my country and flag.

"Near by, visible across a corner of the park lawn, is their home. On the wall is a framed picture, the portrait of the two dead soldiers, one in blue and one in gray. Over it are crossed peacefully the swords they wore, in token of lasting peace as well as lasting remembrance, and draped above it a silken flag, the beautiful flag of our country, its stars bright, its bars typical of the red blood shed for its sake. Very lovingly it droops over the portraits, and its folds seem to cling as caressingly about the man in gray as about the man in blue. In that home there is love and respect for the soldiers of north and south. Peace, blessed peace, reigns supreme.

"This is the eve of Memorial day. I am garlanded with flowers and have been honored as a brave veteran should be by those he served and saved. The sun is setting, and not far away, on the beach, I see the family group I love; the husband, Inez, the two playful children, and in addition a sweet-faced babe in arms. The sea is like a mirror of molten gold, but near the shore its surface dimples into smiles and it lisps loving nothings to the listening sands. Outlined against the glorified sky, with its wondrous panorama of crimson and gold, pearl and amber, fleecy outlines made of angel plumage, tall pinnacles tipped with flame, floats proudly the flag we love. And far away on a distant hill, where rows of tombstones gleam whitely, I see the two headstones which point like finger-posts toward heaven, punctuating the beauty of love and friendship. It is a picture of quiet peace, the calm after the storm, the tranquil sequel to the tempest and turmoil of war. Noting the headstones in the confederate cemetery which adjoins the other I see that they also are covered with flowers, placed there by those who decorated the grassy couches of the sleeping boys in blue. God rest their souls! Lord keep their memories green!"

DECORATION DAY.

Growing Importance of Its Proper Observance.

With every passing year the proper observance of this national day becomes more important. To the children born since the war it lacks the heart-touching and tender sentiment and the tearful memories that cluster around the days when our loved ones were brought home to us from the field of war and were laid with reverent and trembling hands in hallowed graves and bedewed with the bitterest drops of anguish that can fall from human eyes.

"Slain in battle." "He fell with his face to the foe." These were the messages that were flashed over the wires and sent to the waiting ones at home. Those who lived through those trying times need not be reminded how sacred is the trust committed to our charge. They know what the day means in all its comprehensive and broad significance, and it needs no burst of martial music, no flourish of trumpets or beating of drums to tell the story. They know the history of those trying days, and the most eloquent efforts of oratory cannot make it more clear or more dear to them.

But to those who are to come after us—those who know the war only as a sad and awful tradition—the day and its meaning must be made plain. They cannot know the sorrow, the pain, the tireless anxiety and the ever-present watchfulness that filled those wearisome years of struggle, and that had, by the greatness of Divine power, strength and courage to wait for the fullness of time, that bright and shining and glorious time when the youngest nation of the earth would shake off the burdens and unloose the shackles of discord, and rise in her might, a daughter of the gods, divinely fair, divinely strong, and loyally gracious in her supreme and conscious strength, and stand once more, clothed and in her right mind, in her own proud position as the grandest and most to be envied of all the nations of the earth.—N. Y. Ledger.

TAKES HIS BRIDE TO ALASKA.

Dr. Marsh Will Locate at Point Barrow as a Missionary.

Dr. Richmond Marsh, of Joliet, Ill., has been ordained a minister of the Gospel. The ceremonies were conducted by Rev. C. S. Hoyt, moderator of the Chicago presbytery, assisted by Rev. Dr. Howard A. Johnston, of the Forty-first Street Presbyterian church, and Rev. C. A. Lippincott, of the Second Presbyterian church of Chicago, and Revs. Messrs. Reynolds and Lewis, of Joliet. The ordination is of more than ordinary interest, from the fact that the young clergyman and his bride leave at once for Point Barrow, Alaska, the northernmost inhabited point on the continent, an Eskimo village and trading station, with possibly one or two white men and no white women among its population. Dr. Marsh has been appointed government agent at that place, and will have charge of the government schools for the natives, among whom he will do missionary work.

In Tents of Green.

In tents of green our heroes sleep,
Their slumbers undisturbed and deep;
The flag triumphant waves
Where comrades pass with solemn tread,
Sweet bloom of May again to spread
Above our honored braves.

All silent there, in calm repose,
They reck not friends, they fear not foes;
Their grounded arms are mute;
No drum's redoubling beat they hear,
No stern command, no victor's cheer,
Or sentry's quick salute.

In faded blue or faded gray,
The truce of God is theirs to-day,
So let them calmly rest;
Who won the field with sure renown,
A starry flag, a floral crown,
Above each hero's breast.

Excursion to Free Homes in the Canadian Northwest.

Those who are paying rent or carrying mortgages, or young men without prospects of getting a home where land is high in price, should note that the Canadian Government has a large area of fine farming land which it gives to persons over 18 years of age. Soil produces all staple crops. Climate similar to this. Good stock and dairy country. An excursion will leave St. Paul and Minneapolis, Wednesday, June 23, 1897, and monthly thereafter, to examine these lands. Don't be misled about far-away places you know nothing about, but select while the chance is open a FREE FARM OF 160 ACRES, to which the railway fare is low and will not eat up a large share of your capital. For publications and further information address Benjamin Davies, Emigration Agent, Canadian Government, 154 East 3d St., St. Paul, Minn.

Dishonored Drafts.

When the stomach dishonors the drafts made upon it by the rest of the system, it is necessarily because its fund of strength is very low. Toned with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, it soon begins to pay out vigor in the shape of pure, rich blood, containing the elements of muscle, bone and brain. As a sequence of the new vigor afforded the stomach, the bowels perform their functions regularly, and the liver works like clock work. Malaria has no effect upon a system thus reinforced.

A GREAT deal of nonsense has been written—and believed, about blood purifiers. What purifies the blood? - - -

THE KIDNEYS PURIFY THE BLOOD AND THEY ALONE.

If diseased, however, they cannot, and the blood continually becomes more impure. Every drop of blood in the body goes through the kidneys, the sewers of the system, every three minutes, night and day, while life endures.

Warner's Safe Cure

puts the kidneys in perfect health, and nature does the rest.

The heavy, dragged out feeling, the bilious attacks, headaches, nervous unrest, fickle appetite, all caused by poisoned blood, will disappear when the kidneys properly perform their functions.

There is no doubt about this. Thousands have so testified. The theory is right, the cure is right and health follows as a natural sequence.

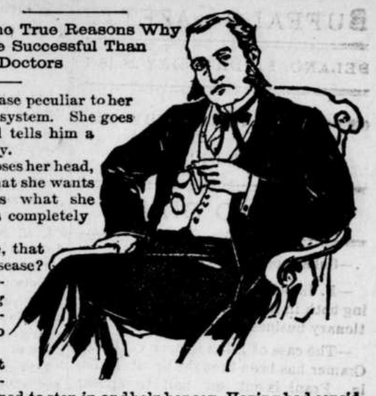
WHY SO MANY REGULAR PHYSICIANS FAIL

To Cure Female Ills—Some True Reasons Why Mrs. Pinkham is More Successful Than the Family Doctors



A woman is sick; some disease peculiar to her sex is fast developing in her system. She goes to her family physician and tells him a story, but not the whole story.

She holds something back, loses her head, becomes agitated, forgets what she wants to say, and finally conceals what she ought to have told, and thus completely mystifies the doctor.

Is it any wonder, therefore, that the doctor fails to cure the disease? Still, we cannot blame the woman, for it is very embarrassing to detail some of the symptoms of her suffering, even to her family physician.

It was for this reason that years ago Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., determined to step in and help her sex. Having had considerable experience in treating female ills with her Vegetable Compound, she encouraged the women of America to write to her for advice in regard to their complaints, and, being a woman, it was easy for her ailing sisters to pour into her ears every detail of their suffering.

In this way she was able to do for them what the physicians were unable to do, simply because she had the proper information to work upon, and from the little group of women who sought her advice years ago a great army of her fellow-beings are to-day constantly applying for advice and relief, and the fact that more than one hundred thousand of them have been successfully treated by Mrs. Pinkham during the last year is indicative of the grand results which are produced by her unequaled experience and training.

No physician in the world has had such a training, or has such an amount of information at hand to assist in the treatment of all kinds of female ills, from the simplest local irritation to the most complicated diseases of the womb.

This, therefore, is the reason why Mrs. Pinkham, in her laboratory at Lynn, Mass., is able to do more for the ailing women of America than the family physician. Any woman, therefore, is responsible for her own suffering who will not take the trouble to write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice.

The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women establish beyond a doubt the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to conquer female diseases.

The Man who is Raising a Big Crop

—realizes that the harvest time is ahead. Ideal farming comprehends not only the growing of the tallest grain—the most tons-to-the-acre of hay; the best farming—the farming that pays—must contemplate something more than this: for there is a harvest time, and just in proportion as a crop is saved successfully, speedily and economically, in just that proportion may be measured the season's profit or loss.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—F. L. Scherer seems to be improving both in health and in the confectionary business.

—The case of Edna Cooper vs. F. A. Cramer has been brought up at Buffalo. Frank is out on bail to appear later.

—The new buildings are rapidly drawing to a close. Most of them are having the hole where the roof ought to be, closed.

—The Swedish Tabernacle Choir, of Minneapolis will give an entertainment at the City Hall. Saturday evening May 30.

—The High School has the City Hall on Sunday evening for the Baccalaureate sermon by Rev. J. L. Farber. Everybody invited.

—The band concert given in the band stand last evening was largely attended and highly appreciated. Even the horses had to dance.

—Worms are quite thick at present especially on the base ball grounds. The base runners need to watch out or they wan't slide all around Montrose next Sunday.

—"Fourth street in front of the Eagle office has been graded"—Eagle. 'Taint so, even though you did see it in the Eagle. That's Lohmiller's business on 4th street.

—C. W. Kerrick has a crew, under charge of Mr. Nelson at work storing his camping out utensls, until they are needed again. They occupy Roosen's Opera House.

—John Brandser has purchased of John Lohmiller the building on R. R. Ave. now occupied by the Misses Bauman and expects to move his tailor shop there after July 4th.

—Fred Lindsley has bought the beautiful residence of C. R. Carlton cor. Elm and 4th street, and will occupy it soon. J. W. McDonald is to move into the Galley house.

—The programme has been arranged for a big time at Buffalo, on the anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill. Old Settlers, Band Tournament, and a general good time, Tuesday, June 17.

—Quite a lengthy ordinance on the subject of Water-works and Electric lights is to be found in this GAZETTE. Read it and see what the rates and requirements will be for water and light.

—Among pensions granted this week we notice the name of Rinna Helman, Delano. It seems this pension has been a long time under consideration; but we presume it will be acceptable even at this late date.

—If R. R. Ave. was graded nicely and a few more lights arranged for, it would make one of the finest promenades in the country and on band nights would be enjoyed by many. A fountain could be fixed up in the park and with a few electric lights there, would make a grand appearance.

—On Sunday evening, Rev. Savs preached in English, at the Catholic church, on the "Infalibility of the Church". He is learning the tongue of his adopted land quite well, and is an earnest preacher. He said the Pope and all the Bishops in this world, when they agreed on a point, were infallible in articles of faith and morals; but in politics and temporal affairs they were the same as other men; and liable to differ, and some to err. Rev. Savs is patriotic, and loves his adopted home, and its institutions.

For Sale.

House and three lots in good repair with or without furniture on River St. Also two five acre lots one with house on, on Watertown road. Want to go south on account of sickness. Enquire of V. F. Brothers, Delano. *3t.

Nugent has Him.

Little Falls, Minn., May 24.—(Times Special)—Sheriff Nugent of Wright County, who was here last week looking for a man named Joseph Kohl, has him now under arrest. Nugent and Constable Smart went to Kohl's home, near Fort Ripley, but could not find him. Sheriff Nugent hid in the woods for several days, and by watching the house caught Kohl. He is charged with seduction.

Notice to Contractors.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the Town Clerk of the Town of Franklin Wright County, Minn., up to and including May 31st, 1897, 10 o'clock A. M. for building a wooden wagon bridge over the Pioneer Creek on the line between Section 26 and Section 35, Town 118, Range 25 Also for reparing or putting in one new truss span in the bridge known as Wright Ford Bridge in Section 26 same Town and Range.

Said Bridge and Truss span to be built according to Plans and Specifications now on file in the Town Clerk's Office, said bids to be opened May 31st, 1897, in the Council Room in the Village of Delano.

The Contractor will also be obliged to enter into bond with the Supervisors for the faithful performance of his contract.

Superyisors reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

Dated May 18th, 1897.

—Archbishop John Ireland is to be orator at Howard Lake tomorrow.

Personal.

Mrs. A. G. Jones visited the city this week.

Mrs. S. S. Ball visited Minneapolis Saturday.

Mrs. M. Denison, of Hutchinson, is keeping house for F. F. chancellor.

G. R. Perkins, of Rockford, was transacting business in Delano, Monday.

Attorneys O'Hair and Greear drove to Maple Plain yesterday, on business.

L. M. Maxfield and daughter Mrs. Green drove to Minneapolis this week.

C. F. Stein, of South West Franklin, drove to Delano on business, Thursday.

Ex-Sheriff Carpenter and ex-Deputy Grant, of Buffalo, were in town yesterday.

Jacob Kuchenmeister, of Waverly, drove down to attend the wedding Tuesday.

J. P. chance has completed his school year and is home for the summer vacation.

William L. Haggerty and family of Annandale, spent Sunday with Delano friends.

Deputy Sheriff Herman Anderson was in town professionally, Friday and Saturday.

John McGary, of Independence while out seeing what the folks are worth called round this way.

Frank Lamson, of Buffalo, was buzzing round town with some of our politicians on Wednesday.

Elmer Brulkshank of Howard Lake, visited his sister Minnie, who is clerking for Frank Sherer, yesterday.

John Campbell and James McGrath, of Watertown, came home from Minneapolis, via Delano, yesterday.

George Midwood, of Clearwater, who has been working in the Eagle office, returned to his home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Lawrence and Miss Crane of Minneapolis, were guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Soper, this week.

Frank Swadner and wife went to Minneapolis this week to get medical aid for Mrs. S., who will remain there for awhile.

Mrs. John Lohmiller and the children, have got home from Lester Prairie, where they visited a few days. John again wears a smile.

Hon. J. W. Craven, P. M. at Norwood, and Celestine Kohler, drove over Monday. The ex-Senator has kind of a hankering to get into editorial harness again. He is a rustler.

A Sham Fight.

St. Paul Globe is having crocodile spasms because the gold-bug republicans in Congress are framing a protective (robber) tariff law. It is very thin for the Globe and its like to join with the so called republican organs in trying to resurrect the tariff sham fight. The gold-bugs have the president and a majority in Congress. If they continue their present do-nothing policy the people will not be deceived by the Globe's sham fight.—Wasoca Herald.

More than twenty years' practice in answering the questions of inventors and owners of patents have given C. A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C. remarkable facility in this line as may be seen from a little book they have sent us, and which they will send free to any address. In this pamphlet, they have anticipated and answered about every question inventors have invented, and that is saying a good deal.

County Cullings.

The Buffalo Journal believes in haying blame rest where it should; and thinks the five men who travel over the country securing affidavits: the eight attorndys for the G. N. R. R. 6 of whom live in Wright County, and the 453 affidavit system among the signers among the people are to blame for giving Haward a change of venue. The Journal claims to have a list of sighers 16 of them in Delano. Perhaps the Editor of the Journal could get an office by suppressing their public cation. The list would make interesting reading and tend to make people a little careful how they sign everything that comes along just for accomidation or to have there names before the public. Besides it might show what attorneys are so conversant with the workings of Wright County courts as to swear they think Mr. Howard could not get justice in them. Such things don't look well. The greater publicity they get until the case is settled and such suspicions wiped out, as to future proceedings the better.

Judge Tarbox has an article in the Minneapolis Journal defending himself from his former friends. The Judge has lived in the district, he says for sixteen years. He has been an unsuccessful seeker for office on several occasions; and now that he has been appointed by the Governor, Judge of the newly made Eighteenth Judicial District after serving a few months as County Attorney, which position it looks as if he had better stuck too till his term was out, his former associates are making a great effort to prevent his nomination when the time comes for an election to fill the Judges place. Charges are made that County Attorney Tarbox and Judge Tarbox entertained different opinions in regard to running the Howard case. Tarbox says himself that he favored a speedy trial of the Howard case. The people of Wright County elected him; he got the County Commissioners to retain Larabee to help him; the case didn't come to trial; the Governor appointed County Attorney Tarbox Judge of the newly made Judicial District, and it is claimed that Tarbox tried tried to have Larabee discharged from the prosecution of the Howard case. It don't look right.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21, 1897.

Whether this is a government by, of, and for the people, or a government by, of, and for the sugar trust, is a question that will soon be determined. Not satisfied with holding the people of this country up to the extent of eight or ten million dollars a year through the sugar scedule of the tariff bill, the trust is seeking to prevent either the administration or Congress doing anything that will help Cuba. Although Mr. McKinley has been reported to be opposed to the sugar schedule of the tariff bill, he is acting with the trust to throttle an expression of the universal sentiment of the country in behalf of Cuba through Congress, and by the aid of Czar Reed he has so far succeeded. Representative Bailey and the other democrats and populists in the house made a stout fight to pass a resolution declaring in favor of the recognition of the belligerency of the Cubans at the same time the appropriation of $50,000 to feed starving American citizens in Cuba was made, but the most they could do was to freighten the republicans into recalling all their absent members and to compel many republicans to vote against their honest convictions in order to please Mr. McKinley and the sugar trust. Republicans talk mysteriously about Mr. McKinley having a robust Cuban policy, but when pressed they acknowledge that they don't know what that is. In fact there is considerable grumbling along the prominent republicans because Mr. McKinley has not taken them into his confidence as to his intention towards Cuba. The Senate will probably act, anyway, but the House can do nothing as long as it wears the Reed muzzle.

Mr. T. E. Wardner, The well known Boston editor and publisher was in Washington this week conferring with prominent silver men in Congress. He reported the silver sentiment in New England to be greatly on the increase, owing to the eyes of merchants and manufacturers having been opened by the continual fall in prices, and said: "The silver feeling in the large towns, always strong, is increasing rapidly and will make itself felt in the next Congressional campaign. Skilled labor is more than ever in favor of silver. The shoemakers of Lynn, Haverhill and other places are almost to a man bimetallists. The Typographical Union is nine-teyths for silver. There will be at least six silver Congressmen in the next Massachusetts delegation, and the chances are pretty good that the next legislature will contain a silver majority. I sincerely and honestly believe that if Massachusetts were to vote tomorrow she would cast her lot on the side of bimetallism as against the gold standard." Many business men, Mr. Wardner said, had given up hope of any relief through the tariff bill.

The presence of Ex-Senator Ingalls and Bob Fitzsimmons in Washington at the same time caused some wag to start a story that Ingalls had taken the job of press agent for the prize fighter. Although he denies it, there are reasons for believing that Ingalls is after McKinley pie.

Senator Tillman says he intends to see that there is an investigation of the new sugar trust scandal. He gives his reasons in the following language: "The Senate cannot afford to let this matter rest where it is. We cannot ignore the charges that have been made. The principal thing for us to find out is what influences were back of the adoption of that schedule by the Finance committee. As far as speculation in sugar stock by Senators is concerned, I know of no reason why a Senator has not the same right to risk his money and gamble in stocks as other men, providing he does not do it on secret and advance information which is not accessible to the public, and provided it is not at a time when his vote in the Senate would influence the course of the market." Mr. Tillman says he will wait a reasonable time to allow some older Senator to offer a resolution providing for an investigation before doing so himself, but that the investigation will certainly be made, if persistency on his part will get a resolution ordering it adopted.

No greator farce was ever enacted in Washington than the inprisonment of Chapman, the sugar broker, which was begun this week. He has a costly fitted up bedroom and an office adjoining; his meals are prepared at a swell hotel and he has a waiter from that hotel detailed to wait upon him. He receives callers and entertains them all the time, and can do about anything he could do in a hotel except to leave the jail. This is an injurious farce, too because it increases the belief, already too prevalent, that there is one justice for the wealthy and quite another for the poor.

WHEN WE WERE BOYS.

Written for the Prison Mirror.
(BY J. L.)

It kind o' makes my eyes feel damp
When I think of days what's gone,
When we used to sing and whistle
As to school we used to hurry on;
'Cause money wasn't then our god—
Though we had our little joys,
How I wish we could live over again
Those days when we were boys.

And when the school was o'er we'd have
Such a joly game of tag,
No flustering or social form
But our talk would never lag;
We didn't care whose pa was rich—
Or who had the largest toys
We just were human beings in
Those days when we were boys.

We wasent turning down each other
If our clothes wasn't just a fit;
We didn't care for dudishness
Or to make a social hit;
But when we'd play a game of ball
The fellow what made most noise,
Was the one who took our fancy, in
Those days when we were boys.

We didn't think of cheating in
A trade as men will do;
We'd try to get the best of it
But money wasn't our cue;
We wouldn't josh another kid
If his shoes wasn't just his size;
They are gone to never come again—
Those days when we were boys.

THE Evening Press published the finest Memorial Day issue we have seen this year. Brother Starkey evidently hasn't forgotten the boys of '61, and has a warm place for them in his heart. With the assistance of several comrades and others he furnished a paper for the reference. It abounds in personal recollections of those who were there and saw for themselves.

THE Louisville Courier Journal is putting up a great howl about the Democrats running off and leaving their party, and going for free silver. How can Mr. Watterson figure out any such thing? The Democrats met at chicago and nominated Willima J. Bryant for president, and he made a noble fight to win most of the Democrats supporting him heartily. It was Mr. Watterson and a few others who left the good old Democratic ship, and launched out on tempestuous waves They formed the "National Democratic" party and in most places didn't get enough votes to hold a place on the ticket for next time. Many of the disaffected going for McKinley, protective tariff and gold standard. The Democrats prabably know what they want better than gold standard editors can tell them.

Among our Exchanges.

The Evening press: The widow of Hermann, the prestidigitator is unabel to collect her insurance money because there must be a physician's certificate to the death, and Herman had died suddenly on a sleeping car. If this rule is going to obtain, every person carrying insurance will have to be accompanied by the family doctor.

St. Paul Globe: The Senate tariff debate isn't much of a debate after all. The manufacturers tell the Republicans what they want, the screws are put on, and the new schedule appears. This sprt of thing will go until the people get another inning.

It is a fact that the new tariff law puts a tax of ten cents a pound on tea, yet tea drinkers have no reason to be alarmed about having to pay ten cents a pound extra for their tea, as the foreign shipper has to pay that tax. Just remember this and you will be a good protectionist.—Sauk Rapids Sentinel.

Now, isn't that a "corker?" If "the foreigner pays the tax," why not socit-tu-em to the extent of $1 per pound? The "tea drinkers" would have to pay no more for it, the government would receive $1 tax per pound, but the tea would still sell, as now, for 50 to 75 cents.—St. Cloud Times.

A Sham Fight.

St. Paul Globe is having crocodile spasms because the gold-bug republicans in Congress are framing a protective (robber) tariff law. It is very thin for the Globe and its like to join with the so-called republican organs in trying to resurrect the tariff sham fight. The gold-bugs have the president and a majority in Congress. If they continue their present do nothing policy the people will not be deceived by the Globe's sham fight.—Waseca Herald.

Senate Party Strength.

Washington, June 1, '97.—The senator from South Carolina, John L. McLaurin, who succeeded the late Senator Earle, was sworn in at the opening of the session today. This establishes the personnel of the senate as it will remain for some time, viz: Republicans, 43; Democrats, 34; Populists, 7; Silver Republicans, 5; vacancy, 1, (Oregon); total, 90.

Mr. Mason, submitted a petition urging immediate and effective action on the pending tariff bill and stating that this was the general sentiment of business interests.

The tariff bill was taken up immediately after the disposal of the routine business.—Duluth Herald.

Annual Sermon Before the High School of Delano.

Text: Prov. 3—. "Length of days is in her right hand and in her left hand riches and honor." Our text and the context points out the way to happy and successful life. "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom and the man who getteth understanding. For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold. She is more precious than rubies; and all things thou canst desire are not to be compared to her. Length of days are in her right hand and in her left hand riches and honor. Her ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace." She is a tree of life to them that lay hold on her and happy is every one that retaineth her". A long, happy, successful life ought to be the highest aspiration of us all. The thoughtful, studious youth are generally looking forward to such a life; and our text personifies Wisdom and Understanding by a maiden standing before them and offering to them by her right hand a long life, and by her left hand riches and honor. These things a long life, riches and honor come to us through wisdom and understanding. Understanding refers to all the knoledge we may get by study, research, observation and experience. Wisdom refers to the Wright as of what we know; or to the genuine religion of Jesus Christ which teaches how to make the best possible use of all that we know, and all that we have. Wisdom and understanding or knowledge must be coupled together in order to produce the highest type of life. There can be no discord between the Bible rightly understood, and true science. For the God that inspired the Bible created the heavens and the earth and all that in them dwell. And he put all the science there is in the heavens above and in the earth beneath. And he knows better than to contradict in revelation what He has done in creation. And before we herald the mistakes of Moses, the Prophets and Paul, we had better review our own work.

Man posesses physical, mental and moral faculties, and all these must be developed and brought into use in order to attain to the highest type of manhood. We have the gymnasium to cultiyate the physical powers; the course of study in our schools and colleges to cultivate the mental powers, and the Bible contains a course for the cultivation of the moral faculties. The cultivation of the physical is important. We need a strong healthy body for the servant to the mind and soul. But if the physical only is developed we are not as much as the ox, for we cannot equal him in strength. If the physical and mental only are cultivated, we are not equal to the devils, for they are wiser and stronger than we, and we are still called in the Scriptures the children of the devil. But if our moral or spiritual nature is developed by the teachings of the Bible it elevates us into relationship with God, so that we are called the sons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty. To attain to what is offered in the text, a long and prosperous life we must have right ideas to begin with with. For our ideas of life are to us what the plan and specifications of a building are to an architect. He shapes the building according to the plan, so we shape our lifes according to our ideals, The ancient Sadusee said: let us eat and drink today for tomorrow we die: they did not believe in a future life. hense they lived olny to eat and drink.

To have right ideas of life we must recognize all our relations and obligations to God and to each other as taught in the Bible. A man might as well expect to make the most successful trip across the Atlantic ocean without chart or compass as to expect to make the most successful trip across the ocean of life without the Bible. We might as well lay aside the Bible in our ethical course, some who call themselves advance Thinkers" say they have outgrown the Bible, the book is too old for our progressive times. The Latin and Greek language are more than two thousand years old, still they are studied as models of expression in all the higher schools, notwithstanding we have many more modern languages. The sun is a very old planet, but we still need its light and heat. So not everying that is old has lost its usefulness. And we are no more likely to outgrow our need of the Bible than we are to outgrow our need of the sun while we stay on the the earth. Some of the Bible is more than three thousand years old, yet it was never so popular as now. The Brittish and Foreign Bible Society distributed in the first seventy-six years of its existance in round numbers 88,000,000 volumns, an average of 8,000,000 for each ten years, but in the last ten years 35,000,000 volumns, nearly 3½ times as many. The American Bible Society in its first 65 years distributed 38,000,000 but in the last ten years 15,000,000 that is in each of the last ten years two and a half times as many as were distributper year in the previous years. These societies are in the midst of the most cultured people in the world and they represent only a small fraction of its publication. Von Moltke, the embodiment of intellectual plans and executive force said the Bible had more influence over his mind than any other book. Mr. Gladstone, England's greatest statesman, employs his mature mind in writing a book called "The Impregnable Rock of the Holy Scripture". A layman, professor in Harvard College, has said: "It is not too much to say that the books of the Old and New Testament have exerted more influence on the course of human affairs among civilized nations than all other books put together". No man can be truly educated without a knowledge of this Book. This Book never was so diligently, and critically studied as now Commentaries, lesson helps, maps, lectures pour out from the press by the million a week. Great assemblies gather in all parts of the country for the training of men and women eager to learn for themselves and to teach the Bible to others gratuitously. And millions of young people gather every week to study its sacred precepts.

Charles H. Spurgeon, Englands' greatest preacher, after preaching the gospel for forty years says the Bible is inexhaustible, that he had only touched the hem of the garment of divine truth. The heathen nations who have been without the Bible so long have made but little progress in science or invention. The great discoveries and inventions have come from Christian nations, most of them from men who believed the Bible, "Righteousness exalteth a nation but sin is a reproach to any people, has proved true in all history. The Bible is the great standard of right; its precepts enter largely into our civil codes; it warns us against every foe and against every danger along lifes pathway; it points out every rock and sandbar in lifes voyage; its light shines in the darkest night; its exceeding great and precioun promises inspire us with a hope that is like an anchor to the soul both shure and steadfast and enteretn to that within the vail.

But the question comes to us how shall we get this understanding and find this wisdom that is more precious than silver or gold or rubies, and giyes long life, riches and honor?

You will notice that the understanding which means knowledge or education is to be gotten. Happy is the man that getteth understanding; that means an effort on our part, hard work, and the question comes to the young man and young woman will it pay me to get an education? Will it pay me to spend four years in hard study to go through College? Will it pay to submit to College rules and deny myself of the pleasures and amusements I might get in society? Is there not a shorter road to a long life, riches and honor? Men and women, in some instances have suddenly risen as the kite goeth up on the breeze, or as the soap bubble riseth from the blow pipe, but their duration is short. Climbing the hill of science is a slower process, but when one gets to the top he is there to stay; there is no danger of him being crowded off for there is always plenty of room on the top of the hill in all the professions. Brain labor always brings a higher price than manual labor. In the construction of a railroad the engineer gets $5.00 while the tie layer gets $1.25. In the large manufacturing establishments, skilled labor, commands from $5 to $7 per day while common labor brings from $1 to $2 per day. The skilled labor requires brains and the second does not. There are many men and women laboring hard on a small salary whose pay might be doubled or tripled through life if they had spent a few more years in school. The professional man frequently earns in one day what it takes a common laborer a month to earn. It pays to get understanding, or an education even if we look at it only from a financial standpoint, but the silver and gold it brings us is by no means the highest inducement to get an education. The reuenues of a cultivated mind are more precious than silver or gold. An educated mind is a continual source of enjoyment and satisfaction that nothing else can give. Through a knowlege of the sciences we are led to contemplate and comprehend the powers, wisdom and skill or the Creator of the Universe. Through a knowledge of the achievements we are stimulated to undertake greater things; hense the progress that has been made in science, discovery, invention and art. But wisdom is a deeper and a richer mine. "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom". St. James says: "The wisdom that is from above is first peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy". This wisdom can not be obtained from our fellow men, it comes from aboye that is from God. Job understood it when he said: "There is in man a spirit, and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding", this wisdom brings us into communion with the Almighty. His Son, Jesus Christ, becomes our teacher who spake as never man spake and his spirit leads us into all truth. This wisdom is to be sought after as man seeketh goodly pearls. "Seek" ye the Lord while He may be found, call upon him while He is near" says the prophet. "Let the wicked forsake his way and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him turn to the Lord who will haye mercy upon him and to our God, who will abundantly pardon him". Knowledge is power and wisdom applies it to the highest and most noble purposes. Education coupled with this wisdom will prolenq our days, gives happiness, riches and honor. Education alone can never take away our depraved nature, nor make us new creatures in Christ Jesus. Education alone can not protect us from the tempations and evil all about us. Many an educated man has shortened his days by fast liying, licentionsness and strong drinks made shipwreck of life, when if he had given heed to the teachings of the Bible he might have liyed to a good oln age, and been a bright and shining light in the world. The text says: "In her right hand is length of days." Whoeyer knows the law of health and obserys the restraints of aChristian life will prolong his days on earth and extend it through all eternity. "In her left hand are riches and honor" Riches that are better than silver or gold, or rubies, riches that moth and rust cannot corrupt, riches that thieyes cannot steal, treasures in heaven. Honor, greater than men can confer, crowns of glory, palms of yictory, brings and priests unto God for eyer.

A BIT OF LIFE.

CLARA F. DENTON.

A maiden sat within the door
And sang as many times before.
A man who to daily toil passed by,
No love nor pleasure lit his eye.
But when he herd that merry song
He whistled as he went along.

A woman by the window wept
For one who in the churchyard slept.
But when upon her hearing fell
That time she knew and loyed so well
The flood of burning tears was stayed
And soon a song her lips essayed.

Her neighbor heard the tender strain,
And softly joined the sweet refrain.
Thus all day long that one song bore
Its joyousness from door to door.

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

More than twenty years' practice in answering the questions of inventors and owners of patents have given C. A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C. remarkable facility in this line as may be seen from a little book they have sent us, and which they will send free to any address. In this pamphlet, they have anticipated and answered about every question inventors have invented, and that is saying a good deal.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 28, 1897.

The gag rule of the caucus has been applied to republican Senators in order to hide their tarriff differences from the public. They must do all their kicking before the steering committee with the privilege of appealing to the caucus when the committee decides against them, but they must follow the committee on the floor of the Senate. It remains to be seen whether this gag rule can be made to work.

One of the most notable things about the opening of the tariff debate was the republican acknowledgement that, instead of the prosperity they promised, the business of the country was in an awful condition. Of course they claim that everything will boom after the tariff becomes a law.

Havemeyer, the King of the sugar trust, is now being tried for contempt, for refusing to answer questions asked by a Senate Committee. The trial attracts a crowd daily.

Senator Vest opened his short tariff speech by saying: "There will be no factious opposition to the passage of this bill. We know the desperate condition of this country, the ruined homes, the blasted hearts. If prosperity can come, even from our political opponents, we will not only welcome it, but we will bless the moment when it comes; but I do not believe that higher tariff duties will bring back the sunshine and illumine the country," and closed with the following: "If our friends can bring relief, if they can shed light upon our darkened path, I will hail it no matter in whose hands may be held the lamp. Give us prosperity; relieve the people. Put blood again in the veins of the torpid country. Do this and I will accept the boon, no matter whence it comes."

In proposing the tariff amendment providing for a bounty on agricultural exports Senator Cannon, of Utah, took occasion to utter this significant threat: "If the bill shall fail to give some measure of justice to the farmer, I shall do all in my power to overthrow it at the first opportunity".

Representative Lentz, of Ohio who is willing to be the democratic candidate for governor, says of the outlook; "The democratic chances for carrying the state could hardly be bettered. Unless the wrong man is put at the head of the ticket, the democrats, with the aid of the populists and free silver republicans, will, in my judgement, easily beat Mark Hanna and the administration. It will be a case of a political avalanche sweeping them off the face of the political sphere. The republicans had a bitter dose to defeat at the spring elections, but that wasn't a circumstance to the bitter pill they will swallow this fall."

An important conference was held in Washington this week, those in attendance being President Black, Treasurer Clark, Secretary Gardner, and Representative McMillin, Chairman of the executive committee, of the National Association of Democratic Clubs. The conferance was held to arrange the details for carrying out the plan adopted by the executive committee of the association at its meeting last month, relative to a thorough organizatinn of the democratic clubs through the country, work will be started at once in Maryland, New Jersey, Virginia, Iowa and Massachusetts. those states receiving the first attention because they are to hold important elections this year.

The promotion of Representative McLaurin to the Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Senator, was highly pleasing to the democrats in Congress with whom Senator McLaurin is deservidly popular.

The choicest bite handed out this week by Mr. McKinley was grabbed up by an "ex", as usual, ex-Congressman and ex-Minister to Brazil conger, of Iowa, being again nominated to fill the last named position. Mr. conger served in congress with Mr. McKinley, like so many of the others who have been provided for.

The friends of cuba feel that they have been bunceed by the administration, and they are disposed to hold Mr. McKinley responsible. It is true that he did not personally make any promises, but promises were made by those who came so near to claiming to speak for him as it was possible without actually doing so, that it was the intention of Mr. McKinley to speedily put into operation his policy, which the speakers declar would make cuba independent. Those promises secured pledges from the republican members of the House that that they would aid in preventing the Senate belligereney resolution from being brought before the House until Mr. McKinley had been given ample time to do something. Now it is ascertained that it may be weeks, even months, before Mr. McKinley acts upon the policy which he has in mind, if he really has one in mind.

"A pretty old trio that," remarked a Farmington (Me.) man as two gentlemen, aged 94 and 82 years respectively, rode behind a horse that had seen 34 summers.

A good many people have been talking and writing about "marriage a failure," but it is to be observed that the list of men who have more than one wife seems to be increasing.

It is estimated that foreign immigration to the United States will be 100,000 less than in 1896. The agitation against the more undesirable class of immigrants has largely reduced it.

Europe is just beginning to appreciate the value of American corn for bread. Since the beginning of the year, the United States has exported 76,000,000 bushels of corn, and more going.

It is safer to travel in England than to stay at home. Out of 930,000,000 passengers carried by the railroads of Great Britain last year, 386 were killed, while 586 were killed in London by falling from buildings and out of windows.

The extent of the swindle perpetrated upon English and French investors in South African mining shares is suggested by the fact that in 1895 41 mining companies sold at a valuation of $610,000,000, and the present valuation of these mines is $215,000,000—a decline of 65 per cent. in 18 months.

A subscriber of the Murfreesboro (Tenn.) News writes to the editor explaining why he was compelled to discontinue his paper. He says he likes the paper, but really has no time to read it; that his wife died last week, and he has had to do his own work ever since; but as soon as he marries again he will renew his subscription.

Military men claim to have made the curious discovery that the most powerful modern guns do not send a shot through an embankment of sand 30 feet thick. The projectile, following the line of least resistance, curves upward through the sand and is rendered harmless. If the theory is confirmed coast defense will be cheap and easy.

Statistics do not bear out the assertion that machinery is detrimental to labor. In no industry, perhaps, has machinery been so largely introduced as in the making of shoes. Yet, according to the figures of the census, 885,000 people were employed in this industry in New England in 1890, against 313,000 in 1860, while the average wages per capita have risen from $246 to $409.

A great many men resolve to take time to enjoy home and domestic life and practice the humanities as soon as they can get rich. But when that time has been reached they find that the bent of mind and their lives have made the carrying out of the resolve wholly impracticable. "Waiting until they were rich" has hopelessly wrecked the happiness of millions. The moral is plain—don't do it.

Workmen have begun to remove one of the historic landmarks of New York city, the Tombs prison. This remarkable structure, built in the Egyptian style of architecture, is one of the city's most noted sights. It has sheltered nearly all of the great criminals of the country at some time or other, and its massive walls could tell wondrous tales of crime and misery were they supplied with tongues as well as ears.

If results of scientific research be accepted, it is doubtful if the Noachian deluge caused as much damage to property as the floods this spring in the Mississippi valley. The losses in the states of Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas alone are estimated at $10,000,000. While the figures in such a disaster represent a rough computation, and must include indirect as well as direct damage, there is little reason to challenge the count. The flood has passed, but possibilities of repetition are too strong to permit abatement of the inquiry into the best means of prevention.

The Japanese are disappointed because they have not been allowed to reap the fruits of their war industry. The big indemnity received from China and the cession of the island of Formosa failed to satisfy them. What they most desired was control of Korea, and that they have thus far failed to secure. Japan is indignant at Russia because of the latter nation's power in Korea, and jealous of the United States because an American syndicate has received the contract to build the first railways in the hermit kingdom. Both politically and commercially the Japanese seem to be playing second fiddle.

In addition to fresh American meats and fresh American fruits the people of London now have the advantage of getting American game and poultry sent over in a frozen state and sold in the markets at from six to nine pence per pound. This industry, which was only started a few months ago, has proved wonderfully successful, and the birds are said to be received in fine condition. The Londoners are said to be very fond of a certain class of American game, which they are now enjoying at home for the first time. Some of our American fish unknown to English palates, might also be exported profitably.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

Good progress was made in the United States senate on the 26th in the consideration of the tariff bill by schedules, and on a test vote over a motion to reduce the duty on a certain article the friends of the measure were sustained by a vote of 34 to 20. Seven paragraphs of the bill were considered during the day, the committee being sustained in each instance. The house was not in session.

The final conference report on the sundry civil bill was agreed to in the United States senate on the 27th. This involves the suspension until March 1 next of the forest reserve proclamation. Ten pages of the tariff bill were disposed of. In the house bills were introduced to exclude from the mails all matter emanating from commercial agencies which publish business ratings and carry on collections, and to tax business corporations such as oil companies, iron and steel railways and street railways, banks, stock exchanges and glass, wool, silk, paper, leather and sugar manufacturing. The house adjourned to the 31st.

Considerable progress was made on the tariff bill in the United States senate on the 28th, 15 pages being covered. Several votes were taken during the day, but the finance committee had a liberal majority in every instance. Senator Tillman (S. C.) presented a resolution for the appointment of a special committee of five senators to investigate charges of speculation by senators while the tariff bill was before the finance committee. It was referred to the committee on contingent expenses. The house was not in session.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVED.

Time's Inroads Upon Ranks of War Veterans Plainly Shown.

Washington, June 1.—Memorial day was generally observed in Washington. The senate adjourned over for the day and the house held only a 15-minute session. All the departments and business houses were closed, and the day was given up to patriotic observance and tributes to the heroic dead. At ten o'clock there was an impressive parade of the G. A. R. and other patriotic organizations, which broke up at 11 o'clock, the several posts holding memorial exercises in the various cemeteries.

The most imposing ceremonies were held at the national cemetery at Arlington, on the Virginia side of the Potomac, which was before the war the magnificent estate of Robert E. Lee, the confederate chieftain. Here bivouac almost 35,000 of the nation's dead, 2,000 whose identity will never be known being buried in a single grave. Among the most famous of the heroes buried beneath the spreading oaks and elms are Gen. Sheridan, the great cavalry leader; Admiral Porter, the hero of Mobile; Brig. Gen. Harney and Gen. Ricketts. A noticeable feature of the exercises here was the great inroads the past few years had made in the ranks of the veterans. In several instances the bands outnumbered the posts they were escorting.

Springfield, Ill., June 1.—Decoration day was observed here with great interest. Federal, state and city and many business places were closed during the day. The exercises at Oak Ridge cemetery and the tomb of Lincoln were interesting and attended by thousands. The parade was long. Hundreds of the grand army and sons of veterans were in line. Military exercises were held over graves of dead soldiers.

St. Louis, June 1.—Decoration day here this year received practically a double celebration. The memorial sermons and other exercises of literary character were mostly held on Sunday. Monday, being the legal holiday, was reserved for the grand army parade and the decoration services proper. The latter included the grand army demonstrations at the cemeteries and at Jefferson Barracks, and appropriate ceremonies by the regular army troops in connection with the veterans at the national cemeteries. There was general suspension of business, banks, public offices and commercial houses being closed. The parade was not large, but interesting, and the fact that the ranks of the G. A. R. are becoming decimated more and more as each year goes by was plainly evident to the thousands who viewed the procession.

Cincinnati, June 1.—Monday's demonstration presented the greatest seen here. It took an hour in passing. On both sides of Fourth street the girls of the schools were ranged to witness the parade. They were all provided with small flags. The passing of the gray-haired and tottering veterans, bearing with stern pride their cherished battle flags, was to these children a lesson in patriotism not soon to be forgotten. Following them came the battalions of boys, with boys' drum bands and flags without number. The decoration of graves was observed at Spring Grove cemetery in the usual manner.

Boston, June 1.—Decoration day of this year was of particular significance on account of the unveiling and dedication of the elaborate memorial structure on Boston common, erected in honor of Col. John Robert Gould Shaw, of the Fifty-fourth Massachusetts regiment, and the brave black men who comprised his followers and who fell with their colonel in the assault upon Fort Wagner, S. C., July 18, 1863. The parade included the Massachusetts militiamen with the famous Seventh New York regiment as well as the marines from the government vessels, New York, Massachusetts and Texas, which had been ordered to Boston for the occasion.

Jackson, Miss., June 1.—A special from Vicksburg, Miss., says: An immense assembly joined in the ceremonies of Decoration day at the national cemetery Monday. In accordance with a custom of years a delegation of confederate veterans took offerings of flowers to the cemetery in the afternoon and scattered them over the graves.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 1.—The graves of the 14,000 union soldiers buried in the national cemetery at this place were decorated Monday with elaborate ceremonies. Capt. J. H. MacGowan, of Washington, delivered the annual oration. An immense throng of people was present.

Monument Unveiled.

West Point, N. Y., June 1.—In the presence of 5,000 people, the secretary of war and many high officials of the army, the battle monument erected by their comrades in honor of the officers and soldiers of the regular army who fell in battle in the civil war was dedicated Monday. Among those who occupied seats on the speakers' stand were Secretary Alger, Gen. Merritt, Gen. Ruggle, Gen. Franklin, Gen. Butterfield, Gen. Stanton, Paymaster General Viele, Gen. Saxton and Gen. James Longstreet. The exercises opened with an invocation by Chaplain Shipman, which he prefaced with the recitation of the Lord's Prayer, those in the pavillion joining. Then followed the presentation of the monument to the United States army by Brig. Gen. John M. Wilson, chief of the engineers, U. S. A.

Banker Gets Ten Years.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—John F. Johnson, late president and cashier of the State national bank of Logansport, was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment in the Ohio state penitentiary at ten o'clock in the morning, Thursday, by Judge Baker, of the United States court for the district of Indiana. There was no sensation, and Johnson received the words of the judge without a tremor, and Mrs. Johnson, who was present in the courtroom, listened to the sentence without emotion. By counting off good time Johnson will have to serve about seven years. Johnson pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with wrecking the Logansport bank. These indictments practically include every section of the national banking law.

Wintry Weather.

St. Paul, Minn., June 1.—Frost is generally reported throughout the northwest, with scattering reports of snow and a hard freeze. Considerable damage to vegetables and small fruit is feared.

HOW TRADE IMPROVES.

Dun Sees Slow But Steady Gain—Bradstreet Disappointed.

New York, May 29.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"People are actually doing more business than they realize. They reckon by values, but these are much lower than in any previous year of prosperity, and leave little margin for profits. In quantity, there is almost as much business being done as in the years of greatest prosperity, and though the increase in population would call for a material expansion, the comparison is not discouraging. The recovery is slow, hesitating and gradual, but more has been done on the whole in May than in April, while returns of April showed the volume of business only ten per cent. smaller than that of the best year heretofore. Yet hesitation is doing its work every week, and multitudes are waiting because of possibilities at Washington, who ought to be filling the demand for labor and the products of labor.

"Events have proved that the crop of wheat going out is much larger than any of the markets expected, and western receipts for the week were 20 per cent. larger than last year, while Atlantic exports have been for four weeks 6,315,329 bushels, flour included, against 4,988,777 last year. Besides the outgo of corn largely taking the place of wheat in foreign consumption is far beyond precedent or expectation, and for four weeks has been 9,360,091, against 6,001,985 last year. With liberal interior supplies the price has declined a fraction. Cotton is unchanged, although at this season exports were insignificant.

"The iron manufacture gains in spite of the closing of some furnaces. The production of pig exceeds consumption, and is somewhat decreasing, while the consumption has gradually gained, this week, in part because of several structural contracts, and in part because the agricultural implements works have made larger demands, and also because of the proposed leasing of nearly all the rod mills in the country, which has caused some buying.

"Failures for the week have been 214 in the United States, the smallest in any week since September, 1895, against 239 last year, and 22 in Canada, against 20 last year."

Bradstreet's says:

"Results of the spring trade in staples, which is now over, are disappointing. The volume of seasonable merchandise distributed is less than expected, without taking into account an improvement in business compared with a year ago. Nearly all central, western and southern trade centers report business very quiet. Dry goods continue depressed, cotton products selling with difficulty, some varieties only on concession.

"The more favorable features are relative activity among woolen goods manufacturers who are working on old orders; improved demand for shoes and leather; a continuance of the comparative activity on the general demand at Savannah, Memphis, St. Louis, Omaha, Sioux Falls, Minneapolis and St. Paul, the better demand for lumber at the west, and in the trade outlook in Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas. Increased exports are reported from Pacific coast ports, but there is comparatively little gain in domestic trade here, except in cattle, wool and hardware at Portland."

HAD LITTLE WARNING.

Terrible Disaster to a Party of Merry Excursionists.

New York, June 1.—Five young people were killed and a number of others injured in an accident which occurred Monday afternoon at Valley Spring, L. I. A tallyho with a party of 21 excursionists from the Green Avenue Baptist church, Brooklyn, which started out for a day's outing through Long Island was struck by a train on the Long Island railroad at the Merrick boulevard crossing, and these were instantly killed:

George F. Fashley, Jr., 824 Halsey street, Brooklyn; William Gilchrist, Jr., 233 Rutledge street, Brooklyn; Winslow Lewis, DeKalb avenue, Brooklyn; Lester E. Roberts, Monroe street, Brooklyn; Miss Dora Burtsch, Stuyvesant avenue, Brooklyn. The injured were:

Emma Bruge, skull fractured; Clara Stuart, skull fractured; Mrs. Annie Andrews, both legs broken; Lawrence Barnes, scalp wound; Walter Wellbrock, both thighs fractured; John Lewis, bruises; Edward McCormick, driver of the coach, badly injured; Earl Barnes, slighty injured; Miss Pashley, back broken; Tillie Horn, severe shock; Edna Bulger, severe shock; Richard Bates, scalp wound; Bessie Gilson, scalp wound; Miss Debettes, leg broken and head injured; Miss Ray Stillman, badly injured.

The crash came almost without warning and the occupants of the coach had no time to make any effort to escape. Before the most of them knew of the impending danger the train was upon them, the coach was upset and the engine pushing it along the rails, the dead and injured being cut and mangled beneath it. The train that struck the tallyho was bound east from Mineola. It was not running fast when the accident happened, and accounts differ as to whether the whistle was blown. It is also a matter of dispute whether the bell was being rung. It is claimed by some that it was, and that the merry party on the coach was making so much noise that the driver could not hear the bell.

FEELS A TREMOR.

Appalachian Mountain Region Shaken by Earthquake.

Washington, June 1.—A distinct but slight earthquake was experienced Monday afternoon throughout the South Atlantic and middle southern states. It is stated at the weather bureau that the direction of the wave was from south to north. The shock occurred as nearly as has been estimated at two o'clock. In some localities the time is given as 1:58 and in others as late as 2.10, and its duration was less than a minute. As far as can be learned, Savannah, Ga., was the furthest point south at which the tremor was felt, while the northern boundary of the wave was middle Maryland. West it was felt as far as Knoxville, Tenn. The disturbance seems to have been most severe in the Appalachian mountain region.

Two Young Texans in a Duel.

Sweet Home, Tex., May 31.—The neighborhood was assembled at Salem church, eight miles from here, on Saturday, in observance of Decoration day. Two young men, Will Lewis and Wit Bosworth, were among the number. Bad blood existed between them, too much talk being the cause. They walked away from the crowd together and stopped after going some distance, appearing to talk the matter over very calmly. One turned as if to leave, when the other drew a revolver. The other wheeled and both fired about the same instant and continued until their revolvers were empty. Both were dead when their friends got to them.

Playing Chess by Cable.

Washington, June 1.—An Englishman won the first game of the internation chess match by cable between the teams of the house of representatives and the house of commons, which began Monday. On the 16th move Mr. Pearson resigned to Mr. Plunkett. Before the players began greetings were exchanged between the speaker of the house of commons and the speaker of the house of representatives and between the United States ambassador and the British ambassador.

He Disliked Egotism.

"What is the matter with you?" asked the wife of the peculiar man.

"I'm feeling lonely," was the reply.

"Don't you like this city?"

"I don't like this earth."

"What's the objection to it?"

"People are too egotistical. If there's anything I hate it's egotism. And when I see kings going ahead confidently and doing things wrong, and diplomatists trying all sorts of insincere tricks with complete effrontery, and lawyers seeking applause for arguing on the wrong side of a case, and everybody displaying utter selfishness without a blush, I am forced to the conviction that I am the only consistent, high-toned and moral gentleman on this globe. And it makes me feel lonely."—Washington Star.

In the Department Store.

Customer (who has purchased a pair of kid gloves)—They will do very well, though they are a trifle large.

Saleswoman—But then, your hands are so small! Is there anything else?

"Yes; there are a few things I wanted. Let me see—oh, yes; a gallon of molasses, a pound of tenpenny nails and a hindquarter of lamb."

"Will you take them with you or have them sent?"

"Perhaps you may as well send them, as I am not going directly home."—Boston Transcript.

His Sad Fix.

"Yes, sir, I repeat that in my opinion Jonathan Doxey is a ruined man, and that he is merely keeping up appearances in order to try to find some way of getting out of his present difficulties."

"You surprise me! What has led you to this conclusion?"

"I asked him for his daughter's hand in marriage yesterday, and he gave his consent without a murmur. What would you do if you were in my place—run away, or stay here and try to live it down?"—Cleveland Leader.

It Meant Something.

"Now," said the fussy old gentleman, putting one of the biggest berries in his mouth and picking up another, "what is the sense of having that sign read 'fresh strawberries for sale?' Don't you know that 'fresh strawberries' would be enough? Don't you suppose everybody knows they are for sale?"

"I dunno," answered the grocer. "Some folks seem to think I am givin' them away," and then the old gentleman put the berry back in the box.—Indianapolis Journal.

Impressing Him.

"Well, you had quite a siege with that real estate agent. I never saw a man gesticulate so violently. What ailed him?"

"Oh, the fellow has just heard of that German professor's theory that the Garden of Eden was located in the United States, and now he claims that he has seen the impression of Adam's fall on a rock in the neighborhood of the land he had to sell."—Jester.

The Expert's Quandary.

Paulpry—I hear that you have made a careful examination of the blood stains found at Badlot's barn. What do you make of them?

Serum (an expert)—It is impossible for me to say just at present whether the stains are human blood or the blood of a horse. You see, I may be engaged by the government, and I may be engaged by the defense.—Boston Transcript.

Excursion to Free Homes in the Canadian Northwest.

Those who are paying rent or carrying mortgages, or young men without prospects of getting a home where land is high in price, should note that the Canadian Government has a large area of fine farming land which it gives to persons over 18 years of age. Soil produces all staple crops. Climate similar to this. Good stock and dairy country. An excursion will leave St. Paul and Minneapolis, Wednesday, June 23, 1897, and monthly thereafter, to examine these lands. Don't be misled about far-away places you know nothing about, but select while the chance is open a FREE FARM OF 160 ACRES, to which the railway fare is low and will not eat up a large share of your capital. Rising at morning or evening from some lowland, often carries in its folds the seeds of malaria. Where malarial fever prevails no one is safe, unless protected by some efficient medicinal safeguard. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is both a protection and a remedy. No person who inhabits, or sojourns in a miasmatic region or country, should omit to procure this fortifying agent, which is also the finest known remedy for dyspepsia, constipation, kidney trouble and rheumatism.

A SOCIAL LESSON.

"I never can forgive Caleb Bradford—never!"

So spoke George Stanton, as he rested his hands firmly upon his knees, and shook his head with that slow, emphatic motion which denotes a strong effort of the will.

Near by him sat his sister Eliza. George was young—only twenty-five—while Eliza was forty. She was a widow, and had returned to the old home for a season, where her younger brother held possession.

"I mean it," the young man added, when he noticed how curiously his sister regarded him—and he closed his hands upon his knees as though he would fortify his resolution.

"I thought he was one of your most intimate friends."

"He has been."

"And I thought he had loved you and that you had loved him."

"I have loved him," said George. He spoke quite feelingly, though a little petulantly.

"Then tell me what Caleb can have done that should thus affect you," urged Eliza.

"He has trampled upon me—he has abused my confidence—he has proved treacherous!" cried the youth, growing indignant with his own warmth of feeling.

"But what has he done?" asked the sister, in the same quiet tone.

"I asked him to lend me his span of horses to take Clara and the baby over to Winfield, and he told me they were not fit to drive. Of course, I should have thought nothing of this; but on the evening of that very day he lent the team to John Jackson; and when I spoke to him about it he rather intimated that it was none of my business to question his motives."

"In all probability," suggested Eliza, "when you spoke to Caleb on the subject you did not speak very kindly."

"I don't know about that," said George, with a nod of the head.

"I can guess pretty nearly how you spoke," the sister rejoined.

"Never mind," said the youth. "It is enough for me to know what transpired. I want nothing more to do with him. My mind is made up to that."

"You'll forget all this in a little while, George."

"You think so, do you?"

"I know it."

"Then I hope you'll watch patiently for the result."

"There is no need of my watching very narrowly, for it will come soon enough."

George seemed at first inclined to be very indignant at being thus doubted: but when he met the calm look of his sister, so full of reason and confidence, he curbed his impatience.

"Eliza," he said, quite earnestly, "do you think I don't know what to say?"

"Oh, you know that well enough; and you know what you mean, too," replied the sister, with a smile. "But," she added, "you don't quite know your own soul yet."

"What do you mean by that?"

"I'll tell you at some future time."

"Tell me now."

"No, not now, George; but I may tell you in a few days."

"I suppose you will tell me something wonderful." This was spoken in a tone which was intended for a very sarcastic one. But the sister smiled, and shook her head, and said:

"I shall not aim to give you any dangerous shock, my brother, but only to help your own reason. However, we won't say any more now, for I must help in the kitchen."

George went away shaking his head, and inwardly declaring that he would never forgive Caleb Bradford in the world, while Eliza went smiling and nodding, for she felt that she knew her brother better than he knew himself.

It was something new for George Stanton to carry enmity in his bosom—and especially enmity against one whom he had loved so well. As such a state was not natural to him it became necessary to the continuance of the enmity that he should nourish it, and in doing this he robbed his own soul of its joys. Twice he met Caleb Bradford, but he would not speak to him. In the evening he was careful to avoid every place where Caleb was in the habit of calling; so that, by the time he reached his home, he began to feel troubled. He almost wished that his old friend would come and see him and ask to make up; but he could not take the initiatory step himself—oh, no.

On the afternoon of the third day Eliza saw her brother in the parlor.

"Well," she said, at the same time laying her hand upon his arm, "how do you prosper?"

"What do you mean, Eliza?"

"How do you come on with your hatred of Caleb Bradford?"

"Hatred? I do not hate him."

"Ah! I thought that by this time you would have come to hate him with a perfect hatred."

"You needn't try to play with me in that way, Eliza. I know what you mean. You are mistaken if you think I am a fool."

"Pooh, George—why do you speak so to me?" And as the sister said this she took her brother's hand and looked up into his face with a kindly smile. "Come—let us reason. Do not try to hide a feeling or a thought from me, for I know something of your nature, and I think I know pretty well how your heart beats. Now, tell me, is it not very unpleasant to be at enmity with Caleb Bradford?"

George did not hesitate long, for he had confidence in his sister, and he knew, moreover, that she could read his feelings about as well as he could tell them. And, furthermore, she had been as a mother to him, in love and care, for several years, so he yielded much to her on that account.

"Of course, it is unpleasant," he said.

"Then why do you bear it?" asked the sister.

"Because I cannot help it," returned George.

"Yes, you can help it. A word from you will heal all. Why should you suffer, then?"

"Ah!" replied the young man, very philosophically, "there are some duties in life which are by no means pleasant ones."

"And you think this hatred of your friend is one of them?"

"He is no friend of mine—he is a friend no longer."

"He is the same man you have loved so long, and his heart has not varied in its instincts or its affections."

"Still, he has wronged me," returned George.

"How many times?"

The young man looked up with a puzzled expression.

"How many times?" he repeated. "Why, he has proved false, and that is enough."

Eliza looked at her brother a few moments, and then said, in a tone and with an expression of love and kindness:

"My dear brother, I wish you would listen to me one moment, for I want to give you a lesson in social life which may be of advantage to you. You know I would not tease you, and that I would only speak for your benefit. You certainly feel that."

"Of course, I do," responded the youth.

"Then you will be free and sincere, and answer me after the dictates of your own instincts?"

"Yes."

"Thank you, brother. And now, just tell me this: How many deeds of kindness and love has Caleb Bradford done toward you?"

George was silent.

"Have they not been many?" pursued the sister.

"Why—yes—I suppose they have," the young man finally answered, with some reluctance.

"Aye," added Eliza, warmly, "I know they have. I know that for much of your joy you have been indebted to him, and that he has loved you well and truly. He has done this for years—for long years he has been true and faithful, has he not?"

"Yes."

"And now—how much evil has he done you? How many deeds has he done to harm you?"

George did not answer.

"I shall have to speak for you," Eliza said, speaking with more earnestness as she proceeded. "Just think of it! Allowing that Caleb has done all that you accuse him of having done, and what does it amount to? To just this: He has given you ten thousand blessings, and with them has come one little deed of evil.

"You have a splendid watch which your father gave you, and I know that you value it highly. Suppose it should stop, would you throw it away?"

"WELL, HOW DO YOU PROSPER?"

"Of course not," said George.

"No," added Eliza, "you would say—here, the watch has been faithful for years, and I think its nature is so to be. This must be the result of some accident. And you would take your watch to a watchmaker, and he might find a little piece of dirt lodged amid the delicate machinery; and you would have the dirt removed, and the watch would run as before, and you would trust it as of old.

"Need I say any more? I will, however, say this: Take counsel of your nobler instincts, and make yourself as happy as you can in the path of right."

With these words Eliza arose and left the room, and George was left alone. Awhile he sat upon the sofa, with his head bent, and then he got up and paced the floor a few minutes. It did not take him long to understand what his sister meant, nor did it take long for him to discover and appreciate its truth; he did this as she spoke, for it had appealed to the judgment of his own soul. He only stopped to consider how he should meet Caleb Bradford, and at length he had decided that point.

That very morning, as George stepped out from the post office, he saw Caleb Bradford coming up the street. He had made up his mind and he would not flinch. He meant to try the experiment at any rate. So, as his old friend came up, he put forth his hand and smiled. Caleb grasped it in a moment, and smiled in return.

"We won't explain now," said George, shaking the hand he held warmly.

"No," replied Caleb, with the same heartiness in his grasp.

Aye—for their hearts were as true and warm as ever, and their instincts as safe and sure—only a little mote in the sunbeam—a little bit of dirt in one of the fine wheels, so that the tiny cogs got choked and stopped—that was all. And when this was removed the two men were happy as ever, and the delicate, sensitive structure of friendship between them was free again and perfect.

A Sharp Lawyer.

An English solicitor had among his clients a few years ago a broker who, through slippery financiering, came to grief. One day, happening to pass by a stationer's shop, his attention was attracted by the photograph of a well-known barrister in wig and gown, and holding in his hand a paper, on which the solicitor's sharp eye caught the name of his client. His curiosity aroused, he purchased the photo and proceeded to read the brief with the aid of a magnifying glass. He soon discovered that it indicated that a warrant was out for the arrest of his client. This was enough for the lawyer, and in a few hours the broker was out of England.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Too Light a Sentence.

George White and wife, of Blooming Prairie, were convicted in the municipal court of cruelly treating Willie Litteg, a half brother of Mrs. White, 8 years old. His parents live at Aurora Park, Chicago. He was brought West last fall, and ever since has been the victim of cruelty at the hands of White and his wife. The complaint was made by the officers of the school district.

The testimony showed that they had for some trivial delinquencies or failures to do what they required of him, punished him in the most cruel manner. They filled his mouth with paper and set fire to it; beat him with an iron poker, after a heavy club had been broken; made him sleep in straw stacks night after night in the coldest weather last winter, so that his feet were badly frozen. Three toes on one foot and the great toe on the other having already come off, making him a cripple for life. His hands are badly swollen from being compelled to milk six cows a day, and he was punished if he failed to thoroughly milk them.

The court gave them the maximum punishment, $100 each and costs, $36.74. They raised the money. The boy was sent to the state public school for the present.

They Must Pay.

The supreme court declared valid the law of 1893 authorizing the governor to appoint a special appraiser to appraise lands or other property in any county when the people by petition stated it to be their belief that property had been undervalued by the assessors.

The effect of this decision is that the Weyerhausers, Morton D. Hull & Co., and the Winona Iron company, as well as other owners of pine lands will have to submit to an increase of about 100 per cent in the taxes on their pine land holdings in Itasca county, and that they will have to pay the state the difference between the value at which the lands were assessed and their real value from 1888 up to date.

Old Settlers.

The Minnesota Territorial Pioneers was the name adopted by the old settlers. It had previously been the intention of calling the organization "The Old Time Boys of Territorial Days," but this was not considered sufficiently dignified. The meeting was held at the Merchants hotel, St. Paul, and was followed by a badquet. The purpose of the organization is to perpetuate the memories and friendships of old days. A constitution and bylaws was adopted, and the following officers were elected: President, Alvaren Allen; first vice president, William E. Lee; second vice president, H. S. Fairchild; secretary, W. H. Hoyt; treasurer, John A. Stees.

The Money Divided.

The commission appointed to divide the $10,000 for the relief of the sufferers by the flood in the Red River of the North in all the Minnesota counties where such loss was sustained, has apportioned the relief money as follows: Clay and Norman counties, $500; Polk, $3,280; Marshall, $3,075; Kittson, $3,145. The expenditure of the amount from each county was left in the hands of the commissioners, who will draw vouchers, properly attested, in each case. It will be noticed that Clay and Norman counties jointly have been awarded $500. It is not probable that Clay will receive much of this, in view of the prior act, which gave Moorhead $5,000.

Good Sales.

The third sale held by the Minneapolis Dairy Board of Trade was a great sucess, the best ever held in the state. Butter was the chief article disposed of, 436 tubs, aggregating 26,000 pounds, being taken, principally by eastern buyers. The price secured was 14 cents. In view of the fact that 15 cents is secured in New York, this is a great saving to Minnesota dairymen, as the freight to that point amounted to more than 2 cents a pound.

Got Into the Army.

Wm. Nelson, a young Dane who has been living in Jackson county for about five years, took a trip to the old country last fall, and on his arrival he was immediately picked up and put in the army. He at once wrote a friend about it, and Congressman McCleary secured for the traveler a passport, and he is now back in New York.

Orders Coming Fast.

Warden Wolfer fears the prison will be unable to supply all binder twine ordered this season. Orders are coming in at a rapid rate and bookings to date represent 120 cars. The factory is running over time, and by the first of July will have nearly 2,000 tons on hand.

HOW TO ROAST BEEF

Temperature of the Oven—A Prime Pot Roast.

When beef is to be roasted it should be placed in a very hot oven at first, so that the surface will be quickly browned, thus making a coating by which the juices of the meat will all be retained. The temperature of the oven should then be lowered and the meat cooked slowly and be frequently basted, unless it is in a covered pan. The time allowed for roasting a large piece of beef is usually 12 minutes for every pound and 12 minutes for the pan.

To prepare a piece of beef for roasting do not wash it, but wipe it off with a damp cloth. Place it in the baking pan, rub some beef drippings over the top and dredge the top and sides with flour. Put in the pan a couple of spoonfuls of drippings. Water should not be added if you wish the roast to be a nice brown, and do not add the salt and pepper to the pan until after the surface of the meat has been well browned. Remember that after the first 20 minutes roast beef requires a moderate oven and baste the meat frequently with its own drippings from the pan. If there is danger of the gravy growing too brown or cooking away, a little beef stock may be added to the pan, and frequently a gill of cooking wine is added to the pan in the last 20 minutes of cooking, giving the gravy a delicious flavor.

When the roast is sufficiently cooked remove it to a heated platter and make the gravy. First turn off the top grease from the liquid in the pan, and if there is not sufficient liquid left add a little stock. Lightly dredge the pan with flour and stir over a hot fire. Season with a spoonful of some sauce and more salt and pepper, if needed. Strain into a heated gravy boat and serve.

For a pot roast, get a short, thick piece of the cross rib of the beef and lard it with little strips of clear, fat pork. Put the pot in which the meat is to be cooked over the fire, and when it becomes hot put in the beef and brown it, turning the meat until every side is browned. Add half a dozen little onions, two tablespoonfuls of tomatoes, a bay leaf, a little chopped parsley, three cloves, a dozen whole black peppers, two garlic buds and a cup of starch. Place the pot where the meat will just steam and the liquid simmer for three hours, keeping the pot closely covered. One hour before serving add two carrots, sliced thin, and another cup of stock, if it is needed. Remove the meat when done to a heated platter and season the sauce with salt and pepper and a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and rub it through a coarse sieve. Pour the sauce around the meat.—N. Y. Sun.

IT WAS EASY TO DO OVER.

How Her Husband's Desk Was Transformed Into a Sideboard.

A suburban woman is obliged to endure the gibes and jeers of her family without retaliation because of her credulous faith in a suburban cabinetmaker. An heirloom on the husband's side was an old-fashioned mahogany desk of more curious than artistic make. It was useless as a desk and not pretty as a piece of old bric-a-brac, so when an idea for its evolution came to her she was doubly pleased. She consulted the suburban cabinetmaker, who pronounced her plan entirely feasible and announced himself willing to carry it out before she broached it to her husband.

"Make a buffet, or serving sideboard, out of my great-grandfather's desk!" repeated he, when it was broached. "It can't be done, my dear, and I hate to have it touched, too."

"But you don't like it," now coaxed the wife, "and the cabinetmaker says it will be very easy to do over. It will be the desk slightly enlarged, that is all. The lovely doors will be set under the shelf as panels and those graceful columns will stand out in added beauty as front supports. He will have to add a little wood and introduce a mirror, but all the choice mahogany of the desk will be preserved and show much more effectively."

In the end he was persuaded, and the desk was taken away. Some weeks passed, during which the wife made several visits of inspection to the cabinet shop, seeing parts of the work and acquiescing to various suggestions and additions to the original plan.

The evolved buffet was finally delivered one evening not long ago. Its own father would never have known it. There were six feet of sideboard against the former two of desk, and the original doors and columns were there, but that was all of the first piece of furniture, which had been built on and added to till it was stretched half way across the dining-room.

The wife turned pale, the husband groaned. "What have you done?" cried she.

"My lost great-grandfather's desk!" exclaimed the other.

The cabinet maker withdrew, after laying a folded paper upon the table. The husband rallied first and opened it. It was a bill for $85 for "work and wood furnished."—N. Y. Times.

Tomato Salad.

A most delicious tomato salad is made of raw tomatoes, peeled and chilled, and cut in thick slices. Mince fine a stalk of white celery for every slice of tomato; make a dressing of a saltspoonful of salt, half a saltspoonful of pepper, two wooden saladspoonfuls each of vinegar and oil. This quantity is sufficient for two heads of celery. Dip the slices of tomato in the dressing and heap each one with the chopped celery that has previously been dressed; or peel and chill the tomatoes, make them into little cups by scraping out the inside, and fill them with celery, cut in squares and dressed with French dressing or mayonnaise. Serve each tomato cup on a crisp leaf of pale green lettuce.—N. Y. Tribune.

New England Fish Cakes.

Pick fine, freshen and scald one pint of codfish; add to the fish one pint of hot mashed potatoes that have been beaten light and moistened with a very little hot milk; add a large piece of butter; season with a little dry mustard and a suspicion of cayenne pepper. Beat an egg light and mix with the other ingredients. Roll the mixture into balls or cakes and fry them in hot lard until a nice brown. — Boston Budget.

BITS OF VERSE.

The Perfect Trust.

There was a time
When all the world was circled in the clasp of mother's arm.
When one low word, one glance of hers had power to dispel harm.
Grief had no other symbol than her shadowed face and sighs;
Love's palace was her loving heart; God's throne was her dear eyes.

Oh, blessed time!
Life never found such perfect trust again in after years.
For close upon the steps of faith came troubled doubts and fears.
Love shared his throne with avarice, the heart was claimed by each,
God and His kingdom seemed too far for human thought to reach.

But over all
The sorrows and the sins of life is God's protecting arm.
An ark of safety where the soul may rest secure from harm.
The peace that blessed our childhood days may yet be ours to know,
For mother represented God in that sweet long ago.
—Rose Hartwick Thorpe, in Detroit Free Press.

My Robins.

Last fall, when the air was sharp with snow,
And leaves beginning to fly,
My robins decided they would go,
And chirped me a blithe good-by:

For somewhere down in the south, they said,
Was a country warm and fair,
And now that the flowers and leaves were dead,
They would seek for others there.

To-day my robins return once more,
Exultant, as exiles do,
And straightway peep through my open door,
And chirp me a "how-de-do."

And now they are out among my trees
Searching with eager quest,
And I make no doubt old friends like these
Will honor me with their nest.
—Frank H. Sweet, in N. Y. Observer.

The King's High Way.

The morning was bright when the country clown
Thus spake to a courtier just leaving the town:
"My lord, you enjoy the king's high way,
It is pleasant and easy and fair—"
But the courtier broke out: "That is easy to say,
But, young man, you are quite wrong there.
For when one has been told, without rhyme or reason,
He must do this or that—to refuse is high treason.
When one must never a question raise—
But sugar his tongue with words of praise,
Though snubbed, neglected, scorned, or scolded,
While all his will to another's is molded;
And if, after this, he gets the sack,
Is told to leave and never come back,
He knows how I've been treated to-day.
Oh, I've had quite enough of the king's high way."
—Rudolph F Bunner, in St. Nicholas.

PHYSICIANS BAFFLED.

Prof. R. S. Bowman, Instructor of Natural Science in Hartsville College, Cured of a Severe Illness by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People After Physicians Failed.

From the Republican, Columbus, Ind.

Prof. R. S. Bowman, the able instructor of natural science in the famous Hartsville (Ind.) College, is well and favorably known, not only as an educator, but also as a minister of the gospel, as for a number of years he was pastor of the United Brethren church at Charlotte, Mich., before coming to Hartsville.

PROF. R. S. BOWMAN.

Some time ago he had a severe illness which was cured almost miraculously. A reporter, hearing of this, interviewed him regarding his experience. Prof. Bowman was in the midst of his work when the reporter called, but he cheerfully gave him a hearing.

"A year ago last fall," said the professor, "I broke down with nervous exhaustion, and was unable to properly attend to my duties. I tried different physicians but with no relief, and also used many different proprietary medicines, spending almost fifty dollars for these medicines alone. I then succumbed to a siege of the grip in the middle of winter, and was left in a much worse condition. My kidneys were fearfully disordered, and my digestion became very poor. I was indeed in a bad condition.

"A minister in conference learning of my condition advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had heard much about the wonderful curative powers of this medicine, but it was with reluctance that I was finally persuaded to try it, as it seemed that nothing could do me any good. However, I procured three boxes of pills and took them strictly according to directions. By the time the last dose was taken I was almost cured, and in better health than I had been for years. I continued using the pills awhile longer and was entirely cured. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

Such was Professor Bowman's wonderful story, which was further endorsed by the following affidavit:

HARTSVILLE, Ind., March 16, 1897.

I affirm that the above accords with the facts in my case.

Motherhood.

A mother who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.

The child fairly drinks in health from its mother's robust constitution before birth, and from a healthy mother's milk after.

Is not that an incentive to prepare for a healthy maternity?

Do you know the meaning of what is popularly called those "longings," or cravings, which beset so many women during pregnancy?

There is something lacking in the mother's blood. Nature cries out and will be satisfied at all hazards.

One woman wants sour things, another wants sweets, another wants salt things, and so on.

The real need all the time is to enrich the blood so as to supply nourishment for another life, and to build up the entire generative system, so that the birth may be possible and successful.

If expectant mothers would fortify themselves with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for twenty years has sustained thousands of women in this condition, there would be fewer disappointments at birth, and they would not experience those annoying "longings."

In the following letter to Mrs. Pinkham, Mrs. Whitney demonstrates the power of the Compound in such cases. She says:

"From the time I was sixteen years old till I was twenty-three, I was troubled with weakness of the kidneys and terrible pains when my monthly periods came on. I made up my mind to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was soon relieved. After I was married, the doctor said I would never be able to go my full time and have a living child, as I was constitutionally weak. I had lost a baby at seven months and a half. The next time I commenced at once and continued to take your Compound through the period of pregnancy, and I said then, if I went my full time and the baby lived to be three months old, I should send a letter to you. My baby is now seven months old and is as healthy and hearty as one could wish.

"I am so thankful that I used your medicine, for it gave me the robust health to transmit to my child. I cannot express my gratitude to you; I never expected such a blessing. Praise God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and may others who are suffering do as I did and find relief, and may many homes be brightened as mine has been."—Mrs. L. Z. Whitney, 5 George St., E. Somerville, Mass.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JUNE 4, 1897.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—Geo. P. Schaffer's North Palace is nearly completed, all the brick being laid.

—A reception will be given in honor of the class of '97, by the Hige School, at the City Hall, June 7, at 8 P. M.

—Next Tuesday evening the graduating exercises of the Delano High School will take place at the City Hall. Everybody invited to be present.

—We understand that the Cricketts have been challenged by the Waverly Picketts for a game of ball one week from to morrow, on their grounds.

—The Epworth Leage elected officers last night, as follows:

Mrs. Green, Pres. Mrs. Wilder 1st. Vice Pres. Mrs. Strickland, 2nd Vice Pres. Prof. Hawker, 3rd Vice Pres. Mamie Farber, 4th. A. G. Catlin, Secretary. F. F. Farber, Treasurer.

—A fine rain fell Tuesday night: It was much needed, and farmers especially enjoyed the down pour. Considerable complaint has been made of the long, cold spring; but even now, should warm weather come, things would assume a brighter air.

—"Carnigal" cast in the iron beam that support the brick above the new buildings on River Street shows the extent of the business done by this great iron King. Little villages and hamlets all over the country centribute to his wealth, while smaller firms are froze out of business.

—Though the weather has been cold, below 40 above zero a good share of the time this week, and some report gardens, fruit and crops damaged; it is encouraging to know that we are better off than Wisconsin where they had snow on Memorial day; and that we did not have an earthquake as 10 central and southern states did.

—The baccalaureate sermon was delivered at the City Hall, Sunday evening, by Rev. J. L. Farber. It Was a good one and well delivered, and interested the large audience, as well as instructed the graduating class in a few points. Rev. Tabor Davies made the opening prayer. A double quartette consisting of, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Soper, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Buckley, Misses Katie Shaffer and Jessie Gray, and Professors James A. Wharton and Charles S. Hawker, did some fine singing, Mrs. Wittman presiding at the piano. The stage was aranged with potted plants in profusion. The gradnating class was all attention.

—The committee on streets could have told, without a surveyor, on Wednesday morning, that some drainingwould be advisable; and it wouldn't take much of an eye to see that the lake on Third street in front of Mowatt's, Dyer's, and Ball's residences could never crawl up and run through the tiling around the corner onto Bridge street. The tiling should be lowered several feet, or the gutter filled up, or what is better the manhole between Gutzwiller's and Steward's residence opened so that the water could go where it used to in the large tiling, which empties near the alley on Bridge street. The lake in the rear of Peterson's shoe store should find a way out also, likewise many other places where water accumulates could be drained.

—Memorial day passed off in Delano much as other days. Very little attention seems to have been given to it. we did not see so much as a flag raised to indicate that some one held in rememberance the soldier boys of the sixties. Almost everybody seems more interested in other things than observing one day in the three hundred sixty-five in memory of those who fought for the r country. A few went to neighboring villages, smaller than our own to listen to speaches and participate in the exercises of the day, while the dead heroes, buried in our onw cemeteries near home, so far as we have been able to learn, have had even a song or a prayer let alone roses and tears, saye what nature in her goodness gave them. At this rate a few years will efface from the community all recollection of the veterans of the late war.

—There has been no sunshine the last of this week.

—Kelsey Bros. moved their portable saw-mill to their brothers farm near Buffalo for a few weeks sawing.

County Cullings.

The annual reunion of the Old Settlers will have a big time at Buffalo, June 17, '97.

District Court will open at Buffalo next Monday June 7, Judge Tarbox will preside.

The Duluth papers says Senator Culkin has received his appointmenr to the land office at Duluth.

If the boys must play ball on Sunday it is unnecessary for the spectators to grow so enthusiastic as to scream and yell like a band of Indians. This is a face country and if the Sunday yellers will go out upon the prairie where they will disturb no one we presume they can yell to their heart's content; but unless they wish to have our city officials put their foot down on Sunday ball games they had better desist from making so much noise so near town as a few seem determined to do. Perhaps it would be as well to put the yellers in the village lockup and let them yell it out, they would be likely to get through quicker.

Personal.

Oscar Ball visited Watertown, Thursday.

John Meyer, of Watertown marketed wheat here this week.

M. A. O'Hair and daughter, Grace, drove to Buffalo on Monday.

Frank Aydt, of St. Michaels was doing business in Delano, Tuesday.

Miss Annie Parslow closed her school in the Ziebarth district, today.

George Rodgers and his load of trunks passed through town, Tuesday.

Rev. J. L. Farber, visited Brookfield, this week looking after his farm property.

Mrs. Andrew Ames and son, of St. Paul have come to Delano, and Andrew is hppy.

Mrs. M. A. Chance and Vinnie have returned from Minneapolis to spend the vacation.

Mrs Utter arrived Saturday night from Minneapolis. She will make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Everson.

Dr. E. E. Shrader, of Watertown, was over Monday. He informs us that he is building him a residence and intends to live in it.

Vernon Wilder and Ed Freeman from the "U" wheeled part way home Saturday. Their beastly bicycles gave out and had to be repaired.

Mrs. Frank Coffin and Mr. and Mrs. Eb Brandon of Independence, and Prof. Baker and family, of Rockford were among those from out of town who came to hear the baccalaureate sermon Sunday evening.

INDEPENDENCE FARMER.

INDEPENDENCE, Minn., June 1, '97.

EDITOR BUFFALO GAZETTE.

We again brethe the invigorating air of the first summer month.

Spring has left its mantle of green and old earth is as full of life and animation as when our foreparents dwelt among Edens bowers.

The farmers have been very busy this spring preparing grounds, sowing and planting seed, but what the harvest will be is yet in the future. The farmers are anxious for a good crop this season thinking it will help them pull through the tide, and land them on the side of prosperity. Should the farmers get a good big crop and a fair price for their produce it will be a great help to the country, yet it will not build a monument of prosperity all over the country and bring us back to the Jacksonian times. The public debt of the United States at the close of Jackson's administratisn was but $37,513 being the lowest from 1796 to 1883—at the close of the Franklin Pierce Presidential term the public debt was but $31,975,527 and Democracy still lives. But in the selatter days by the ravages of war, trickery and chinery we have built in this country a monument of debt that will reach from generation to generation of which there will be no end.

The Dingley tariff bill will not amount to even as much as a mess of pottage in the way of paying the government debt, when the duties on foreign goods is so high they cannot be imported and sold at a profit; then the government gets no revenue. If the tax on incomes had been allowed to stand it would have contributed largely to the support of our goverment, but no, this would touch the pocket of the rich and so the Dingley tariff bill calls for a tax of ten cents cents per pound on tea. Why not make it an advalorum duty then the rich man who buys his tea at $1.00 or $1.50 per pound will pay a duty on the tea according to quality; but at a duty on tea, of 10 cents per pound the poor man will pay twice as much revenue to the government as the rich man. The The Dingley bill also raises the internal revenue on beer, this is not so objectionable for it is neither a luxury nor a necessity.

But when we take into consideration the status of things as they exist in this country. No doubt many of the poor are largely to blame for their own misfortunes, many of them like the prodigal son have wasted their substance in riotous living and now have nothing to show for years of toil and hardship.

Our law makers who figure largely (I am sorry to say) for office and the emaluments thereof, should guard against class legislation, for the poor man is made out of just as good clay as the rich man for we read in the Good Book there is no difference between the Jew and the Gentile. Yet it does seem in these times that the Jew has got the right of way for they are the bankers of the world, they count the money and manage the finance.

We see but one way for the people of this country to get square with the world. Declare a year of jubilee. Strike a balance sheet. And divide the inheritance.

We are paying too much salary to our officials both state and national. It makes the office too inviting and causes corruption and fraud to be practiced but I am not smart enough to jdjust just remedy for the country.

On last Saturday the 29th, Memorial day was observed in the usual way asembling at Post Hall marching to Lewis cemetery headed by the S. V. drumb corps.

Formed hollow square at the Cemetery. Song by quartette, decorating of geaves, reading of Lincoln's speech at the dedication of the National cemetery at Gettysburg. Then marching to the grove near Maple Plain where the rest of the program was carried out, after a picnic dinner C. S. Hawker, of Delano, delivered the address, which was very timely and appropriate for such an occasion, remarks were made by M. B. Sherivan, of Dassel, and Dr. O. R. Fassett, of Rockford. The address by Mrs. Dr. E. Wright, President of the W. R. C. was also an appropriate address on such an occasion. The crowd was not so large as had been some of the years previous but everything was orderly and well conducted.

"THUNDERBOLTS,"

the latest and grandest book by this world-wide celebrity now out and for sale exclusively by subscription. The only book given to the public by Sam Jones in ten years. Edited by Rev. B. F. Haynes. Introduction by Bishop Joseph S. Key, of the M. E. Church, South. 600 pages. 122 splendid illustrations. A bonanza for agents. Most rapidly, easily selling book of the age.

AGENTS WANTED.

Send 85 Cents for Agent's Outfit, and 10 Cents for Our 70-page, illustrated Catalogue of Bibles, Albums, Etc.

WONDERFUL SALES.

$10 Every Day Can Be Made by Agents.

To prove it, we give a few items from actual sales made within the last few weeks: One agent sold 27 copies in two and a half days. Another sold 15 copies in two days, and another 30 in three days. One agent in Indiana sold 15 copies in two days. An agent in South Carolina sold 43 copies in three days. One agent in Georgia sold 25 in two days. An agent in Central Georgia sold 82 copies in ten days. When you consider the commission we allow agents, and the immense popularity of this wonderful book, and the ease with which it sells, there is nothing in which a live, pushing man can engage which will yield such profits. For instance: one agent made $108.25 in ten days selling "Thunderbolts." Another made $39.60 in three days; another $9.25 in one day; another $33 in two days; another $56.75 in three days.

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter, at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

SOME THIRTY YEARS AGO.

Well, boys, I've been out marching
With the G. A. R. today,
And it took me back to war times,
When I heard the fifer play
The good old tunes and marches,
And the dirges soft and low,
But we vets don't step them off, boys,
As we did thirty years ago.

The captain's voice was not the same,
Though he gave the old command.
And the colonel's form was missing
From the place upon the stand
Where a year ago he spoke to us
Of hardships dont you know,
That we all endured together
Some thirty years ago.

I wish you'd heard that fifer,
It had the war time sound,
And the old gray headed drummer,
Great Scott, how he could pound!
For they used the vetran drum corps,
Though they marched a little slow,
But they took us back to Dixie,
Some thirty years ago.

That lameness sorter quit me
In my Chickamauga knee,
When the gray old fifer started
Sherman marching to the sea.
Then some old comrad sung it,
And we all just let her go.
We marched and sung as once we did
Some thirty years ago.

Of course we didn't sing so strong,
Or keep in step the same
As we did when down in Georgia,
For we are old and stiff and lame.
Yet that music sorter caught us,
And our cheeks stood on the glow,
While dim old eyes flashed loyal fire
They flashed some thirty years ago.

The speaking? Well, it wasn't much,
You see, we boys are old,
While the speaker was a youngster,
(Maybe just as good as gold,)
But he undertook to tell us—
We old soldiers, don't you know—
How we fit bled and died down south
Some thirty years ago.

His speaking may be good enough
For this new fangled day,
But most uninteresting
For the old and bent and gray.
Who was down in Dixie dying
At the rebel cannons' throttle,
While he was north a'crying,
Or a'nursing at a bottle.

What we old soldiers really want
On our decoration day
Is a fife and drum and graveyard,
Some old chaplain that can pray.
And to help some dear old comrade,
With an empty sleeve or so,
Strew tears and flowers upon the graves
Made thirty years ago.

We will soon meet old comrades,
Every soldier brave and true,
Those that fell in southern gray,
Or that died in northern blue,
For to that eternal bivouac
Both armies soon must go,
But not to meet in deadly strife,
Like some thirty years ago.

W. B. GWATHMEY.

Aitkin, Minn, May 20. —Aitkin Rep.

THE Republicans are nearly as long restoring the McKinley bill as the Democrats were slicing it down a few cents on the dollar. If the restoration of that bill will save the country at once why don't they save it? Dont they want it saved or why do they fool around all summer?

WE thankfully acknowledge the receipt of several anouncements and invitations to attend commencement exercises, The Minnesota State University, the Medical Department of both the State and Hamline Universities, The high School at St. Peter and the State Normal School of N. Dakota, at Mayville are among those who remembered us. Thanks, we would gladly attend them all, but circumstances prevent our doing so. You have our best wishes just the same.

MEN were persuaded or forced to vote for protection and the gold standard last fall by being told by their employers that if free silver and free trade won they would be obliged to shut down their business and discharge hands. Gold and protection won, and the other day the Washington brake manufacturing company got a strike on their hands. Men destroyed pictures of the President elect and of prosperity saying they had been fooled and burned up the fine uniforms worn in campaign marches last fall. Even in Minneapolis a man writes a letter claiming to have lost his job because he refused to be forced into voting against his own best judgement. Why are things thusly?

Answer in 1897.

"What is the matter with Minnesota?" is the cry that is going up in Washington. The answer to this question will come in the election returns in November, in 1898—St. Paul, Globe.

Will the Globe help to decide the question in the interest of "we the people," or will it not?

Delano High School Commencement.

On Tuesday evening a splendid audience assembled at the City Hall to participate in the enjoyments of the Delano High School graduating exercises. The stage was beautifully arranged potted plants, plants giving forth their fragrance, and furnishing to the eye much pleasure. On the stage were seated in a semi-circle. From left to right, L. M. Maxfield, C. M. Conzet, Prof. Hawker, Prof. Arnold, Sam Coffin, John J. Catlin, President Lindsley, John E. Borsch, W. H. Frazee and Rev. Farber. The Delano Orchestra first tickled the tympnums of the large audience with some soft strains. Rev. Farber led in prayer, Miss Lendeke furnished a fine vocal solo.

Sam Coffin, of the graduating class then delivered his oration "The Criterion of Right". Sam spoke deliberately, earnestly, and with considerable force. He has a fine voice and acquitted himself in a manner creditable to all concerned.

Then came a solo by Prof. Wharton sollowed by the othrer oration "Power of the Press", by John Catlin. Both members of the class received fine boquets, books, and numerous other tokens of friendship and love from their friends. Miss Dyer gave a violin solo, was encored and rendered a medley much to the enjoyment of all.

President Lindsley, of the school board, then made an address, most of which was an earnest appeal for the maintenance and support of public schools, with a running history of what the Delano High School has and is passing through, its improvement and bright future. He then addressed the graduating class making a neat presentation of diploma speech. Prof. Wharton gave another song. Prof. Hawker made a short address urging the greater harmony of feeling, and purpose, and the more earnest working together of pupils teachers and parents for the advancement of education and the upbuilding of the Delano High School. The orchestra gave another number. Congratulatious were then extended to all and one of the most successful, and harmanious graduating occasions was over.

Have an Aim in Life.

At this season of the year when Universities, Colleges, High Schools and other institutions are turning out graduates by the hundred it is well to inquire, What are they going to do? How are they to find a niche in the great world where they can set up to shine? Lawyers, doctors, professors and ministers on every hand. The country is overrun with "professional" men. The field, to a new beginner looks small. There seems to be more aspirants for wealth, honor and fame than can possibly be accomadated. Yet on closer investigation it is found there are men in each of the various walks of life who are succeeding; who are gaining a good living. By honest patient toil they keep up with the advancements of their chosen work in life, they can get a little ahead in some lines. They observe and learn for themselves. A diploma from a High School does not always indicate that its owner is better adapted to teach school than their less fortunate neighbors who have patiently worked out their own way, at home, without an instructor or other than their books and what they could pick up by chance about them, A piploma from the U. or from a Medical or a Law school does not invariably qualify the holder to make his way in life better than many of his neighbors. But it helps. What would those graduates amount to in life without education? And if these occasionally to be found freaks, as it were, who are honored and respected, and who flourish better temporally, had acquired education, how much more their lights might have been made to shine.

Numerous cases are to be found where men learned in the professions have failed to do half what they might or to make anything like their mark in life for lack of the most rudimentary education. For lack of education, better known to themselves often than to those about them they refrain from publicdiscussions; from making known sometimes great discoveries and themselves and the world are loosers.

Education is good as far as it goes, but the possessor thereof unless he has gumption enough to make use of it succeeds in life no better than the veriest dolt. He is apt to become super-critical, to find fault with everything; with the government and to become a tramp and a bum. He knows how governments should be, and is much put out because they are not growing towards his idea fast enough.

Education is like other possessions it must be used to be of value. A pile of gold hid away in the ground is of no use; vast coal fields unworked are useless; a beautiful farm untilled is an expense rather than a profit; an education not made use of is no better. Of what use could it be to an every day laborer to be able to speak many languages unless he turned this particular qualification to advantage. Why take years to get a diploma from a college then sit idly down waiting for something to turn up? It want turn up. You must turn it up. Have an object in life, apply most of your time and talent to the accomplishment of that object, and when you have a diploma consider it but the door sill you have crossed to the wider and larger sphere of usefulness to your fellow men.

Political Prospects.

Present political prospects are, that each old party will maintain an independent organization advocating its own views up to the time of nominations, then each party will make the best arrangement it can with all others, and but two sets of candidates will be in the field.

The fight will be over bimetallism and the voters will be for or against that particular principle. Republicans and Goldbug Democrats will doubtless unite on a candidate and a platform for contracting currency until one man will be able to hold control of the "money unit" of the world; to raise and lower prices to suit his own individual greediness; to freeze out of business any man he may see fit, to cool the political aspirations of the most earnest seekers for reform; to be money king of all countries, and the power behind the throne of each of them.

Silver Republicans are forming a strong organization. People's Party adherents are getting together; Democrats are harmonizing, and everything indicates a united front of all forces and parties, with good men as candidates, and bimetallism for America, for a battle cry that will arouse the slumberers and bring them into the fold of the people themselves.

The enemy is powerful and unscrupulous. His greed is insatiable. He will influence every vote he can, almost regardless of cost or consequences. At least that is his reputation; and we have good reasons to believe it correct, relying upon the certainity of winning, when things can be made to repay him in some way for his expense of wealth, time, talent, and turpitude. It is not the G. O. P. of Lincoln and Grant that they love to try to make us think it is. It is not the party of Blaine, Garfield, Windom, who advocated no such doctrines as do the gold standard party that the people are called upon to vote against when they are asked in the interest of themselves and their neighbors, to vote for bimetallism. It is not adhering to the principles of Andrew Jackson and Thomas H. Benton to follow such an offshoot as has been made on the money question by "National Democrats," True democracy, on this issue, is what it was when Jackson and Benton aided by an awakened public sentiment, relegated the then money power of the country to its proper position, and the Bank of the United States went out of business while the people went in.

Real Republicanism, the friend of the people, is now what it was when Blaine was steering, or when William Windom was Secretary of the Treasury, who, if any American ought to know, and who it is conceded was capable of knowing, said in his last great speech that, in his opinion, there was not enough of either gold or silver on which to do business, and recommended bimetallism. Some of his followers believe he was honest when he said it. They have looked into the matter for themselves and the more they read, and think, and study, the more thoroughly convinced they become, that the great Minnesota statesman was right on this point.

Now when it comes to running a campaign with such candidates, as in many cases were considered by those whose votes helped put them in power, as in no wise fit for the positions to which the people elected them; on a platform to contract the currrency of an already suffering country, and give appointments from the ranks of "National Democrats" to fat offices naturally expected by faithful followers of the G. O. P. name, it is clear to all that the money power is united to defeat anything the people may want, that don't exactly suit them. If the gold bugs are a unit to control the money unit of this country, and of all other countries, is it to be wondered at, that honest men who are patriotic; who love their country; who love their homes; and who love American institutions, unite their efforts to outvote their would be masters? The American idea is that the people is the only souvereign in this country, and they are not yet ready for a mess of pottage or other consideration to deliver over their country to any one else.

Delano High School Commencement Oration.

The Criterion of Right.

(BY SAMUEL D. COFFIN)

In ages vastly remote, when man's mind had only sufficiently developed to see very dimly the natural relation between cause and effect, he began to realize, thro' experience, that deeds on the part of man were productive of very different consequences. Some deeds brought pleasure, enjoyment, happiness; others brought care, sorrow, and unhappiness. The one, as soon as he possessed mental activity enough, he began to cultivate, the other, he strove to suppress. The first, he termed right; the other, wrong.

True, at first the cultivation and suppression were by very rude methods, but, as civilization advanced, we see man taking, first private means, then we see the adoption of clan customs and usages which finally developed into laws. These laws, although very lax at first, steadily grew in strength until every violation of them was punished with intense rigor. Here began a great evil. Man came to regard the mere violation of a law wrong. He forgot the reason for which he had condemned some acts and cultivated others. and came to regard the mere act as right or wrong in itself.

That is a false impression. No deed is infallibly right, nor is any deed infallibly wrong. An act may be right at one time and wrong at another. The righteousness, or otherwise, of any deed, is not determined by the act itself, but by the circumstance, that is, the motives under which it was committed, and the effect after commission.

Reason is the only method of ascertaining whether a deed is right or wrong.

Let us see whether what are known as cardinal virtues may not sometimes be wrong, and whether those deeds generally considered wrong may not sometimes be right.

No one can read the history of the world without wondering why men have spent so much time in war. We are taught "Thou shalt not kill" from the cradle to the grave. If this divinely appointed ordinance is correct, why do men—good noble men—spend so much time in war. Is it right that men, in violation of this sacred command should defend their fortunes from ruin, their homes from destruction, their families from violation? Was it right for the American people in 1776 to declare that man has certain inalienable rights which others are bound to respect, and to proceed to defend that declaration with the sword? Or should they have submitted humbly to the yoke of tyranny?

The taking of human life always fills the mind with horror. Thoughts of the dying agonies of his victim make the villain of deepest dye tremble and grow sick at heart. Yet murder is sometimes justifiable and right.

One of the greatest and best men that ever lived was assassinated by one of the meanest, lowest, and vilest of mankind. Would you, if you had had a pistol covering the head of John Wilks Booth on that fatal night, have pressed the trigger to save the head of the nation? After you had committed that deed, would you have fled from the law, or justified your action? Would you have said "Forgive my sin," or "Vindicate my righteousness."

Dr. O. W. Holmes has: "Sin has a great many tools, but a lie is the handle that fits them all." Yet a lie once saved the life of a great benefactor of the human race.

Galileo was a student of physics and astronomy, in Italy, during the seventeenth century. He advocated the Capernican theory of the structure of the so ar system, which taught, in opposition to the theologists of that day, that the sun. not the earth, is the center of the solar system, and that the earth is but one of several minor bodies which revolve about the sun. He was taken to task by the inquisition—that bloody dagger which graced the hand of the church of Rome for so many centuries. That venerable old man was forced, on penalty of death at the stake, to swear on bended knees, with his hand on the Bible, that he did not believe his own convictions. That lie saved his life! Did not the end justify the means?

Not only is falsehood sometimes right, but truth, under proper circumstances is wrong. For example; during the Reign of Terror in the French Revolution, many men were murdered in cold blood, not because they hindered the cause of liberty, but because they were odious to the leaders of the Revolution or had property. Now the men who disclosed the hiding places of those men were almost as great criminals as their masters themselves. They should have lied to save the innocent! Would not you consider yourself well payed for a falsehood if by that you saved a human life? Would it be right?

To steal is also sometimes right. A story is told of a young girl who was arrested for stealing a loaf of bread. Weeping and trembling from fear, she was brought before the bar of justice and asked to tell her story. It was a pathetic tale. She was an orphan, she said, and the sole support of her little sick brother. Her work was gone; her money to, and the last crumb had been eaten. Here it was that she condemned herself to be placed behind prison bars by an act of unselfish love and charity for her brother. She stole a loaf of bread to save her brother's life until she could secure work. Was it right? Or should she have let her brother die from want, while she was vainly begging relief from a cold-hearted, selfish multitude? Would you, if your brother were dying of hunger, hesitate to steal a loaf of bread to save him until you could secure sustenance by honester means?

All virtues may be vices and all vices may be virtues. Is it a wonder then, that men sometimes come to think that there is no such thing as right, that there is no such thing as wrong? Ignorance is the mother of crime. Many persons go wrong because they know not what is right. An unthinking person, when he sees this inconsistancy between righteousness in theory and righteousness in practice, naturally comes to the conclusion that righteousness is a mere fallacy of the wind; while a thinking person in the same position casts aside all the restrictions of law, and follows a certain indefinable instinct which tells him what is right, and what is wrong.

Is this a proper state of affairs in such an advanced age? Should men be left to think that there is no right, that there is no wrong, or to guess at the righteousness of a deed?

If falsehood is sometimes productive of good results. where truth would be of bad ones; if theft is sometimes a means of good where honesty would be of evil; if murder (that most horrible crime) if all these which are generally considered wrong may sometimes be right, if those which are generally right may sometimes be wrong, how are we to determine what is right and what is wrong?

We can not refer to written law, for that is not fitted to every circumstance. Then to what must we appeal? There has been but one man that has solved that proposition, and that was Epicurus, an Atheniau philosopher who lived about the third century B. C. He said: "Pleasure is the highest good; be virtuous because virtue will bring you the most happiness."

Zeno, his contemporary, said: "Be virtuous because you ought to be." Zeno should have asked himself why you ought to be virtuous. His answer would have been the proposition of Epicurus stated negatively: "Be virtuous because, if you are not virtuous, you will bring unhappiness to yourself and others". But why is it wrong to bring unhappiness to others? Happiness is the sole end of human life.

The Christian, Jew, Mahometan, Infidel, Buddhist, Pagan,—all the infinite host that walks the earth,—seek but one object, and that is happiness. The Christian, Jew, and Mahometan look for happiness in the great beyond; the Pagan seeks happiness here; the Buddhist and Infidel enjoy present pleasures and the hope of eternal rest.

Therefore, since happiness is the sole end of human life, anything which leads to happiness, directly or indirectly, is right, and anything which leads to unhappiness, directly or indirectly, is wrong.

If Blackstone, if Kent, if all the laws have been written by the hand of man, should be placed in one immense pile and burned, and if man would follow that grand teaching of Epicurus and so act that he should cause no unhappiness, the world would then have the highest morality possible.

Understand me! when I speak of happiness I do not mean mere sensual pleasures but true happiness. An act may be a pleasure to one and pain to many others. That would not be true pleasure. True pleasure is that which brings more happiness than unhappiness. When Epicurus said: "Pleasure is the highest good," he meant that that pleasure which brings happiness to the world in general.

Then let this be our highest aspiration, that we may so live, that when succeeding generations shall gather round our sepulchers to commerate our lives, they shall say with one accord. There lies a man who brought not one moment of unhappiness to any human creature.

New York is the latest state to make Lincoln's birthday, February 12, a legal holiday.

A Vassar college girl the other day ran a hundred yards in 13 seconds. She was probably paced by a mouse.

A Boston paper ventures to speak of "the homeliest baby in town," but as it is a young moose no editorial casualties have been reported.

In some places in the east farms are supplied with the telephone at $15 per year. It saves lots of running to town, and the time is coming when we shall have more of such service.

The notice of a Kansas wedding winds up with a list of the young men rejected by the bride. If each should publish a card of explanation several new terrors would be added to matrimony.

Some of our lady friends who delight in flower gardens say that there are some hens who, when they get into a new flower bed, act mean enough to have been hatched out of bad eggs.

Two Boston papers are discussing whether the word "measles" should be followed by a plural verb or not. Measles may be plural, but they produce most singular effects sometimes.

A new kind of donation party has been invented in southern Kansas. At Caldwell the other day the entire Methodist congregation went down to the parsonage and dug the preacher a cyclone cellar.

An electrician says it costs no more to transmit electric power over an overhead wire than along a third rail, and that the wire has as great a conducting capacity as the rail. The wonders of the current are unlimited.

The Universal Postal union has admitted China, Korea and the Orange Free State to membership, which completes its organization throughout the civilized world. About 80 nationalities are represented in the union.

Mrs. Amelia E. Barr, the authoress, is quoted as saying: "There is going to be a reaction from the aggressive, athletic, sporty woman to the old-fashioned woman, and when the old-fashioned woman comes in again she will stay in."

The Greenville (Tenn.) Democrat says: "Every issue of this paper is worth two dollars, but you can get it a hundred years for $100. We print all the news you want to see and some that you don't want to see. Old maids cry for it; the lawyers lie for it, and wise folks sigh for it. Buy it and try it." That ought to prove a fetching appeal.

The effect of the recent earthquake is said to have been very demoralizing on the people of Giles county, Va., many of whom were preparing to make their homes elsewhere. Angel mountain was said to be badly cracked, and nearly all the water had been drained out of Mountain lake. It was also said that the salt wells at Saltville, Smythe county, had dried up.

It is a fact, though not generally known, that the president and vice president of the United States never travel by rail together. It is one of the precautionary measures that hedge about the lives of the two foremost men in the national government, the idea being that if an accident upon the rail should cause the death of one of the illustrious men the other would still be spared to the country.

Cincinnati has opened a new bridge across the Ohio river to Newport, which is an elegant combination of the virtues and improvements in modern bridge building. It is a massive system of three bridges combined in one. It gives large and solid passage to an asphalt footway, to two railroad tracks, to two street railroad tracks, and to a roomy wagonway. It is owned by the Louisville & Nashville railroad.

The American dog has another cause for complaint. Not long ago the supreme court insulted him by calling him a useless animal, and now the British government bars him out of England, accusing him of being subject to rabies and therefore dangerous. Hereafter all Americans desiring to take dogs to England will first have to secure special permits, and owing to the large amount of red tape these will not be easy to secure.

Probably the most interesting celebration of Memorial day was that which occurred in Mexico, when the American residents strewed flowers upon the graves of some of the American soldiers who fell in the war with that country. This is the first time that day was ever officially celebrated there, and the Mexican government graciously showed its good feeling by permitting the services to be held. The war in which these men fell was not that which gave birth to the celebration, but it was the first and only war fought by us wholly upon foreign soil, and there was nothing inappropriate in the ceremony.

The "new" clergymen are going too far. One of these in New Jersey has put a phonograph in his church and uses it to save himself from the trouble of praying, reading selections from the Bible and asking the Divine blessing upon the congregation. He has dismissed the soloists of the choir, and the congregation is now regaled by phonographic reproductions of the voices of great singers in sacred music. Logically carried out, this would result in the dismissal of the preacher and the substitution of Edison's invention. Then the worshipers could listen to the greatest clergymen of the world.

A new law has just gone into effect in New Jersey which places certain obstacles in the path of matrimony, formerly the easiest contract to make in the state. According to its provisions nonresident men must give five days' notice before a license to marry will be given. This has aroused the ire of the young women in New Jersey and a formal protest against the new law has been adopted by various organizations, setting forth five excellent woman's reasons why the law is an abomination. These reasons are: It is too mean for anything. It is terrible. It is just horrid. It is a shame. It is perfectly awful.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

The United States senate made greater progress on the tariff bill on the 2d than on any day since the debate opened, completing more than half of the important metal schedule. The house was not in session.

The United States senate again made good progress on the tariff bill on the 3d, covering about ten pages of the metals schedule. In the house the conference report on the Indian appropriation bill was adopted. Mr. Terry (Ark.) endeavored to bring up Cuban affairs as a privileged question, but was defeated.

The United States senate had a period of speechmaking on the 4th, and as a result little progress was made on the tariff bill. The advance covered about two pages, and brought the work up to the wood schedule, the first item of which was considered, but not completed. The nomination of Ellis H. Roberts, of New York, to be treasurer of the United States, was received from the president. The house was not in session.

When the United States senate laid aside the tariff bill on the 5th it had reached the sugar schedule, which had been the subject of so much interest and conflict. The house was not in session.

URBANA'S HORROR.

Citizens of the Town Shot and a Negro Ravisher Lynched.

Frenzied Mob Attacks the Jail and Is Fired Upon by the Militia—Story of the Night of Tragedies.

Urbana, O., June 5. — In the riot here at 2:30 Friday morning two lives were lost and ten citizens were wounded. At 7:30 a. m., Charles Mitchell (colored), the cause of all the trouble, was taken from the jail by infuriated citizens and lynched. The two previous nights and Thursday portended the gravest danger, but no such results were anticipated as those within the five hours from 2:30 to 7:30 a. m. Friday. Including the brutal Mitchell, there are three dead and ten wounded.

The Victims.

Following is a revised list of the killed and wounded in the riot of Friday morning:

Dead—Harry Bell, Urbana, shot in the head, instantly killed; Upton Baker, a farmer living north of Urbana.

Fatally Wounded—Wesley Bowen, of Cable, shot in the hip; Zack Wank, Urbana, shot in the groin and leg.

Other Wounded—Dennis Graney, Urbana, right foot, slightly; Dr. Charles Thompson, North Lewisburg, head, slight; S. S. Deaton, Urbana, prosecuting attorney, leg, slight; Gus Weiser, Urbana, in the face, painful; Ray Dickerson, Urbana, shoulder, serious; John McKeever, Urbana, right arm, painful; Ray McClure, Urbana, right arm, painful.

Mob Fired On by the Militia.

The early morning scenes—the fierce, blood-thirsty fury of the mob, the determined attack on the jail and the reply of the militia with fire and lead—will be as a nightmare in the memories of those who witnessed them. Angry citizens began to collect early Thursday determined to lynch Mitchell for his terribly brutal assault on Mrs. Eliza Gaumer. The local militia was called out and, by dressing Mitchell up in soldier's uniform, the authorities succeeded in smuggling him into the courthouse where he pleaded guilty to the charges and was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary, the extreme penalty for the crime. When he had been returned to the jail, the enraged crowd learned what had been done and resolved that he should not be taken out of town alive. At 2:30 in the morning the jail was stormed and the door battered in. The sheriff ordered the militia to fire and when the report of 20 rifles had died away a dozen or more of the spectators lay writhing on the ground. The mob then fell back and the dead and wounded were tenderly cared for. Anticipating the fury of the mob the sheriff telegraphed for more troops and at 7:10 the Springfield militia arrived. They were received with hoots and jeers and were stoned and besmeared with mud. The mayor advised that they withdraw, fearing a riot. The local militia had in the meantime withdrawn to the sheriff's quarters, and when the Springfield troop had disappeared in the direction of the depot the crowd made a rush for the jail, battered in the door, secured their victim, dragged him out at the end of a rope, and, after stamping and beating him almost to death, the hundreds of willing hands strung him up to the nearest tree. The body was later cut down, put in a plain pine box and placed in the courtyard where it was viewed by thousands.

Upholds the Militia.

Cincinnati, June 8. — Gov. Bushnell in a letter to the Commercial-Tribune says:

"The members of the national guard at Urbana did their duty and are entitled to the support of the state. Lamentable as the results were, their efforts were to maintain the majesty of the law, and they should be upheld by the people."

Adjt.-Gen. Axline says:

"A careful examination of Urbana fails to show that the national guard's conduct was anything but that of courageous and obedient soldiers, and when the public is in full possession of all the facts and complications that surrounded the service, the unwarranted criticisms that have gone out to the world will be speedily corrected."

Capt. Leonard, of the Urbana military company, is here as the guest of the state at the Neil house, until he can return home. Citizens of Urbana have telephoned him to come home, assuring him safety. He left the jail in a buggy and was recognized. When somebody shouted: "Hang him," the horse was put to full speed.

Sheriff McLain reached home on the Big Four train from Springfield Monday afternoon. He was met at the depot by Deputy Sheriff Kirby in a cab, and was hurried off to his mother's home. Mayor Ganson, in a card, condemns mobs. He says that all was done by the sheriff to save Mitchell that could have been done, and if more force had been used men, women and children would have been killed. The feeling there has subsided very much. A strong reaction has set in and the best public opinion favors protection to the fullest for Capt. Leonard and his company.

Brave Firemen Perish.

San Francisco, June 7.—A fire in the southeastern part of the city at noon Sunday cost three firemen their lives and entailed a property loss of $100,000. The following were killed: John Mahoney, of chemical engine No. 6; Frank Keller, steward of hose cart No. 2; James Hallinan, driver of truck No. 1. The fire started mysteriously in the four-story brick building owned by Schroth & Westerfield and leased to the Standard Biscuit company. After the first alarm the fire chief turned in a second and general alarm. A stiff breeze fanned the fire within the brick walls, causing it to spread with extraordinary rapidity, and it was soon apparent that the interior of the structure would be entirely destroyed.

To Honor Logan.

Chicago, June 7.—The unveiling and dedication of the equestrian statue of Gen. John A. Logan in Lake Front park July 22 will be national in scope and significance. It is expected that 100,000 or more visitors from all parts of the United States, together with foreign diplomats at Washington, will be here to witness and participate in the ceremonies. It is almost sure that President McKinley will be here, together with some members of his cabinet.

Remarkable Chess Playing.

Washington, June 4.—A wonderful record in chess play was made by P. N. Pillsbury, the expert, at the Washington Chess club. He played simultaneously thirty chess and six checker games, many of his contestants being chess experts in this city. After five hours' consecutive playing the contest closed, Pillsbury having won 27 games at chess and four at checkers. Three chess and one checker game resulted in a draw and one checker game was lost.

A TEACHERS' CONVENTION.

Educators Expected to Assemble in Milwaukee in Large Numbers.

Milwaukee, June 7.—During the second week in July Milwaukee will be the Mecca of the teachers of the United States. Then the city will be filled with educators representing every class, from the kindergarten to the university. Then will be held the convention of the National Educational association, to whose sessions pedagogues in every part of the country are looking forward with interest. From present indications the convention will be the greatest gathering of educators the world has seen. It is expected that at least 20,000 men and women interested in education will attend. They will discuss the problems of pedagogy in the light of principles and practical experiments, and each of the men and women who have become famous for discoveries along certain lines will freely give the others the benefit of his experience and theories.

From every section of the country will come the greatest minds, who will deliver addresses on important educational topics. A partial list follows:

Rev. Lyman Abbott, D. D., pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, and editor of the Outlook, will discuss "The Democracy of Learning;" Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, of Washington, D. C., will talk on "The Education of the Deaf;" Superintendent James M. Greenwood, of Kansas City, Mo., "Shall American History Be Taught in Cross Sections or in Parallels?" Superintendent Newton C. Dougherty, ex-president N. E. A., Peoria, Ill., "The Study of History;" Superintendent Carroll G. Pearse, of Omaha, Neb., "Is the Heart of This People Changed Toward the Schools?" Bishop John H. Vincent, of Topeka, Kan., "Tom and His Teacher;" Dr. Richard G. Boone, principal of Ypsilanti normal school, Michigan, "Lines of Growth in Maturing;" Albert E. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education, Boston, "Educational Leadership;" Dr. James M. Green, principal of state normal school, Trenton, N. J., "Data of Method;" Edwin A. Alderman, president of University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, "The Christian State;" Oscar T. Corson, state commissioner of common schools, Ohio, "Extremes in Education;" President William P. Harper, Chicago University, "Waste in Education;" Gilman H. Tucker, of New York, "Education from a Publisher's Standpoint;" Mrs. Ellen M. Henrotin, of Chicago, "The Cooperation of Women's Clubs in the State and Public Schools;" Clinton Scollard, of Clinton, N. Y., poem: "The March of the Ideal;" President James H. Canfield, Ohio state university, "Winners of Men." "The Needs of Rural Schools" will be discussed in their various phases by Henry Sabin, state superintendent of public instruction of Iowa; William T. Harris, United States commissioner of education; Dr. D. L. Kiehle, of the University of Minnesota, and Dr. B. A. Hinsdale, of the University of Michigan. Miss Estelle Reel, state superintendent of Wyoming; Miss Jane Addams, of Hull house; Prof. James L. Hughes, of Toronto, Canada, will speak upon subjects yet to be announced.

ELECTIONS IN ILLINOIS.

Result of the Voting for Judges in Various Districts.

Chicago, June 8.—The judicial election on Monday was carried by the republicans, who elected all of their candidates by pluralities of about 12,000 in the city, and 4,000 in the county outside of the city. Although the ticket was called republican," it included all of the 14 judges now on the bench in the circuit court—eight republicans and six democrats. In addition to the judges of the circuit court, one judge of the superior court and one justice of the supreme court were voted for, but Magruder for the latter position and Brentano for the former were indorsed by both republicans and democrats. Interest in the election was small, scarcely half of the regular vote being polled. The amended Torrens land title law was overwhelmingly adopted.

Dispatches from all over the state show that the following were elected supreme court judges: First district, David J. Baker (rep.); Second, Jesse J. Phillips (dem.); Third, Jacob W. Wilkin (rep.); Fourth, James H. Cartwright (rep.); Fifth, Benjamin D. Magruder (rep.). Republicans elected circuit court judges in the following districts: First, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth, one in the Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Seventeenth. In all other districts democratic candidates were elected.

Big Plant Shut Down.

Cleveland, O., June 8.—At noon Monday the entire plant of the Standard Oil works in this city shut down for an indefinite period. The foreman told the men that there would be no work for weeks and maybe a much longer time. The men believe that during that time another section of the plant will be abandoned, carrying out the Standard's policy of making in this city only enough oil and other products to supply the home demand. Close to 1,000 men are thrown out of work by the shut down. It is said that the Standard has an immense stock on hand in the Kingsbury Run warehouses, enough in fact, to supply all the demand in this district until January 1, 1898, or longer.

Postal Congress.

Chicago, June 8. — The Universal Postal congress will hold its next sexennial convention at Rome, Italy, in February, 1903. This decision was reached at the last meeting of the body at Washington, but was withheld from the public. It will be formally announced at the close of the present convention next week. The congress has disposed of all the work before it save for signing the general convention or treaty and to take final action on the question of parcels post, looking principally to extending the parcels post arrangements of this country, with various individual countries like Great Britain, Austria-Hungary, France, Germany and Belgium.

Negotiations for Peace Begin.

Constantinople, June 4.—The ambassadors of the powers and Tewfik Pasha, the Turkish minister for foreign affairs, held the first sitting of the peace conference Thursday afternoon at the Tophane palace. It is understood that the result of three hours of deliberation was that Count Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador, will prepare a memorandum as to the rectification of the frontier; M. Cambon, the French ambassador, a memorandum as to the capitulations in the case of Greek subjects in Turkey, and Sir Philip Currie, the British ambassador, a memorandum as to indemnity.

Schlatter Is Dead.

Denver, Col., June 7.—A special to the News from El Paso, Tex., says that Francis Schlatter, who claimed to perform miraculous cures by Divine power, was recently found dead in the foothills of Sierra Madre, 35 miles southwest of Casa Grande, in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico. He had been fasting, and apparently starved to death. While in Denver, from August 22 to November 13, 1895, 200,000 people visited Schlatter to receive treatment.

CANOVAS TO STAY.

Unexpected Solution of Spanish Ministerial Crisis.

Madrid, June 7.—The queen regent has confirmed Senor Canovas, the premier, in his ministerial powers, and the cabinet will remain in office with personnel and policy unchanged. All the leading members of the senate and of the chamber of deputies who were consulted by her majesty, as well as three marshals, have advised the recall of Capt. Gen. Weyler from Cuba.

At a cabinet council held Sunday afternoon at his residence Senor Canovas, the premier, announced that the queen regent had renewed his powers and those of the cabinet in terms most flattering to him and all his colleagues. It is understood that the government does not contemplate any immediate change in the supreme command in Cuba. The surprise and displeasure of the various sections of the opposition are not easy to describe.

Washington, June 8.—The reinstatement of the Canovas cabinet at Madrid, accompanied by the official announcement that "Butcher" Weyler will not be recalled from Cuba, falls upon Washington as a genuine surprise. It was unexpected in all quarters, and the construction generally placed on the act is that it puts back a restoration of peace in Cuba and definitely indorses the Weyler administration in such a pronounced way as to win the conclusion that atrocities will be redoubled. Not a few congressmen are expressing the opinion that the move looks like a deliberate attempt to provoke the United States into the commission of an act of interference in Cuban affairs upon which offensive construction can be placed in order to involve this country in trouble, and thus hasten the end, which Spain must now see is inevitable, namely, the independence of Cuba or its annexation to the United States.

A FRIGHTFUL COLLISION.

Train Officials Fail to Obey Orders at Hudson, Wis.

Hudson, Wis., June 8.—The most disastrous wreck that ever occurred on this division of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway occurred Monday afternoon on the double track going west from the junction. The way freight No. 41, going west, was ordered to take the right-hand track, but for some unaccountable reason took the left track and was running at the rate of 18 miles an hour when upon turning a short curve on a downgrade they came upon a work train backing east and toward them at a speed of 35 miles an hour. The collision was something terrific. On the rear of the work train, struck by engine 41, was the boarding car, in which were four men belonging to the work crew. Their names are Thomas Riely, E. S. Hurd, Milton Swain and Joseph Leighteiser, all of Eau Claire, Wis. They were never aware of their danger and were undoubtedly instantly killed.

The car immediately took fire and their bodies were burned in the wreck before they could be rescued. Herman Reby, fireman of the pile driver on the train, was also killed, but his body was rescued, although the machine and car were burned. Frank Thayer, of Altoona, a fireman, was fatally injured. A. Seittleman, engineer of the pile driver, of Menominee, Wis., has his legs badly bruised, his nose broken and is internally injured, will probably die; James Owens, the conductor, was slightly injured; Engineer Brogan had his head bruised and face injured. All the crew on No. 41 escaped injury. Both engines are totally wrecked and burned, with the boarding car, pile driver and one furniture car.

Calhoun Returns.

New York, June 8.—William J. Calhoun, who was sent to Cuba as a special commissioner to investigate the circumstances of the death in the prison of Dr. Ruiz, an American citizen, reached this city on his return Monday. He was accompanied by George W. Fishback, his secretary, and Charles N. Pepper, a Washington newspaper correspondent, who went to Cuba with the commissioner. Ramon O. Williams, formerly United States consul-general to Cuba, came on the same steamer. Mr. Calhoun said that the commission held three sittings between May 20 and June 1 at Havana, Regulus and Guanabacoa. The papers examined in the case were chiefly military records. The final report will be made to Washington by Gen. Lee. Mr. Calhoun declined to give his opinion on the case.

One Favorable Feature.

New York, June 5.—Bradstreet's, in his weekly review of trade, says:

"The only favorable features of trade are encouragement at the outlook for fall business and improvement in demand and prices of iron and steel. Crops at the southwest, particularly Texas, have improved with seasonable rains, and the prospect favors larger exports of wheat from the Pacific coast. A fairly satisfactory jobbing trade continues at leading cities in northwestern spring wheat states. Business as a whole shows no pronounced activity, and the tendency of funds is to accumulate. Where the volume of business exceeds that of a year ago, as it does in a few lines, profits are frequently so reduced as to render this year's movement less satisfactory. Orders for dry goods, clothing and shoes for near-by delivery have fallen off. The anticipated midsummer industrial disturbances, particularly in iron and steel, promise to influence business unfavorably during the summer months."

Organ Makers Assign.

Meriden, Conn., June 8.—The Wilcox & White Organ company, one of the largest manufacturers of organs in the United States, has made an assignment. Some months ago it was known that the concern was in financial difficulties, but at that time the stockholders and a number of Meriden business men got together and it was understood that matters had been satisfactorily adjusted. The company was organized in 1876 and established many branch houses throughout the country. J. H. White, of the company, was unable to give a statement of the assets and liabilities Monday. The direct liabilities, he said, outside of the contingent liabilities, would not exceed $75,000.

A Foreign Protest.

Washington, June 7.—On the opening of the senate a letter from the secretary of state was received transmitting a letter from the minister of Austria-Hungary, Baron von Hegelmueller, protesting in behalf of his government against the discriminations of the sugar schedule in the pending tariff bill against bountied sugar. The minister's letter was read in full at the request of Senator Vest. It urges that the discrimination against sugars receiving bounties denies to Austria-Hungary the most favored nation treatment and also threatens to damage heavily the exports of the country. The communication was referred to the finance committee.

Are Particular Buyers.

The leading steel men agree that the most particular buyers in the country are the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct. This company will only accept the most perfect of selected lots. Such information is not surprising to any one who owns a Winchester gun, for its strength and fine finish is very apparent. The Winchesters are just as particular about everything that is used in making guns and ammunition as they are about steel. For this reason when you buy Winchester goods you can be sure of getting the best in the world. They cost no more than poor makes. Send for a large illustrated catalogue free.

THE BIRDS AND I.

A thousand voices whisper it is spring;
Shy flowers start up to greet me on the way,
And homing birds preen their swift wings and sing
The praises of the friendly, lengthening day.

The buds whose breath the glad wind hither bears,
Whose tender secret the young May shall find,
Seem all for me—for me the softer airs,
The gentle warmth, wherewith the day is kind.

Let me rejoice, now skies are blue and bright,
And the round world pays tribute to the spring;
The birds and I will carol our delight,
And every breeze loves' message shall bring.

What matter though sometimes the cup of tears
We drink, instead of the rich wine of mirth?
There are as many springs as there are years;
And, glad or sad, we love this dear old earth.

Shall we come back, like birds, from some far sphere—
We and the spring together—and be glad
With the old joy to hail the sweet young year,
And to remember what good days we had?

Jackfishing Was Sport Then According to the Black Homer.

"JACKFISH!" exclaimed Tony Buchanan, the Black Homer, of Jimtown. "Pow'ful sights of 'em, suh! An' jackfishin'? Why, co'se if dah's jackfish dah got to be jackfishin', ain' dah? Folks does heaps o' jackfishin', an' cotches oodles o' jacks, but sho! dah ain' no spote in jackfishin' no mo'! In de yea's 'fo' de war, dey wuz de days when dah wuz spote in jackfishin'! Jicketty! Jes' natchily makes my mouf wattah fo' dem ol' days, when I t'ink o' jackfishin' way we done done it 'fo' de wah!"

The jackfish, or Jack, of southern rivers is the pike of the north, or, rather, the fish commonly known as the pickerel. If you should ask almost any native, not only of North Carolina, but of adjacent states, if there were any pickerel or pike in his bailiwick he would be quite sure to tell you there were not, because he would not know the fish by such names. But jackfish? Well!

"Yes, suh," said Tony. "Jackfishin' 'fo' de wah! Um-m-m-um! Dat wuz spote, sho'ly! Dah wuzn't no mo' vim in de jackfish den dan dah is now, suh, an' we cotch 'im jes de same, an' git jes' as crazy when he bite as we did den; but dah ain' 'nuffin' to jackfishin' no mo'! Why, I ben jackfishin' in dem good ol' days when my ol' mahs' win six niggahs on one cock fight, suh! An' I ben jackfishin', 'fo' de wah, when he lose me an' free mo' niggahs jes' bettin' on one heat of a hoss race, suh, an' win us all back ag'in an two mo' niggahs 'sides us, suh, bettin' on jes' one hand o' pokah! Jackfishin'? Sho! Dah ain' no jackfishin' no mo'! Seems mighty desp'rit fo' me to do it, but sometimes I fink if I only jes' see ol' mahs' jackfishin' once mo' down yon on de banks o' de Cape Fare, in de days 'fo' de wah. I jes' natch'ly could jine my fadduhs!

"I nevuh see bettuh jackfishu dan my ol' mahsuh. Bes' fishin' fo' jacks wah in de fall, an' when fall come I done spec' ev' day to heah mahs' say:

"'Hi, you' Tony! Ain' I got a red roostuh o' some kyine, some whah 'bout de plantation?'

"Ol' mahs' always keep a coop o' de fines' chickens in de lan'—bes' kyine o' jackfishin' roostuhs, too. When de time come fo' mahsah to say dat, I say:

"'Sho'ly yo' have, mahsuh!'

"Den mahs' he say: 'So I bean tinkin'. But co'se dat ol' roostuh ain' trim?" he say.

"'Trimmest kyine!' I say.

"Den mahs' he pool he whiskuhs a spell an' 'peah like he tinkin' pow'ful hahd. Bimeby he say:

"'Peahs like I dun bought a V'ginny filly some time, Tony. 'Spec' I didn't, though! Ain' a hoss on de plahntation, I reckon?

"Mahs' always have a stable full de bes' young hosses, V'ginny fillies an' all kyine. I say:

"'Heap o' hosses, mahsuh!'

"'Grain an' grass-fed, I done 'spec'!' mahs' he say. 'All fat an' pot-belly, o' cose!'

"Den I say: 'Jes like grayhoun's, dem hosses is, mahsuh! An' slick as silk, suh!'

"Den ol' mahs' he pool he whiskuhs some mo' an' do pow'ful tinkin'. Bimeby he say:

"'Den Ise gwan jackfishin', t'mah mo'n.

"Dat jes' w'at I done bean waitin' fo' to heah, 'case I bean baitin' de fishin' groun' fo' a week an' mo', an' ol' mahs' he know it mighty well. 'Fo de wah, when we went jackfishin', we fus' frow heaps o' co'n meal dough in de stream to coax the fish. De meal coax de minny fish to de spot, an' de minny fish dey coax de jackfish in dah, so dey be ready to be catched when we go out to git 'em.

"So, when ol' mahs' he tell me he gwan jackfishin', I done have de fish-poles all ready nex' mo'n, an' de trim red roostuh in a bag, an' wait fo' mahsuh. When he come, he say:

"'I done spec' yo' ain' ready yet, yo' rascal!'

"But I jes' grin. Den he say:

"'Whah's Kizuh?'

"Kizuh be a little niggah boy, 'bout knee high to a tucky gobbluh, but how he kin ride a hoss! Um-m-m-um! How dat black midget kin ride a hoss! So I holluh fo' Kizuh, an' Kizuh he come, he eyes a spocklin', 'case he know what comin'.

"'Kizuh,' ol' mahs' he say, 'dat brown filly 'peahs like she done feel her oats. Wants exe'cisin', I reckon. Guess may'b' yo' bettuh ride her out a spell. Ise gwan jackfishin' down on de flats.'

"Kizuh he know what dat mean, an' off he go chucklin', an' frowin' han'-springs. Den mahs' he calls two, free mo' darkies, an' 'way we go fo' de Cape Fare, jackfishin'. When we git dah ol' mahs' he find a nice, easy paht of de bank, an' dah he flop hese'f down, ready fo' to do his jackfishin'. Den I put a wum on a minny hook, an' frow in an' cotch minny fish. Den I bait de jackfish hooks wiv minny fish an' frow 'em out in de fishin' groun' an' set de poles. Den ol' mahsuh begin fishin'. Bimeby down go a bobbuh on de line, 'way out o' sight. Jackfish have him, sho's yo' bo'n. Den mahs' he fish.

"'Hi, yo', Tony!' he holluh. 'Grab dat pole! Doan' yo' yank him! Doan' yo' yank him yit! Give him time, yo' black rascal! Give him time! Yo' lose dat fish an' I sen' yo' home! Hi, dah! Sam! Dah's 'nudduh one doun! Whaffo' yo' doan' grab dat pole! Hi, yo, Joe! Doan' yo see nuffin'? Doan' yo' see dat bobbuh done gone below, doan' you! Free jocks a goin', an' I bet de hull plantashun o' niggahs I lose 'em all! Yank yo'n, Tony! Yank him! Dah! he's a fine one, too. I cotch one, anyhow! Doan' yo' snatch dat fish yit, Joe! Doan', I tell yo'! Yo' fool niggah! Didn' I tol' yo' doan' snatch him! An' hyah yo' go an' git crazy an' snatch him, an' I done lose him! W'at yo' tinkin' about, yo' Sam! Gwan to let dat jack gobble bait, hook, line, pole, an' yo'seff, too? Why doan' yo' yank him? Any pusson come 'long hyah, now, w'at dey tink? Dey tink I can't fish nohow! Dah! Yo' might a snatched him in long ago! See how he done gobble de hook clean to his insides! Sho! No 'count little one, too! I tink I gwan to cotch a whale de way yo' done capuh wiv him!'

"Den I bait 'em up ag'in, an bimeby ol' mahs' he cotch mo' jocks de same way. He a mighty fishuh man, ol' mahsah wuz! An' bimeby Kizuh he come whizzin' down dah on de brown filly, an' she cain't hahdly hol' hese'ff. An' bimeby, fus' ting we know, 'long come 'nudduh plantuh from down de Cape Fare, an' 'nudduh one from up de Cape Fare, an' nudduh one from way ovuh yon side de Cape Fare, and dey say:

"'Hello, Cunnell! Jock fishin'?'

"Den ol' mahs' he say: 'Huh, huh!'

"Den dey say: 'Cotch many?'

"An' ol mahs he say: 'Oh, right smaht!'

"Den bimeby mo' dahkies come along, totin' bags lookin' jes' like de one I tote mahsuh's red roostuh in, an' mo little nigguh boys like Kizuh ridin' hosses w'at jes' natch'ly cain't hahdly hol' demselfs, like mahsuh's brown filly. An' bimeby dem bags is open, an' mahsuh's red roostuh an' some udduh man's red roostuh, dey jes' makin' heaps o' fedduhs fly, an' bimeby somebody's red roostuh it done keeled ovuh, an' den udduh bags dey done bean opened, an' mo' fedduhs fly, an' bimeby nudcah red roostuh he keeled ovuh, an' de niggahs dey mos' git crazy, an' say dey nevuh did have setch pow'ful good time jockfishin' befo'.

"Den somehow dem hosses dey jes' natch'ly won't hol' deyseffs no mo', an' fus' ting we know, 'way dey go ovah dem flats an' back ag'n, dem little nigguh boys yellin' dey lungs mos' out, an' lashin' dem hosses desp'ritest, Kyine an' some niggahs hopin' dis hyuh hoss he win, an' udduh ones hopin' yon colt it win, jes' co'din' to wevvuh dey want to stay on de plantation whah dey am or wevvuh dey soonuh go up to de Cape Fare or down de Cape Fare, or ovuh on yon side de Cape Fare, 'case dey's all bet one way or t'uddah, so sho's yo' bo'n, suh! I nevuh lef' de ol' plahntation to stay long only one time. I went jockfishin' wiv ol' mahsah, an' his brown filly. She wuz jes' a nose ahind 'nudduh man's bay hoss, an' I have to go way down on de Peedee in So'th C'lina. Nex' yeah, new mahs' he go up to see ol' mahsuh jockfish on de Cape Fare, an' my ol' mahsah's red roostuh he keel new mahsuh's roostuh ovuh so pow'ful dat new mahsuh's roostuh he nevuh rise no mo', an' I stay on de ol' plahntation.

"Yes, suh. Jockfishin' 'fo' de wah it wuz spo'ty, sho's yo' bo'n, an' it jes' natch'ly makes my mouf watah when I 'membuh dem ol' days. Co'se, doan' want 'em back ag'in, suh, co'se not. But I'd jes' like to see ol' mahsah jockfishin' agi'n on de banks o' de Cape Fare, wid de slick brown filly scootin' wid little Kizuh, and de trim red roostuh makin' de fedduhs fly! Peahs like I could jes' natch'ly shet my eyes an' quit breavin', an' holluh:

"'Now, yo' ol' Fadduh Abram! If dah's room in yo' boozum, jes' snatch me up, an' I done snuggle in dah, sho's yo' bo'n, 'case Ise ready fo' to go.'

QUITE CONCLUSIVE.

An Authority That Was Not to Be Questioned.

Many are the stories told of old Father Neale, of Virginia, the Baptist preacher. He was by trade a carpenter, and before he forsook that business to become a minister was head carpenter to Gen. Washington.

Father Neale's only book was the Bible, and when he found a young preacher using a concordance to help him find texts he said:

"You had better let that alone; it will do you more harm than good; it will make you lazy."

"But how can I do without it?" asked the young preacher.

"Why, do as I do," replied Father Neale; "study the Bible till you know it by heart."

Once he heard a minister say that the people could not have been immersed in the Jordan, because that river was so small that a man could almost dam it up with his foot. That was too much for Father Neale.

"I don't pretend to have any great learning," said he, with a twinkle in his eye, "but if I don't read books of travel, there's one book I do read, and that's the Bible. Now, our brother here says the Jordan is so small that you may stop it with your foot. His books may tell him so, but my book tells me that David, when he was flying from Absalom and wanted to cross that same river Jordan, had to hire a boat to carry him over!"—Youth's Companion.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

HEAVIEST OF TAXES.

An Eloquent and Convincing Talk on Mud, Money and Dust.

It was Gen. Phil Sheridan, in one of his great battles in the Shenandoah valley, who rode along the line and gave orders to this effect: "Do not shoot over their heads. This is not going to be a play battle. Shoot to hit, and have it tell." That was good advice in war. It is equally good in civil life. This contest for good roads, a contest that means much for the millions and hundreds of millions of profit to the millions, is not a play contest, a battle for amusement. It is a contest in which the best minds and the best hearts of the nation are becoming interested; in which men engaged in all branches of trade are becoming interested; in which every farmer, every laborer, every man and every woman in the country will yet become deeply interested. As this is true, every orator who talks on good roads at farmers' institutes, county and state fairs, and on other occasions, should not talk over the heads of the people; every editor and correspondent who writes on the subject should write with a distinct purpose in view. They should not write over the heads of the people; they should speak and write for the minds and the hearts of the people, yea, and for their pockets as well; they should write and speak distinctly, bravely, honestly, practically, in such a way as to turn the attention of the millions to the great question; in such a way as to set hundreds of thousands to talking about good roads where thousands now are talking about them; in such a way as to arouse enthusiasm, lead to practical work, to the actual building of good roads.

MUD, MONEY AND DUST.

That is what I am going to try to do in this article, not to shoot over the heads of the people, but right into their hearts, their minds, their pockets.

A gentleman who has had much experience in traveling over dusty as well as muddy roads has figured on the cost of both dust and mud. Let him deal with dust now. He estimates that the damage to harness from dust is $5 per team, or $15,000,000 annually, and to vehicles double that, or $30,000,000. His estimate of damage to clothing is an average of $10 to every man and woman obliged to encounter dust clouds and storms, which means that the 7,000,000 of people lose $70,000,000 each year from flying dust. He expresses the belief that thousands of people every year receive injury to their eyes from the same cause, requiring a large outlay of cash, not to mention suffering, inconvenience and loss of time.

These figures are well calculated to cause thoughtful men and women to stop and count the cost of bad roads in other respects. A loss of $115,000,000 from one result of poor roads is worth looking into.

For a century the people have been suffering from dusty roads certain portions of the year. Probably not one in 50,000 people from the birth of the republic until now has ever stopped to consider the question of damage from dust, while all have groaned over its inconvenience and annoyance.

It is easy to figure up the billions of dollars that have been lost from that one cause the past century. The average good road affords but little dust.

Some one asks how shall we get good roads? Begin by agitating. Agitate in the home circle, in the everyday walks of life, in public meetings, through the press, in farm institutes, at county and state fairs, in the debating societies, anywhere, everywhere, and when public sentiment has reached the right stage it will do the rest—get good roads. Agitate it practically; antagonize no element; interest all elements; make it plain that good roads are in the interest of all from a money standpoint; from the standpoint of comfort, convenience and economy.

Such agitation, on such a question, in such an age ought to be easy. Go at it.
—J. A. WATROUS.

Value of Cottonseed.

Those who have made a study of the proper methods for the perfect cultivation of cottonseed claim that if proper apparatus were introduced in the south the value of the produce could easily be doubled, and reach not less than $100,000,000 annually, an amount equal to one-third of the cotton crop itself. As it is, the processes in the manufacture of cottonseed oil are very crude, and much that is useful is wasted. The charge of carelessness in manufacture seems strange in view of the fact that most of the $30,000,000 invested in cottonseed oil manufacture is northern capital, and the managers are northern men.

Insects in Grain Bins.

Carbon bisulphide, a liquid, is very volatile, and for that reason it is used in grain bins for destroying insects injurious to grain. The gas is heavier than the air and goes downward, penetrating every portion of the bin. One pound of the bisulphide placed in shallow pans in a tight bin is sufficient for 100 bushels of grain. The cost, if bought in 50-pound cans, is about ten cents per pound. Being highly inflammable, fire must be kept away from it, a lighted pipe or cigar being sufficient to ignite it. It is not injurious to the grain.

The man who appreciates the difference between good and bad roads may be said to have "horse sense."

Too Soft for Any Use.

This is a great country but some parts of it are too soft.

FEEDING MILK COWS.

Liberal Rations Are Necessary to Secure Satisfactory Results.

The character of the feed determines to a very considerable extent the quantity and quality of the milk and butter from a good cow. An extra yield of butter will naturally follow the use of a richer ration, but this is not always the case with a common cow. So there is something in the breed as well as in the feed.

The dairyman who is seeking the best results at the lowest cost should satisfy himself as to what are the best kinds of feed, considering the cost, that will produce the most and the best milks. Generally a combination of feeding materials will give the best results, as certain elements wanting in some food will be supplied by others. Succulent food increases the flow of milk, but does not materially increase the proportion of water in it. Still, feed often does make a change in the dry substance of the milk.

A ration rich in albuminoids will make a richer milk, and the relative proportions of fat and casein are changed to a very considerable extent by a change in the ration. Another point that is well settled is that certain kinds of food will produce changes in the composition of milk not indicated by chemical analysis. Succulent food is productive of the largest quantity of fat in the milk, and also has the effect of causing the cream to separate more readily from the milk and the butter globules from the cream, leaving less fat in the buttermilk.

For a dry feed a combination of four parts of wheat bran, two of cornmeal and one of linseed oil makes one of the best, especially during the winter. If any change is made in summer it would be from corn to ground oats. This, with good pasture, makes a complete ration for a milch cow during the summer. When the pasturage cannot be supplied, some good soiling crop that can be cut off and fed green may take its place.

Liberal feeding is always necessary with the dairy cow, as it is only the surplus over and above what is necessary to sustain life and thrift that is used for milk. If the cow is kept up to her full capacity she must have all the appetizing, milk-producing food she will consume. It is only this kind of feeding that makes a good profit in dairying.—St. Louis Republic.

GARDEN AND ORCHARD.

A low, spreading tree is least affected by the winds.

The kind of soil has much to do with the quality of fruit.

Always remove dead or decaying wood from growing trees.

It is not too late yet to fill vacant places in the orchard.

A fast-growing tree is not apt to produce very much fruit.

All superfluous branches are a needless drain upon the resources of the tree.

In pruning the grapes it is a good plan to allow five canes to each post, cutting back yearly.

Red clover is one of the best plants for orchards, it keeps the ground loose and enriches the soil.

Pruning is done for two reasons: To make symmetrical, long-lived trees and to cause fruitfulness.

Got ice? Got ensilage? Why not? Ice is good all summer and ensilage supplements early spring pasture.

The most important thing in pear culture is good, well-drained soil. Train the trees carefully while young.

If grape vines are expected to bear well to a good old age they must be intelligently pruned from the first.

A fruit plant exposed to the sun and wind will soon die. When received from the nursery keep it cool and moist until set out again.

A well-grown, thrifty tree, well established, may survive a few years of neglect, while a younger tree would soon die of such treatment.

When trees are badly infested with bark lice, one of the best remedies is to wash them with a strong solution of tobacco, to which is added the same quantity of soap suds.—St. Louis Republic.

head halter has its strap, or rope, pass down between the forelegs, where it is attached to a surcingle. It is held close to the throat by a strap about the neck midway. The animal thus cannot get his foot over the rope when feeding. A bit of rope about the neck will answer. Make this harnes fit so the animal can raise his head to a level with his body—a natural position—but no higher. He must throw his head back in order to jump.—N. Y. Tribune.

Suggestions on Creaming.

Gravity creaming in the private dairy loses more fat than most farmers dream of. If ice is used at once after milking to reduce the water round the cans to about 40 degrees Fahrenheit, the fat will rise, leaving not more than one-fifth of one per cent.; and if the water is at 60 degrees or above, one per cent. or more will be left in the skimmilk. This one or more per cent. is a third or a half of all the fat in the milk. This suggests the putting up of ice by the private dairyman. The climate of Kansas provides for this, and it is a greater boon than many imagine. —Prof. James Wilson.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Copper.

It now begins to look as if the copper deposit which has been explored for so long at the head of the lakes had been discovered. Ex-Sheriff W. W. Butchart and William Osborn, of Duluth, are the locators of the property, which will be developed at once. It is near the city limits of Duluth and only about a half mile from the site of the new municipal water plant at Lakewood, just east of Lester river. Some Chicago parties are interested with Butchart and Osborn, and will furnish the money for developing the property.

Four experts have examined the property and have pronounced it "all right" and are of the opinion that the vein is a continuation of the Calumet and Hecla vein. The copper runs in rock and there is also a fissure of native copper, The fissure runs beside the vein or veins in the rock.

It Was True.

Mrs. S. E. Keller, of Minneapolis, heard burglars in the house. After the manner of husbands, Mr. Kellar said it was nonsense, but this was the exceptional burglar scare that proves the rule. There were burglars in the house, and if Mrs. Keller had not aroused her husband to tell him about it the burglars would not have left the house in the mad haste of their actual departure, and doubtless they would have carried away more than the silver from the dining room. As it was they took silverware to the value of about $35 or $40. Had the visitors succeeded in doing work on the second floor their haul would have been much larger. Later, part of the stolen articles were found outside the house.

Thirteen Thousand Dollars.

Charles R. Zschau, assistant receiving teller of the National German-American bank of St. Paul, was arrested on the charge of stealing a package of money containing the sum of $13,600, which mysteriously disappeared from the bank. The bank is secured from loss by a personal bond, but the most exhaustive search since the disappearance of the cash has failed to discover the slightest clue to the money, and the accusation against Zschau, followed by his arrest, has thrown no additional light upon the matter.

Later—After two days' confinement Zschau confessed, implicating one Jackson. Half of the money was recovered.

Recognized in England.

The Society of Science, Letters and Art of London has exalted the Rev. John Wright, D. D., rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, St. Paul, to the rank of fellow, and has awarded the silver medal of honorable merit, department of literature. This distinction was awarded in consideration of his valuable work recently published, entitled, "Early Prayer Book of America." The award carries with it the gown and hood and rank as master of arts.

Dr. Samuel G. Ginner, of St. Paul, was awarded a gold medal, with honors in the dramatic department.

For Crippled Children.

By July 1 it is expected that all arrangements will have been made by the regents of the university for the reception of patients under the new law which permits the board to care for the deformed and crippled children of indigent parents in some one of the hospitals of the Twin Cities. The amount appropriated by the new law for this purpose is $5,000 annually. At the last meeting of the regents the matter came before the board, and Judge Mahoney of Minneapolis and Judge Clark of St. Paul were named a committee with power to act.

Plenty of Seed.

Of the 27,500 pounds of sugar beet seed which the state imported from Germany for the encouragement of the industry, only 2,000 has as yet been distributed to farmers of the state, and it seems probable now that the remainder will have to be kept in storage for one or more years until a demand arises for it commensurate with the state's supply.

News in Brief.

Mrs. C. Henderson, of Eagle Bend, committed suicide by shooting herself.

Mike Schmitz, an old soldier of Big Lake, near Elk River, was burned out and lost all his household goods. He had no insurance.

By the breaking of a truss rod on a steam shovel at Osakis three laboring men, J. O'Connor, Dan McFarland and M. C. Rich, were injured.

Gov. Clough named the members of the new drainage board as follows: E. D. Childs, of Crookston; William R. Hoag, Minneapolis, and George R. Roberts, Stephen. The term of office office is three years, and the members of the board are to inspect all the drainage ditch work which has been or will be done in the state.

Herman Gilman, was run down by a hook and ladder truck, in Minneapolis, and had his leg crushed so that amputation was necessary. Gilman was an accident insurance agent but was not protected by a policy.

O. Foote, an aged farmer from Dyersville, Ia., retired at the home of his friends in Minneapolis, leaving the gas jet partially turned on, causing his death.

Charles Benke, of Eagan, while crossing the Milwaukee road at Burn's crossing, a mile and a half north of Westcott station, was killed by a passenger train.

The Minnesota Grass Twine company, of St. Paul, filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. It has a capital stock of $250,000, the incorporators being M. J. O'Shaughnessy, of Huntsville, Ala., William C. Read and Charles L. F. Kellogg, of St. Paul. The company will manufacture binding twine, bags, rope, and the like.

The officials of the Faribault schools are enforcing the anti-cigarette law. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Emil Lucier, a grocer in the northern part of that city, who has been selling tobacco and cigarettes to school children. Other arrests are likely to follow.

The brick yard plant of O. R. Mather at Pelican Rapids was destroyed by fire.

Gov. Clough has appointed Elmer E. Adams, of Fergus Falls, as a member of the board of regents of the state university, to succeed Prof. L. S. Swanson, of Albert Lea, term expired. Mr. Adams is editor of the Fergus Falls Journal.

The Pioneer mine at Ely has resumed operations with 200 men. The company has about 165,000 tons of iron ore in stock, and if not wholly, will partly be shipped to lower lake docks this season.

The Minnesota Summer Resort.

Lake Minnetonka, near St. Paul and Minneapolis, is the ideal resort of the Northwest. It is one of the most picturesque local ties in the country, the lake having over 150 miles of shore line, attractive with forests, lawns and cottages. It is a notable yachting resort and has more fine sailing and steam craft than any other lake in the Union. The outlet is Minnehaha (Laughing Water) Creek, made famous by Longfellow's poem. The bass fishing cannot be excelled. Hotel Lafayette, at Minnetonka Beach, opens June 26th for season of 1897. It is the most complete summer house west of the Mississippi, and contains five acres of floor surface, every room facing the water. It is reached by frequent trains on the Great Northern Railway from the Twin Cities. Persons desiring to spend a few days or weeks at the Lafayette, please address E. V. Holcombe, Manager, St. Paul, Minn.

A Stout Backbone

Is as essential to physical health as to political consistency. For weakness of the back, rheumatism, and disorders of the kidneys, the tonic and dietetic action of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the one thing needful. The stomach is the mainstay of every other organ, and by invigorating the digestion with this preparation, the spinal column, and all its dependencies, are sympathetically strengthened. The dyspeptic and bilious will find it a pure vegetable stimulant and tonic.

The unhappy man who is enabled to give to his fellow beings, has at his command the source of great happiness.—N. Y. Weekly.

DROPSY is a dread disease, but it has lost its terrors to those who know that H. H. Green & Sons, the Dropsy Specialists of Atlanta, Georgia, treat it with such great success. Write them for painphlet giving full information.

A man never feels as awkward as when he is carrying a lot of millinery.—Washington Democrat.

"Star Tobacco."

As you chew tobacco for pleasure, use Star. It is not only the best, but the most lasting, and therefore the cheapest.

This is the season of the year when people take sides in pronouncing the word "peony."

AN INCIDENT AT THE CITY HOSPITAL.

A Woman's Life Barely Saved by a Critical Operation—Her Health Destroyed.

There was a hurry call for the ambulance of the City Hospital. In the course of an hour a very sick young woman was brought in on a stretcher. She was pale as death and evidently suffering keen agony. There was a hasty examination and a consultation. In less than a quarter of an hour the poor creature was on the operating table to undergo the operation called ovariotomy.

There was no time for the usual preparation. Her left ovary was on the point of bursting; when it was removed, it literally disintegrated. If it had burst before removal, she would have died almost instantly! That young woman had had warnings enough in the terrible pains, the burning sensation, the swelling low down on her left side. No one advised her, so she suffered tortures and nearly lost her life. I wish I had met her months before, so I could have told her of the virtues of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. As it is now, she is a wreck of a woman.

Oh, my sisters, if you will not tell a doctor your troubles, do tell them to a woman who stands ever ready to relieve you! Write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., confide freely to her all your troubles, and she will advise you free of charge; and if you have any of the above symptoms take the advice of Miss Agnes Tracy, who speaks from experience and says:

"For three years I had suffered with inflammation of the left ovary, which caused dreadful pains. I was so badly affected that I had to sleep with pillows under my side, and then the pain was so great it was impossible to rest.

"Every month I was in bed for two or three days. I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and am entirely cured. I think there is no medicine to be compared with the Compound for female diseases. Every woman who suffers from any form of female weakness should try it at once." MISS AGNES TRACY, Box 432, Valley City, N. D.

"Out of the frying-pan into the fire." Take care that you don't go that way, when you try to make your washing easier. Better be sure of what you're doing.

Get Pearline, the original washing-compound, the best-known, the fully-proved. There are plenty of imitations of it. But even if they're not dangerous—and some are—they're not economical.

Pearline used properly, goes farther, does more work, and saves more wear, than anything else that's safe to use. 526

DELANO, FRIDAY, JUNE 11, 1897.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Children's Day is to be observed at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning.

—Len Deidrich's new building is completed and has been turned into a pool room.

—Mr. W. R. Sandford, of St. Paul will lecture on "Social Purity" at the M. E. church, on Sunday evening.

—Len Dedrick is the first to get his new building done, and is already doing business in the new part of his

—Mr. Daye Riebel, the taxidermist, received from F L. Kennedy, of Minneapolis, a species of lizard called an iguana.

—Ringling Brothers circus is billed for Buffalo, June 15. This is one of the oldest and probably as good as any now on the road.

—The band boys did not give their concert, at Watertown, last Wednesnight, as expected, on account of a heavy rain storm. They will give it next Monday night.

—The reception of the High School Scholars to the graduating class and friends; school officers and teachers at the City Hall, Monday evening was quite an enjoyable affair.

—Yesterday afternoon at about 4 o'clock one of the warmest, most summerlike rains of the season set in. People enjoyed it after the long cold spell we have been having.

—John Brandser has moved his family into the building purchased of Lohmiller, on R. R. Ave. The Misses Bauman will continue their business in the front room till after the 4th.

—Show a spark of patriotism next Fourth of July. Do not let the day go by without a celebration, as Decoration Day was allowed to pass. It would be a double shame to the community.

—The regular three months summer vacation of the Delano High School has commenced, and a number of the scholars have gone back to their homes in the surrounding country and in neighboring towns.

—There is still a diminutive lake on Third street in front of Mowat's, Dyer's and Ball's residences. It looks bad to visitors and travelling men to see water standing in the street of a town the size of Delano.

—We have lived in Minnesota since 1855, and never before, so well as we can remember, seen such a prolonged spell of cold cloudy weather at this season of the year. It mades the Territorial Boys want to hunt more sunshine and more caloric.

—It is now less than a month till the 4th. of July, and it is high time preparations were made for holding a celebration. There is no reason why Delano cannot hold the best celebration in the country, if all the citizens pull together and do all they can to help the cause. A good celebration is one of the best advertisements a town can have.

Teachers' Training School.

Will be held at Buffalo commencing July 7, and continuing four weeks. The school will be conducted by Prof. A. D. Gaines of the Agricultural College, St. Anthony Park, assisted by Mrs. Gaines, Miss Hattie Dunton and Mr. James of the St. Cloud Normal.

Classes will be formed in the following subjects: Reading, Elementary Botany, History of England, Penmanship, Physical Culture, Arithmetic, Physiology, Grammar, English, History of the U. S., Civics, Geography, Music, Pedagog School Law, Geometry and Algebra if a sufficient number wish. There will also be a course of about eight lectures given by some of the ablest men of the state, and several excellent concerts in connection with the school. It is not necessary to urge our most successful teachers to be present at the beginning and remain during the entire term, but others who expect license to teach are earnestly requested to grasp the opportunities offered by the Training School for obtaining a more thorough knowledge of the subjects to be taught as well as proper methods of teaching them.

The Patent Office Scandal.

It is not remarkable that a Bill has been introduced in Congress imposing a heavy fine or imprisonment upon allege patent attorneys who offer prizes and medals as an inducement to apply for patent. A more taking scheme for obtaining money has seldem been invented. Thousands have been caught by it, and have lost, not only the money they have paid the attorney and Government, but, in a jack o'lantern pursuit of fortune, in a promised but never to be obtained patent, have stopped work and even mortgaged or sold their property. The aggregate misery from this source is pathetic to contemplate.

These attorneys have advertised far and wide that ideas are patentable, and have a commercial and marketable value. A most delusive and hurtful deception. The lists of "patents wanted" which they send to stimulate invention, as a matter of course, embrace classes in which there are already from 10 to 100 patents granted. Indeed it is impossible to print a list of 100 inventions, without mentioning at least 99 that have been each covered by many patents. It is a kindness on the part of the Government to refuse the grant of patent, as it does in nine cases in ten, to these deluded applicants, for the grant of a flimsy, worthless patent for an almost obsolete device would only involve the owner in future fruitless expense.

All these attorneys have so-called sale agency annexes, and under the pretence of being able to sell the patent still further fleece the poor men and women by getting their money for advertiseing. Of course they never sell, for the patents they procure are weak and worthless, and no one posted in the class of invention to which they pertain would accept them as a gift.

CHESTER A. SNOW.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4, 1897.

Republicans pretend to pooh-pooh Senator Morgan's deliberately made charge that the action of the House is unconstitutional and that Congress is not legally in session, but in reality it is worrying them no little. The matter has been discussed at a cabinet meeting and the Attorney General is preparing an opinion on that subject to be submitted to the Cabinet.

The Senate has adopted a resolution offered by Senator Tillman, requesting the Judiciary Committee to report the legislation is necessary to enable the State of South Carolina to control the liquor traffic within its territory. The resolution is intended to meet the decision of the Federal Court that the present dispensary law of S. C. is in conflict with the interstate commerce law.

It looks now if there would be no sugar investigation. Had a vote been taken on Senator Tillman's resolution when it was first offered it would have been adopted, but having confered together the republican Senators have recovered their nerve and it is now announced that they will vote against the resolution.

The following language wasn't uttered by a democratic member of the House, but by one of Washingtons oldest ministers of the gospel, Dr. Byron Sunderland, at a mass meeting held under the auspices of the Woman's National Cuban League, to express the grief and indignation of the American public at the atrocions murder of an American nurse by the Spaniards. Dr. Sunderland said: "The government of the U. S. seems to be recreant to its duty in thels emergency. Look at the conduct of this Congress of ours. The House of Representatives, called together to take action on questions of vital moment to the welfare of our people, as well as of our suffering fellow-citizens in Cuba, adjourning from day to day. All business locked up securely and the key carried in one man's pocket. Meanwhile, members of this body, in cahoots with half a dozen members of the British Parliament with the Ministers of both powers acting as umpires, regaling themselves at a game of chess! The committee rooms of the House given over to carrying on the sport."

Senator Jones of Arkansas, doesn't believe in straddling any question. Two democratic Senators voted with the republicans for a duty on onyx because of the existance of onyx quarries in their States, and Senator Perkins said he was surprised that Senator Jones did not do so in order to help developе the large onyx deposits known to exist in Arkansas. Mr. Jones said in reply: "There is no justification for tariff taxation, except for the purposes of revenue, and I will not support an excessive tax, even for the benefit of my people. Taxation for private benefit is robbery, pure and simple.

Jerry Simpson may not be able to cope with Speaker Reed but he made Representative Stone sorry he interrupted him to ask if there was any greater demand for a passage of a bankruptcy bill now than there was during the last Congress, by replying: "Why certainly there is; your promised prosperity has not materialized and the people new seek relief in bankruptcy courts."

If the words of the Washington judge who presided over the court that tried and acquitted Havemeyer and Searles, the president and secretary of the sugar trust, mean anything they mean that that the Senate committee had no legal authority to ask questions relating to the business of the sugar trust. If this is good law, the laws of this country cannot be too soon so ammended as to give Congress the right to investigate the business of the sugar trust, and of all other trusts, whenever there is occassion to do so in the interest of the public.

It is guilty consciences which have caused Speaker Reed to be guarded by detectives, for fear that somebody will do him bodily injury as a result of the public indignation at his methods of muzzling the House. He has received threatening letters, but ther were written by a man in Washington merely to cause a sensation. There isn't the slightest probability that anybody will kill Mr. Reed, or even hurt him. The People know that their remedy lies in the ballot box, and they will wait until the Congressional elections next year to apply it.

Secatary Gage has let the secret out that Mr. McKinley expects this session of congress to give him authority to appoint a currency commission. The House will, of course, do whatever Mr. McKinley wants it to do, provided that Mr. Reed's consent be obtatained, but the Silver Senators havent the slightest idea of giving Mr McKinley authority to pick a currency commission, but they will insist that its members shall be selected by the President, the Senate and the House, in order that the silver men may have a fair representation thereon.

COOKING ACCORDING TO SCIENCE.

Give me a spoon of oleo, ma,
And the sodium alkali,
For I'm going to bake a pie, mamma,
I'm going to bake a pie.
For John will be hungry and tired, ma,
And his tissues will decompose;
So give me a gramme of phosphate,
And the carbon and cellulose.

Now give me a chunk of caseine, ma,
To shorten the thermic fat;
And hand me the oxygen bottle, ma,
And look at the thermostat;
And if the electric oven's cold
Just turn it on half an ohm.
For I want to have supper ready
As soon as John comes home.

Now pass me the nutral dope, mamma,
And rotate the mixing machine,
But give me the sterilized water first,
And the oleomargarine,
And the phospate, too, for, now I think,
The new typewriter's quit,
And John will need more phosphate food
To help his brain a bit.

FROM a list of changes in Post Office salaries we learn that the pay of the Anoka Post Master has been reduced from $1,700 to $1,500 per year. The reason is not given, possibly because some of the patrons have pulled out of the prevailing party.

KENEDY'S OWN, for June contains "Labor Interest in the Money Unit," by C. J. Coholey, "Unveiling of the Ole Bull Monument" oration by John W. Arclander, at Minneapolis, May 17, 1897, and several other articles well worth reading and preserving.

THE May number of Kennedy's Own the wide awake Minneapolis Magazine contains three poems from the pen of Henry Slade Goff. They are good, especially the "Song of the Cuban Soldier." Mr. Kennedy has a way of securing first class authors, and articles of high grade for his magazine. Judges C. M. Pond and J. W. Willis discussed the Cuban question. Rev. Clear, Frank Nye, David Johnson and others have written some fine articles for the Magazine which deserves reading by everybody.

THOSE who have read republican papers know of the terrible reputation they have painted for Ex-Governor Altgeld, of Illinois. Mr. Tanner was elected to succeed him and now it is somewhat amusing to read in such a grand old party organ as the Chicago Tribune, that Governor Tanner has signed a bill working great hardship to the people of Chicago, and that Gov. Altgeld would have had his right arm cut off before he would have done such a thing. They begin to see a glimmer of day light.

SOME of our cotemporaries say they think, that Frank Larabee is too prejudiced to be allowed to even assist the prosecuting attorney in the Howard case. It seems kind of strange while so many of them have agreed on this point that they have every last one of them failed to point out that Col. Dodge and his associates might be a little too much interested in the outcome of the Howard case to be permitted to defend him from the charges that have been made against him. "It is a poor rule that want work both ways."

W. J. WHITE, proprietor and editor of the Sun, of Brandon, Manitoba, the Minneapolis Tribune says, is anxious that the Minnesota Editorial association accept a trip through the Queen's domain to that place. The trip is to be from Duluth to Port Arthur by water, thence by rail to Rat Portage, over the Canadian Pacific Ry., an excursion on Lake of the Woods and Rainy River; Winnepeg, Selkirk, Brandon and Bauff, away up in the Rocky Mountains are points on the route. Then to the coast, to return as you please, over the Canadian Pacific, Great Northern, or Northern Pacific reads.

This would, as Mr. White says, be a delightful trip, and if it does not require too much cash outlay, will doubtless be enjoyed by a very large percentage of the editorial fraternity of Minnesota.

WHAT possible benefit do the McKinleyites think it will be to the people of Minnesota to pay about 25 per cent more for the woolens; in what way do they think paying $2 per thousand feet for fine boards more than they have been paying will help the pocketbooks of farmers? If they succeed in getting the extra cotton tariff passed how will that help us in this state? If they screw up the tariff on wheat, hay, corn, potatoes, rye, eggs and a few more things to jolly the farmer and our crops should happen to be a little short and we wish to bring in a few loads of eatables from Canada, wouldn't the tariff which would have to be paid, soon put Minnesota in the safe for Bryan column?

Smokeless Powder.

From the following from the Wheaton Foot-Prints it seems people had better be careful when they experiment with the new smokeless powder: "Oscar Davidsen had the misfortune to burst his rifle Saturday. The shells were loaded with the new smokeless powder, which is very strong, and being loaded with the same amount in weight as ordinary powder, proved too heavy a charge and split the rifle the full length of the barrel. Fortunately the breaking of the rifle was the only damage done."

Whither are We Drifting.

With free silver bosses plotting against Bryan, and Wannamaker preaching a political crusade among the Republicans; with business at such a state of stagnation, and the conviction of the people that the religion of politics is but the incarnation of greed it looks as if present party lines would disappear in 1898 and 1900. We do not favor change for the sake of change, but when party supplants the will of the people, and political organizations become only machines for manipulating office and public patronage, there should be a revolution of methods. We are living under new conditions; the medicines so long administered by Dr. Party have no effect. The disease now prostrating the people cannot be cured simply by tariff, or silver, or gold, or the election of a particular man, but new methods of living must be sought; the government must become more Democratic; men elected to office must be relieved of temptations incident to public patronage. Railroads and other rich corporations should be protected, but not allowed to protect themselves by granting favors to judges or any public officer, or ministers of the gospel. Our suggestions of reform may be brief, but they awake a thousand others in the minds of the people. We predict the inauguration of a great social and political revolution, wrought not by force of arms, but by the power of thought pushed on by the necessities and convictions of the common people. —The Interurban.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Has been rather rainy weather of late have had no good roads for sometime.

Some of the farmers have begun cultivating their corn but most of it is rather small for this time of year.

If we have many more heavy rains it will make the ground rather soft for harvest and the low meadows will be wet when haying begins.

Dr. Walters, of Delano, was seen in our town one day this week.

Many of our people seem to have a great taste for fishing, and they say fishing is good.

Mrs. Charles Histed is still on the sick list has been sick for several months.

Some of the Independence people took in the circus at Buffalo Tuesday, they report it as being very good.

There was quite a good many out last Sunday at Armstrong A. C. Church went to hear the Odd Fellow's Sermon preached by W. A. Jackson of Rockford.

There is but a few good gardens this spring the cold wet weather has kept them back.

Parties from the cities have been up in our town looking for land they want a place where they can plant their vine and fig tree and be a little independent of the corporations.

All the schools in Independence have closed for the season.

Thomas Rader is putting in a well for George Pagenkoff.

The assessor of Independence has finished canvasing the town, and finds that cows are more plenty than a year ago, this no doubt is owing to the the two creameries in our town. The creamery is an industry which we hope will give good revenue as soon as they get permantly established.

Sheep is not so plenty as the dog by 40 or 50 percent.

All wool cloths in a country like this come quiet handy when it gets to be 40 deg. below zero, but a dog that catches a coon only now and then does not help pay the tariff and keep up the revenue.

We also find that some of the farmers are on the increase. FARMER.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11, 1897.

Mr. McKinley was not in the best of humors when he left Washington for the Nashville exposition. Several things had not gone to suit him. The newspapers printed the report of Consul General Fitzhug Lee, on the Ruiz investigation, before it was received by the State Department, and nobody could discover the leak. But the principal cause could discover the leak. But the the principal cause of Mr. McKinley's bad humor was the verbal report made by his friend and personal representative, Mr. Calhoun, who found out too much of what Mr. McKinley did not want to know, and not enough to corroboate what he thought he already knew. In short, Mr. Calhoun reported things as he found them, regardless of whether they pleased or displeased anybody. Meanwhile the Cuban question is ready to boil over in Congress. Many republicans in the House who have been keeping quiet in opposition to the wishes of their constitutents, in order to give Mr. McKinley a chance to do something, are growing restive and cannot be held in much longer.

Notwithstanding the opposition of Senators Jones, of Ark., and Vest, of Mo., both of whom denounced it severely, six democrates voted for the amendment offered to the tariff bill by Senator Bacon, of Ga., putting a 20 per cent advalorem duty on raw cotton. The republicans all voted for the amendment and it is now a part of the bill. The six democrats who voted for the amendment were Bacon and Clay of Ga., Tillman and McLaurin, of S. C., McEnery, of La., and Rawlins, of Utah. Senator Bacon replied to democratic objections by saying that it was recognized that the country was to have a tariff bill and that he intended to see that his state received an equal share of its benefits, as he believed, in the words of the Bible, that the man who does not care for his own household is worse than an infidel. There are reasons for the belief that the republicans are playing a bunco game on Senitor Bacon and his democratic supporters, in order to exhibit them as supporters of protection, and that when the tariff bill goes to the President it will not contain a duty on raw cotton.

Senator Jones, of Ark., Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is naturally a little skeptical about the stories printed from time to time about the rasing of large sums of money to be used for the continued propagation of free silver ideas. Speaking of the latest story, that Colorado had raised $100,000. Senator Jones said: "I have not received a cent from Colorado since the election, and if any sum has been or is being raised in the interest of silver, I don't know it. I should be very glad to be assured that it is true."

Senator Mills, of Texas, is not an alarmist, but he can see nothing but trouble ahead for class legislation. He said: "The effect of this tariff bill upon the people will be seen, not in its high taxation, but in the way it buttresses and fortifies trusts of all kinds. Some of these days this sort of legislation will have to cease or we will have to see a revolution. The people will not stand it. Driven to the wall by the combinations of money power, they will find a leader, and we shall see another Coxey's army—but it will be an army which will carry guns and use them."

Democratic Senators are practically unanimous in declaring the uselessness of Mr. McKinley asking Congress to authorize him to appoint a monetary commission, because they have decided that no such legislation shall be voted upon by the Senate at this session.

Mr. J. Addison Porter, who would not be filling his present position had not its title been officially changed from private secretary to The President's Secretary, captured a nice juicy slice of pie this week, before he took Mr. McKinley and a special train load of officials and newspaper men to the Nashville exposition. He got Henry W. Hoyt, of Pa., nominated to be Assistant Attorney General, and got the Pa. Senators to acquiesce. Mr. Hoyt was a classmate of Mr. Porter's.

A majority of the republican Senatorial caucus realized that something had to be done to stop the wave of popular indignation on account of the sugar schedule's notorious favoritism towards the sugar trust, so the House schedule was substituted after making several changes in the interest of the trust, which still stands to reap an enormous profit to which it is in no way entitled, at the expense of the sugar consumers—that is of everybody. The new schedule is better than the one discarded, but it is still a very bad one; but there is little probability of its being bettered before the tariff bill becomes a law. The trust has too strong a grip on the republican leaders.

POWER OF THE PRESS.

(BY JOHN J. CATLIN.)

One of the most powerful and influencial agencies among civilized people of all classes, in spiritual as well as in temporal affairs is the mighty press. Edited as it is, for the most part, by independent, free-thinking, liberty-loving, patriotic, and educated men, it has acquired a power un-surpassed by any other single institution governed by the hand of man.

In considering the power of the press, one would naturally first direct his attention to the great movements in which it has shown power, the movements and events in which it now shows power, and to the reasons why, in accordance with its advantages and position, it should have attained so great power.

The first great movement in which the press was destined to take a part, was in the closing years of the great intellectual awakening of Europe after the languor and depression of the first medevial centuries, known as the Revival of Learning, about the middle of the 15th century. It is true that the Revival of Learning was well under way before the art of printing was invented, but without it, it must have languished, the works of such great men as Petrarch, Boccacio, and Dante, brought forth and immortalized by means of the press, must have been insignificant or have perished and been lost to the world, as innumerable great works had been in the centuries past.

The results of the work of the press during the latter years of the Revival of Learning were most beneficent to mankind. Not only faultless literary models but large stores of valuable knowledge that had been slowly accumulating for ages in the East, were transferred to the young and vigorous nations of the west, where they were thoroughly studied, and contributed, most of all, to raising many degrees, the standard of learning in the then young western countries.

The next movement in which the press played an important part was the reformation, or religious controversy, at the opening of the sixteenth century; that great combat between Protestantism and Catholocism in which one half the nations of Europe were severed from the spiritual jurisdiction of Rome. By means of the press, the ninetyfive theses drawn up by Luther, in which he fearlessly stated his views in regard to indulgences, were scattered throughout Europe with incredible rapidity, and, to a very large extent, by placing the writings and claims of the leaders of the reformation before the people, was the cause of the rapid and extended growth of Protestantism.

The political revolution, that great uprising of the common people against the tyranny and oppression of their rulers, that period most important to lower classes recorded in the annals of mankind, that glorious period in which our forefathers, crushed down by the iron heel of despotism, fought for their independence and set up a new form of government, which, in a little more than a hundred years has placed itself in the front rank of the nations of the world, is the next great movement to which the press directed it's attention.

By placing before the English people the satires of Pope, Swift, and DeFoe, and writings on governmental reform by Addison, Steel, and others, the press showed them their rights, and the tyranny under which they were scarcely able to eke out an existance, thus accounting for two uprisings of the people which resulted in their obtaining a right to govern themselves; a right which belongs to every human being; a right which the inhabitants of those countries that stand first in the long list of the nations of the world possess to a greater or less extent; a right which no people can flourish without.

Not only were the English people aroused to assert their rights by the forcible arguments of the press, but the American colonists, incited by the fiery speeches of Patrick Henry, which were sent broadcast throughout the land, and by the patriotic writings of Jefferson and Paine, escaped from the power of despotism and partook more freely of the blessings of freedom.

After American independence had been established, an event occured which showed still more strongly the power of the press. The slavery question attracted the attention of the chief writers of the time. The well known story of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" had a wonderful influence upon the people of the North in fireing them with indignation against the crime of slavery and inducing them to undertake the war in behalf of the four million unfortunates who were passing their lives in slavery.

Events occurring at the present time in which the press is solicited to take a part, are the elections. In a political campaign, the first thing that the parties do, after selecting candidates for nomination and laying the plans of the campaign, is to secure every paper possible to support their candidates, and to send out campaign literature by the car load as a means of obtaining the votes of the people.

Some of the chief reasons why the press has such great power is its wide dispersion, and the facility and rapidity with which news can be brought from all parts of the world and laid before the people. Every man does not have the necessary time required in looking up all the leading questions of the day to his profit, but through the writings of editors and through literature handed in by scientists and statesmen, he is able to learn concerning the progress of science and see into the different sides of the political questions of his country and thus profit by the learning of others.

The press is by far the greatest means of education in governmental and political affairs, and the widest distributor of liberalizing ideas that any country can possess. The effect produced upon a nation by granting the press freedom of expressing it's opinion is well shown by the fact that in proportion to a nation's rank in learning and morality, that nation grants greater or less freedom to the press. In the United States the freedom of the press is fully established and has been ever since the government was founded, and no other country can show an equally rapid ascent from the position of a minor nation to one of the most powerful and influencial, and scarcely any other nation has an equally large percent of the population so well acquainted with the current events and the mode of carrying on the government. By means of the press, governments are centralized and the people are brought closer together. Never, before the art of printing was invented, excepting the Roman Empire only, were nations with so widely scattered dependencies held together, and the people made to feel a common interest in the government. The boundries of some nations were for a short time extended by the military genius and power of a single man, and large and seemingly powerful kingdoms established, but they only survived the death of the conqueror and were then divided into a number of smaller kingdoms, and fell back into positions still lower than those from which they had been raised. Without the press, they perished; with it, they flourish.

How many times will the courts be called upon to decide the responsibility of telegraph companies for damages resulting from the imperfect or delayed transmission of telegrams? It seems as though the dockets always held some such suits. The companies fall back upon their arbitrary conditions of sending, printed upon the back of their blanks, but these have long since been decided to be no excuse for either missending or delay. There is nothing in the law which exempts a telegraph company from damages arising from the mistakes of its employes any more than any other private corporation.

Unless the protecting arm of the government gets in prompt and energetic action there is sure to be a decided decrease in the population of the Pima Indian reservation in Arizona. Some misguided philanthropist sent the Pimas an illustrated weekly paper, and in an unhappy moment one of the medicine men became fascinated by the picture of an airship, with the result that the entire reservation has contracted the fever. The tribe has been industriously working for weeks on the construction of an aerial ship, making such changes in the published diagram as the fancy of the moment suggested.

No striking improvement has resulted, but the average age of senators and representatives at Washington has been considerably lessened since the last congressional directory was issued. Previous to that the average age in the senate was above 60. It is now 57, and the average age of representatives has fallen from 50 to 44. A good share of the congressmen were very young, and some of them were not even born at the time of the rebellion. This is true of both houses. One notable fact is the large number who were born in foreign countries. No less than 27 are natives of other countries and 23 are British born.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

The United States senate had a period of tariff speeches on the 9th, and, as a result, little progress was made on the bill. The following nominations were received from the president: To be envoys extraordinary and ministers plenipotentiaries of the United States, Henry L. Wilson, of Washington, to Chili; William F. Powell, of New Jersey, to Hayti, and John G. A. Leishman, of Pennsylvania, to Switzerland. The house was not in session.

In the United States senate on the 10th the agricultural schedule of the tariff bill was completed and the sugar schedule was taken up. In the house James T. Loyd, elected to succeed the late Representative Giles, of the First Missouri district, took the oath. The house then adjourned to the 14th.

The first test vote on the sugar schedule was taken in the United States senate on the 11th, resulting in the adoption of the republican caucus amendment increasing the duty on refined sugar from 1.675 to 1.95 cents per pound. The house was not in session.

The sugar schedule was again the subject of democratic assaults in the United States senate on the 12th and practically no progress was made. Only one amendment was voted upon and that was defeated. When the senate adjourned the amendment of Senator Lindsay (Ky.) to strike out the differential on refined sugar was pending. The house was not in session.

HER CENTENNIAL.

Tennessee Celebrates Her Admission to the Union.

Appropriate Ceremonies and Exercises at Nashville—President McKinley Is the Guest of Honor—His Speech.

Nashville, Tenn., June 12.—At eight o'clock Friday morning the presidential tour merged into the centennial celebration of the admission of Tennessee into the union. As a guard of honor to the president a mounted detachment of ex-confederates commanded by Capt. George F. Hager ranged themselves immediately in front of his carriage. They wore the old-time gray, but the buckles of their belts bore the insignia "United States." In the rear of the line of carriages marched the battalion of the Sixth infantry under the command of Col. Miner, sent from Fort Thomas, and headed by their fine band. State troops and a particularly good-looking body of Cincinnati police under the command of their chief made up the uniformed part of the parade. As the head of the procession turned into the main entrance of the exposition grounds a battery of artillery boomed forth the national salute of 25 guns.

Above the boom of the national salute and the hum of thousands of voices in the great auditorium rose the strains of "Dixie" from a wandering band on the outside. Exactly at noon President McKinley walked down the main aisle, on his arm the stately Mrs. Van Leer Kirkman, president of the woman's board. The president was greeted with hearty cheers. Gov. Bushnell spoke, and then the president was introduced. He spoke in part as follows:

The President's Speech.

"Officers of the Tennessee Centennial Exposition, Ladies and Gentlemen: American nationality, compared with that of Europe and the east, is still very young, and yet already we are beginning to have age enough for centennial anniversaries in states other than the original 13. Such occasions are always interesting, and when celebrated in a practical way are useful and instructive. Combining retrospect and review, they recall what has been done by state and nation and point out what yet remains for both to accomplish in order to fulfill their highest destiny.

"This celebration is of general interest to the whole country and of special significance to people of the south and west. It marks the end of the first century of the state of Tennessee and the close of the first year of its second century. One hundred and one years ago this state was admitted into the union as the sixteenth member of the great family of American commonwealths. It was a welcome addition to the national household—a community young, strong and sturdy, with an honored and heroic ancestry, with fond anticipations, not only of its founders but faith in its success on the part of far-seeing and sagacious statesmen in all parts of the country.

"Tennesseeans have ever been volunteer, not drafted, patriots. In 1846 when 2,400 soldiers were called for, 30,000 loyal Tennesseeans offered their services; and amid the trials and terrors of the great civil war; under conditions of peculiar distress and embarrassment, her people divided on contending sides. But upon whichever side found, they fought fearlessly to death and gallant sacrifice. Now, happily, there are no contending sides in this glorious commonwealth or in any part of our common country. The men who opposed each other in dreadful battle a third of a century ago once more and forever united together under one flag in a never-to-be-broken union.

"The glory of Tennessee is not only alone in the brilliant names it has contributed to history or the heroic patriotism displayed by the people in so many crises of our national life, but its material and industrial wealth, social advancement and population are striking and significant in their growth and development. Thirty-five thousand settlers in this state in 1790 had increased to 1,109,000 in 1860, and today it has a population closely approximating 2,000,000. Its manufactures, which in 1860 were small and unimportant, in 1890 had reached $72,000,000 in value, while its farm products now aggregate more than $62,000,000 annually. Its river commerce on three great international waterways, its splendid railways operating nearly 3,000 miles of roads, its mineral wealth of uncalculable value, form a splendid augury for the future. I am sure no better workmen could be found than the people of Tennessee to turn these confident promises into grand realities.

"Your exposition shows better than any words of mine can tell the details of your wealth of resource and power of production. You have done wisely in exhibiting these to your own people and to your sister states, and at no time could the display be more effective than now, when what the country needs more than all else is restored confidence in itself. This exposition demonstrates directly your faith and purpose, and signifies in the widest sense your true and unfailing belief in the irrepressible pluck of the American people, and is a promising indication of the return of American prosperity.

"The knowledge which this beautiful and novel exposition gives will surely stimulate competition, develop your trade, increase your output, enlarge your fields of employment, extend your markets, and so eventually pay for all it cost, as well as justify local sentiment and encourage state pride.

"Men and women I see about me from all parts of the country, and thousands more will assemble here before the exposition is closed. Let ourselves and let them always remember that whatever differences about politics may have existed, or still exist, we are all Americans before we are partisans, and value the welfare of all the people above party or section. Citizens of different states, we yet love all the states. The lesson of the hour, then, is this—that whatever adverse conditions may temporarily impede the pathway of our national progress, nothing can permanently defeat it."

Visiting the Buildings.

After the conclusion of the ceremonies in the auditorium, which were very much added to by the music of the Innes band, the president and some of his party visited the Parthenon, which is the art repository, and the Children's building, and then repaired to the West Side clubhouse, a handsome structure near the Administration building and fronting the Parthenon. In the ladies' parlor there Mrs. McKinley held an informal reception. Later in the afternoon she and the president gave a reception to women only in the Women's building.

Fireworks and Illumination.

At eight o'clock a fine display of fireworks over the lake and on its shores, was viewed by Mr. and Mrs. McKinley and their party from the steps of the Parthenon. Not at all inferior to the fireworks was the illumination of all the principal structures by means of search and electric lights, there being a notable profusion of the latter.

A Deadly Bolt.

Bellaire, O., June 15.—The lives of three young ladies were blotted out by lightning while they were on their way home from the M. E. church at Jacobsburg. The victims are Minnie McGuire, daughter of Rev. Thomas McGuire; Alpa Taylor, daughter of William Taylor, and Emma White, daughter of Simon White, all aged about 19 years. Sarah Bohring was badly stunned and may die. They were residents of Jacobsburg, a village on the Bellaire, Zanesville & Cincinnati railway, 11 miles west of this city, and were walking together in the road about 100 yards from the church when they were struck by the lightning.

POSTAL READJUSTMENT.

Annual Classification of Offices and Salaries—Many Changes.

Washington, June 15. — The fourteenth annual readjustment of classification and salaries of presidential post offices has been completed and the changes were given out at the post office department Monday. These changes are required by an act of March 3, 1883, to be made annually, and the present ones become effective July 1. They are based on the fluctuations of post office revenues at the respective places. The changes in classification for northwestern states follow:

Minnesota, Halsted relegated from third to fourth class: Missouri, Carrollton advanced from third to second; Kansas, McPherson and Manhattan relegated from second to third, Jewell, Kiowa and Wakeeney relegated from third to fourth; Michigan, Au Sable, Lake City and Milan relegated from third to fourth: Nebraska, Atkinson, Hooper, Osceola and Rushville relegated from third to fourth, Plattsmouth advanced from third to second; North Dakota, Bismarck advanced from third to second; Iowa, Keokuk relegated from first to second, Carroll and Vinton relegated from second to third, Dysart, Mystic and Story City relegated from third to fourth, Newton advanced from third to second; Indiana, Richmond relegated from first to second, Greensburg from second to third and Franklin, Indiana Mineral Springs, Walkerton and Waterloo from third to fourth, Bluffton advanced from their to second: Illinois, Fulton, Maywood and Normal relegated from second to third, Alexis, Ashland, Gardner and Kansas from third to fourth, and Mount Vernon advanced from third to second; Ohio, Gallipolis relegated from second to third, Versailles from third to fourth and Shelby advanced from third to second: South Dakota, Pierre relegated from second to third, Ipswich from third to fourth: Wisconsin, Merrill and Wauwatosa relegated from second to third, Ahnappe, Iron River, Memekaunee and South Superior from third to fourth, Whitewater advanced from third to second.

DUN SEES STEADY GAIN.

Improvement in Trade Is Moderate But Distinct.

New York, June 12.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"The gain in business continues, not without fluctuations, and at the best moderate, yet distinct. It is still in quantities rather than prices, although in some branches an advance in prices appears, but on the whole the number of hands employed, the volume of new orders and the amount of work done are slowly increasing. Prospect of good crops of wheat and cotton helps, growing demand from dealers, whose stocks a gradually gaining consumption depletes, also helps, and in the money and exchange market large buying of American securities has an influence.

"Neither cotton nor woolen mills can expect other than a waiting business with a change of tariff impending, but the demand for bleached goods is steady, though moderate, for print cloths slightly better at 2.44 cents, plus 1 per cent, and for print goods though not active. Brown goods are dull, though quotations are unchanged. Some large woolen mills are preparing to increase output and have bought heavily.

"Production of pig iron has for some months been in excess of the demand in the manufacture of finished products. Failure to form the rod trust caused wire mills to yield 5 cents. The general demand for plates and sheets was better, and for bars much larger east and at Chicago, with some large orders taken at Pittsburgh. Philadelphia reports decided improvement in finished iron, with fewer concessions, and Pittsburgh large structural orders, while apprehension of labor difficulties has induced much buying at the west. The strike at Pittsburgh ended without success.

"Failures for the week have been 262 in the United States, against 246 last year, and 30 in Canada, against 27 last year."

A BOMB FOR FAURE.

Some Crank Attempts the Life of the French President.

Paris, June 14.—An attempt was made Sunday to assassinate Felix Faure, president of the French republic, while he was en route to Long Champs to witness the Grand Prix. While M. Faure's carriage was passing a thicket near la Cascade restaurant, in the Bois de Bologne, a bomb which subsequently proved to be a piece of tubing about six inches long and two inches in diameter, with a thickness of half an inch, charged with powder and swan shot, exploded. No one was injured by the explosion. A man in the crowd suspected as the prime mover was arrested. He gave his name as Gallet and made only the briefest of replies to questions put to him by the police. Gallet said that he had no occupation, but resided at Levallers-Perret.

In the thicket where the police found the remnants of the bomb, they found a pistol on which were engraved the words: "Mort A Felix Faure," and the the names Alsace-Lorraine and Cologne. Near the pistol was a small dagger bearing a similar threatening inscription; and a few feet away the police found a newspaper with a cartoon grossly insulting to the president. This contained an offensive inscription hinting at the execution of M. Faure.

Used Dynamite.

Kansas City, Mo., June 12.—A special to the Star from Leavenworth, Kan., says a diabolical attempt was made upon the lives of Gov. Andrew J. Smith, of the national soldiers' home, and his wife and daughter between four and six o'clock by some dastard, who is as yet unknown. Dynamite was employed in the outrage and the explosion, which all but demolished the governor's beautiful residence, aroused the residents of the city, and houses trembled as if undergoing an earthquake shock. Gov. Smith attributes the attempt on his life and that of his family as a direct result of the persecution that has been waged against him during the past five or six years. The veterans at the home are standing by him manfully, and swear they will lynch the wretch if he be caught.

Uncle Sam Loses by Fire.

New York, June 15. — The United States government immigration station on Ellis island, in New York harbor, was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. The buildings on Ellis island were simply vast wooden sheds, made of the most imflammable material. The main building was 404 by 154 feet and three stories high. It was constructed entirely of pine. The first floor was devoted to the baggage-room, the custom house offices, the pens of the immigrants and the offices of the expressmen. The second floor was occupied by immigrants. It was a vast open space, divided into pens by picket fences. The third floor was a gallery, from which the crowds below could be inspected without coming into contact with the inspectors. The cost of the plant is said to have been $780,000. All the records were lost.

Death of a Noted Pulpit Orator.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 12.—Rev. Frederick O. Holman, D. D., former pastor of the Hennepin Avenue M. E. church in this city and one of the most brilliant and best known pulpit orators in the Methodist church in America, died Friday of lung trouble, aged 40 years.

BARNEY BARNATO'S END

Famous Kaffir King Takes His Own Life by Drowning.

Said to Have Been the Richest Man in the World—Was on His Way to England for His Health.

London, June 15.—Barney Barnato is dead. The famous Kaffir king committed suicide by jumping into the ocean. The startling news came late Monday night from Funchal, Madeira islands, that Barnato had plunged from the steamship Scot into the Atlantic. A half gale was blowing at the time, and though a boat was at once launched in an attempt to rescue the suicide the effort proved futile. The body, however, was recovered after a prolonged search.

It has been known in England that Barnato has been ailing for a long time. He had only recently recovered from a long and severe illness in South Africa, and the trip to England was advised by his physicians, who believed that a change of air and climate would benefit the famous mine promoter and speculator.

Barnato boarded the steamer Scot at Capetown on the 2d of June. Nothing unusual was noticed in his demeanor, save that at times he suffered from fits of depression. The other passengers attributed these attacks to his ill state of health.

BARNEY BARNATO.

Say He Fell Overboard.

London, June 15.—The Daily Telegraph, in announcing the death of Barney Barnato while a passenger on the steamer Scot, from Capetown, says on the authority of a news agency that he fell overboard.

Began Life in South Africa.

Barney Barnato was in many respects the most remarkable speculator of the century. Of all the Englishmen who have taken part in the development of South Africa two only have secured a world-wide reputation. These have been Cecil Rhodes and Barnett Isaacs, more often and less respectfully styled "Barney." Barnato was an assumed name, a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa by exhibiting a trick donkey some 25 years ago. He was then about 20 years of age. Barnato was an English Jew and illustrated in an extraordinary way the financial genius of his race. Up to the point where his fortunes began to decline he made money by leaps and bounds, and in 1895, when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of £100,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man the world. At that time he was virtually the king of the London money market. Barnato was born in London. Little is known of his early life, except that he received his instruction from a private tutor instead of attending the public schools. He was a younger son, and at the age of 20 went to South Africa to seek his fortune.

Will Retain Thessaly.

London, June 11. — The Constantinople correspondent of the Standard says: At Tuesday's conference of the ambassadors for the discussion of the terms of peace, Tewfik Pasha was present, armed with categorial instructions to persist in the retention of Thessaly given him by the sultan personally. When the conference ended the sultan summoned his ministers to a special council at the Yildiz kiosk, which sat until two o'clock in the morning of Wednesday. The decision arrived at was that the evacuation of Thessaly was impossible, but that there was no necessity to precipitate action. Being in possession, the porte, it was argued, was able to wait patiently and even indefinitely while discussing point after point with the powers. It was also decided to continue actively the preparations for war.

Fire Horror in China.

Tacoma, Wash., June 11.—A terrible disaster that resembles the Paris fire in all its details is reported from Tien-Tsin, China, where over 100 persons lost their lives in a burning death-trap. A festival was in progress in the temple dedicated to the queen of heaven. All around the building awnings were hung and inflammable materials were strung. The place was crowded day after day, and it was when the festivities were at their height, with women and children crowding the edifice to the doors, that the fire broke out. A terrible panic ensued. Men and women struggled for exits, trampling the weak and the children under foot. Many who were near the doors were cut off from escape by the crowds. The exact number who lost their lives will never be known, but the estimates run over 100.

Much Good Work.

Chicago, June 15.—The National W. C. T. U. officers have issued a report regarding the work in various state legislatures in the sessions this year, and from it this is taken:

"Legislation in reform measures this winter has been quite gratifying. Illinois passed a police matron bill to apply to cities of over 1,000 inhabitants; also a stringent temperance education bill and a cigarette bill. Minnesota passed a bill prohibiting admission of anyone under 21 to dance houses, concert saloons or any place where intoxicating liquors are sold or given away. The Iowa legislature made liquor bills incollectible. Tennessee, Massachusetts, Kentucky, Connecticut and Indiana passed strong anti-cigarette laws. In Washington an anti-vivisection bill was passed, the legal age of consent was raised from 12 to 18 years, and a suffrage amendment is to be submitted to the voters at the November (1898) election. The supreme court of Missouri has decided that women may hold any office from which they are not debarred by the state constitution."

Archbishop Janssens Dead.

New Orleans, June 14.—Archbishop Francis Janssens died on the steamer Creole Thursday. Mgr. Janssens was one of the dignitaries of the church in America. He came here as a priest, became bishop in Mississippi and on the death of Archbishop Leray was appointed in 1888 archbishop of this diocese, one of the largest and most important in America. The honors of the church were bestowed upon him in September, 1888, and since then his grace has labored with great zeal in behalf of the church.

WASHING BLANKETS.

Summer is the best time for washing blankets. To do the work satisfactorily fill a tub half full of soft hot water in which half a bar of Ivory soap has been dissolved, and wash gently with the hands. Rosin soap and hard rubbing ruins blankets. When clean rinse well, hang on the line in the sun. As soon as dry, fold evenly and put away securely in a box or closet. Blankets washed thus will remain fresh and soft for years.

Spirituous Sarcasm.

"I wonder," said Mr. Drinkhorn, as he filled his glass with the ease of an expert, "I wonder who started the custom of calling a drink of liquor a 'smile?'"

Under the Trolley Wires.

By Charles W. Harwood.

THE sharp ringing of a bell sounded clear above the tumult of Hamilton Corner, where the busiest thoroughfares of Winchester meet. Close at hand came a lake car, and Jim Connolly, springing forward with his iron rod, shifted it around the curve into Center street.

Jim was switchboy for the Electric Traction company. His post was the middle of the street, where all day long he dodged teams and turned electric cars toward their various destinations.

It was late afternoon now; Jim was tired and rather lonely, and as he glanced about for some acquaintance his eyes lighted on Ted Casey standing, with back to him, on the curbstone near by. A bundle of afternoon papers was tucked under Ted's arm, but he was staring idly at a fantastic poster.

The opportunity was irresistible. Jim quickly looked four ways, and seeing that the corner was now free from cars he darted over behind Ted and seized him by the collar.

"Aw, le' me be!" cried Ted, deeply aggrieved. Then, twisting around, he caught sight of his captor, and grinned at him in a friendly way.

"Why don't you sell papers?" demanded the older boy, releasing him. "The last edition will come out before long, and you'll get stuck."

"Goin' ter," asserted Ted, stoutly. "Say, Jimmie, what's that in your pocket?" With sudden curiosity he snatched at a queer object which protruded from the inside of his friend's coat.

"Le' go!" Jim struck down the venturesome hand. "That's my life-preserver. Want to see it?" And with all of an inventor's pride he drew out a peculiar sort of clamp which he always carried about.

It was formed of two pine sticks rudely whittled into shape and hinged together at one end. On the inner side its jaws were faced with strips of heavy glass, whose use was not at once apparent.

Jim enjoyed the newsboy's mystification. "Maybe I'll get it patented some time," he hinted, impressively.

"What's it for?" asked Ted.

"To handle live wires with. The glass is proof against electricity," explained Jim.

Ted eyed the strange instrument with increased respect. "Did any live wires ever get loose round here?" he asked, eagerly. "Say, Jimmie, le' me try it if they do?"

"They might break any time," Jim replied, sagaciously. "You go and tend to your papers; you haven't any business with the power." He dropped the clamp into a pocket, and, grinning significantly, raised his switchrod as if to strike the newsboy's leg.

But Ted glanced cunningly down the street. "Aw, there's a car!" he cried, and forthwith seized the chance to dart away and yell back derisively at his friend.

"They might break at any time," he repeated, quite seriously. Once he had ventured to question Officer Wayne: "What would you do if a wire broke?"

"Live wire? I'd clear the street and send for Higgins." Higgins was foreman of the repair gang. "If it dropped onto anybody I'd have to ring up the ambulance, of course."

With a hearty respect for the force which kept all these cars in motion, Jim had picked up, from motormen, linemen and engineers, a store of practical knowledge which he was eager to put into use.

His opportunity had been long in coming, and this day promised to be as monotonous as any other. But 15 minutes later the long-expected accident occurred.

A car from the west side came out of Pleasant street and started north. As it swung around the curve its trolley slipped off and caught between the copper wires, snapping one of them near their junction.

The wire dropped into the street, and for a moment there was indescribable confusion as it bounded and writhed among frightened horses and scattering people. The corner was quickly cleared, and at a safe distance a ring of spectators formed to watch the wire spitting out blue and green flames on the pavement.

Down on his Center street switches Jim had been startled by a quick, jarring ring of the wires. He did not need the cries and commotion, the rush of people and the stopping of cars to tell him what had happened. Instantly he saw that his chance had come, and running up he broke through the ring just at Officer Wayne's elbow.

"Live wire!" he gasped, plunging a hand into his coat pocket. "I can fix it!"

He had started forward impetuously, but Wayne caught him by the arm and pulled him back, understanding only that the boy meant to run into danger.

"Stand back!" said the officer, sharply. "Don't you know a live wire when you see it? If you touch that, you'll never know what hurt you!"

"It won't hurt me!" cried the struggling boy, in a hot rage at this opposition. "I've got something to handle it with."

But Wayne would not argue. "You stay here!" he gruffly commanded. "Be quiet now! If you make any more trouble I'll arrest you!"

Indignant as Jim was, he had too much sense to contend longer with the policeman. But he felt that he represented the "road," and he was not yet defeated. Slipping back in the crowd, he ran around its outer edge and worked through at another point, whence he made a sudden dash for the wire.

A sharp, warning cry arose, for the bystanders looked to see him instantly killed. Wayne and others sprang forward, but before they could reach Jim he had seized the scintillating wire with his clamp. He raised it from the pavement, and lo! the live thing became tame and apparently harmless. He bore it to the corner of Pleasant street, the ring of people broke and followed him excitedly. It was a moment of peril for the heedless crowd, and Officer Wayne, seeing now that the boy knew his business, turned back to guard the sagging wire.

Jim glared with open contempt at the people who pressed about him. "Folks are fools about electricity!" he growled. "Just because the wire isn't spluttering, they think it's dead!"

"Can you hold it that way a few minutes?" asked Wayne, looking doubtfully at the blockade of vehicles on all sides.

"Of course I can!" said Jim, impatiently. "I could hold it all day. Why don't you move your teams? Have you sent for Higgins yet?"

"We've telephoned."

By this time the other policemen had come to Wayne's assistance, and the corner was rapidly cleared. On the farther track cars began to move north; the motormen started them slowly and passed cautiously under the hanging wire, which Jim had straightened as much as possible, and only the southbound cars lay helpless in a long line on Main street.

"What can be done with these?" asked Wayne. "Nothing?"

"There's a switch on Main street a hundred yards away," answered Jim. "Run back to the switch and take the left track!" he shouted to the nearest conductor.

As a general rule, a switchboy does not give orders to a conductor; but Officer Wayne stood beside Jim and imperatively seconded his commands. Word was passed along, and the line of cars moved back to return on the other rails.

The first motorman looked to Jim for further directions.

"Run to the switch in front of the city hall, and shift back to the right track." Jim turned to Officer Wayne. "That's all," he said. "Keep 'em moving, and tell 'em to mind their own switches. I've got my hands full here."

On the corner near by stood a group of people who annoyed Jim with idle questions and comments upon his courage in holding the wire. Courage? He had not thought of it, though he was proud that he knew how to handle the power.

But no one spoke of his particular invention until Higgins arrived, clad in rubber boots and gloves which protected him from electric shocks.

"Have you got the wire, boy?" he asked. "What's that you're holding it with? By George, you'll do!" he exclaimed, taking note of the glass insulators. "But why didn't you ground the wire—touch it down to the rails?"

Jim laughed. "And stop the cars!" was his terse comment.

Higgins cast him a shrewd glance, and turned to his man. "Here, Jones," he said, "catch hold of this contrivance. Now, boy, we'll manage the rest of it. Get back to your switches."

"He had grit," some one remarked, as Jim ran off. "That was a risky thing to do, wasn't it?"

"We have to take chances," Higgins briefly answered. "The lad knew what he was about."

But though he said little, he was aware that this young employe of the road had acted quite beyond his own line of duty. For this reason he reported the whole affair to the superintendent, and Jim was summoned to appear at the office after his day's work.

Ted heard the message, for since the episode of the broken wire he had hung around his friend continually.

"What'll they give you, Jimmy?" he asked, in hopeful excitement.

"Oh, maybe a hundred shares of stock and a special car."

This reply was designed to tax the newsboy's credulity, for Jim only wanted a chance to display his invention. And like many another inventor, he forgot that its work could be easily done in a different way.

The superintendent was reading his evening paper when Jim entered the office. Common report among the employes had made him a man of strict rules and penalties; yet he did not seem as austere as Jim had imagined. "I was ordered to report here," said Jim, advancing to the desk.

"James Connolly, switchman at Hamilton corner?" asked the superintendent.

"That's my name."

"How old are you?"

"Seventeen."

"Higgins says you managed that break pretty well this afternoon. And you kept the cars moving. How did you handle the wire?"

"With this." Jim had expected the question, and in quiet triumph he passed his clamp over the desk. The superintendent smiled queerly as he examined it.

"Crude, but effective—and scientific," he commented to himself. Then aloud: "Higgins has another method of protecting himself which you will perhaps find more generally convenient."

He detected a look of disappointment on the boy's face, and added: "This is certainly ingenious. How did you happen to have the thing in your pocket?"

"Didn't happen," said Jim, bluntly. "I always carry it; I made it a-purpose."

"For just such an emergency? You seem to understand the power."

"I know you can manage it, but you can't fool with it."

"That's so," the superintendent assented, pleasantly. "It doesn't stop to joke. Well, your knowledge of that fact is more valuable than your invention. There are other boys who can turn switches, and Higgins needs a helper. He asked for you. To-morrow you will instruct the lad whom I shall send you, and on Monday you will report to Mr. Higgins. You are promoted to the repair gang."—Youth's Companion.

Arithmetic and Geography.

It is an interesting fact that the two studies of arithmetic and geography seem to be diametrically opposed to each other in the affections of school children. Children who are particularly proficient in one are apt to be backward in the other. A story is told of a little city boy who was slow in arithmetic and whose apparent stupidity in this field was a great grief to his father, who had been a mathematician. One day, when the father and son were walking out, they passed a place where a "learned pig" was on exhibition, and the father took the boy in to see the prodigies that the animal could perform. "Just look at that!" said the father. "Why, there's a pig that can count and add up numbers! Don't you wish you were as smart as he?" "Ha!" answered the boy. "Jest let me ask him a few questions in geography!"—Youth's Companion.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Going Out of Business.

The bicycle insurance companies of the state have decided to go out of business. There has seemingly been little show for this class of insurance companies since the adverse ruling of the attorney general, but they have continued until now in the hope that the insurance commissioner would see his way clear to deal with them leniently, or that some way out of the difficulty could be found. At a conference between representatives of the two Minnesota companies and Insurance Commissioner Dearth the matter came to a conclusion. Mr. Dearth insisted that the law must be obeyed literally. It required $100,000 capital stock for this line of insurance, and while in his own opinion $25,000 would be ample for a company that confined its business to the state, there was nothing for the companies to do but increase their stock to the amount required or close up their business.

Bugs.

Prof. Luger, of the Minnesota experimental station, has just completed an investigation of a new pest which he reports having done considerable damage in the Red river valley. The wire worm, Prof. Luger says, has destroyed between 6,000 and 8,000 acres of grain in the Red river valley and in parts of Otter Tail county. It is an entirely new pest to that section and has never before made its appearance there. It has done its worst, however, and nothing more is to be feared from it this season. The worm works underground and bores into the kernel of wheat. Then it goes downward into the roots and will feed on them for the remainder of the season, so there is no danger of its spreading farther. It can be exterminated this fall by plowing deep and exposing it to the weather. If this is not done, it will reappear again next year, and make more trouble than ever.

Wholesale Robbery.

A man named Gary was arrested at Mankato upon the charge of burglary, and has confessed to a number of robberies. The strangest part of his story is that he told Sheriff Bowen to go the brick school house near Indian Lake, and open the trap door made in the platform under the teacher's desk. This was done and a den about 12 feet square was found with boarded sides, a floor and ceiling, walls covered with choice wall paper, a carpet on the floor, a mantle for a clock, a bed and cook stove, the pipe of latter connecting with the chimney in the school house. Miss Eva Hower, a young lady, is teaching school there, and was asked to dismiss the school during the search. Gary spent his days there while school was in session, and prepared to fight if necessary.

Nearly Killed.

Occupants of the Bethel, a charity lodging house on Superior street, Duluth, had a narrow escape from asphyxiation the other night. Connection was made in the building with water pipes and it is supposed that the gas was started by accidentally tapping a pipe. During the night it circulated throughout the sleeping rooms and at 4 o'clock in the morning became so strong that some people who were waiting on a sick person down stairs down stairs notified the superintendent. He broke in the room of William McClannagon's room and found him lying on the floor. It took eight hours to bring him to consciousness. H. V. Strohn and Mrs. Charles Berg and daughter were found unconscious and were restored in a few hours.

Surveying.

The government survey boat Patrol is at Winona, while some sixty men are making accurate topographical surveys of the Mississippi river valley from bluff to bluff. This work was begun by the government in 1876, but not much was done before the 80's. Since then it has been prosecuted as appropriations have been available. The work is now completed between the Gulf of Mexico and Brownsville, and it is expected to finish it up to St. Anthony falls this summer.

News in Brief.

J. A. Merigold & Co., dry goods dealers at Winona, have assigned.

D. H. P Johnson has been appointed pension examining surgeon at Long Prairie.

T. G. Asselstine's dry goods store at Moorhead was damaged by fire to the amount of $15,000.

Cole's livery stable at Winnebago, with 27 horses, 15 carriages and several cutters were destroyed by fire.

Fire which partially destroyed the residence of Joseph Vallard at Little Falls, again caught, and the house was completely destroyed. The first fire caught from an overturned lamp, but it is not known how the second fire caught.

Twenty-five thousand dollars have been placed at the disposal of George Rupley and J. C. Hunter, of Duluth, to carry on explorations in Cook county for iron. If iron in paying quantities is discovered, capitalists who put a railroad from the port of Grand Marais to Gunflint lake.

John Hervig came to Minneapolis from Winona. Two confidence men approached him, showed him a $500 check, which they nor no one could cash, and then borrowed $20 to tide them over the emergency. They got off at the next station, and Hervig is out just $20.

The Welsbach Light company, of Gloucester, N. J., has commenced an action in the United States court against Rhemania Glow Light company of Minneapolis, for $10,000 damages for infringement of patent rights. The claim is an imitation of the patent of the plaintiffs.

Chief of Police Bailea, of Little Falls, arrested two men named Leslie Pickerinan and Carpenter, charged with stealing goods from the hardware store of Ellenbecker & Goulet. When arrested stolen goods were found on his person. Pickerainen claims to have traded for them. He has served a term at Stillwater.

Frank Levendusky, an employe at the New Brighton stock yards, attempted to catch onto a moving train, and slipping, fell under the wheels. He lost both legs and three fingers from the right hand.

While playing around a burning brush heap at Duluth, the clothes of the 3-year-old daughter of Bartholomew Holton caught fire. When found she was so badly burned that she died a couple of hours afterward.

A statue, glorifying the patriotism and genius of Captain John Ericsson, will in a short time be erected in some conspicuous spot in Minneapolis.

SOUGHT STONEWALL JACKSON.

Evidently Thought He Still Played in the Brass Band.

The Stonewall Brigade band of Staunton, Va., which participated in the Grant day ceremonies, made things pleasant for the guests of the Windsor during their stay. Concerts were held every evening in the lobby of the hotel. Among those who enjoyed the concerts were the president and his party, Gen. John B. Gordon and Congressman Farish C. Tate, of Georgia. It was a first-class band, uniformed in dazzling blue with white fleece-trimmed capes and hussar caps. The programme each evening contained, besides operatic and classical selections, several old-time favorite airs and southern melodies. The band is an old-time organization, although most of the members are now young men. Stonewall Jackson once played a cornet in the band, and perhaps that accounts for the fact that the leader played a cornet while directing the players.

The first concert was held on Monday evening, when President McKinley arrived. It was a big success, and afterward the members of the band crowded around Gen. Gordon and shook hands with him. A well-dressed man with a sandy mustache sidled up to one of the spectators, and, pointing to Gen. Gordon, said:

"Is that Stonewall Jackson?"

The spectator turned toward the questioner with a quizzical look, but, noticing that the man was apparently in earnest, said, with a smile:

"No. I'm trying to find out who he is."

Congressman Tate, who was talking with Gen. Gordon, left him for a moment, and was buttonholed immediately by the sandy-mustached man.

"Excuse me, sir, was that gentleman Stonewall Jackson that you were talking to?"

The congressman glared at the sandy-mustached man, apparently undecided whether he was the subject of a northern affront or not.

"No, sir, it was not," said the congressman.

"Well, when will he arrive?" queried the sandy-mustached man.

The guileless expression of the questioner caused the congressman to smile as he said:

"My dear sir, a short course of United States history would do you a world of good."

The congressman then walked off. The sandy-mustached man was last seen receiving an explanation from the hotel clerk.—N. Y. Sun.

WORSHIPED A FALSE GOD.

Debating Society Enshrines Webster's Image Instead of Clay's.

The members of the Henry Clay Debating society of Oakland, an organization of enthusiastic young students of history, oratory and debate, have made a discovery which has shocked them.

For a year they have been admiring a picture of Daniel Webster, thinking it was a likeness of the immortal man for whom they named the club. It hung upon the wall in the main room of the suite occupied by the club, and in the year was seen and admired by hundreds. It was a steel engraving incased in a large oaken frame, and made a very attractive picture. Some of those who looked upon it may have recognized in it the likeness of Clay's rival, but no one ever mentioned the fact, and in the list of art works belonging to the club it was set down as a picture of Clay. During the debates which have aroused the echoes of the club rooms in the last year the picture was pointed to with pride every time one of the young orators referred to Clay in any way.

Two weeks ago some one broke the horrible news to the members of the board of directors. There was a special meeting, and it was decided at once to take the picture down. There was an effort to fix the blame for the error, and some of the members of the committee who had purchased the picture were called before the directors. It was agreed, however, that the wisest plan would be to let the matter drop. All those who were in the secret were pledged to secrecy and another picture was purchased.

The members of the club felt rather sheepish about the incident and did not relish the idea of having the public informed. At a meeting held a few evenings ago Guy D. Reynolds, in the course of a speech, referred in a general way to the affair. He said enough to make the members feel uneasy and to cause the uninitiated to become curious, and it was no longer a secret. Now there are general details, and visitors to the club are not supposed to smile when they gaze on the picture, although the laugh is on Henry and his followers.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Studying the Mushroom.

A club has been formed in New York city, the members of which are interested in all sorts of edible fungi. They are to experiment and investigate all forms of mushrooms and toadstools with a view to furnishing information to those who have not the opportunity for personal study. It is thought that a cheap food supply may be provided through the medium of these growths. There is a society in Boston and there are several in England. There are to be lectures, exhibits and literature and interested persons will be taught to distinguish between the harmless and the poisonous sorts. There is also a branch devoted to the study of the best methods of preparing these articles for the table. The mushroom is a favorite delicacy with such a large number of persons that any information concerning it, or its more plentiful and inexpensive supply, will no doubt be greeted with enthusiasm.—N. Y. Ledger.

Smothered Chops.

An uncommon dish is smothered chops, and it is nice for a course luncheon. For this dish use the small French chops. Trim them smoothly and broil them over a quick fire for ten minutes. For a dozen chops take the breast of a chicken and chop it fine; mix with the chicken the white of an unbeaten egg, four tablespoonfuls of cream, half a teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of cayenne pepper and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Thoroughly mix these ingredients together and spread the mixture thickly over each chop. Brush them with egg, making sure to cover every part, and then sprinkle them with crumbs. Lay them in a wire basket, and put them into smoking-hot fat and cook to a delicate brown. Arrange them in the center of a chop dish and pour a tomato sauce around them. —Boston Budget.

MISSED THROUGHOUT THE YEAR.

I miss you, dear, in the springtime when the willows blossom whitely,
When the sloe boughs bloom and bourgeon,
and the blackbirds build and sing,
When over the sky of azure the white-
fringed clouds pass lightly,
When violets wake in the woodlands, and the corn blades freshly spring.

But I miss you, too, in summer when the waves break on the shingle,
When the languid lilies' perfume is wafted upon the breeze,
When creamy, and pink, and fragrant the roses nod in the dingle,
When the kingcups turn the meadows to glistening and golden seas.

And I miss you more in autumn when in rustling cornfields yellow
Reapers sing their lays of gladness, when the plovers loudly call,
When the woods are gold-emblazoned, and the apple orchards mellow,
And the bramble red and purple where the ripened berries fall.

But most of all I miss you when the snow-
flakes white are flying,
When the days are dark and dreary, and the nights are long and drear;
When through leafless forest branches
winds are sadly sobbing, sighing,
Then it is I think I miss you, oh! the most of all, my dear.

—Chambers' Journal.

A Desperate Resolve.

I'll beard a lion in his den,
Or try a hurricane to stop;
I'll mock the monsters in a fen,
Or even dare to scorn a "cop."

I'll visit some barbaric shore,
Or down in Cuba risk my life;
But here I swear that nevermore
Will I go shopping with my wife!

PERIODICAL SICK HEADACHES.

Of Interest to Women, Because in This Case They Proceeded From an Ailment Peculiar to The Sex.

From the Herald-Democrat, Huron, S. D.

A few years since, J. W. Kelley came to Huron, South Dakota, from Osceola, Iowa, and purchased an interest in the Huron City Mills, an immense structure having a capacity of 200 barrels of flour per day. Soon after his arrival Mr. Kelley's family removed here and some months later they were joined by their son Elmer and family, he having purchased an interest in the concern, and the firm became known as J. W. Kelley & Sons. Since their arrival they have built up an immense trade for their patent roller flour, and ship many carloads every month to eastern and other markets.

When they came to Huron, Mrs. J. W. Kelley was in very delicate health and the change of climate and conditions seemed to benefit her. But the relief proved only temporary, however, for after a few months residence here she lapsed into the same infirm physical condition that had been her lot for then nearly twenty years. Her ailments were those peculiar to women, and which women alone can best understand. In addition to these troubles Mrs. Kelley was a sufferer from acute sick-headache. This would come upon her at intervals of about two weeks, continuing for two, three or four days, much of the time compelling her to keep to her bed. Because of her affliction she was quite unable to do her house-work, visit her neighbors, or attend church. This worried her greatly for she is a devout Christian and lives according to her profession. As Rev. B. H. Burtt, pastor of the Congregational Church, to which Mrs. Kelley belongs, said of her one evening at the close of service:

"Mrs. Kelley is indeed a true mother in Israel; she is conscientious and earnest, faithful and devoted—a Christian in the truest sense of the term."

In replying to inquiries touching her case, Mrs. Kelley said:

"I am sixty years of age, and was born in New York State, where I lived for fourteen years, then removed with my parents to Michigan, living there about the same number of years, then went to Iowa, remaining there till we came here some four years ago, or more. I have been troubled with weakness peculiar to my sex, for the past twenty-five years. During that time my husband has expended a large amount of money feeing physicians and buying remedies, but I found little relief. Physicians told me the womb was badly disarranged and no permanent relief could be afforded till the change of life had fully taken place. In this they, like myself, were disappointed. To add to my other troubles a headache, painfully sickening would come upon me about every two weeks. I became quite discouraged and for a time ceased doctoring almost entirely; I had lost faith in the science of medicine, both of the old school and new, and cared to expend no more money in that way.

"About a year ago my son read in some newspaper an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and urged me to try them. I hesitated because I had tried so many patent medicines without securing the much sought and long hoped for relief. But he insisted so strongly that I finally decided to give them a trial. Almost from the first I experienced relief, and after using the first box a change for the better was so apparent that I took courage and continued to use them strictly according to directions, until a short time since. I am much better, as anyone can see, but I have gradually discontinued their use. I take them now, but not regularly. I am a firm believer in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and have no hesitancy in recommending them to any who may be similarly afflicted as myself. What they have done for me they will do for others."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Informing Him.

"Pardon me, sir, but where do you live?" inquired the sharp-nosed passenger, leaning over the back of the seat in front of him.

"Southern part o' Indiana," laconically replied the goat-whiskered passenger, who was trigged out in a spickety-span new celluloid collar adorned with a hectic-hued flutter-bow tie.

"In the southern part of Indiana, eh? What is the lay of the land in your vicinity?"

"Same as it is all over the country, I reckon."

"I do not see how that can be."

"Don't, eh? Wal, you don't suppose that Indiana is clear out o' the United States, do you?"

"No, but—"

"Wal, I reckon 'Hail Columby' is the lay o' the rest o' the land, an' it's the same with Indiana."

Thereupon the inquisitive passenger wiped his interrogatory gimlet and put it away, and the Hoosier humorist withdrew, turtle-fashion, into his celluloid collar. And the train rolled onward.—N. Y. Journal.

An Odd Genius.

The papers are full of tales just now of how the late composer, Brahms, treated pianists and singers who were eager to get his criticism. If one of these aspirants for his favor was fortunate enough to find him at home and be received, Brahms' first concern was to seat himself on the lid of his piano, a position from which he rightly deemed few would have the temerity to oust him. If this failed he had recourse to the statement that the instrument was out of tune. "Oh, that does not matter," remarked one courageous individual. "Perhaps not to you, but it does to me," replied the master. On one occasion he was just leaving his house when a long-haired youth, with a bundle of music under his arm, hailed him with: "Can you tell me where Dr. Brahms lives?" "Certainly," answered the master, in the most amiable manner; "in this house up three flights," and so saying he hurried away.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Taking Time by the Forelock.—"I have just been at my husband to induce him to buy me a sealskin jacket." "What! in the spring?" "Oh, it will be winter before I worry him into doing it."—Judy.

THE "GROWN-UP" DAUGHTER'S DUTY TO HER MOTHER.

You can only have one mother; therefore, when her step is growing slow and her mind gloomy with forebodings, and you can see that her whole nervous system is upset, it is your filial duty and privilege to attend to her in time! Mother is approaching the most critical period of her life.

The change of life, that is what mother is dreading, and no wonder, for it is full of peril to all but the strongest women.

There are some special and very wearing symptoms from which mother suffers, but she will not speak of them to any one. Help her out; she doesn't know what to do for herself!

Shall I advise you? First, send to the nearest drug store and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and see that mother takes it regularly, then write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., giving all the symptoms and you will receive a prompt reply telling mother what to do for herself. In the meantime the Vegetable Compound will make life much easier for her. It tones up the nervous system, invigorates the body, and the "blues" vanish before it as darkness flees from the sunlight. You can get it at any reliable druggist's.

Mrs. Louis Strong, Harris Hill, Erie Co., N. Y., says: "I have been troubled with falling of the womb for years, was advised to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took thirteen bottles and received great benefit. When the time for change of life came I suffered a great deal with faintness and palpitation of the heart. I got one bottle of the Vegetable Compound and one of Blood Purifier and was relieved again. I was thereby enabled to pass through that serious period very comfortably."

Every Teacher or Scholar

in the public schools of the United States, 15 years of age and over, should have a copy of the Northern Pacific's new and beautifully illustrated book, Wonderland '97. It is especially adapted for use in the public schools in the study of geography and history, and as an aid in the study of the Northwest and its varied and vast resources. The book has a large amount of valuable data, but is not by any means a compendium of dry statistics. The beautiful Lake Park Region of Minn.; the Red River Valley of the North, the remarkable wheat land of the country, and Pyramid Park, where hundreds of thousands of cattle are raised, are described. Yellowstone Park and its wonderful canyons and lakes, waterfalls and geysers has a long chapter given to it. A chapter on several of the richest mining districts of the Northwest, telling how they were discovered and developed, will be an interesting one to everybody. Some of these discoveries were made in very funny ways. Four great snow mountains, old volcanoes, on the North Pacific coast have a chapter devoted to them which gives much of their history. A new mountain range, one almost unknown, in the northwest corner of the United States, is brought to the readers' attention. It is a glorious region, with deep, beautiful lakes, full of new varieties of trout, made famous by a rear admiral of the U. S. navy. Alaska also has a place in its pages. The booklet has a handsome cover and is beautifully and profusely illustrated. Any teacher or scholar can have a copy by sending six cents in postage stamps to Chas. S. Fee, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Not to Be Caught.

A gentleman visiting Liverpool was being shown around by a citizen, who said: "Now, let's go and see the 'Widows' Home.'" The gentleman put his finger to the side of his nose and winked and said: "No, thanks; I saw a widow home once, and she sued me for breach of promise, and proved it on me. It cost me a matter of £120. No, sir, send the widows home in a cab."—Tit-Bits.

Summer Vacations.

Interesting illustrated booklets pertaining to Massachusetts Seashore, Ocean, Island and Inland Resorts, are issued by the passenger department of the Fall River Line, the famous route between New York and Boston, Newport, Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket, Bar Harbor, the White Mountains, etc., etc., etc. List of the booklets will be mailed upon receipt of one-cent stamp. Address O. H. Taylor, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Fall River Line, New York.

Excursion to Free Homes in the Canadian Northwest.

Those who are paying rent or carrying mortgages, or young men without prospects of getting a home where land is high in price, should note that the Canadian Government has a large area of fine farming land which it gives to persons over 18 years of age. Soil produces all staple crops. Climate similar to this. Good stock and dairy country. An excursion will leave St. Paul and Minneapolis, Wednesday, June 23, 1897, and monthly thereafter, to examine these lands. Don't be misled about far-away places you know nothing about, but select while the chance is open a FREE FARM OF 160 ACRES, to which the railway fare is low and will not eat up a large share of your capital. For publications and further information address Benjamin Davies, Emigration Agent, Canadian Government, 154 East 3d St., St. Paul, Minn.

The Grain-O Law Suit.

Rochester, N. Y., May 19, 1897.—The great $50,000 damage suit instituted by a Michigan Cereal Co. against the Genesee Pure Food Co. is at an end. They settled it and took it out of court for the ridiculously small sum of $500 and, as a practical result, Grain-O is in greater demand than ever. The new plant only just completed is to be duplicated so that not only the old friends of the delicious food drink which completely takes the place of coffee, but the new friends it is making every day, can be supplied. The beverage which the children, as well as the adult, may drink with benefit will be furnished in unlimited quantities.

Suits may come and suits may go, but Grain-O goes on forever.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

A Gentle Hint.

Popular with Hunters.

The most popular hunting rifles are made by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct. Their light, modern, high powered small caliber rifles have revolutionized gun making and are fast supplanting all other makes. The Winchester Models '94 and '95 do terrific execution. They will kill at distances where big bore guns would not injure. They are very popular with the most successful hunters on account of their accuracy at short and long distances and their tremendous killing power. Send for a large illustrated catalogue describing them.

First Nighter—"The man who writes the dramatic criticisms for your paper does not know a good play from a bad one." Editor—"I know it, but what can we do? He is the only man on the staff who is tall enough to see over the bonnets!"—Tit-Bits.

"A Bundle of Nerves."

This term is often applied to people whose nerves are abnormally sensitive. They should strengthen them with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. After a course of that benign tonic, they will cease to be conscious that they have nervous systems, except through agreeable sensations. It will enable them to eat, sleep and digest well, the three media for increasing tone and vigor in the nerves, in common with the rest of the system. The mental worry begotten by nervous dyspepsia will also disappear.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JUNE 18, 1897.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—A. E. Manning says last Fair Day was the best he has seen since coming here. His ice cream is A 1.

—Horses are surer to get their riders home on time rainy days than bicycles are, consequently are growing in favor these wet times.

—Miss Barnes, of the Twin City social Purity Club, lectured at the M. E. church, Sunday evening and held meetings in town Monday. She is quite an earnest and hard worker.

—Henry C. Parslow was kicked in the breast by a horse, Monday. He was not so badly hurt as on a previous occasion of the same kind, but enough to lay him up for a few hours.

—Be considering your tickets for school officers for next year. The election occurs this year in July. Have good men on the board to hire teachers and do the business of the district.

—A. Rewaldt is building the foundation for the new residence of Dr. E. E. Shrader, at Watertown. The house is the next residence North of that of C. G. Halgren, and is to be 26x41, two stories, with modern improvements.

—Mr. John O'Mera, of Greenwood, who has been on the sick list for some time went to St. Barnabas Hospital, Minneapolis, a few weeks ago, where and operation was performed, since which we understand he is suffering less pain.

—Charley Conzet received a letter from his brother John, of Deer Creek, lamenting the lack of patriotism in Delano people as manifested by their not observing Memorial Day. John gets the Delano papers and knows what is, and what is not going on in this place.

—Mrs. Joseph Matter was seen in a bicycle shop a few days ago. She says she is going to learn to ride out in the country but don't expect to come to town that way. When she gets so she can ride faster than the boys and girls, though, it is almost certain that the wheels will in some way find their way across the bridge with her.

—Quite a number of scholars and some of the teachers have been bothered with eye troubles lately. The rooms in the school house have plain white walls and ceilings, and a large strip of black board, and the light is reflected in such a manner as to be hard on eyes. Some have had to get glasses. It would be better to have the walls and ceilings, tinted with a shade of light green or some other color that would be better for the eyes. Pupils and teachers can do better work where things are agreeable and pleasant than where they are otherwise. A little painting or kalsomining correctly done would obviate this serious drawback to our schools, and in the interests of health the house should be thoroughly cleansed between terms.

—Quite a joke on somebody, it seems hard to tell just who, occurred Monday night. Mesdames Mowatt and Buckley drove old Nig to Watertown to attend the band concert. Finding another chance to ride home, they turned over to Messrs Buckly and Pete Peterson the Old Nig. Buckley kept remarking, on the way home, that old Nig was a good enough horse for anybody. Mrs. Mowatt was worrying because Buckley was driving so fast; her horse would be all warmed up. On arriving at home about 1 a. m. Tuesday, Mr. Mowatt informed the party that they had brought home the wrong horse. Buckley accuses Frank Barth of having made the selection from those in the barn for them to come home with. Mr. Meara brought Nig home next morning and got his own.

—Last Saturday's Fair Day was a model one. Large numbers of teams drove in from every direction and from long distances. Cattle, sheep, and hogs seem to be most in demand, though pork is said to be quite cheap. People went home early, as they should do. Though merchants and saloon keepers found time to sit in front of their places of business in the early part of the evening and rest, all seemed contented with the receipts of the day. It has now been established that where people desire to have no fighting, and no loud talking or other disgraceful things on the streets they can have their wish. Everybody appreciates a busy, quiet day, better than a noisy, howling failure, more fuss than fun, and more trouble than profit. Let us continue the quiet kind.

—When, in the course of human events and the enlightenment of the the 19th century it becomes necessary for every little town in the country to vote $50, $100 or more dollars to some organization, or aggregation of indiyiduals to get up a 4th of July celebration it strikes us that the old fashioned patriotism is indeed at low ebb. It is much more enjoyment to everybody to turn out and take part in the proceedings from start to finish; bring their dinners with them into the grove; assist in spreading a long table for everybody to come up and eat their fill, than to have a select party here and there and hardly find out who is on the grounds. The old fashioned kind don't require so much ready cash to change hands and would be most in keeping with the present state of affairs.

—Wash Rader sold his driving mare to Mr. Labo. Horses seem to be picking up some in price and in demand —A man hunted the town over on Tuesday evening for a bicycle he could hire for a few hours, but failed to find one. He wanted to go fishing. It was just as well as it rained anyway.

—The Delano Band, dressed in their brand new uniforms, went down into the suburbs on N. River Street and drilled for a short time Wednesday evening. The boys look quite well when they are dressed up.

--The Delano Fair is said to be gaining on the Watertown Fair; in fact to have already become the best market of the two; farmers getting more here than at Watertown for stock; shipping facilities favoring Delano. One of our butchers waited so long to buy beef cattle last time that he had to buy finally from a Watertown butcher who had gathered in a surplus.

- Stories, said to be true, have begun to circulate about some of our wealthy farmers, who are very saying, but like to have the best when they make purchases, having laid in a supply of "stone spectacles" that "won't break" at the fabulous price of $15 a pair. Some of Delano's merchants claim to have the the same kind for much less money, but they are economical also, and rather than advertise, so people will know what they have, let the peddler get out and sell the goods, supply the folks, and get away with the money.

County Cullings.

A. A. Jewett, of Maple Lake, has been appointed Post Master in place of M. O'Laughlin.

Among the names of graduates this year from the Shattuck Military school at Faribault, appears Leo Chilton, of Howard Lake.

The late Wright County Grand Jury, we understand, thought best to hold full sessions and put in their time to the best advantage, and get through as soon as possible. This probably was a saving to tax payers, of a few dollars at least.

The Post office wars in Wright County are now waging hotter and hottyr. There are quite a number of individuals willing to be cooped up in one of Uncle Sam's post offices for four years just for the salary, to say nothing of those who would rise in politics, or who would for party advantages sacrifice their time and talent.

The Old Settlers Association of Wright County met in the Court House grounds at Buffalo and partook of a basket picnic. Tables and seats for their use having being provided. After this important part of the program was over, the Delano, Buffalo, Annandale and Maple Lake Bands, 54 musicians all told, discoursed some sweet music. President Florida called the Old Settlers together Elder Baker of Monticello made the opening prayer, the Old Settlers had no trouble to hear him; President of the Village of Buffalo, A. Y. Eaton made a short but appropiate speech, followed by President Florida, who surprises many with his minute knowledge of things ancient. Election of officers was held on the grounds as follows: President, George W. Florida; Vice President, George Davis; Secretary, D. R. Farnham; Treasurer, James Sturgis. There was a big crowd considering the late rains and the lowering skys. Everybody seemed pleased and had a good time. The base ballist were on hand and Rockford and Buffalo second nines played first, score: Rockford 8; Buffalo 9. Then the Buffalo third nine and the Delano Crickets took the field, and Buffalo got two tallies while the Crickets hopped up eleven.

We understand the County Attorney informed the Grand Jury that there was no evidence to bring before them in the Boxell murder cases, and that clews were being worked on which might be interferred with if disturbed at present. Therefore no indictments were made concerning that case. This may be all right, but it does seem to people in Wright County that after so many cases of a similar nature someone ought to be caught after awhile. The old story that "murder will out" seems to have been turned, in Wright County, to murderers can't be caught. Then there have been numerous cases of buildings being burned and "incendarism" charged time and again, but the "firebug" still at large. To say nothing of the charges heard all around of bribery of jurors, officials, and others. Then when a lot of lawyers living in the country can be found to sign an affidavit that they don't beheave a Wright County Jury would give a man a fair and impartial trial it is getting about time something should be done. It don't look right on the face of it. We don't believe in punishsing innocent people. We would not have the wrong party brought to trial. Neither do we believe in having innocent peoples' houses burned, their fair name ruined in the eyes of the public by continual charges of bribery and other crimes, and even their lives taken at the dead hour of the night without having some criminal found out. Why have law at all if no one is made to respect it. This is what leads to anarchy. This is why people take the law in their own hands and deal out summary justice on some occasions. Lynch law is wrong and often innocent people are deprived of the life that cannot be returned. Let the officials use every means in their power to bring to punishment a few criminals and there want be so many at large to keep communities in fear.

—John Plattner had an opening day at his newly arranged store on Wednesday. He had several extra clerks.

—J. M. Stone shod Elmer E. Rader's mule the other day. There was no more fun than with the ordinary driving nag.

—We understand that Prof. Hawker and his mother have in contemplation a visit to the old state of Maine, in the near future.

—The Delano Cornet Band gave an entertainment at Rockford on Friday evening last, and one at Watertown, Monday evening. Both quite successful, we are told.

--Notices are posted of a meeting of the Village Council on Monday, June 28, to set as an equalization board. If you are not satisfied with your assessment now is your time to have it corrected.

--The Pension roll has on this week, Reissue and increase, James E. Brothers, Delano. Mr. Brothers has been on the sick list most of the spring and winter and will be pleased to have this streak of good luck.

--A large number of Delanoites visited Buffalo on Thursday. Old Settlers, J. D. Young, William Lewis, Wash Rader, J. Gutzwiller, T. J. Catlin, C. H. Green, and families, the Delano Band and families, and the Delano Crickets, and many others were on hand and helped enjoy the occasion.

—Stephen Cebula and John Marsolek are laying brick alone on Casper Janikula's two story house, and are consequently a little behind those who had more men and one story houses, but things are now being completed on the last of the lot. Borsch and Mowatt are laying roof, while Weldele has his about through plastering. By July 4, everybody expects to be cleaned up and the street again made passable.

--The Delano Crickets crossed bats with the Buffalo Clippers, Thursday, June 17. The score was as follows:

Buffalo	1	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	0—2
Delano	0	1	0	0	2	4	4	0	*—11

Teachers' Training School.

Will be held at Buffalo commencing July 7, and continuing four weeks. The school will be conducted by Prof. A. D. Gaines of the Agricultural College, St. Anthony Park, assisted by Mrs. Gaines, Miss Hattie Dunton and Mr. James of the St. Cloud Normal.

Classes will be formed in the following subjects: Reading, Elementary Botany, History of England, Penmanship, Physical Culture, Arithmetic, Physiology, Grammar, English, History of the U. S., Civics, Geography, Music, Pedagog School Law, Geometry and Algebra if a sufficient number wish. There will also be a course of about eight lectures given by some of the ablest men of the state, and several excellent concerts in connection with the school. It is not necessary to urge our most successful teachers to be present at the beginning and remain during the entire term, but others who expect license to teach are earnestly requested to grasp the opportunities offered by the Training School for obtaining a more thorough knowledge of the subjects to be taught as well as proper methods of teaching them.

SAM JONES.
"THUNDERBOLTS,"
the latest and grandest book by this world-wide celebrity now out and for sale exclusively by subscription. The only book given to the public by Sam Jones in ten years. Edited by Rev. B. F. Haynes. Introduction by Bishop Joseph S. Key, of the M. E. Church, South. 600 pages. 122 splendid illustrations. A bonanza for agents. Most rapidly, easily selling book of the age.
AGENTS WANTED.
Send 85 Cents for Agent's Outfit, and 10 Cents for Our 70-page, Illustrated Catalogue of Bibles, Albums, Etc.
WONDERFUL SALES.
$10 Every Day Can Be Made by Agents.
To prove it, we give a few items from actual sales made within the last few weeks:
One agent sold 27 copies in two and a half days. Another sold 15 copies in two days, and another 30 in three days. One agent in Indiana sold 15 copies in two days. An agent in South Carolina sold 43 copies in three days. One agent in Georgia sold 25 in two days. An agent in Central Georgia sold 82 copies in ten days. When you consider the commission we allow agents, and the immense popularity of this wonderful book, and the ease with which it sells, there is nothing in which a live, pushing man can engage which will yield such profits. For instance: one agent made $108.25 in ten days selling "Thunderbolts." Another made $39.60 in three days; another $9.25 in one day; another $33 in two days; another $56.75 in three days.

CLEAR THE WAY.

Men of thought! be up, and stirring night and day:
Sow the seed—withdraw the curtain—CLEAR THE WAY!
Men of action, aid and cheer them, as ye may!
There's a fount about to stream,
There's a light about to beam,
There's a warmth about to glow,
There's a flower about to blow;
There's a midnight blackness changing into gray.
Men of thought men of action, CLEAR THE WAY!

Once the welcome light has broken, who shall say
What the unimagined glories of the day?
What the evil that shall perish in its ray?
Aid the dawning, tongue and pen;
Aid it hopes of honest men;
Aid it, paper; aid it, type;
Aid it for the hour is ripe,
And our earnest must not slacken into play.
Men of thought and men of action, CLEAR THE WAY!

Lo! a cloud's about to vanish from the day;
And a brazen wrong to crumble into clay.
Lo! the right's about to conquer: CLEAR THE WAY!
With the right shall many more
Enter smiling at the door,
With the giant wrong shall fall
Many others, great and small,
That for ages long have held us for their prey.
Men of though and men of action, CLEAR THE WAY! CHARLES MACKAY.

SOME of America's so-called literary people are poking fun at Minister to England, Hay, on account of his poetry, but "the last galoot" among them fails to sport good enough "Little Breeches" to appear in the Queen's parade.

CALIFORNIA and other western lands have been having some experience with earthquakes. When we read of snow in Idaho and other unseasonable things in various countries, we think Minnesota must be ahead on climate yet.

IF Alfred Austin, England's Poet Laureate can't produce better verses than those appearing in the newspapers, attributed to him, England had better send to America for a poet Laureate. Perhaps John Hay may be appointed to the position yet.

THE English are having a grand jubilee this year; the Queens diamond jubilee, she having reigned for 60 years. There are very few people in America that remember when England had any other sovereign than Queen Victory. All join in pronouncing her a good ruler

THE terrible time some of the Gold Bug papers are having, trying to buck Bryan off the road to the White House is laughable to the friends of true and tried bimetallism. Haven't we had all our lives, as a nation, up to 1873, just what the so-called free silver people are now asking to have restored, gold and silver one as good as the other? And why shouldn't we have it again?

REPUBLICAN leaders in Minnesota are having terrible set backs now-a days. Word has been passed along that John Goodnow is to go to Shanghai, leaving several larger lights turned down, almost into total darkness. Then it is reported that Senator Knute Nelson is becoming alarmed for the welfare of the Republican state machine since the Executive and Judicial heads of the state fail to jibe so well as they did.

IOWA bimetallists have placed in the field a winning ticket. Two democrats, two free silver republicans and a populist. The ticket is for Governor F. E. White; Lieut. Gov. B. A. Plummer; Judge Supreme Court, L. G. Kinne; S. B. Grain; Supt. Pub. Inst, G. F. Rhinehart. The names are to be placed on the ticket under the head democrat. It is claimed that when this became known that about 100 middle of the road populists walked out of the convention, General Weaver and his followers remaining in. But for this the union would have been complete. The platform with bimetallism for the principle plank is said to have been agreeable to all. If these facts are so it only shows the folly of those who vacated their seats in the convention. If they are for Free Silver and Free gold why not vote for it? Can't they get over their prejudice against a party name enough to help down the gold standard against which they so loudly proclaim, it looks as if they were not in earnest about wanting bimetallism.

J. DONNELLY'S case for $50,000 for libel against the Pioneer Press is being tried this week.

CONSIDERABLE of a controversy has been stirred up by the proposition to use Indiana stone to build the Minnesota capitol. It is claimed that Minnesota has as good stone as anybody and that it should be used. But, if the contractors can buy stone and ship it from Indiana cheaper than from Minnesota quaries, it is to be presumed that is what they will do, unless the state or some one else pays the difference. The time to look after that was before the contract was let.

EDITOR FRANK, of the Cokato Enterprise discovers to his readers a wonderful familiarity with the evidence in the Durant murder trial in California. He even goes so far as to say: "If it was the minister of the church of which Durant was a member who had been convicted, the right man would hang, but Durant should live as there was no more evidence to hang him on than there was to hang the minister or not even as much in fact." Possibly one was as guilty as the other, or as innocent, as the case may be. But we supposed the California Jury had determined the matter. The Jury listening to the evidence ought to know more about the case than we, at this great distance, depending on sketches from newspapers can possibly know about the matter. Durant was to hang June 11 but has been reprieved till July 9.

AFTER all the fuss that has been made in Ohio among Republicans it seems that Hanna got his ticket nominated and Asa S. Bushnell will try to be Governor again. When it comes to Hanna and John J. McLean running for Congress the most fun will begin. The question of whose barrel is biggest is already being discussed. It is pretty safe to say that neither will be quite so rich as now, after election. We think things have come to a pretty pass when even Ohio has to select as standard bearers and candidates for United States Senators the two reputed wealthiest men in the state. Why not run a man on account of his fitness for the position, and not because of his financial prosperity? The U. S. Senate is not supposed to be a money making concern. It ought not to be necessary to have first class money getters alone as candidates for that high place.

THE Duluth News Tribune has changed hands, made an apology to C. A. Towne for having tried to make its readers believe that he owned an interest in silver mines and was hired by silver mine owners, consequently Mr. Towne withdraws his libel suit.

He still has one against the St. Paul Dispatch and may have one against the Delano Eagle if the Old Bird don't come down on her marrow bones. This way of political campaigning by insinuations and inyendos, making people believe a pack of lies concerning candidates on the opposite tickets has gone far enough. It is about time to learn orators and editors to adhere to the truth. The truth is, in most cases, bad enough without stretching, but when it comes to a test of who can, or dare, stretch truth the most it is, time juries of twelve good reliable citizens should be given opportunities to say how much the injured should be given to help heal their wounds. The salve should not be too grudgingly applied either.

AMONG the interesting articles in the June number of Kennedy's Own is one on "The Old Missions of California as the Germ of the State's present Industries," by Miss Frances Irish. Samuel Hill on "The Three Great Primary Divisions in the Commercial World" sets up something to think about. His three great primary divisions in the commercial world are given as; "first, the money business; second, the transportation business; and third, the business which consists of dealing in the great staples—the products of the field, the forest, the mine and the sea. All other businessed are secondary to these and necessarily dependent on the three above named." Sam accuses England of having appropriated the Venetian monetary system, multiplied it by twenty-five and passed it off to the world as an invention of her own. He says the Italian money was worth about one twenty fifth part as much as the English, therefore England, according to Mr. Hill, by law, made money worth twenty-five times its value, all at once! This would tend to prove that the U. S. might, if it saw fit, legislate silver and gold on a par, where they ought to be and where they have been before.

The railroad magnate claims that the United States has cheaper transportation for freight than England, Germany, or France, or any other country save a short line in India. He also claims the great corporations cheapen goods to the people, but don't claim to have settled the question as to whether department stores and other large monied concerns are beneficial or detrimental to the best interests of the country.

Our Nations Birthday.

The 4th of July is well known to every American born child in its early years; through life to their old age do they remember the booming of cannon, the ringing of bells and the glad shouts of young America as they anounce at early dawn each year the recurrence of the anniversary of the birth of one of the grandest Nations now on the earth. Early in life they seek the pages of history to learn of the men who taking their lives in their hands, affixed their signatures to that memorable Declaration of Independence, anouncing to the world their belief that we ought to be free from British tyranny and misrule. and as each 4th of July comes round they are found congregating with neighbors to aid in keeping the day in rememberance of the deeds of patriots who at the risk of loosing their own lives, ventured to give us a government that has been perpetuated for more than a centuary and which if we enjoy our privileges of free American citizens and carefully do our duties as such, will be handed down to generations yet to come, growing more powerful each year. Everybody in this land who by birth or adoption claims the protection of the stars and stripes should unite in observing this National holiday, even keeping in remembrance, what it cost, in money, trouble and lives of noble patriots to give us this day, and what it has cost to preserve it to us to the present time, and every patriot should resolve every 4th of July to do his best to perpetuate it and preserve it to posterity.

Judge Canty Again.

Judge Canty states his views much plainer and much more to point than the majority of the Supreme Court do regarding the case of Legislator Dahl of Hennepin County being Court Stenographer at the same time he is legislature. Judge Buck also thinks the majority of the bench take a different view of this case from what they did in previous cases. Judge Canty says: "I cannot concur. There is too much temporizing and doubting. Either," he says, "the office of court stenographer is a public office, or it is not a public office. If it is a public office, then under the constitution, it cannot be held by a member of the legislature. If it is not, then the incumbent has no right to draw a salary from the treasury of the county as a public officer." This decission is far plainer to the people who read newspapers than that syllabus of the majority. Anybody can understand Judge Canty's stand or Judge Buck's position; but it would require an astute lawyer to unravel the syllabus of the majority and find anything half as plain. It looks in this case at least, as if Judges Buck and Canty were with the majority of the reading public if they do differ from the balance of the bench. This is not the first time Judge Canty has crowned himself with laurels by bringing to the attention of the majority of the bench that they did not pay attention enough to their business, and in this case it looks as if he had certainly won his case.

Tariff Tinkering.

It is claimed that through the manipulations of J. J. Hill and others interested in trade with Japan and China that floor mats from those countries are on the free list, so that the railroad and steamship lines can do more carrying trade between those lands and our own, taking flour over and loading with matting for the return trip. Binding twine and cotton tie people are said to have agreed to put those articles on the free list, this may help the carrying trade too, as grain and cotton can be put up a little cheaper. Then Pillsbury has long known that tariff on grain bags was a tax and it is claimed that finally grain bags are to go on the free list. This also will help the manipulators of railroads and steamships. If Pillsbury can buy sacks cheaper he can compete with other handlers of grain and flour to better advantage, and J. J. Hill can do the carrying business. Just think of it, Republicans making a "free list" on a tariff bill after announcing for years that they believed in protection to our infant industries, even C. K. Davis not wanting to give up the "principle of protection" by placing things that could be made in this country on the free list. Can't anybody in the United States make grain bags, cotton ties or binding twine? Don't this look like giving up several "notas of protection principle" to place these on the free list? Isn't this a grand surrender to the gold standard democrats to try to hold them in line? Then they have actually raised the tariff on sugar; another departure from republican doctrine. Isn't this to catch democrats? Isn't the gold standard party in terrible straits when they must cater in this way to a few well wishers among democrats? And then to be obliged to give some of the fattest offices in the state, and the United States Treasury itself to a gold standard democrat is perfectly awful. Now don't complain if everybody else votes against such doings, and there is but two tickets.

Boy Accused of Horse Theft.

Buffalo, Minn., Special, June 20.—Samuel Longfellow of Monticello, sixteen years of age, was arrested by Sheriff Nugent and brought to Buffalo, charged with stealing a horse from Rev. Van Foss of Monticello on the night of June 12. He was held to the next grand jury and will be sent to the Hennepin county jail.—Pioneer Press.

Silver Succeeds.

Charley Towne successfully launched the "silver Republican" party on the troubled political sea, at Chicago last week. Charley is girding up his loins to make all the trouble possible.—Elk River Star-News.

"Nothing succeeds like success." Keep it up Charley Towne the people are with you all along the line, on that question: Democrats have always been for the "dollars of our dads," and now that others see things that way perhaps bimetallism may win.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18, 1897.

Mr. McKinley is a graduate of the Ohio school of politics, and few slicker individuals hold diplomas from that source. His trotting out of that new treaty for the annexation of Hawaii at this time is a very slick attempt to take advantage of the popularity of the idea of annexing Hawaii to distract public attention from his failure to announce his Cuban policy, in accordance with promises made on his behalf in Congress. Had the people not been clamoring for action towards Cuba it is not likely that the Hawaiian treaty would have been heard from before next winter, notwithstanding the declaration of some of Mr. McKinley's friends that it was brought foreward to assist the Senators to intelligently dispose of the tariff.

Although it is well known that many of the Democratic Senators favor the ultimate annexation of Hawaii very few of them have committed themselves on this new treaty. It is too important a matter to be decided on the spur of the moment, and it will not be surprising should the democrats oppose any attempt to railroad the treaty through the Senate at the present session. Nothing will be lost by allowing the treaty to go over to the regular session of Congress. Already the question is being asked, why do so much for Hawaii, several thousand miles away, and nothing for Cuba, which is suffering right at our doors, so to speak. There is some talk about delaying action on the Hawaiian treaty until Mr. McKinley agrees to do something for Cuba, which many think must also ultimately come under the control of the United States in some form or other. Some democratic Senators favor holding a caucus to decide just what attitude they shall take towards the Hawaiian treaty, but nothing definite has yet been determined upon.

Senator Tillman has proposed an amendment to the tariff bill that would do more than all the recent attempts to restrict immigration. It provides for a head tax of $100 on each immigrant and makes it a misdemeanor for any alien who does not intend to become an American citizen and to remain such to enter the U. S. for the purpose of engaging in any mechanical trade or manual labor. There is a provision that the head tax shall cease to be levied as soon as the U. S. adopts the free coinage of silver.

Fearing that the anti-trust tariff amendment offered by Senator Pettigrew might be adopted on a direct vote, Senator Allison, who is in charge of the tariff bill during the absence of Senator Aldrich, resorted to a little parliamentary trick to kill it, and succeeded. He moved that it be laid on the table and the motion was carried by a vote of 35 to 32. Had Senators Morgan and Pettus, the only democrats who voted for the motion, voted against it, it would have been defeated by a vote of 34 to 33 and the anti-trust amendment would have been added to the tariff bill. It is but fair to state that Senators Morgan and Pettus stated their opposition to the amendment to be that it would create more and worse trusts than it would injure existing trusts.

Senator Vest gave Senator Allison several blows straight from the shoulder in a few remarks dissecting the figures set forth by Mr. Allison in place of those submitted by Mr. Aldrich when the change was made in the sugar schedule. Mr. Vest believes that each sugar schedule has been a little better for the sugar trust than the one it succeeded, notwithstanding the public howl against favoring this colossal monopoly, and he presented figures to back his belief. According to his figures, the present tariff gives a protection on 96-degree sugar of 37 cents per hundred pounds; the Dingley schedule 41 cents; the Aldrich schedule 46 cents, and the caucus schedule, afterwards adopted by the Senate, 47 cents. Thus it is that the republican Senators who opposed the Wilson bill because they said it gave the sugar trust too much protection have put themselves on record in favor of giving the trust exactly ten cents a hundred pounds more than the Wilson tariff bill gave it.

St. Peter Herald: The Fairbault authorities are enforcing the anti-cigarette law. The law is constantly being violated in St. Peter and it would be in line with genuine reform to take a whirl at it here.

Minneapolis Tribune: It begins to look as if President McKinley might have to exert some of his harmonizing influence upon the Ohio situation. He has succeeded in getting the staesmen from Minnesota and North Dakota togather and he has successfully smoothed down the front of Tom Platt, but the factional fight between Hanna and Foraker threatens to wreck the Buckeye Republican party this year.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Rather wet for cultivating corn, but farmers have been at it the last few days between showers, the corn has a good color but some of it is getting very weedy. Small grain is looking well, but if it keeps on raining will get very rank and may go down.

Mr. Editor, does the United States want that Buzzards nest out in the middle of the Pacific Ocean—that group of islands, called the Sandwitch Islands—full of volcanic eruption. They might do to herd some of our politicans on, or answer for a place of refuge when the gold standard company of this country have gone into the hands of a receiver, but for revenue and clear profit, think it would be a failure.

Teachers' Training School.

Will be held at Buffalo commencing July 7, and continuing four weeks. The school will be conducted by Prof. A. D. Gaines of the Agricultural College, St. Anthony Park, assisted by Mrs. Gaines, Miss Hattie Dunton and Mr. James of the St. Cloud Normal.

Classes will be formed in the following subjects: Reading, Elementary Botany, History of England, Penmanship, Physical Culture, Arithmetic, Physiology, Grammar, English, History of the U. S., Civics, Geography, Music, Pedagog School Law, Geometry and Algebra if a sufficient number wish. There will also be a course of about eight lectures given by some of the ablest men of the state, and several excellent concerts in connection with the school. It is not necessary to urge our most successful teachers to be present at the beginning and remain during the entire term, but others who expect license to teach are earnestly requested to grasp the opportunities offered by the Training School for obtaining a more thorough knowledge of the subjects to be taught as well as proper methods of teaching them.

The increase in the production of gold over 1895 is shown to have been $6,478,000 actual value, while the production of silver shows an increase of $4,018,000, coining value.

Palestine is pushing many public works to completion. The River Jordan is now spanned by a handsome bridge, while steamboats travel up and down the stream, and likewise traverse the often stormy waters of the Sea of Galilee. The Jaffa & Jerusalem railroad has proved a commercial success, carrying more than 20,000 tons of merchandise during the last six months and landing more than 100 drummers in the holy city in seach of new stories.

When one reflects upon the ease with which men of ordinary business prudence can be swindled out of their hard-earned money by a plausible scamp, it is scarcely surprising to the Detroit Free Press that the scamp flourishes as he—or she—does. The slang proverb says that "a sucker is born every minute;" but it would seem as if the birth rate must be somewhat more rapid than that, judging from the number of people who are duped every day and the number of sharpers who get a living by duping them.

A Paris journal says that a French scientist is trying to make bees manufacture medicated honey in a variety of flavors for the cure of various diseases. He keeps the bees under glass, so that they can get honey only from flowers especially chosen. By the different kinds of honey thus produced influenza, coughs and colds, indigestion, asthma and many other ills are said to be readily if indirectly reached, and while the palate of the weakened invalid and the stubborn child is tickled he is being surreptitiously cured.

Ambrose Bierce, the California war horse, appears to have been most severely fouled by some careless book reviewer, for he sweetly remarks that "the regulation book-whacker is the anile, insulse, nugacious and hebetudinous fabrication of some celestial futilitarian who, sleeping through the six days of creation, awoke to a sluggish activity on the seventh, grabbed the first gob of mud that came to hand, fashioned it into an amorphous Thing, and finding all existing beasts subject to Man, bespoke for it a narrow dominion over the tardy mule." Now, will the critics be good!

If reports of recent discoveries in Polynesia and Mexico are reliable it would seem as though corroborative evidence had been secured of the existence of the Chinese in Mexico before the Christian era. It is a singular fact that about the time of the discovery of a rock covered with Chinese inscriptions in Sonora, Mexico, there should be found in the Caroline islands evidences that a flourishing trade was carried on between China and Mexico by way of those islands at least 20 centuries ago. It thus appears that the Chinese explored and settled this country centuries before Columbus was born.

As New York has furnished many examples of marriages for money Boston gives us a sample of a pure love match, the bride being an heiress with many millions in her own right and the bridegroom almost penniless. The ceremony was as brilliant as society could have wished, but it was something more than the mere joining of the son and daughter of two wealthy houses. It was, from all that can be learned about it, an old-fashioned love match, such as you read of in story books. The bride is the beautiful daughter of an old and very wealthy family and her spouse is a brilliant but comparatively poor man.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

The United States senate made rapid work on the tariff bill on the 16th. Thirteen pages were disposed of, carrying the debate through the agricultural schedule and up to schedule H, relating to spirits, wines, etc. The Hawaiian annexation treaty, signed by President McKinley, Secretary Sherman and Minister Hatch, of Hawaii, was received, as was also the nomination of Stewart L. Woodford, of New York, to be minister to Spain. The house was not in session.

The United States senate made greater progress on the 17th on the tariff bill than any day since the debate opened. Two entire schedules, covering 20 pages, were completed. In the house Mr. Sulzer (N. Y.) made a brief speech in favor of Cuba, in which he denounced Weyler as a "thief" and "murderer." The bill for the relief of the residents of Greer county, O. T., was passed. Adjourned to the 21st.

The tariff bill came to a halt in the United States senate on the 18th, less than one page of the flax schedule being disposed of. The debate drifted into political channels. Bills were passed for public buildings at Cleveland, O., to cost $2,700,000, and at McKeesport, Pa., to cost $200,000. The house was not in session.

The tariff bill was further considered in the United States senate on the 19th, and a motion to place floor mattings, plain jute fabrics, burlap and cotton bagging on the free list was successful. The house was not in session.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

Sixtieth Anniversary of Victoria's Coronation Celebrated.

Ceremonies Begin by Attendance Upon Divine Services—Triumphal Entry Into London—Queen Receives the Royal Envoys.

London, June 21.—Queen Victoria began the celebration of her jubilee Sunday, as was befitting her entire career, before the altar of her faith. Throughout London, the United Kingdom and the empire, in every cathedral, church or chapel of the established church of England, were held services similar to those at St. George's chapel, Windsor, where her majesty paid her devotions and offered solemn thanks to God.

Ordinary morning prayers began with a short exhortation from First Timothy. After the first collect, a special collect was read, and instead of the usual prayer for the queen and royal family two special prayers were substituted. A special prayer for unity was said, and there were special psalms and gospels used instead of those for the day, the Gospel being the sixteenth verse of the twenty-second chapter of Matthew: "Render, therefore, unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's." There was no sermon, but a special hymn, written by Rt. Rev. William Walsham, archbishop of Wakefield, with music by Sir Arthur Sullivan, was sung at her majesty's request.

Before the benediction a special thanksgiving was offered. The choir of St. George's chapel rendered the musical portion of the service, Sir Walter Parret presiding at the organ.

The Queen Goes to London.

London, June 22.—Queen Victoria left Windsor castle at noon. Her majesty was accompanied by her eldest daughter, ex-Empress Frederick of Germany, and by Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein and Princess Henry of Battenberg, who occupied another carriage preceding that of her majesty.

The start for London was made at 12:10 a. m., and for almost the entire distance the train passed between scattered groups of loyal people. Every station of the Great Western between Windsor and Paddington had been decorated. The railway employes everywhere stood at the salute, while the platforms were crowded with cheering people.

The route via Buckingham palace was via Oxford and Cambridge terrace, Grand Junction roads and Edgware road to the marble arch, thence by Hyde park and Constitution hill.

Over the distance, excepting the portion of Great park, every house in the background of the picture was superbly decorated, flags, flowers, banners and festoons and endless mottoes on the order of the day: "God Save the Queen." At Edgware road a handsome triumphal arch was erected by the Paddington authorities. It was a very handsome castellated structure in imitation of graystone covered with ivy, and bore the motto: "Thy Hearts Are Our Throne."

The queen, after she entered the palace, proceeded to her private apartments for luncheon, and the royal and other guests had lunch in the state supper room.

Queen Receives the Royal Envoys.

In the afternoon at four o'clock in the Bow drawing-room of Buckingham palace her majesty received the imperial and royal envoys.

United States Special Envoy Hon. Whitelaw Reid, Gen. Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., Rear Admiral J. N. Miller, U. S. N., and the members of the United States special embassy reached the palace a few minutes after two o'clock.

The envoys were conducted to her majesty's presence by the queen's master of ceremonies, and were introduced by the marquis of Salisbury, the premier and minister of foreign affairs. All the envoys presented their letters with the lowest obeisance. The queen took each letter and smilingly addressed two or three sentences of thanks and compliment to each envoy. Mr. Reid was received in the most cordial manner possible. Her majesty expressed her sincere thanks to President McKinley, and to "the great nation of our kinsmen."

The queen at 8:45 in the evening entertained at dinner 90 of her most distinguished guests in the state supper-room at Buckingham palace. Among those present were the prince and princess of Wales, with all the members of the royal family, the royal guests, the envoys of states with the rank of ambassador, and the great officers of the household, who wore full court dress.

Jubilee Honors.

Among the list of Jubilee honors is one for the Canadian premier, Wilfrid Laurier, who is made a privy councilor. Sir Donald Smith, the Canadian high commissioner in London, has been elevated to the peerage. All the colonial premiers, William E. Leckey, the historian, and Sir Herbert Maxwell, the author, have been made privy councilors; the prince of Wales is made grand master and principal knight of the Grand Cross of the Bath; an earldom is conferred upon Baron Egerton of Tatton, and peerages are conferred upon the earl of Glasgow, Viscount Downe, Justice Lopes, Rt. Hon. Ion Trant Hamilton and Sir John Burns. The mayors of Leeds and Sheffield are made lord mayors, and the lord mayor of London, George Foudel Phillips, is made a baronet. Bancroft, the actor, is knighted.

Arbitration Again.

Washington, June 21.—President McKinley has determined to revive the abandoned treaty of general arbitration between the United States and Great Britain. He has already turned his attention to the subject, and under the direction of Secretary Sherman the matter has progressed to the extent that a new treaty already has been drafted to serve as the basis of negotiations expected to result in the submission of a convention to the senate to replace that which was negotiated by Secretary Olney, only to fail in the early hours of the present session.

Famous Steer Dead.

Wichita, Kan., June 22.—The famous steer Jumbo, which had attained the enormous weight of 5,000 pounds and was still growing, was killed Monday. Jumbo was four years old, and measured eight feet tall and 12 feet long. He had massive horns 13 inches in circumference and six feet across, with perfect curves. Mr. Payne decided to kill him and have him mounted while his hide was in good condition.

IRISH MEMBERS DISSENT.

Their Action Causes a Sensation in the House of Commons.

London, June 22.—In the house of lords Monday the marquis of Salisbury, amid cheers, moved and the earl of Kimberly, the liberal leader in the house of lords, seconded an address of congratulation to the queen upon the occasion of her jubilee. The motion was carried unanimously.

In the house of commons a similar resolution was moved by Mr. Balfour, first lord of the treasury, and was seconded by Sir William Harcourt, the liberal leader. Mr. Dillon, chairman of the Irish parliamentary party, protested in vehement language. Mr. John Redmond, the Parnellite leader, offered an amendment to the effect that it deemed it a duty to place on record that during the 60 years of her majesty's reign Ireland had suffered grievously from famine, depopulation, poverty and the continued suspension of constitutional liberties, with the result that the Irish are discontented and disaffected and unable to join in the celebration. James O'Kelly, Parnellite, member from North Roscommon, seconded the motion. Mr. Redmond's amendment was rejected by a vote of 436 to 7. The address of congratulation to her majesty was then adopted by a vote of 459 to 44.

When the amendment was put the anti-Parnellites left the house, but they returned for the main question, and on the speaker saying: "The ayes have it," the anti-Parnellites shouted loudly: "The noes have it," whereupon a vote had to be taken. Mr. Balfour then moved that the address be presented to the queen by the whole house, to which John J. Clency, Parnellite, said that after what had occurred the motion was absurd and an absolute untruth. A vote was then taken, and it resulted in the adoption of Mr. Balfour's motion by 411 ayes to 41 noes.

ITS DEMANDS.

Primary Principles of "Social Democracy of America."

Chicago, June 21.—Eugene V. Debs declared Saturday in an interview that the free silver wave had receded to such an extent that it was a dead issue. Mr. Debs has perfected the organization of the Social Democracy of America, and says he intends to encourage socialism as the issue in 1900. The "Social Democracy of America" did not adopt a constitution Saturday, as was expected, but it did adopt a declaration of principles, which was embodied in "demands for immediate relief." The demands are as follows:

1. The public ownership of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts and combines.
2. The public ownership of all railroads, telegraph, telephones, all means of transportation, communication, waterworks, gas, electric plants, and all other utilities.
3. The public ownership of all gold, silver, copper, lead, coal, iron and all other mines: also all oil and gas wells.
4. Reduction of the hours of labor in proportion to the progress of production.
5. The undertaking of public works and improvements for the employment of the unemployed, the public credit to be utilized for that purpose.
6. All useful inventions to be free to all, the inventor to be remunerated by the public.
7. The establishment of postal savings banks.
8. The adoption of the initiative and the referendum, the imperative mandate, and proportional representation.

PRESIDENT TO QUEEN.

Text of Mr. McKinley's Letter of Congratulation to Her Majesty.

London, June 22.—President McKinley has sent the following personal letter to Queen Victoria, which was delivered to her by Mr. Whitelaw Reid, special envoy:

"To Her Majesty Victoria, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and Empress of India—Great and Good Friend: In the name and on behalf of the people of the United States I present their sincere felicitations upon the sixtieth anniversary of your majesty's accession to the crown of Great Britain.

"I express the sentiments of my fellow citizens in wishing for your people the prolongation of a reign illustrious and marked by advance in science, arts and popular well-being. On behalf of my countrymen I wish particularly to recognize your friendship for the United States and your love of peace, exemplified upon important occasions.

"It is pleasing to acknowledge the debt of gratitude and respect due to your personal virtues. May your life be prolonged and peace, honor and prosperity bless the people over whom you have been called to rule. May liberty flourish throughout your empire under just and equal laws and your government continue strong in the affections of all who live under it. And I pray God to have your majesty in His holy keeping.

"Done at Washington this 28th day of May, 1897. Your Good Friend,

"WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

"By the President
"JOHN SHERMAN, Secretary of State."

Collapsed Without Warning.

Watertown, S. D., June 22.—At seven o'clock Monday night the city was startled by the general fire alarm, and a terrible shock accompanied by a loud report. The fire department quickly repaired to the scene on Oak street, where the Mulholland building was found in ruins. This was a large two-story brick building occupied by Berg & Olsen as a saloon, and the upper story filled with roomers. The walls gave way without any warning. The work of clearing away the debris resulted in the finding of one dead body, that of Philip Patterson. The badly injured are as follows: Daniel Wallerhouse, hurt internally, will die; David Bull, ribs broken; S. McDowell, cut about the head; D. W. Bradley, back and head injured; Herman Seck, back injured; Mrs. Austin, cut about head and shoulders.

Original "Boycott" Dead.

London, June 22.—Capt. Boycott is dead. He was about 55 years of age, and became famous through being the first man subjected to the "boycott" in Ireland. He was a land agent in 1881, in Connemara section of County Mayo, where he collected rents for a number of landlords, notably the earl of Erne. In 1880 Mr. Parnell made a speech in the course of which he urged the people of Ireland to abstain from agrarian crimes and to adopt instead a policy of sending harsh landlord agents and bailiffs "to Coventry," the old term for boycotting. Events so shaped themselves that Capt. Boycott was the first man the Irish experimented on in this connection, and hence the now familiar word "boycott."

Spalding Declared Not Guilty.

Chicago, June 19.—C. W. Spalding, ex-president of the Globe savings bank, and ex-treasurer of the state university, was acquitted of the charge of embezzlement. The verdict was a general surprise, as the instruction of the court to the jury left scarcely any chance for acquittal.

DEBS USES PLAIN LANGUAGE.

Says Force May Be Necessary to Accomplish His Aim.

Chicago, June 22.—The right of the poor of Chicago to help themselves to the possessions of the rich and the right of his Washington colony to take arms against the government if an army should be sent to trample on its constitutional rights were boldly proclaimed by Eugene V. Debs Monday at Uhlich's hall in the closing hours of the first convention of the Social Democracy. Mr. Debs made two speeches during the day, of which he will probably not hear the last for a long time. The first of these was made at the morning session, when the model constitution for state unions was under consideration. In his speech Mr. Debs used the following language:

"I hear it said that we will come in contact with the federal courts. I suppose we will. When we get political control of a state we will employ lawyers to tell us just how far our rights permit us to go. If the supreme court tells us to stop, why, we will stop. But that will give socialism a great impetus. If they send a standing army against us they will have lots to do on the way. If they insist, in defiance of the constitution, in suppressing the will of the cooperative commonwealth they will be met by 300,000 men who will fight them on that issue."

These sentiments electrified the delegates, who responded with storms of applause, and in less than two hours they were paraded in an afternoon newspaper as a declaration of war. The newspapers found their way into the hall during the afternoon session, and Mr. Debs in private indignantly repudiated the incendiary remarks attributed to him. He declared that he had spoken guardedly of an invasion of constitutional rights. But in that case he reiterated that he and every other American citizen who is not a poltroon is ready to fight.

Within two hours afterward, however, Mr. Debs made to the convention a closing speech, which contained language far more unguarded and inflammatory. He said:

"The times are ripe for a change. There are 5,000,000 men in the country without employment. In Alabama little girls work in factories 14 hours a day for 35 cents a week. In Sheboygan men work ten hours for 50 cents. Manhood is reduced to merchandise, and even so it is not worth quoting on change. Negro slaves were worth $1,500 apiece, but the white slaves of this country are not worth 15 cents a cord. I hate riches, but not the rich. I pity the poor man who has $20,000,000 and cannot let go. I believe in helping him to let go. I cannot understand how a man can cling to $5,000,000 when men around him are going insane through starvation.

"Last winter the mayor of Chicago had to address a proclamation to the people informing them that thousands of men and women were in danger of freezing to death. Yet there was plenty of coal in Chicago. What kept those freezing thousands from helping themselves? I cannot tell. Man is the only animal I know of that has not sense enough to feed himself. Take, for instance, the Kansas jackrabbits. If you kill one of them and you find him fat you may be sure all the other jackrabbits are fat, too. There are no plutocrats among them who corner the crops and get fat while the others starve. No jackrabbit is stupid enough to allow a thing like that.

"Coming through Nebraska not long ago I traveled for miles and miles between rows of corneribs bursting with the corn crop of last year. Most of them had on them the mark of the Chicago Produce company. There was no demand for this corn. The jackrabbits helped themselves, and why did not starving men and women do the same?

"In Chicago there are 50,000 starving people, starving in full view of food. Nature has provided an abundance for every creature, and it is stored mountain high in Chicago, before the very eyes of these sufferers. Why do they not help themselves? I cannot tell."

The constitution adopted provides for an executive board to supervise the affairs of the national council. A colonization commission, to be made up of three men, is to be chosen by the executive board. This commission is to have charge of the new commonwealth scheme. The money to carry on this scheme is to be raised by voluntary contributions. No member of either the executive board or the commission is to hold any political office. The commission is to meet before August 1 and name the state in which the first colony shall be established. It will also adopt regulations for the selection of unemployed persons and take steps toward conveying them to the state decided upon.

Queen Lil's Protest.

Washington, June 18.—Queen Liliuokalani Thursday afternoon filed with Secretary of State John Sherman a formal protest to the proposed annexation of the Hawaiian islands.

She declares the treaty to be an act of wrong towards the native and part-native people of Hawaii, an invasion of the rights of the ruling chiefs, in violation of international rights both toward her people and toward friendly nations with whom they have made treaties, the perpetuation of the fraud whereby the constitutional government was overthrown and also an act of gross injustice to herself.

As one reason upon which she bases her protest she says:

"My people, about 40,000 in number, have in no way been consulted by those 3,000 in number, who claim the right to destroy the independence of Hawaii. My people constitute four-fifths of the legally-qualified voters of Hawaii, and excluding those imported for the demands of labor about the same proportion of the inhabitants."

The ex-queen characterizes the ceding of the crown lands as a confiscation of her personal property. This she says amounts to about a quarter of all the land ceded, or 915,000 acres.

Progress with the Tariff Bill.

Washington, June 22.—The senate made giant stretches on the tariff bill Monday, covering 56 pages and establishing a record for progress during this tariff debate. The last two schedules of the dutiable list, covering paper and manufactured sundries, were completed with the exception of the paragraphs on hides, gloves, coal and some lesser articles which went over. This advanced the senate to the free list, which was taken up at two p. m., and completed in three hours. Early in the day the wool and silk schedules went over. After that the tobacco schedule, the reciprocity provisions and the internal revenue portions of the bill, as well as the many isolated paragraphs passed over, remain to be considered. The progress Monday was so marked, however, that for the first time there was a feeling that the end was not far off.

Affects Pension Claims.

Washington, June 18.—Assistant Secretary Davis, of the interior department, has rendered a decision that will affect many claims for pensions. He reversed the action of the pension office in the case of Catherine Geronzin (a widow of a soldier in the Ohio infantry), which rejected the claim for pension because there was no proof of the death of the soldier. Geronzin left home in July, 1866, since which time nothing has been heard from him. The assistant secretary holds that further inquiry should be made concerning the man, and if nothing is thereby developed throwing additional light on the case, death may be presumed under the act of March 13, 1896, making seven years' absence from home, without intelligence of his existence, sufficient for a presumption of death.

A PART OF THE SHOW.

But the Young Fellow Couldn't See It Without a Diagram.

The curtain had been rung down on the last act of that exciting melodrama, "The Power of Beer," and the audience was leaving the theater. On the faces of the more thoughtful was an expression of sadness somewhat akin to the look wherewith a man regards the bright coin pasted on the underside of the tobacco dealer's cigar-case. And one man out of the throng pushed his way to the box-office window.

"See here!" said he, excitedly; "I want my money back!"

"Hum," said the ticket-seller, carelessly.

"It's an outrage!" said the man.

"Yes."

"It's a swindle!" continued the man.

"Indeed."

"You advertise a real robbery!"

"We do."

"I failed to see it!"

"You did?"

"And I want my money back!"

"Now, see here!" said the ticket-seller, leaning out of the window; "I've had about enough, and you get no money back, see? That's where the robbery comes in, and if you haven't mind enough to grasp it I can't see that there's any kick due from you whatever!"—Boston Budget.

Her Nice Bit of Sarcasm.

Therese had two distinguishing gifts. One was sarcasm and the other was water colors. She and Quatorze had been engaged once and they quarreled for some reason. Neither of them seemed to know exactly why, and I suppose that neither of them care just now, for Quatorze was married the other day and the girl sent a present to the wedding.

The present was a water color done by her own deft fingers. The girl could paint well. The picture was a beautiful thing. It represented a great rock, which looked for all the world like a platform with steps leading up to the top of it. Overhead was a cloudless sky, full of sunshine, and with a blue in it that made you wish that the world were all sky and that you were floating among the fleecy clouds on pinions of air. There were trees bending over that enchanted rock, and beyond were the shimmering waters of a lake.

"How beautiful!" exclaimed the bride. "How kind of Theresa. She's such a dear, good girl. We will hang it in the parlor, won't we, dear?"

"I'm afraid the light won't be quite right," said Quatorze aloud.

To himself he said—

The water color was a picture of a rock at Lake George, where he and Therese had sat two summers ago when he proposed to her. —N. Y. Telegram.

Ere the Farewell Is Spoken

Use for constipation, biliousness, malarial and kidney complaints and nervousness.

Sunshine and Sadness.

The redbird sings, and the sunshine flings its gold through my window-pane. And a sweet perfume steals into my room, from the roses in the lane. * * * The skies are clear; in the school-yard near, the children romp in glee; the earth is bright in the glad sunlight, but what is it all to me? * * * For, across the way, there is a din to-day, that tortures my weary brain; the maiden fair, with auburn hair, is at the piano again. —Up-to-Date.

Her Suggestion.

"Yes," said Mr. Snicksnackle, "I do not like my name at all. They say that either the legislature or the district court will change it for me. Which would you apply to if you were in my predicament?"

"Well," said she, thoughtfully, "a minister would do for me."

And three hours later it struck him that perhaps there was a mild hint in what she had said.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

WHEN I SEE MIRANDY'S FACE.

There's a kinder tender feelin' stealin' thro' this heart o' mine
And my soul it keeps a-trillin' with a melody devine,
An' a sweet exuberation seems to kinder find its way
Through my mind in tender whispers of a happy bygone day;
An' a picture like a phantom flits before my fadin' eyes,
Like an echo grand an' solemn from the realms o' paradise;
An' there's waves o' music in the air ez in this heart o' mine
When I see Mirandy's face a-gleamin' thro' the creepin' vine.

Fairies seem to waft the sunshine warmin' like along the breeze,
With a kinder dreamy sadness ez it whistled thro' the trees;
An' the fields a blaze o' glory where the sunlight kissed the dew,
An' the birds wuz gay an' happy an' their songs wuz happy too.
An' the ripplin' murmur o' the crick a-comin' from the shore,
The sun a-hidin' jest beyant the wavin' sycamore,
But its brightness faded in a maze o' ecstasy divine,
When I saw Mirandy's face a-gleamin' thro' the creepin' vine.

I don't know much 'bout it 'cept what's in the Bible—yet
There's an idee stickin' in my mind that I can't quite forget,
An' that is when we die an' reach the great unknown on high
We'll see some things in this world ag'in up in the sky.
Perhaps there's gates o' dewy pearl, an' streets o' gold an' sich,
An' angels wearin' shinin' robes an' jewels rare an' rich;
But let me see the sunlight glint an' everlastin' shine,
An' see again Mirandy's face a-gleamin' thro' the creepin' vine.

A SLIP OF A PEN.

BY G. D. BENNHAM.

JOHN THOMAS saddled up old Hornet, put on his "chaps," and rode out across the range to get the mail. The nearest post office was at Antelope Station, 18 miles over the hills, and 25 by the road. The last of the beef-gathers was over and the ranchmen had little to do but ride the pastures and wait for spring. That is, most of them. John had a lot to do, as he would have told you himself, for he was to be married on Christmas day, and that is why he was so regularly riding twice a week to the post office.

Over at Antelope, the telegraph operator, who acted also as station agent and postmaster, was sitting alone in his little office—except the section-house, the only house in sight—thinking of home and Mary Brand. Home was away down east, and Mary Brand was a black-eyed girl who did not care for him one bit, as he well knew, for he had asked her about it before he started west. But there is no law against thinking of a girl even if you cannot get her, so the operator thought of Mary Brand and believed himself to be very miserable, and piled more coals on the fire, though the little stove was already red-hot. And he smoked, and swore softly that it was a horrible country and the superintendent had given him the worst station on the whole line. He was a good boy, but he had not been west long enough to get his head hard. As he smoked, he noticed that his meerschaum was coloring up first rate, and he was much comforted.

Just when darkness succeeded the dull daylight, snow began to fall, and with the first flakes came John Thomas.

"YOU'RE ALL RIGHT," ADMITTED THE BOY.

He got his letters and sat down by the operator's fire to read them. He was a big, comfortable fellow, in marked contrast to the discontented-looking telegrapher, and so the latter thought, for he broke the silence with:

"I say, you seem pretty well satisfied with yourself. How do you manage it in a hole like this?"

"Young fellow," said John, "the plains is the finest place on earth, and the only place left where a man can get a start. Look at me; came out nine years ago without a cent, worked four years on the trail and three for old Baxter, learned to carry a branding iron in my 'chaps' and to rope anything my horse could catch, and now I've got a place of my own and an interest in a trail herd. What's the matter with me?"

"You're all right," admitted the boy, "but you couldn't do it again, now Tom Adams has got his maverick bill through the legislature."

"Don't fool yourself," said John, "any maverick my horse can catch is going to get my brand on. Do you know how many mavericks were sold for the benefit of the school fund on the fall round-up in this district? I'll tell you. One. He fetched 75 cents. Oh, the law is all right."

The operator was interrupted in his smoking by the click of the instrument, and when he had taken a train order, the pipe was out. Picking up an envelope John had thrown down, he thrust it into the coals; and as it flared up, he noticed the postmark.

"Hullo!" said he; "Bangor is my town; do you know anybody in Bangor?"

"You bet I do," said the cowboy. "I'm going to marry the nicest girl in that whole town, and her name is Mary Brand."

If old Hornet outside the door had not got tired of standing there, 18 miles from his supper, so that John at that moment made a rush to catch him, the operator's dismay would not have escaped notice. His jaw dropped, and the beautiful pipe fell to the floor.

John caught his horse and headed away toward the ranch through the falling snow. The operator went to the key and telegraphed for a pipe to be sent up on the first train. Then he went to bed. He had a bad night.

John hummed a tune as his horse ambled along through the dark. Not an operatic air, but one of those hymn tunes all cowboys use on dark nights. He was certainly happy, for he didn't hurry his horse, nor spur him when he stumbled. One of those letters was from Mary Brand. She wrote she was leaving Bangor for her uncle's home in Denver on that day, and that John was not to come down until Christmas Eve, because there was much to do and he "would be in the way." The other letter was from a broker in Denver, and said: "Think we have a customer for your trail cows, and have engaged for you to meet him here some day next week. Will advise further soon." Snow was still falling when John reached home and turned in, reflecting upon the futility of all maverick laws.

Snow was still falling next day. The railroad was blockaded, and he could not get to Denver on the day appointed. The wires were down, so there was no telegraphing. Christmas was spent in the telegrapher's office, and for once John looked as discontented as the operator. The latter took no interest in coloring the new pipe, and wrote out his resignation ready to dispatch as soon as the line should be open, announcing that he was going back to Maine by the first train.

One of the first things that was sent when the line was open was John's message to Mary Brand, at Denver, to the effect that if the railroad wasn't shoveled out very soon, he should start down on foot.

That operator was a good boy, and he sent the message straight, and when, an hour later, he was called up by the Denver office to receive the following message to John Thomas, about his trail cows: "You need not come down. Engagement off. Culver Bros.," he was still without guile. But his heart was full of Mary Brand. All day the wires had been singing Mary Brand; the key had been clicking Mary Brand. Small wonder when he took the pad of yellow paper and wrote out the message, he made one small slip—he really didn't do it, it did itself:

"You need not come down. Engagement off. Mary Brand," is the way it read when John received it.

If this were not a true story, it might be written that John went in person and demanded an explanation. What he really did was to write a note suggesting the return of his letters. And Mary being a black-eyed girl, he got them by return mail.

Mary Brand went home. The ranchman returned to the winter vocation of riding the pastures and waiting for spring. The operator took an early train for down east. If he ever knew what he had done, he kept his counsel and renewed his suit.

So Mary married the operator, and, being a black-eyed girl, she makes him a good wife.—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Indian Baby.

In the Indian household, as in our own, children bear an important part. The baby is the constant companion of its mother; not that other members of the family do not share in the care of it, but the little one is kept closely under the maternal eye. Soon after its birth it is laid in its own bed, which is often profusely ornamented and is always portable. A board about a foot wide and three feet long is covered with a feather pillow or with layers of soft skins. Upon these the baby is fastened by broad bands of skin, flannel or calico. When asleep the child's arms are bound under cover, but they are released when it awakes. A great portion of the infant's time is spent lying upon a soft robe or blanket, where it can kick and crow to its heart's content. If, however, the mother should be so engaged as to be frequently called out of the tent, the baby is laced upon its board and hung up under a tree, or placed where there is no danger of falling. Should the mother have to go any distance from home, she will slip the strap of the board over her head, and the baby goes along, winking at the great world from its mother's back. Long journeys on horses are made by babies snugly packed and hung from the horn of the mother's saddle.—Mrs. Alice C. Fletcher, in Century.

Too Many 'Possums.

When Gen. Lafayette was in Baltimore, during his last visit to this country, he was overheard to say that he would like to take an American opossum back to France with him. The words were repeated in the hearing of an editor who mentioned the request in his newspaper, adding that if any one of his readers would send an opossum to the newspaper office, the animal would be forwarded to Gen. Lafayette. Now it so happened that opossums were very plentiful throughout Maryland that season, and during the week that followed the publication of the newspaper article, no less than 1,000 opossums were received by the editor.

Of course one reader was in ignorance of the fact that other readers were sending the desired 'possum, and all the readers were anxious to please the great friend of America. The puzzled editor at last decided to turn the 'possums loose, and they were given their liberty at the edge of the city.—N. Y. Ledger.

One Chance of Effecting a Cure.

A nervous young lady called a physician for a slight ailment, but one which she magnified, in her own estimation, into a serious one.

"Run," said the doctor to a servant, giving him a prescription, "to the nearest drug store and bring back the medicine as quickly as you can."

"Is there much danger?" replied the young lady, in alarm.

"Yes," said the doctor, "if your servant is not quick it will be useless."

"Oh, doctor, shall I die?" gasped the patient.

"There is no danger of that," said the doctor, "but you may get well before John returns."—Boston Traveler.

Manufacture of Explosives.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Forced Out of Business.

Owing to the failure of the last legislature to amend the boiler inspector insurance laws, the Northwestern Steam Boiler Inspection company is forced out of business. The law, as it stands, states that a company of this character, to do business in this state, must be incorporated with at least $100,000 stock. This means that the only company organized by Minnesotans will have to give way to other companies. The laws of the state are such that other insurance companies may carry boiler insurance as a side line.

Killed by the Marshal.

Coley, the negro who assaulted the night watchman of Newport, was killed by the marshal of Jordan while resisting arrest. Coley was known as a desperate character in that part of the state, and as soon as the assault became known the marshal set about to find and arrest him, when Coley resisted.

The marshal drew his revolver and fired toward the ground to frighten him into submission. The bullet, however, sought the human mark and the negro fell over, struck in the navel.

Ready for Business.

The organization of the new drainage commisssion, which is to have supervision of the drainage ditches, which which have been constructed in the Red river valley, was perfected at the state capitol, when George R. Roberts, of Stephens, was chosen chairman and Prof. Hoag, secretary, Mr. Hoag, in addition to being made secretary, was chosen engineer for the commission, and will soon make a tour of inspection to the various ditches which have been made and which belong under the supervision of the commission.

Light Attendance.

At the close of the summer meeting of the State Dairymen's Association at Crookston, the entire party in attendance were driven to the branch state experiment station for the purpose of inspection. The meeting lasted two days and the attendance of instructors and lecturers was good. Leading lights of the state on both butter and cheese were present. The discussion of subjects were thorough and exhaustive. Farmers are very busy and the attendance was light.

Large Sales.

The Biwabik Bessemer company has sold the enormous quantity of 500,000 tons of ore for this season's delivery at the extreme low price of $2.25 per ton. This will necessitate the operation of two steam shovels night and day loadore at the mine. The Drake & Stratton company will also operate two steam shovels night and day on the stripping at the same mine. This work will employ about 350 men for the season.

Negro Colonization.

F. A. Marshall and J. H. Lewis, of Greensburg, Ky., two members of the committee appointed to select the lands by which it is proposed to colonize portions of Minnesota with negroes from the south, returned from Otter Tail county, having decided upon lands in that county. A conference was held with a number of the men of their race in St. Paul, and organized a colonization and information bureau.

Guilty.

John B. Souster will avoid short cuts to wealth after this. He cultivated a lottery scheme at 10 cents per ticket under the name of the "Missouri Premium Company," but the argus-eyed public prosecutors discovered his enterprise and had him indicted. He was arraigned at Minneapolis and pleaded guilty. The sentence was $100 fine or 90 days in jail.

Sugar Beet Factory.

The Sugar Beet Association of Winona is endeavoring to raise $450 with which to engage a chemical and geological expert to go there and make careful analysis of the soil. This expert is in the confidence of a large Germae company looking for a suitable site to establish a beet sugar factory and it is believed his recommendation would carry considerable weight with the company.

News in Brief.

Gov. Tanner, of Illinois, and his wife will have their summer outing at one of the lakes in northern Minnesota.

The 13th annual encampment of the Sons of Veterans closed at Princeton, after a very profitable and enjoyable meeting.

At Mountain Lake, a severe storm blew down Bonheur Brothers' show tent, tipped over their wagons and injured several of the show people. One man was quite seriously hurt, being blown against a stake. The show has had to cancel several of its engagements.

About 160 soldiers attended the 12th encampment G. A. R., of the Southwestern Minnesota Association at Jackson.

The West Newton Rafting works at Winona has closed for the season. The output was about 200,000,000 feet.

In the case of Doreette Prigge vs. the Great Northern railroad at Buffalo, for $1,000 damages, the jury returned a verdict for $3,250.

Thieves entered the depot at Smith Lake and stole a bicycle and several tickets.

The Farmers' elevator at Winnebage City has been closed. The liabilities are more than the assets.

The grand jury returned four indictments against E. W. Davis, the Detroit commission merchant, for shipping game out of the state. One indictment charges him with unlawfully shipping 1,165 ducks, another 175 prairie chickens, the third 100 prairie chickens and the fourth 150 partridges.

Aloyzius Simonet is legally entitled to be treasurer of Little Falls. So avers the supreme court in its decision in the suit brought by Simonet against Robert Herron, the former treasurer, on the ground that the former was not entitled to hold the office.

Peter Kane was held up in Minneapolis and robbed of a gold watch and $55.

Fred Randall, aged 19 years, was drowned in Wall lake while swimming.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

BADLY-NEEDED REFORMS.

A Complaint from Ohio Which Applies to All Western States.

When I travel over Ohio's roads I wish that I might be an autocrat with law at my back to change the location of roads at my will. Take, for instance, the road that climbs over the hill at Fig. 1. How very common that is in our part of Ohio; up the heavy hill must thousands and millions of weary horses toil with pleasure carriages and heavily loaded wagons. That hill not only means a tiresome climb, but it means more frequent trips. Why? Because the load must be regulated not to conform to the draft of the leveler parts of the road, but to the draft of the hill. That means much when the farmer is taking his grain or his wood or his hay to market. Now and then some accident happens and a horse is hurt or a wagon demolished or a man killed in going down the hill. If a record could be kept of the casualties of the century on some of these hills it would appall the traveler. If not steep enough or long enough to be dangerous it is yet a waste of muscle to draw loads up the one side merely to hold them back from rushing down on the other side.

Fig. 1 also shows how by abandoning the straight line up over the hill the road may circle about the foot of it and make nearly a level stretch and often the curve around the base of the hill is not greatly longer than the curve over the hill. A pail handle is no longer lying down than standing up. It was the fact that land was dear in Ohio and neighbors objected to having their fields cut up by roads dodging hills that caused the hill roads in this country. That reason is rapidly disappearing now. If we get no other good from the depression in agriculture let us seize the opportunity and have our roads follow the contour lines, i. e., the lines of equal level. No use to say: "The old road has climbed over the hill this very long time, we may as well let it be now." Think of the stretch of time ahead of us, the uncounted centuries that that road will be traveled and the case with which it may now be changed as compared with the difficulty that may well be expected in the future. Our country is yet young and unformed, could we but realize it.

Then there are many ill-laid-out roads that make sudden turns as in Fig. 2. This is generally done to make the road conform to the farm boundaries. It is folly and worse than folly. The public could afford to buy the old angles and throw them away rather than to travel the unnecessary distance and to expend money in keeping roads in repair when so needlessly long.

I would like power to straighten the kinks out of our own roads in my own county. They are most exasperating in places. I remember one night when my wife (she was not wife then) and I rode seven miles one night in what should have been nearly a straight course. There is no hill or swamp to crook a roads. We were noticing the north star (and other things), and to our surprise we saw it from each side of the buggy, from straight ahead and from the back window. And we were both sober "and in our right minds," as nearly as I could judge. (No, the road did not seem too long that night).

I live in a country where gravel is abundant and good roads, that is, comparatively good roads, are the rule. Yet I notice many things that are not right about them. One of the serious and needless mistakes is the putting of large stones in the roads. I noted to-day that the only place between our house and the village where the wagons have broken through the gravel is where there is a stone imbedded in the gravel, a stone of the size of a peck measure and projecting about three inches, as at Fig. 3. The wheels of heavy wagons have climbed upon this stone and plunged off on the other side until they have worn entirely through and it now needs several yards of fresh gravel drawn to mend it. I should say that the cost of leaving that stone in the road was about three dollars, that is, if the break is attended to at once. If it is neglected it will be more serious.—Joseph E. Wing, in Ohio Farmer.

Importance of the Pasture.

The pasture is the sheet anchor on the dairy farm. Too much care cannot be given it. No satisfactory substitute has been discovered, nor is it in the leas degree probable that any will be. Stall feeding is very well for beef cattle to be butchered, but is slow death to the breeding cow. Soiling is an invaluable ally to the pasture, but soiling can never be made a permanent substitute. A given number of acres divided into two or more pastures will give better results than if left in one inclosure. The grass will be more evenly cropped, therefore more uniform in quantity and quality, and fewer weeds will grow. By changing the cows regularly from pasture to pasture a constant supply of fresh grass may be secured throughout the whole season.—Dakota Field and Farm.

In selecting trees to plant in what may be called waste places, give preference to fruit trees rather than to trees that are valuable for timber and ornament.

ABOUT TRANSPLANTING.

Some of the Important Points Which Must Not Be Neglected.

There are three essential items to be looked after in transplanting. They are puddling, compacting and protecting. A failure to give either properly will affect the growth of the plants. When properly done puddling is preferable to watering. The soil used in puddling should be a rich loam. If in addition one-third of it is well-rotted and fined cow manure or good commercial fertilizer all the better. Dip only a few plants at a time, so that the roots of each plant can be well covered with the rich mud. Make the hole large enough and deep enough to take in the plant without bending or twisting the roots. The depth that the plant should be set will depend upon the way it has grown; generally it will be safe to set the plant down to the first leaf. When grown thick in a close bed the plants often make a long, spindling growth, and if not set deep a good percentage of them will die.

Compact the soil close around the roots. The roots must come in close contact with the soil or the plant will die. It is too often the case in transplanting that a hole is made with a sharpened stick, the roots of the plants are dropped in, the soil is pressed around the stem of the plant with the point of the stick, while the roots barely touch the soil, if they touch it at all, and the plants die.

When the weather is warm and the soil rather dry, in many cases it will be a help if the plant bed is thoroughly watered two or three hours before taking up the plants.

It will be best to take up the plants and set them out late in the evening. This will give them all night to recuperate from the change.

When the plants have been growing in a close, protected bed it is quite a change to set them out all alone and often a little protection will be of material help. This may be given either by drawing a little mound of earth around the plant with the hand when the transplanting is done or by covering with a large leaf of some kind for a day or two.

When the weather is hot and the soil is dry it will be best to water for two or three nights after setting out. Always use water that has had the chill taken off and thoroughly wet the soil around the roots.—St. Louis Republic.

PLANTING TOMATOES.

The Right Way to Set Out Weak and Spindling Plants.

Young tomato plants, when growing up thickly in hotbeds or flats, will invariably become spindling and weak. If planted out in the usual way they have either to be inserted so deep that the roots will come in direct contact with the poorer subsoil, or the stems bend over and the tops fall upon the surface of the ground and will never make strong healthy plants. Of course strong, short, stocky plants are the best to set out, but if these cannot be had spindling plants may be made just as serviceable if planted as shown in cur illustration. By this method the fine roots are nearer to the surface and the part of the stem underground will soon strike additional roots, thus giving the plant still more sustenance and nourishment.—Orange Judd Farmer.

ORCHARD PICKINGS.

A uniform production of fruit cannot be received from wet, heavy ground.

With strawberries, flavor, color and firmness are of more importance than size.

Profit in fruit culture has its beginning in the careful selection of the very best varieties.

In planting strawberries for market select varieties that will give a long season of ripening.

On the farm the first object in planting fruit should be to furnish the family with a good supply.

The tree that bears a great crop of small fruit exhausts itself by having to produce an undue proportion of seeds.

Young trees will start into vigorous growth after transplanting with less check than older ones would experience.

A trellis made with three strands of wire, bracing the end posts thoroughly, is the best for grape vines.—Western Plowman.

Soot as a Fertilizer.

Soot is a great fertilizer, as it contains ammonia salts, and a liberal dressing may be given and forked in while dry. Soot and sulphate of iron have been used as a means of producing higher color in apples, and with apparently good results. Where tanks exist for catching the drainage from farmyards, stables and houses, the liquid forms a valuable aid to fruit culture. Fruit trees and brush fruits standing in need of a stimulant may be watered with the liquid until the soil is saturated. Raspberry plantations always appreciate attention in this direction and never fail to give a good account of themselves afterwards. If it is not needed in the garden it may be given to the orchard trees, pouring it on the surface of the grass round the trees and as far as the branches extend. If there are any doubts as to the liquid being too strong it can be diluted with water.—Western Plowman.

Neatness and Butter Flavor.

Your butter will naturally have good flavor if your cow stable is kept scrupulously clean and well aired; if you take pains to get no dirt in your milk, either during or after the milking; if you feed only strictly sound, sweet grain and fodder, and if your milkroom and all milk utensils and butter-making vessels and utensils are always kept entirely clean and well aired. Dirt in some form or other is the plain word for much of the trouble so often encountered in making sweet, pleasant butter.

Every Teacher or Scholar

in the public schools of the United States, 15 years of age and over, should have a copy of the Northern Pacific's new and beautifully illustrated book, Wonderland '97. It is especially adapted for use in the public schools in the study of geography and history, and as an aid in the study of the Northwest and its varied and vast resources. The book has a large amount of valuable data, but is not by any means a compendium of dry statistics. The beautiful Lake Park Region of Minn.; the Red River Valley of the North, the remarkable wheat land of the country, and Pyramid Park, where hundreds of thousands of cattle are raised, are described. Yellowstone Park and its wonderful canyons and lakes, waterfalls and geysers has a long chapter given to it. A chapter on several of the richest mining districts of the Northwest, telling how they were discovered and developed, will be an interesting one to everybody. Some of these discoveries were made in very funny ways. Four great snow mountains, old volcanoes, on the North Pacific coast have a chapter devoted to them which gives much of their history. A new mountain range, one almost unknown, in the northwest corner of the United States, is brought to the readers' attention. It is a glorious region, with deep, beautiful lakes, full of new varieties of trout, made famous by a rear admiral of the U. S. navy. Alaska also has a place in its pages. The booklet has a handsome cover and is beautifully and profusely illustrated. Any teacher or scholar can have a copy by sending six cents in postage stamps to Chas. S. Fee, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Something Cheap.

As she stood upon the top stoop and kissed him good-by before he went out to battle with the cold, cold world he thought that she had never looked so winsome, even in their old courting days.

"And now my bad boy must have as many slaps as years he has lived, for to-day is his birthday," she went on, beginning the chastening salutations.

"Why, so it is," he said, with that momentary sensation of years passing helplessly away which middle-aged men experience upon these occasions.

"And what lovely thing shall his darling wife get him for a birthday present this year?" she went on. "You already have a smoking cabinet and a card table, and my dining-room lamp, you know, was one of my birthday presents to you. And then—"

"I'd go kind of light, my dear," he answered, somewhat moodily. "Get me some little cheap thing. I haven't been able to pay for my last year's birthday present yet."—N. Y. Journal.

A Philosophic Sweep.

Rolling out of Piccadilly into Berkeley street came one of those splendid old family carriages, gorgeous with golden lions and dragons, heavily hung with maroon trappings, guarded by two maroon footmen in the rear, driven by a burly maroon coachman in a curly wig, containing two visions in white with lovely bouquets. At that moment a sweep and his friend were emerging into Piccadilly, with blackened faces and brushes, having evidently just transacted some affair of business, when this splendid vehicle attracted their attention. Says one: "Bill, I wish we was them!" "Why?" answered Bill, much surprised. "They'll have to die the same as us." I have just turned over the "Meditations of Marcus Aurelius" in search of some more profound reflection upon the inequality of our lots on this antheap of ours. And in vain.—London News.

Would Arm the World.

If all the guns made by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., could be collected, there would be more than enough to equip the standing armies of the world. There are over 2,000,000 Winchester guns in use to-day and the number is rapidly increasing. The popularity of Winchester rifles and repeating shot guns is deserved for they always give entire satisfaction and for strong and accurate shooting they are unsurpassed. These guns are made in all desirable calibers and styles. Every gun has to pass the most severe tests before it leaves the works, which insures its being perfect. When buying a gun the Winchester is the make to take, for it can always be relied upon. Send for a large illustrated catalogue free.

WOMEN! DON'T WAIT.

If You Have Any of These Symptoms Act at Once.

Do you know the reason why you will go to the hospital, my poor friend?

Because you have allowed yourself to go from bad to worse. You did not know that that heat, swelling and tenderness in your left side were all signs of congestion of the ovary.

Any intelligent woman could have told you that congestion is fatal to the uterine system, and that an ovary congested leads to tumor formation, and that you were in awful danger. Now you will have to undergo the operation of ovariotomy, the cutting out of the ovary.

Yes, you will recover, at least I hope you will; but you will never be quite the same woman again. Congestion of the ovaries is fatal to health. If you have any such symptoms be advised in time; take a medicine of specific powers! You can find none better than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, prepared especially to meet the needs of woman's sexual system. You can get it at any good druggist's.

Following we publish a letter from a woman in Milwaukee, which relates how she was cured of ovarian trouble: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I suffered with congestion of the ovaries and inflammation of the womb. I had been troubled with suppressed and painful menstruation from a girl. The doctors told me the ovaries would have to be removed. I took treatment two years to escape an operation, but still remained in miserable health in both body and mind, expecting to part with my reason each coming month. After using one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sanative Wash I was very much relieved. I continued to use your remedies until cured. The last nine months have been passed in perfect good health. This, I know, I owe entirely to the Vegetable Compound. My gratitude is great, indeed, to the one to whom so many women owe their health and happiness."—Mrs. F. M. KNAPP, 563 Wentworth Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JUNE 25, 1897.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—The street from the mill to River Street has been graveled and put in good shape; a much needed improvement.

—Farmers begin to entertain hopes of a coop of corn after all. The warm rains and occassional sunny days are doing wonders.

—Plum trees where protected from the frost are loaded with plums. But worms, bugs and tree lice seem to be doing their best to destroy them.

—A large number of Delanoites attended the M. W. A. picnic at Howard Lake on Saturday. All join in pronouncing it an enjoyable occasion.

—On account of the rain on Saturday arrangements were not completed for the street parade on Sunday, Corpus Christi but services were held in the church.

—The Catholic Church has been repainted and fixed up to do awhile longer. From the present outlook it want be many years until Delano will have one of the most splendid churches in the country, and there are several good ones now.

—Col. A. Allen has sent out cards announcing that he has again assumed the management of the Merchant's Hotel, St. Paul, and would be pleased to see all his old friends and as many new ones as can consistently favor him. He runs a good house.

—Oscar Erwig is learning the watchmaker and jewelry business with A. L. Mealey. Oscar is a good steady boy and will in time, doubtless make a first class watchmaker. Every boy should learn a trade or business of some kind at which he can work and make a living if necessary.

—Considerable complaint is heard concerning bicycle riding on the sidewalks; and yet young men go at a rate which would doubtless land them in some bad place should they chance to strike an obstruction. What's the matter with our village authorities that they can't suppress this growing evil?

—Dar Welker and Enoch Algers returned last week from a trip to Todd County. Dar says it is a good country and fine folks live there. He is especially warm inpraises of John Conzet, Mr. and Mrs. Philipe and Mr. Pendergast of Eagle Bend. But he says the Spiritualists almost caught Enoch.

—Several newspapers throughout the state have called attention to the law passed last winter prohibiting the sale to minors, of cigaretts. Some of these days, doubtless, a marshall will appear in Delano as suddenly as did the boiler inspector lately and insist on enforcing the law. He would find enough to keep him busy for awhile, right in Delano.

—An excursion of old settlers from Meeker County passed through town Tuesday on a trip to Duluth and other points of interest to the North. They appeared to be having a jolly time. In Wednesday morning's Minneapolis Times appeared a cut of the engine and two cars off the track, a bad wreck, at twenty-fourth avenue N. E. but no one hurt.

—Valentine Eppel has been supplying some of our villagers with fine strawberries during the past week. His patch is protected on the north by trees and shrubery, and he says he burned up about a cord of wood to keep off frost during the cold nights. He is reaping his reward. W. D. Freeman whose grounds are more exposed to the aurora borealis had no berries at all.

—Many of our readers will be pleased to learn, as were we, from the Mayville N. D. Tribune that our former fellow townsman, Prof. Willis E. Johnson, has been retained as a teacher in the State Normal School at that place. Prof. Johnson was talked of for President but said if Prof. Joseph Carhart, formerly of the St. Cloud Normal, could be got, he would not be considered a candidate. Prof. Carhart was chosen from a class of sixteen applicants, so Prof. Johnson will evolute a little longer before being President.

—The Delano Concert Band has made arrangements to have a grand celebration on Saturday, July 3rd. Geo. Schaffer has been chosen President of the day; O. L. Billings, Marshall; Thomas Shaw Assistant Marshall; W. E. Culkin of Buffalo, is to orate. The usual games, races and sports are announced. A game of base ball at 10.30 A. M. between the Delano Crickets and a juvenile nine from Minneapolis is on the programme. Dance in the evening. A grand street industrial parade is a feature of the occasion. A big time is anticipated.

—Harris Williams, an old soldier living in the east part of town near the track has four acres in garden and has been working to raise what he could to tide his family over hard times. A few nights ago someone, he supposes tramps, came along and even took half a dozen or so large radishes he had saved for seed; of course they were not fit to eat. Neighbors chicken coops were also visited. Some one suggested perhaps it was home tramps. He says if it is and they will bring a sack over in the daytime he will help them fill it with what will do them more good and himself less harm.

—Street Commissioner Martin is doing good work on lower River Street this week.

—George Sutton is expert for the McCormick machinery men here now. He says the firm is doing a land office business.

—Coffin & Babb have been painting up the fronts of the bank and drug-store, and now those buildings look quiet citified.

—Adam Horsch makes quiet a noise on the West side with that painting machine of his. Adam is bound to make a noise someway.

—The Buffalo Clippers have postponed their game with the Delano Crickets until Tuesday, June 29. They have written that they will be here then.

—William Ziebarth hauled lumber this week for rejuvinating his farm residence. He proposes to have his home of a modern pattern, up to the times.

—J. H. McArthur & Co., of Minneapolis, have bought the lumber yard of John Coolen. John will continue in the hardware business. He also has a hardware store and lumber yard at Smith Lake.

—The Ladies Aid Sociable at the City Hall, Wednesday evening was attended by a fair sized crowd and an enjoyable evening had. Ice cream and cake, tableaux and music made up the entertainment. Several from Minneapolis were present.

—An old gentlemen claiming to come from Florida, to have been in the rebel army and in the legislature in Missouri and Florida was around town yesterday giving phrenological examinations for 10cts per head. He seemed to do well at the business.

—George Schaffer's new building is being completed as rapidly as possible. It is one of the finest in town and has his name, city style on the cornice. He expects to move in about August 1, and desires and expects his old customers to find him in his new quarters.

—Dave McLeod and a crew of men fixed up the R. R. bridge across the Watertown road this week. It is considerably better than before. Where teams had but eleven feet of room between piling they now have about seveteen feet two rows of piling having been removed.

—Nels Lennen, who is assisting George W. Carver in the photograph gallery has constructed a fine little workbox, nicely carved. He is an experienced and capable workman at the buisness and his work is away above the ordinary. He has sold similar work for good prices.

—The crossing of the R. R. on Fourth street should be put in, Delano is becoming of such proportions that it certainly chould have another crossing. It is very inconvenient, when you are in a hurry to sit down and await the motions of some of Jim Hill's men for a long time before crossing the track. A watchman at the crossings would sometimes proove of service and might prevent an axident sometime.

The man who fears to go his way alone,
But follows where the greater number tread,
Should hasten to his rest beneath a stone,
The great majority of men are dead.
J. Edward Cooke.

County Cullings.

The Boxell murderers, though most of the neighbord and interested parties seem to have figured out conclusively in their own minds who they are, are still at large.

Waverly has flaming posters out announcing the celebration of our national birthday in a splendid manner at that place on Monday July 5. Hon. A. Y. Eaton is to orate.

Montrose has a new physician and surgeon. Dr. Fowler, of Minneapolis. They are also trying to get a grist mill and will vote on Saturday whether or not they will pay a bonus for one.

A rumor has been circulated that John Mazou, of Montrose, who was tried and asquited for the murder of Anna Brunder, has recently been hung in Montana. The rumor lacks confirmation.

It looks a little strange that a St. Paul man should be able to come into Wright County and build the stone culverts across county roads. Where are the Wright County stone masons, are they all too busy?

Buffalo has concluded to celebrate the 4th of July on the 3rd. J. C. Nugent Marshall of the day, W. H. Cutting orator. Usual games and sports. Buffalo Cornet Band will furnish music. The day is to be devoted to patriotism and amusements.

The Howard Lake Herald contains a splendid letter from J. S. McCornack on some needed reformations in that village. With commendable energy the editor of the Herald rushes out to interview Recorder Briggs and give the other side. If he would display half the zeal in helping Mr. McCornack and others to secure enforcement of law that he does in helping excuse those elected by the people to enforce them, he would be doing better service for poor, suffering humanity, and the upbuilding of the community in general. The lame excuse officers have of waiting until someone complains before making an arrest is getting too stale for use. Officers are elected or appointed to and paid to enforce the laws; then why should they sit around and wait for somebody else to complain of offences often well known to them.

District Court.

District Court is not yet done, cases were disposed of this week as follows:

Dismissed: Jos. Haglmeyer vs. Wright County. Matilda Bruske vs. Gotlieb Bruske. State vs. Clarence B. Trask.

Sepe and Strickler vs. Chas. Leaffler settled and struck from calender.

D. M. Osborne & Co. vs. G. V. Waller et als for plaintiff $166.22, stay 60 days granted.

Plano Manufacturing Co. vs. Joseph and Lizzie Boxell, judgement for plaintiff $113.92 and costs.

State vs. Meister. Defendant fined $20, paid.

State vs. Wm. Mitchell, bastardy, Court ordered Mitchell to pay $20 for month of May and June and expenses, and $40 costs on the first of each month after July, $6.00 per month, for 14 years, or until further order of court, give $1000 bond or go to jail. The money to be paid Mary Prestidge. Mitchell went to jail.

State vs. John Doherty, Emma Dalbec complainant, sentence similar to above. John went to jail.

Henry Kraus vs. C. Kraus, et als. Verdict for plaintiff $96. Stay of 30 days.

State vs. O. L. Billings. On motion of County Attorney, dismissed.

McCormic Harvesting Machine Co. vs. H. A. Peterson. Continued to next term.

Louis Cogveck vs. Great Northern Railroad Co. settled and dismissed.

County Commissioners Proceedings.

The County Commissioners held an extra session Monday. They voted to pay half for repairing the Dayton bridge, Hennepin County paying the balance.

The auditing board reported total amount in the Treasury $45,590.94; of this amount there is in banks in the county $42,435 59.

Brown & Sproul were awarded the contract for building the Beam bridge for $1560, their bid being the lowest; their bond for $2000 was approved.

School petitions were granted, John Melody; Samuel Sykes; John Carlson. The petition of 27 voters to form a new district is to be heard July 12.

The contract for a stone arch culvert in Middleville was awarded to John Sunstram of St. Paul, for $94 59.

Petitions for abatement of tax rejected; Louis Andre, S. W. Leavett, J. G. Freiberg, Edmond Alery, John Cunningham.

Abatement of tax recommended for: John White, Andrew Erickson, Homer Sook, Albert Blatt, John Conzet, Andrew Reider, Chas. Stooren.

Petition for abatement of tax laid over; I. Gutzwiller and J. W. Lindsley.

Committees to view roads reported favorable to change in Buffalo town Road between Frankfort and Otsego favorable.

Chatham was granted the privilege of using the $75 appropriation on Berthaume hill instead of Mill Creek hill.

McGaffey & Ellis are conditionally granted contract to paint bridges.

Monticello bridge is to be repaired and repainted.

Buffalo Jonrnal: Honors are so far about even, while the democrats will have to let up on their old cry of a "tariff for revenue only" the Republicans will have to stop making buncomb speeches on "civil service reform". Trot out your new party.

O'HAIR.—At Waverly, Tuesday, to Dr. and Mrs. O'Hair, a son.

The Smith Lake depot was robbed about a week ago of 40 tickets to Minneapolis, an overcoat and agent J. A. Burkhardts bicycle.

Some people are howling for the county to offer a big reward for the Boxell murderers. An officer of the law that would wait for that is hardly fit for his position. A neighbor that would sell his knowledge, is a poor neighbor, and if money is their object, might get more to keep still

IF I BUT COULD.

(FROM THE PRISON MIRROR)

If I could clothe each jeweled thought
That comes to me from Nature's bowers,
In classic language, such as taught
Away from western woods and flowers;
If I could sing the sweet refrains
That in my soul in silence cluster,
From many a heart I'd strike the chains,
And give the star of hope new luster.

If I could scatter all the gems,
That light my soul, in darkened places;
Could pluck the hope-buds from their stems,
And wreath them o'er despondent faces;
If I but had the power to stay
The blighting hand of pain and sorrow,
The human flowers that wilt today
Would raise their heads and bloom tomorrow.

If from the master hand above.
To me the longed-for power was given,
To change all bitterness to love,
Of every earthly hell make heaven;
The lowering clouds would quickly flee
Before the light which followed after;
And every wave of life,s broad sea
Would gleam with love and song and laughter.

—Captain Jack Crawford in Central Magazine.

PROF. HENRY F. NACHTRIEB, of the State University has sent out a neat little pamphlet of nearly 100 pages as a preliminary report on the Fishes of Minnesota. It is instructive and well worth having.

THE publisher of the Duluth News-Tribune against which Hon. C. A. Towne had commenced a libel suit, saw fit to retract their story about his being interested in mines and his having been hired to work for silver. Will the Delano Eagle do as it did last fall, follow the Duluth News Tribune, or will she wait for Charley Town to poke her off the perch? The St. Paul Dispatch, we believe, has not yet retracted. Possibly a jury will settle that a la mode John Lind and Ignatious Donnelly. Let the good work proceed. It is as bad to injure a man's reputation as his body, or his pocket book, and there are penalties for meddling with either.

F. G. WINSTON, who joined the gold standard people in defeating Bryan last fall has returned to Minneapolis after an extended trip through twenty states. He is reported as saying that a boom is bound to come in the North West within the next six months. He also seems to have learned that "to open up the mills is better than opening up the mints" didn't just hit the case, for he is reported as having said: "Immediate after election the eastern capitalists relying upon immediate prosperity under a new administration, started up their factories and over production (at such a time) was a natural result." He must have got hold of some old free silver speech; or talked with a lot of free silver people on his trip to have learned that at so late a date.

WASHBURNE vs. GOODNOW is on in Washington before the Senate Committee in full size. Hours have been consumed in hearing speeches on both sides of the controversy. Senator Washburn, burning with the feeling aroused by having lost his job, warms down to business in telling what kind of a man the would-be-Shanghi-Minister is, and showing up how unfit he is to act in such capacity for these great United States. Tim Byrns is trying to make the committee believe that Mr. Goodnow is eminently qualified to deal with the Heathen Chinee and those who would grow wealthy through barter and trade with him, John himself, meanwhile, with a look on me air, doing what he can to favorably impress the committee. We don't know how impressionable the committee may be: but think it would be rather poor timber that wouldn't impress us as favorable as would John Goodnow.

Bryanism in Canada.

Billy Bryan has been up talking Bryanism to the Canadians. Say William, you are wasting your ammunation; those fellows do not furnish any electoral votes now and it is liable to be quite a while before they are annexed.—Litchfield News-Ledger.

Quite a few of the monied men of the U. S. have been known to emigrate very suddenly to Canada, some of them have left behind them friends and acquaintances, many of whom, on account of cheap excursions are visiting the Queen's country this year. Perhaps Mr. Bryan may have a better chance to get votes in Canada than the slow going News-Ledger thinks; more especially perhaps, among creditors who have been to Canada dunning some of their old debtors.

WHEN as the Pioneer Press' friends, according to that paper, claim that the virdict of $1000 rendered in favor of I. Donnelly was $999.99 too much, they certainly rate the influence of the P. P. worth a very small amount. When they admit that Mr. D. was entitled to one cent they admit that the Press was guilty of libel. If they admit that the Press lied about Mr. D. and that all its readers read it, and that it did not influence all of them together to the amount of more than one cent, they surely don't rate advertising in the Pioneer Press worth what it costs. Its readers must be of the kind that vote the party ticket, right or wrong.

Township Schools.

The Legislature of our State, at the last session, passed a law authorizing each township in the state to, by vote, organize a township high school; to be run independent of other schools and a tax levied; officers elected; buildings erected; and everything necessary to put it in good order. Hennepin County has already made arrangements to vote on the question in some of the townships. Independence has an election July 6, we understand, for deciding whether or not it will have a high school. In some towns it may be all right, in others it seems to be unnecessary.

The report of the committee of 12 on rural schools of the United States, appointed at the convention of National Educational association in July 1895 has been completed. It is said to favor the establishment of township schools and have nothing smaller, but have all townships organized into school districts. They would combine all small schools in one large township school, and, at public expense, provide for hauling the children to school and home again every school day. It looks as if this would be rather severe on some of the little fellows to have to roll out of bed early cold frosty mornings and be hauled four or five miles to school, especially on the prairies.

The little country school house is a land mark all over our state. People don't care to have them obliterated just yet. Our foremost men and women received their start in life; or most of their edcation between the walls of the district school house. They love its memory.

The township school would in some places be a big affair. Many pupils would be obliged to travel several miles every morning and evening requiring hours of time that could be put to advantage at their homes where their services are needed and where they will become acquainted with what they depend on for a living, and what they will in a short time have to do for themselves, and which is as necessary to them as is any other education.

There seems a tendency to separate education from everything else; to make it as difficult to acquire as possible. Instead of simplifying it and placing it within the reach of all it is to be made an institution of itself. In order to get education, under the proposed system, the child must go where it is; and find it locked up at the township school house.

The district furnishes books free. The school is free, and it is proposed to give pupils living at a distance a free ride. This all sounds very nice; theoretically it is fine. But what are the facts, from the experience we have had, the boys and girls furnished with district books, use them during schools hours, or for a three or five months term then leave them locked up by the district while they are turned out on the cold world without means of further pursuing their studies if they wish to do so. Would it not be better for the children if they had their own books to carry home with them; to look over and study during vacations; to refer to in after life? Parents do not like to buy books for the children when they think what is supplied at the school sufficient, consequently the children are often neglected in this line. Every child should have a small library of good books of its own, that it could make use of when it desires to do so.

Many children seem to think now-a days that the place for getting an education is at the school house; when they leave that they leave teacher, books and all thought of study behind. How many of our scholars, men and women of letters, have acquired an education in that way? Is it not a noted fact that those who win must labor; labor while others rest?

It may be well enough for larger and more advanced pupils to go some distance in order to receive instruction they cannot get otherwise, but to haul the little tots to town to learn their a b c's loooks like crowding things considerably.

If this prevails, how long will it be before all the children will have to go to Minneapolis or St. Paul, or to Chicago or New York, or even to Berlin, Paris or London to be educated in one grand school?

People's Choice Right.

As a choice between the free coinage of silver and the monstrious tariff which the republicans are enacting the people are very likely to express a choice favorable to silver at the next election. —Wabasha Democrat.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25, 1897

Hon. Wm. J. Bryan received considerable attention in the Senate this week, Senator Allen started it by rising to a personal explanation and denying in the most positive terms the charge that Mr. Bryan's offer of $1,500, from the proceeds of his book, was accompanied by a stipulation that the next populist National Convention should take no action against a fusion of the supporters of silver. He added that the draft for the money had been sent to him personally, and after Senator Butler, Chairman of the populist National Committee, declined to accept it, he (Allen) at the suggestion of Mr. Bryan, invested the money to be used in the interest of bimetallism. Senator Butler confirmed the statement of Senator Allen that the money had been given without condition, and said that while he approved Mr. Bryan's motive he felt that the acceptance of the money might be open to misconstruction, and had therefore declined it. Later that dyed-in-the-wool republican, Senator Hoar, said: "I have a good deal of respect for Mr. Bryan. His character has impressed me very favorably, and I have never joined in criticisms upon him," and Senator Stewart clinched things by remarking: "It is no use criticising Bryan, as he's going to be the next president."

There were no new developments connected with either the annexation treaty or the Mc Kinley Cuban policy this week. The treaty has been protested against by Japan and referred to a sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and will in due time—probably next winter—be favorably reported, and Senator Mrgan has introduced a bill for annexation. Early in the week there was talk of an agreement in the Senate to hang up the tariff bill until Czar Reed allowed the House to vote on the Morgan Cuban resolution, but it is not likely that anything will come of it.

Nothing more amusing than Senator Foraker's forcing of Senator Allison and his colleagues of the republican steering committee to meet the demands of the wool-growing states in the wool schedule of the tariff bill has occurred during the consideration of the bill. And it was done on the floor of the Senate in open session, and not in the secrecy of a committee room. Allison seldom loses his temper, but when Foraker accused him of double dealing and trickery, he did. Senator Plaat, of Conn., a republican member of the Finance Committee, attempted to go to the rescue of Allison, but Foraker quickly disposed of him by telling him that he himself, at Foraker's dictation, had written the very amendment which he denied ever having heard of. This so crushed Platt that he humbly apologized, saying that he might have been mistaken. Senator Vest rubbed it in on the republicans by insisting that the bill be proceeded with, and Senator Teller expressed his consurrence. Senator Mantle said: "If I were to search through the whole domain of poetry and prose nothing could be found that would so fitly characcerize the wool schedule as these familiar words of Bret Harte's:

"Yet the cards they were stocked
In a way that I grieve,
And my feelings were shocked
At the State of Ny's sleeve;
It was stuffed full of aces and bowers,
The same with intent to deceive."

"I think the bill," continued Senator Mantle, "so far as it relates to the wool growers, is stuffed full of aces and bowers with the full purpose and intent of deceiving the wool growers of the country." Later on the same day Senator Allison, on behalf of the committee, made an abject surrender and offered the amendment demanded, and it was adopted by a vote of 29 to 25, although the previous vote, which had so irritated the wool men had been 55 to 13.

Mr. Calhoun having demonstrated by an amended written report on his visit to Cuba that he has the knack of meeting presidential objections when they are made known to him, has been offered the position of Comptroller of the Treasury, now held by Mr. Bowler, of Ohio, the gentleman who gained much notoriety during the early part of the Cleveland administration by setting himself up as the only Poobah of the Government. Although Mr. Calhoun hails from Illinois, neither Senator Cullom nor Senator Mason knew that this position was to be offered him until after it was done.

Broker Chapman was in Washington this week to see the last of the farce known as the trial of witnesses for contempt in the Senatorial sugar scandal investigation of three years ago. Chapman didn't say so, but he must have thought it very queer that he alone should have been convicted out of the lot who were indicted for refusing to answer questions.

A Splendid Offer.

The Minneapolis Tribune, always at the front where genuine newspaper enterprise is concerned, makes a wonderfully liberal offer to the teachers of the Northwest, and which is well worth their early and careful consideration. The offer involves the formation of different words from the title "The Tribune" and includes forty splendid prizes, the value of some of them amounting to nearly $150.00, they range from two trip tickets to the National Exposition, with a snug sum in cash, down through a list of money and transportation prizes, any one of which will repay the effort necessary to comply with the very simple conditions.

The offer is not limited to teachers, either although they are given special inducements, but is within the reach of every one who desires to enter the contest, and as the details of the same have been thoroughly advertised for the past week or two, no one need be in ignorance as to what is required. However, we have no doubt THE TRIBUNE will answer all inquiries concerning the offer, and as the contest closes July 20, teachers and others anxious to compete cannot begin too early. The amount involved in prizes is a cool $1,000.

This is an opportunity for some of our bright young people to show their enterprise. Get to work. We may just as well have some of THE TRIBUNE'S good things and want to see some of our readers travel at their expense or wear a gold watch set with diamonds. 40-1t.

Spirit of Markeville.

MARKVILLE, June 23rd 1897,

BUFFALO GAZETTE.

Dear old friend: Has not the spirits of Washington and Jefferson looked down on a series of political events since November, that is enough to make their statues, in different parts of the country, bow their heads in sorrow; yes, weep tears of shame, to see the land they left, burdened with human misery. A land whose political life should be as pure and bright as the noonday sun. This land, of all lands, has been the one "city of refuge" to the whole world. All that was sick and heavily burdened, has seen this star of glory shining for them, have come and been healed in the Elemosynary institutions, raised from conditions of serfdom and poverty, given the right of franchise, and homes almost for the making of them, having the full protection of the law, law that was based on liberty and justice. Is there any wonder that millions of proud spiritual men, men who feel the fire and spirit of 76 coursing through their veins, look on this scene of political disaster with sorrow! Think of a land whose future was so bright, where the busy hum of industry was on all sides; where prosperity and happiness was the rule, not the exception, as 'tis now.

And is man's selfish greed what has brought this calamity upon us? We surely think that church and state in their respective histories, are like unto two thieves between whom liberty, justice, and truth has been crucified all the way down the centuries to the present political industrial cataclysm, and we fell the spirit of prophecy on us strong to night, for we see and hear the approaching storm. It will be a time that will try "men's souls," a fierce battle between the intrenched power of filthy lucre, and the Rights of Man. Through a break in the clouds of battle I catch a glimpse of a brighter day for mankind.

When distributive Justice heralds the social world, then virtue and morality will bloom with an immortal beauty. The sun of rigteousness will rise in the horizon of universal industry, and shed its genial rays over all the fields of peace, plenty and human happiness.

The Republican party assumed control of affairs by all manner of tricks, schemes and ungodly pretences. Mc Kinley was elected, and Bryan, the apostle of liberty and justice, was left, McKinley was elected on the confidence game, and prosperity was left. McKinley was elected under the promises of a great industrial boom, the boom got left. Falling prices, closing up factories, has been the price the poor dupes paid for worshiping the golden calf. Mc Kinley promised a speedy restoration of sound republican doctrines, a gold basis would be the rule, and a few days before election gold was displayed as a tempting bait, but, like the coward it is, it soon skulked behind bolts and bars and left the people to do business on as near nothing as was ever the fate of dupes who relied on guilded promises.

An Englishman visiting this country declares our form of government a sad and pitiful failure, and he is about right. He says in a short time there will be a war of capital and labor that will eclipse any attempt at wholesale murdering that was ever projected on this planet. How strange! Is it possible there is pride and patriotism enough left to ever restore the rights that have been, and are being taken from the (American sovereign) as we have been styled by silver tongued orators. Our English friends say our constitution is a villinous document, not at all logical, and has always been a disturbing element, etc. How strange this sounds, when, after one hundred years and more we have annually gotten together to read what we have considered the grandest document ever framed by man. The more we fall under the influence of money lending men, the more we may expect to be told of our failures; of our great men who wasted so much time conjuring up such a state paper when it has proved a sublime failure. As we become more and more tangled in the meshes set by Shylocks, we must be dubbed a borrowing nation; a nation whose resources are undeveloped; a nation who must be watched because of the unsoundness of our speculations. All capitalists are shy. In fact were not capable of attending to our business, and 'tis time for our masters to tell us so to our face. There is nothing that so develops a persons cheek, brazen impudence, etc. as to feel that you are completely in his power by borrowing his money. Tis an object lesson.

I wish to state to the numerous friends around the country that the opening of the North Western spiritual camp at Markville, Lake Minnetonka, Sunday, July 4th, is at last an assured fact. Prominent speakers and mediums will be present. Lecture at 11 a. m. also at 2:30 followed by public test seance, materializing seance in the evening. A small fee will be charged to help defray expenses. There has been many trying things to overcome and at times we almost dispaired of any results for our efforts, but we feel sure now that success will at last crown our labors and make this the grandest spiritualist demonstration ever held in Minnesota. Come one, come all, who feel interested in the demonstrations of immortality, come and hear what the spirits say to the people If interest will justify it, there will be meetings held during the month.

Pomona, goddess of fruits has cut loose and we're all revelling in plenty of the delicious Strawberries.

Crops look unusually well.

The festive season here has been delayed on account of bad weather, but the indications point to considerable activity during July and August.

Hotel La Fayette opens June 26 and no doubt there will be the usual influx of strangers.

Cottages are well filled, and everybody feels like laying aside their trouble and living a little nearer to the heart of nature for two short months.

The day our forefathers made, out of small resources, is to be celebrated at Russell's grove, near Long Lake. A good old fashioned time is promised.

Five buffaloes were born in New York city last week, which probably leads the record of 1897. The trapper of 40 years ago is right in saying that times have changed.

Owned a trick mule in 1875. Owned a South African diamond mine in 1885. Owned $500,000,000 in 1895. Committed suicide in 1897. That is the record of "Barney" Barnato.

A New York judge has decided that every dog has a right to bite once. A second assault makes a nuisance of the canine. One decision like that comes pretty near making a nuisance of the judge.

A Georgia colored woman accounts for hard times in that state on the theory that there are "too many loafy husbands." There is a bare chance that it will hold good for some other sections.

Paderewski says he will play at private musicales this season a few times for $5,000 a performance. Wonder if we coud get him to play twice for $10,000, of which four dollars shall be cash, balance on time?

The first bicycles came from England, but American designers and mechanics have taken the lead and our wheels are admitted throughout the world to be unequaled. Their export this year has increased threefold.

It is said that by using kites the signal service will be able to issue weather predictions 16 hours earlier than usual. This makes little difference; what is really wanted is a forecast which shall be about 16 miles nearer the truth.

Half a dozen nations in Europe are quarreling over the privilege of supplying the United States with beet sugar, and not one of them has as favorable a climate and soil for producing the sugar as we have in our own country.

The present conditions surrounding the new woman are such that she has no chance to complain that time hangs heavy on her hands. Within a period of 12 hours a woman in St. Louis got a divorce, received a verdict of $5,000 damages from a railway company and acted the leading role in an amateur performance.

The flag is 120 years old. On June 14, 1777, the continental congress adopted the following: "Resolved, That the flag of the thirteen states be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in blue field, representing a new constellation." Very much has happened since then, but the old flag, with a few additions, still waves.

There is a popular idea that June is the favorite month for weddings, and that the young woman who loves romance and wishes fortune to smile upon her nuptials in every way must choose this of all months. Cold and unromantic fact, however, shows that the three most popular marriage months are October, November and December. Fifty years' records show this to be true, and also demonstrate the fact that most unpopular months for marriage are January, February and March.

There recently arrived in New York 13 emaciated negroes from Sierra Leone, said to be the remnant of a band of 300 who left this country a few years ago to make their homes in Africa. This is another failure of the attempt to colonize American negroes in Africa. These misguided people were doing fairly well in some of the southern states, when they were induced to join an expedition gotten up by alleged colonization agents. The attempt, like many others of the kind, has failed.

That Mr. Tesla's marvelous discovery of the possibility of dispensing with the use of wires in telegraphing would lead to incredible claims and speculations might have been anticipated. It is without much astonishment that we hear of Tesla's cautious but enthusiastic suggestions with regard to a system of communication between the inhabitants of the earth and the dwellers of Mars. The average man has long since arrived at the cheerful conclusion that there are no limits in the sphere of the knowable to the achievement of science, and if telegraphy without wires, why not signals to Mars?

A queer condition of affairs exists in the state of Colorado. For the ensuing two years the commonwealth will be distinguished as the only state in the union where the Fourth of July, Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's, Washington's birthday and Memorial day are not legal holidays. The discovery has just been made that an act of the late legislature in regard to negotiable instruments repealed the statute establishing the above named holidays. The only legal holidays left in Colorado are Arbor day, Labor day and the Saturday half holiday. The citizens will celebrate the Fourth just the same.

Oklahoma sends us the cheering news that it is being converted, and that peace prevails where brawls once held sway. With this great change there has come, of course, a corresponding improvement in the morals of the territory. Men no longer mistake their neighbor's horse for their own. The idea that one must take human life on provocations more or less aggravating has died out. The prayer book has taken the place of playing cards and the six-shooter has been exchanged for the harmless and invigorating bicycle. Oklahoma, under these circumstances, will become less picturesque but better.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

A stubborn contest over the duties on manufactured woolen goods occupied the attention of the United States senate on the 24th. It was a day of constant roll calls and cross-fire debate. Many amendments were proposed to reduce the rates, but these were rejected by decisive majorities. Less than five pages were disposed of during the day. In the house Mr. Foss, of Illinois, on behalf of his delegation, announced the death of his colleague, Mr. Cooke, and a committee was appointed to attend the funeral in Chicago. The house adjourned to the 28th.

The United States senate on the 25th completed the wool schedule, the silk schedule and the tobacco schedule of the tariff bill, and, with this accomplished, all the schedules of the bill and the free list had been gone over once. There now remains only to go through the bill a second time, passing on the items passed over. Senator Hale introduced a resolution restricting the privileges of ex-senators on the floor of the senate to those not interested in legislation and claims, and it was referred to the committee on rules. The house was not in session.

The United States senate started on the 26th on its second consideration of the tariff bill, the purpose being to dispose of all items previously passed over. The paragraphs discussed were in the chemical and earthenware schedule, and failed to elicit more than technical debate. Senator Pettigrew (S. D.) was stricken with paralysis of his vocal chords while making a vehement speech. He was taken to his hotel, and has partially recovered his speech.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The increased call for small notes is considered by the treasury department at Washington as an indication of business improvement.

GREAT NAVAL REVIEW.

Fitting Climax to Queen Victoria's Jubilee.

Thirty Miles of Battleships Thunder Forth a Royal Greeting—Reviewed by the Prince of Wales.

Portsmouth, June 28.—The prince of Wales, representing her majesty, on Saturday proudly reviewed a fine fleet of foreign war ships, representing all the maritime nations of the world. The heir apparent also inspected about 30 miles of British war ships, in which were 166 fighting ships of different classes, carrying about 900 heavy guns.

The fleet was drawn up in seven lines on the south of the Solent, the head of the lines being off Brading, thence stretching westward almost to Cowes. The outer line of all on either side of the Sturbridge shoal, and known as "E" line, was composed of 14 special merchant vessels, whereof the American liner New York was one. Next in "A" line were the foreign men-of-war. These were:

United States of America—First-class armored cruiser Brooklyn; Rear Admiral Miller.

France—First-class cruiser Pothnau; Rear Admiral de Courtbille.

Austria—Ironclad Wien; Vice Admiral Baron Spann.

Italy—Battleship Sardegna; Vice Admiral Morin.

Russia—Battleship Rossiya.

Germany—First-class battleship Konig Wilhelm, Admiral H. R. H. Prince Henry of Prussia.

Portugal—Battleship Vasconde Gama.

Siam—Cruiser Maha Clarkri.

"B," "C," "D," "F" and "G" lines consisted entirely of British men-of-war from the Majestic and Renown, the latest type of battleships, down to the smallest torpedo-boat, in all 18 craft.

"B" and "C" lines were made up exclusively of battleships and cruisers of the first and second class; "D" of third-class cruisers, gun vessels and torpedo gunboats; "F" of destroyers, gunboats and sailing training brigs, while "G" line was of torpedo boats.

All the lines except "G" were approximately five miles in length.

The vessels comprising it were the following:

Where John Bull Has the Bulge.

Battleships (21).—Majestic, Magnificent, Prince George, Mars, Jupiter, Victorious, Repulse, Resolution, Royal Sovereign, Empress of India, Renown, Collingwood, Benbow, Alexandra, Colossus, Edinburgh, Howe, Inflexible, Devastation, Thunderer, Sans Pareil.

Cruisers, First-Class (11).—Blake, Blenheim, Australia, Galatea, Powerful, Terrible, Royal Arthur, Endymion, Edgar, Warspite, Aurora.

Cruisers, Second-Class (27).—Hermione, Charybdis, Mersey, Malampus, Aeolus, Spartan, Minerva, Flora, Bonaventure, Naiad, Latona, Venus, Diana, Dido, Isis, Thetis, Tribune, Terpsichore, Brilliant, Phaeton, Leander, Apollo, Andromachae, Sappho, Juno, Deris, Sirius.

Cruisers, Third-Class (5).—Pelorus, Medea, Medusa, Magicienne, Barracsuta.

Gun Vessels (2).—Curley, Landrail.

Gun Boats (3).—Raven, Cockchafer, Starling.

Torpedo Gunboats (20).—Halcyon, Speedy, Jaseur, Spanker, Niger, Leda, Sheldrake, Renard, Onyx, Circe, Gossamer, Jason, Sharpshooter, Spider, Alarm, Antelope, Hazard, Skipjack, Gleaner, Rattlesnake.

The British fleet assembled June 22 and was drawn up in four lines, extending from abreast of Portsmouth harbor to a distance of about five miles to the westward. Following the precedent of former naval reviews there was free access to the review ground up to the hour named for the official inspection, when all vessels with visitors anchored in their assigned positions and the tour of the fleet was commenced by the prince of Wales.

As the Albert and Victoria was seen approaching, the fleet, led by the Renown and echoed by the foreign vessels present, fired a deafening royal salute of 21 guns. Simultaneously, the bluejackets and marines "manned ship," standing on the ironclads in solid lines round their outer edges and filling their tops, while on vessels of the older type the yards were quickly dotted. It was very theatrical and interesting. The Victoria and Albert, followed by the other yachts, then steamed through the lines, the sailors heartily cheering and the bands playing "God Save the Queen."

The Victoria and Albert afterwards anchored between the Renown and the foreign war vessels. Immediately the steam launches of the foreign commanders left the sides of their big ships and made for the Victoria and Albert, on the quarter deck of which the commanding officers were received by the prince of Wales. This ended the review. The royal yachts then returned to Portsmouth.

Illumination of the Fleet.

The illumination at night of the vessels of the fleet was gorgeous. The various hulls were outlined by electric lights, while from the mastheads to stem and stern varicolored lamps reflected on the peaceful sea a rainbow of colors. A royal salute of 60 guns was fired from every ship capable of firing it. Great guns and small guns answered each other in one prolonged roar, rising and falling in intensity as more or less of them fired together. The foreign warships moored opposite the British lines joined the cannonade, and to the superstitious there was from the deep-throated guns of the United States, Russia, France and Germany a note of defiance, a resonant, resolute answer, gun for gun. Yet all was in honor of Victoria.

Victoria Will Take a Rest.

London, June 29. — The queen returned to London Monday afternoon—her final jubilee day, but one—and made what most probably was her last jubilee appearance in the metropolis, for with the celebration that closes at Aldershot on Thursday next the state appearances of her majesty, it is said, on fair official authority, will be finished; that henceforth, for whatever span of life may be left to her, Queen Victoria will confine herself to such work for the state as can be done at Windsor, Balmoral or Osborne. All those official functions, drawing rooms, public ceremonies, opening town halls, hospitals and the like, which bring the sovereign face to face with the people will now be relegated to the prince and princess of Wales.

Pan-American Exposition.

Albany, N. Y., June 26.—Articles of incorporation of the Pan-American Exposition company were filed here and in Buffalo Friday. It has been decided to hold this exposition in 1899, commencing May 1 and running for six months, and the site selected is at La Salle, on the Niagara river, a few minutes' ride from Buffalo as well as Niagara Falls.

FOR LEVEE IMPROVEMENT.

Millions of Dollars Needed to Repair the Mississippi Banks.

New York, June 25.—The Mississippi river commission convened in the Army building here Thursday and immediately went into executive session to deliberate on and possibly make some change in the annual report of the commission.

Nearly all the delegates who addressed the board dilated on the millions that had been expended since the levees were constructed. They told of the enormous amount of taxes raised to defray the expense of keeping up the levees, and nearly all of them complained of empty treasuries, devastated lands and an impaired credit. They all stated that they had gone to the limit of taxation. They declared that it was absurd to tax land owners who had lost everything by floods. It was shown how impossible it was to issue bonds. The whole burden of the argument was the necessity of the government's lending a helping hand. With the levees repaired and the land protected no additional help would be required. Mr. Sellers, of Mississippi (lower district), stated that it would require 12,100,000 yards of earth to repair the damage done. The estimate made of expenditure by districts ranged from $8,000,000 to $11,000,000.

Many of the delegates told of the benefit of the $600,000 immediately made available by congress out of the $2,933,333 appropriated. The statement was made that there was no levee capable of sustaining another flood like that which has passed. All the levee districts represented had reports of the districts made since the flood.

Engineer Starling, of the upper Mississippi district, stated it would require 11,000,000 yards of dirt to repair damage done by the last flood. He said that two-thirds of the levees were "rotten," being made of rails with loose dirt between. He said $140,000 was spent during the last flood by the districts. Mr. Starling claimed that his district was the worst on the Mississippi. Many of the delegates pointed out that the first-class levees resisted the encroachments of the flood. Judge Prindell, of Arkansas, maintained that the Mississippi was a great national highway and should be protected by the national government.

HOUSE COMMITTEES.

Will Be Named at Close of the Present Session.

New York, June 26.—A special from Washington says: Speaker Reed will name his committees the day the present session closes. This will give each chairman time to get his bills in shape for filing, appoint his subcommittees and have everything in shape for the regular session of congress when it meets in December. The list as it stands to-day makes but few changes in the chairmanships from those of the last house. The chairmen of the most important committees are given below:

Chairmen selected: Accounts, B. B. Odell, New York; agriculture, J. W. Wadsworth, New York; appropriations, J. G. Cannon, Illinois; banking and currency, J. H. Walker, Massachusetts; claims, C. N. Brumm, Pennsylvania; coinage, weights and measures, C. W. Stone, Pennsylvania; District of Columbia, J. W. Babcock, Wisconsin; education, G. A. Grow, Pennsylvania; elections No. 1, L. W. Royce, Indiana; elections No. 2, G. W. Prince, Illinois; election of president, vice president and representatives, W. C. Arnold, Pennsylvania; enrolled bills, Alva L. Hagar, Iowa; foreign affairs, R. R. Hitt, Illinois; immigration and naturalization, R. Barthold, Missouri; Indian affairs, J. S. Sherman, New York; interstate and foreign commerce, William P. Hepburn, Iowa; invalid pensions, Winfield S. Kerr, Ohio; irrigation arid lands, William R. Ellis, Oregon; judiciary, D. B. Henderson, Iowa; labor, J. J. Gardner, New Jersey; manufactures, George W. Faris, Indiana; merchant marine and fisheries, Serene E. Payne, New York; military, J. A. T. Hull, Iowa; militia, B. F. Marsh, Illinois; mines and mining, R. G. Cousins, Iowa; naval affairs, C. A. Boutelle, Maine; Pacific railroads, H. H. Powers, Vermont; patents, Josiah D. Hicks, Pennsylvania; pensions, B. C. Loudenslager, New Jersey; post offices and post roads, Eugene F Loud, California; public buildings and grounds, David H. Mercer, Nebraska; public lands, John F. Lacey, Iowa; railways and canals, C. A. Chickering, New York; rivers and harbors, W. B. Hooker, New York; territories, William S. Knott, Massachusetts; war claims, E. M. Mahon, Pennsylvania.

BELIEVES IN LABOR UNIONS.

President's Declaration Made to Officers of Federation.

Washington, June 25.—"I regard the organization of labor as the natural and legitimate effort to secure its rights," said President McKinley. This strong declaration in favor of organized labor was made in the course of a conversation at the white house Wednesday with Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Frank Morrison, secretary of the organization. For an hour labor's interests and labor legislation were discussed in all their varied phases. The anti-pooling bill to restrain the operation of pools and trusts caused the labor people some anxiety. President Gompers explained that the labor unions were afraid that they themselves would be classed as trusts and the penalties of the act applied to them rather than to the large combinations usually known as trusts. He thought an amendment should be made specifically exempting labor unions.

President McKinley agreed that the labor unions should be protected and spoke of measures in which he had taken an interest in former years. He did not, however, seem to think there was much danger of their being classed as trusts or subjected to penalties.

"Unless you believe as some people do," said Mr. Gompers, "that labor unions are an evil, I think you will agree with me that their existence should not be endangered by this bill."

"I do not desire to be classed with those who consider trade unions an evil," replied the president, and he finished the sentence with the words quoted at the beginning of this dispatch.

Turks and Greeks Fight Again.

Canea, June 28.—An armed force of 1,200 Mussulmans made a sortie from Canea Saturday night, crossed the military cordon and surprised the insurgents at Kanlikastelli, three hours' distance. A desperate combat ensued in which 13 Mussulmans were killed and 12 wounded. The Christian inhabitants of the district are preparing to make reprisals by land and sea. Later advices show that many Christians were killed, as well as many Turks, in engagements that perceded the principal fighting at Kanlikastelli. The whole district is greatly excited. The trouble arose from the encroachments of the Mussulman refugees who attempted to pasture their cattle within the limits of the neutral zone.

BOIES ON SILVER.

Iowa's Ex-Governor Says the Sixteen to One Policy is Dead—His Plan.

Waterloo, Ia., June 28.—"For one, I do not believe it possible to succeed upon a platform that demands the unqualified free coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one with gold. We have fought that battle and it is lost. We can never fight it over under circumstances more favorable to ourselves. If we hope to succeed we must abandon this extreme demand." In these words Horace Boies, former governor of Iowa and erstwhile democratic presidential aspirant, addresses the voters of the United States who demand the free coinage of silver. He does it through the medium of his letter to Col. D. M. Fox, of Des Moines.

Although Mr. Boies has in private frequently expressed hostility to the sixteen to one plank of the Chicago platform, this is the first authoritative declaration from him to that effect. In publicly declaring it to be a dead issue he gives at length his reasons for asserting it to be such. He says the voters buried it under the belief that it meant silver monometallism, pure and simple, which would increase instead of diminish the misfortunes attributed to the single gold standard.

The panacea ex-Gov. Boies offers for the financial ills of the country he has yet given only in outline, but he promises to enlarge upon it in the near future. He suggests that the government issue treasury notes in exchange for both gold and silver bullion at its commercial value, such value to be determined by the market price of the metal in the great markets of the world on the day of its receipt, the notes to be redeemable in either metal, at the option of the government, at the commercial value on the day of redemption. By this plan, he says, the bullion of the United States would be kept at home instead of seeking the higher price in foreign centers of trade, because the expense of transportation would be saved to the producers.

JAPAN'S OBJECTION.

Why Annexation of Hawaii to United States Is Opposed.

Washington, June 25.—The gist of the protest of Japan to Hawaiian annexation, which was read to the senate committe on foreign relations Wednesday, is as follows:

The acquisition of Hawaii by annexation to the United States would deprive the resident Japanese in the islands of rights to which they are at present entitled under the present treaty with Hawaii. At present there are 25,000 Japanese in the islands with large property rights and under the present conditions they are entitled to become citizens of Hawaii. In case of annexation these Japanese could not become citizens of the United States, as the decisions of United States circuit courts are to the effect that no Asiatic can become a citizen of the United States. By annexation the Japanese now resident in Hawaii would be subject to any measures that might be adopted by the United States. They would lose the right to become citizens and to vote, the large interests owned by Japanese citizens in the islands would be greatly jeopardized; therefore the Japanese government must firmly protest against the proposed annexation.

Hawaiians in Washington insist that the reason for the protest of Japan against annexation is that Japan really desires to acquire the islands herself. The main point of contention between Japan and Hawaii over the treaty between the two countries, it is learned is as to the wording of the treaty which Hawaii seeks to abrogate. This treaty has a provision "that it may be terminated at any time by mutual consent." This is contrued by the Japanese government to mean that the treaty cannot be terminated without the consent of both governments, and as long as Japan insists upon keeping it in force it cannot be abrogated. The Hawaiian contention is that the words have no such meaning, and that any contract or agreement can be dissolved by mutual consent as a matter of course; that if the claim of Japan was valid the treaty would be in effect permanently.

SHERMAN ARRAIGNS TRUSTS.

Question of Monopolies the Most Important of the Day.

New York, June 28.—John Sherman, secretary of state, came over from Washington Sunday night and stopped at the Fifth Avenue hotel. Secretary Sherman spoke on topics of national and international interest. He declared his belief that the United States will have no controversy with Japan over the annexation of Hawaii, and that the trust question is the most important subject for settlement in this country. He declared that he was firmly opposed to combinations of capital which interfere with competition. He said:

"The question of trusts is altogether the most important question of the day. The combination of persons engaged in common interests seems on its face to be fair enough. But it breaks down competition and forces out the small interests. The trust law is not strong enough. I drew it, and the committee on judiciary in the senate made changes in it which weakened it. I am in favor of making unlawful all combinations in restraint of trade in the most direct manner. The law now puts in the hands of a few men the control of important industries. They say the effect is to lower prices. I do not believe it. Such a combination as the Western Union is a case in point. It is a strong combination, with a great deal of capital, and it controls an enormous business. It is so in other business enterprises. The result, they say, is to lower prices. Even so, it is injurious. It prevents competition, and the people have a right to the competition in these industries. The supreme court has sustained the law as it stands, and has pointed out defects. I think they will be remedied."

An Awful Fall.

Atlanta, Ga., June 29.—A derrick on the roof of a new building fell at one o'clock Monday afternoon, knocking three workmen from a scaffolding on the ninth story. Two of them were dashed to instant death on the ground 125 feet below, and the third was saved in a most miraculous way. The killed are: Palmetto Ayres (colored), aged 40, living at Austell; Charles Carcill (colored), aged 35, of this city. William Brown (white), carpenter, was cut about the head and arms. Brown, by the wildest freak of luck, grasped one of the derrick ropes as he shot through the air. As the boom of the hoisting engine fell, the ropes on the tackle were set in motion, one going up and the other down. It was Brown's good fortune to catch the rope being drawn upward and he was hauled safely to the roof.

A PEEP INTO AFRICA.

Marco Polo's Account of the Natives and Animals.

The eastern coast of Africa was an unknown region in Marco Polo's day, and when he had traveled so far to the southern end of Asia that he began to get glimpses of Africa he could not believe that he heard reports from the eastern side of that continent—of which he already knew something, as it formed the southern border of the Mediterranean sea. So he speaks of Madagascar (which he calls Madeigascar) and Zanzibar (which he calls Zanghibar) as though they were parts of India. If we remember that Marco was the first writer, European or Asiatic, to mention Madagascar by that name, and almost the first to give the world any information concerning that unknown land, we may excuse the fact that his geography is sometimes mixed. But his descriptions of the people and the animals of eastern Africa are pretty accurate, as may be seen.

They are all black, their hair is as black as pepper, and so frizzly that even with water you can scarcely straighten it. And their mouths are so large, their noses so turned up, their lips so thick, their eyes so big and blood-shot, that they look like very devils; they are in fact so hideously ugly that the world has nothing to show more horrible.

There are also lions that are black and quite different from ours. And their sheep are all exactly alike in color; the body all white and the head black; no other kind of sheep is found there, you may rest assured. They have also many giraffes. This is a beautiful creature, and I must give you a description of it. Its body is short and somewhat sloped to the rear, for its hind legs are short while the fore legs and neck are both very long, and thus its head stands about three paces from the ground. The head is small, and the animal is not at all mischievous. Its color is all red and white in round spots, and it is really a beautiful object.

The women of this island are the ugliest in the world, with their great mouths and big eyes and thick noses. The people live on rice and flesh and milk and dates; and they make wine of dates and of rice and of good spices and sugar. There is a good deal of trade, and many merchants and vessels go thither.—Noah Brooks, in St. Nicholas.

A RUSTIC FOURTH.

O FOURTH JULY'S the finest day
of any in the year,
At least that's how it allus seems to me.
You swell your chest an' take a breath,
and find you're breathin' freer,
Ez though the air wuz full of liberty.

The cracklin' o' the crackers goin' off by packs and packs,
The cannon boomin' at the break o' day,
Jes' sort o' sends a joyous little shiver up our backs,
An' the only thing to holler is "hooray."

The big men of the country give us Patrick Henry's speech,
An' then recite the Declaration, too,
An' the crowd throw up their hats an' cheer with ardor, after each
Patriotic orator is through.
An' then the silver cornet band (the township's joy and pride)
Inspirin' airs appropriately play,
An' the bangin' an' the poppin' start again on every side,
An' the only thing to holler is "hooray."

An' after bit when darkness comes, the fireworks fizz an' spout
An' Chinese lanterns twinkle midst the trees,
An' in the shadders pretty girls are saunterin' about
With rounded waists an' dimpled hands to squeeze.
An' then wunst more there's music from the silver cornet band,
An' down the floor the dancers all sashay,
Everybody's wantin' pardners—every feller's in demand.
An' the only thing to holler is "hooray."

A FAIR REBEL'S TRICK.

A Fourth of July Story

It was the 3d of July and Betty Logan, known to many as the Belle of the Neutral Ground, that debatable strip of country along the Hudson where the cowboys and skinners roamed at will, stood on the porch of her pleasant little home.

She was half surrounded by vines that failed to conceal her trim figure, the effect of which was heightened by the neat garb she wore. In one hand she held a letter she had just read for the fourth time, and as she lifted her eyes she beheld a man at the edge of the porch.

This man, a person whom the girl could trust, had just delivered the missive, and while reading it Betty had become oblivious to his presence.

"It's bad news, Peter," said she, advancing a step and looking down into the man's face.

"Another victory for the king's men, Miss Betty?"

"That is not exactly it. It wasn't much of a battle, Nolan writes—"

The man interrupted the reading with a sudden exclamation.

"The letter is from Capt. Nolan, then?"

"Yes, and he is a prisoner in New York."

"That's bad. I know how he will chafe in confinement, for he wasn't born to rust out behind stone walls. But when they exchange him—"

"That's just the difficulty, Peter. When they exchange him! You may well say that. They will not exchange Nolan for an officer inferior in rank. They never do that, you know, Peter."

"I might have thought of that," answered the man, flushing a little. "I suppose a rescue is out of the question."

"Entirely so," said the girl. "Nolan writes that he is fairly treated, but he wants his liberty. You say the letter was delivered to you at the secret outpost?"

"Yes. I did not ask from whom it was, but obeyed orders and brought it direct to you."

"For which you have my thanks, Peter, and I will see that you are fully paid in the future."

In a few moments the patriotic girl was left alone, and after another reading of the letter, which told how the writer, Capt. Nolan James, a youthful officer in the continental army, had been captured by a detachment of British troops and conveyed to New York, then in possession of the enemy. The letter seemed to crumple in her resolute hand, and when she entered the house she flung it upon the table and picked up another letter lying there.

Unfolding this one she glanced over the lines which traced in a bold masculine hand ran as follows:

"Capt. Basil Lee, of the royal forces, begs leave to accept Miss Betty Logan's invitation to dine with her Tuesday and will be promptly on hand. Wishing his fair hostess health and happiness, he signs himself her ardent friend,

"CAPT. BASIL LEE,
"Fourth Dragoons,
"New York, July 2, 1780."

A faint smile appeared at Betty's mouth as she perused the acceptance and placed it beside the one from her patriotic lover.

Capt. Lee had met her during one of the many incursions made by the royal dragoons along the Hudson, and, though an enemy to American freedom, the girl had found him an agreeable visitor. Ignorant of Capt. James' misfortune, she invited the British officer to dine with her on the Fourth, as she lived almost alone in the old homestead, her parents having died a short time prior to the beginning of hostilities.

The imprisonment of Capt. James would naturally interfere with the pleasures of the coming day, but when the morning of the Fourth came there were no traces of regret on the fair rebel's face.

At ten o'clock Peter, who had been sent to a certain point from which the road leading to New York was visible for a long distance, came back with a broad grin on his face.

"I was thinking, Miss Betty, what a nice thing it would be if we could just contrive to exchange Capt. Nolan for Capt. Lee."

The girl seemed to start.

"What nonsense, Peter!" she exclaimed. "Whatever put that idea into your head?"

"It just walked in," smiled the man. "You see, they're equal in rank and—"

"Captains both," broke in the girl, looking across the porch from the open door. "These Utopian schemes don't always come out successful."

"Very well, I just give it for what it is worth," and Peter bowed himself out of the girl's presence, and Betty was alone again.

"What a good guesser Peter is," she smiled to herself. "Surely I have not betrayed myself, and no one, I hope, has let the cat out of the bag. I'll just give Peter credit for good guessing, that's all," and she went to her boudoir to dress for the officer's reception.

The old-fashioned clock in the wide hallway was striking 11 when a handsome young officer in the somewhat flashy uniform of the Royal Dragoons, one of the crack regiments in the king's service, drew rein in front of the house and dismounted.

His riding boots were polished to perfection and he had brushed from them the few flecks of mud they had encountered on the way up. He looked assuringly at the house, with its pretty flower beds on the lawn and the trellised porch, upon which stood a rocking-chair, Miss Betty's favorite seat. Throwing the lines over a post, to await Peter's attention, the young captain sauntered towards the house, and just as he mounted the steps a vision of loveliness appeared.

Miss Betty was simply but tastefully dressed and looked very pretty thus arrayed.

She smiled a cordial welcome to the officer as he came on and took his outstretched hand without a show of treachery.

"Though we differ about the war, Capt. Lee," said she, in her sprightly manner, "I cannot help asking you for the latest news from the front."

"There is but little to communicate. There has been no set engagement of late; the two armies seem to be planning for position, and it is doubtful if a battle will come off for some time."

"That is good. I do not like to hear of bloodshed. It is bad enough in this part of the country between the foragers, but when large armies meet in deadly conflict it is much worse. Still," and her eyes seemed to sparkle, "we cannot gain our independence without some bloodshed."

"WHAT ARE YOUR FAVORITES, CAPTAIN?"

Capt. Lee smiled.

"I will never be able to convince you, I see," he said. "Like Ephraim, Miss Betty, you are joined to your idols."

"Yes, captain, to the idols of liberty and prosperity for America. You must admit that you find our soldiers men difficult to conquer. When people fight for their homes and native land they do not give up the struggle without a terrible contest."

"But in this case they are rebellious and the king will not stop short of their entire subjection."

The young girl's gaze wandered from the room, and for a little while seemed to rest on the bushes on the lawn.

Suddenly, however, she turned again to the officer and said:

"One of my friends has had the misfortune to become a prisoner of war."

"Indeed, Miss Betty!" exclaimed Capt. Lee, in the most innocent manner possible. "But that is one of the vicissitudes of war. Your friend must put up with it and consider that imprisonment is far better than being left on the battlefield."

"I do not doubt that, but confinement to Capt. James is irksome, to say the least."

The British officer seemed to start a little at mention of his rival's name.

"Capt. James is confined in New York," continued Betty. "He was captured in a skirmish and hurried thither. Exchange is hardly to be thought of, you know, since our people do not hold as prisoner an officer of equal rank."

The conversation now drifted to other subjects, and Capt Lee was most pleasantly entertained by his fair hostess.

He knew that Betty Logan was intensely loyal to the cause of the colonies; but out of respect for her apparent helplessness her property had not been disturbed, though on several occasions several spies had been tracked to it.

Her only servants were Peter and a housemaid as loyal as her mistress, and with these Betty, the fair rebel, inhabited the little home near the Hudson in almost open defiance of the soldiers of the king.

Fond of music, Capt. Lee importuned his hostess for a song, and, rising, Betty swept to the instrument in one corner of the cozy parlor.

"What are your favorites, captain?" she asked, with a sly look over her shoulder.

"'Washington's Retreat' for one," said the officer with a light laugh as he mentioned a song at that time popular in royalist circles in New York.

The cheeks of Betty Logan flushed and her fingers swept the ivory keys as if impelled by magic.

"You don't sing that, I suppose," continued the captain.

"I am here to entertain you and 'Washington's Retreat' shall be given according to request."

In another moment the melodious voice of the girl seemed to fill the house as she sang the piece which had received encore after encore in the theaters wherever the British held sway. Capt. Lee listened like one entranced and his gaze followed her every movement like one enraptured.

"Perhaps you have heard this," said Betty, as the last note died away, and forthwith she started up with a rollicking cowboy air such as the wild marauders of the Neutral Ground were wont to sing when out on their forays.

It was full of the most rebellious sentiment, and some of its pointed allusions to King George drove the color from Capt. Lee's face.

But he was not in a position to grumble, for had not Betty sang a real royal air? He sat mutely and listened as the song crept on and on, the girl seeming to take delight in tingling the ears of her red-coated guest.

"I suppose I wouldn't be allowed to sing that in New York?" exclaimed Betty, turning round and catching a sign of the captain's disapproval in his look.

"By no means, Miss Betty," was the reply. "The author of that doggerel will stretch hemp one of these days."

"When you catch the hare, captain, not before," laughed the girl. "By the way, the author of that song is doing some good in the ranks just now, and Washington has made him a lieutenant for bravery on the battlefield, and you don't kill prisoners, I believe."

"Sir Henry Clinton might break the rule in the bard's case," was the quick rejoinder, and then Betty ran her fingers over the keys again and sang a love ditty which put her guest in the best of humor.

The ballad ended, Betty Logan excused herself and left the parlor.

"It seems to me that she might be tamed," passed through Capt. Lee's mind. "The girl is a real jewel and would make an excellent wife. So her 'friend' Capt. James is enjoying the delicacies of prison fare. I suppose that she doesn't know that I am, in part, responsible for his change of fortunes; but all's fair in love and war, and if I do not fail Miss Betty may sing none but loyal songs in the near future. I wonder if that fellow attended promptly to my horse?"

The British captain was on the eve of rising when Betty again appeared in the doorway and announced dinner.

She had made a little change in her toilet and looked prettier than ever, and Capt. Lee, with an appetite sharpened by his ride from the city, to say nothing of the wait in the parlor, rose with alacrity.

The dining-room was tastefully trimmed with flowers and evergreen, the work of which Betty ascribed to her maid, Polly, and Polly, blushing to the tips of her fingers, as it seemed, acknowledged the compliments with a confused courtesy.

Betty poured the tea as she chatted away and Polly was near by to see that Capt. Lee as her mistress' guest wanted for nothing.

The table was spread with the delicacies of the season, which told Capt. Lee that the young girl's larder had not suffered much, if any, through the war.

At last the young officer pushed aside his plate and leaned back in his chair.

"I'm sorry I cannot offer you a dessert as fine as you enjoy in the old-time homes of New York," said the girl, apologetically. "Truth to tell, Capt. Lee, we must put up with just what we can get in the country in war times and—"

"Of course, begging pardon, Miss Betty," broke in the officer. "Your dessert, I am sure, will be delightful as your dinner has been, and I am disposed to praise it beforehand.'

At this moment Miss Betty Logan waved her hand to Polly, who stood at the door leading into the kitchen.

"Our guest is ready for the dessert, Polly. You may bring it on."

A deeper crimson came to the maid's cheeks as she caught the subtle meaning of the words so artly spoken by Betty and in another moment she left the room, closing the door behind her.

"Behold the dessert, Capt. Lee!" exclaimed Betty, when the door opened a moment afterward, and the British officer staggered from the chair as his gaze fell upon three men dressed in continental uniform, each of whom covered him with a pistol.

"What's this, miss?" he cried. "What treachery is afoot under your roof?"

"It is simply the fortunes of war, Capt. Lee. You are a prisoner subject to exchange for another prisoner of equal rank. These gentlemen constitute the only dessert I have to offer, with profuse apologies."

At first Capt. Lee thought of resistance, but sober second thought came to the rescue and in a little while he was in the hands of the patriots.

"Your trick will fall short of its design, my little rebel!" he exclaimed. "Capt. James shall not be exchanged for Capt. Lee. I promise you that."

Betty made no reply and her late guest was hustled from the premises and escorted to the nearest American camp where he was turned over to the commander thereof.

Several weeks intervened when one evening a young soldier rode up to the Logan home and sprang lightly to the ground.

He was met at the steps of the trellised porch by a young girl whose eyes sparkled above flushed cheeks.

"They tell me that I owe my exchange to you, Betty," he exclaimed. "Capt. Lee was very obstreperous at first, but he gave in at last and here I am."

"I don't know whether Capt. Lee will ever forgive me, but I didn't know of a better way to celebrate the Fourth of July," was the reply, and the merry laugh that followed told how happy was the Fair Rebel of the Neutral Ground.

T. C. HARBAUGH.

AS AN OBJECT LESSON.

The Real Meaning of the Noise and Fun of the Fourth.

We confess to a large degree of sympathy with the irrepressible impulse of the American small boy—to say nothing of boys of larger growth—to fire off Chinese crackers and other din-producing explosives on the Fourth of July. Not that we particularly enjoy the noise. It is not always easy to keep one's temper on even keel through the "long, long weary day," of ceaseless turmoil of patriotic powder-burning and the smell of "villainous saltpetre." Yet less and less, as the years go by, are we disposed to object to this outward and visible sign of the inward grace of patriotic ardor. Undirected, it is true, this impulse to effervescent racket on the part of boys and men, on the one unrestricted day of the year, may mean nothing to them but license to make a noise; but, wisely used, this differentiation of the day may be made the means of inculcating patriotic sentiment in a more impressive way than would otherwise, perhaps, be possible. The mass of mankind still learn great lessons best through the medium of symbols. In this respect, we have not advanced very far beyond "them of old time." The heap of stones taken from the bed of Jordan spoke not more truly to the children of Israel of the great things wrought for them there than does "Independence day" to us of our fathers' mighty deeds; and so, instead of flouting at the noisy demonstrations of our boys on this day, let us utilize its observance to teach them the real meaning which lies back of their noisy fun, and thus lead their minds up to a broader conception of the truths for which the celebration of the Fourth of July stands.—N. Y. Examiner.

The Love of Country.

There are not wanting those who sneer at love of country as narrow and provincial. But we think it will be found, as a rule, that the man who has no love for his own country and his own people, as distinguished from all the world, does not entertain very much regard for humanity in general. True patriotism—not the spurious kind that says: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy," but that which upholds, defends and makes much of home and country—promotes rather than diminishes world-wide sympathies. There are no more devoted patriots than the consecrated American missionaries who spend their lives in service for foreign lands. Our young people should be instructed to associate their celebration of Independence day with love of country, and to learn lessons of patriotism from those who on this day pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to wrest the nation from a foreign yoke. The independence thus nobly won is a precious inheritance, they should be taught, because it has permitted the development on American soil of institutions which have blessed not us alone, but all the world besides.—N. Y. Examiner.

UNCLE SAM'S PATENT FOURTH-OF-JULY BICYCLE.

—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The First American Flag.

It has been impossible to decide with certainty who designed the American flag as first adopted by congress, but the best recorded evidence gives part of the credit of designing it and all the credit of making it to Mrs. John Ross, an upholsterer, who resided on Arch street, Philadelphia. Her descendants assert that a committee of congress, accompanied by Gen. Washington, who was in Philadelphia in June, 1776, called upon Mrs. Ross and engaged her to make the flag from a rough drawing. This drawing was, at her suggestion, redrawn by Gen. Washington with a pencil, in her back parlor, and the flag thus designed was adopted by congress.

Although the resolution establishing the flag was not officially promulgated by the secretary of congress until September 3, 1777, it seems well authenticated that the regulation stars and stripes was carried at the battle of the Brandywine, September 11, 1777, and thenceforward during the battles of the revolution.—Youth's Companion.

The Wheel and French Novels.

Many wrongs have been laid to the charge of the bicycle, and now it seems it is accused in France of being a literary destroyer. Publishers complain of their shelves being incumbered with piles of yellow-covered novels, and even of more serious works, for which there is absolutely no sale. The market for Zola, Ohnet and Daudet is falling off, and the percentage to be deducted from their issues grows larger day by day. So long as it is light every able-bodied human being is upon wheels, and when they come home people are too tired to read.—London Chronicle.

BITS OF POETRY.

At Night.

They're all asleep to-night, they're all asleep!
Those on the hillside, where the cypress-trees
O'erdroop the weather-darkened stones, and these Where Love can still watch over them and keep
Her anxious vigils, lest they wake and weep.
The coverlet stirs lightly here: Love sees.
The grasses out there in the midnight breeze
Stir softly; but their ward lies calm and deep.

Hush! lest thou waken these; and hush! a tear
For those so cold and silent on the hill;
But whether these shall rise to laugh or weep,
And whether those, without a waking fear
May still dream on and on, through joy and ill,
Safe in His arms to-night, they're all asleep.

Priscilla's Heart.

Cupid one day, in idle quest,
Fitted a dainty dart,
And aimed it at Priscilla's breast,
To strike Priscilla's heart.

Clean through it went; no heart was there;
Said Cupid: "I believe
Priscilla's just the girl to wear
Her heart upon her sleeve."
But there, alack! it was not found;
"Aha!" cried Cupid, "note
Her frightened air; now I'll be bound,
Her heart is in her throat."

Failure again. Oh slender chance,
He once more arrow shoots;
Assuming from her downcast glance
Her heart was in her boots.

Foiled, Cupid threw aside his bow;
"She has no heart," said he.
(He did not know that long ago
She gave her heart to me.)

ENLARGED JOINTS FROM RHEUMATISM,

Such a Condition Indicates a Chalky Deposit and is Seldom Cured—There is Hope in Some Cases, however, from an enriching of the blood.

From the Record and Union, Rochester, Minn.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pratt, wife of Mr. John Pratt, one of the oldest settlers in Olmstead County, Minnesota, for many years has been painfully afflicted with rheumatism in its most aggravating and inconvenient form. Mr. Pratt is well known in the vicinity of Viola, having during one administration held the responsible position of postmistress. She tells the tale of her affliction and subsequent restoration to health, which is printed in order that others similarly suffering may read and adopt the same remedy she did.

Viola, Olmstead Co., Minn., Aug. 24, 1896.

"A little over ten years ago I discovered that the joints of my fingers were enlarging, and very sore. I consulted many physicians, with some slight relief at times from pain, but the joints grew larger and larger, and my neck, shoulders and limbs were so stiff that I could not move them without great pain. My toes too were swollen out of all shape, and my fingers were so drawn, and the muscles so contracted that I could not use them. I had given up all hope of cure, when my attention was called about three years ago to the wonderful cures effected by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I procured a supply.

"It was not long after I began taking them before I experienced considerable relief, and I continued using them according to directions until I have taken altogether about three dozen boxes. My fingers are now straight and flexible, and the joints reduced to their normal size, the rheumatic pains are almost gone, and now, though I always keep Pink Pills by me, I never use them unless I catch cold, or get wet through. I am willing that this testimonial should be published, in order that the extraordinary curative powers of Dr. Williams' medicine may be known to rheumatic sufferers.

(Signed) "MRS. E. A. PRATT."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

HER LIFELIKE STATUE.

Signalized Her Departure from the World of Artists.

Before her marriage she had been a famous sculptress. She had made several portraits of well-known men, and everyone predicted for her a still more brilliant future, when she suddenly set all predictions at naught by marrying a wealthy man who disapproved of her keeping up her professional work. She was very quiet under this restriction, but was supposed to rebel inwardly. Therefore when, at a dinner party one evening, she asked her old friend, Gen. Bashar, to come and see her on the following evening and inspect her last piece of work, which she thought the best and most lifelike she had ever executed, he supposed he was to use his influence to prevail upon the husband to permit her to resume her place among the working fraternity of artists.

"I am sure you will like it, general," she said, with a winning smile. "It fairly lives and breathes. I confess I am in love with it myself."

On the appointed evening the general, with some misgivings over the delicacy of the task intrusted to him, presented himself. Instead of inviting him to the studio, his hostess, to his surprise, offered to bring her last bit to him.

"Oh, it's a statuette, is it?" he asked.

"Well, yes, you might call it so," she answered, as she went out of the room. In a few minutes she returned, bearing in her arms—a baby!—Chicago Times-Herald.

She Missed Him.

A poor woman who kept a shop in a northern village, and who was troubled with a husband who could scarcely be considered a credit to the family, one day found herself a widow through the sudden demise of her spouse. A lady, who frequently made small purchases at the shop, called to see her and to offer her sympathy, though knowing that the man's death must in a certain sense come as a relief, as the wife had often suffered from his violence. She was not, however, quite prepared for the stoical way in which the wife took her bereavement.

Said the lady:

"I am sure, Mrs. G——, you must miss your husband."

"Well, mum, it do seem queer to go into the shop and find something in the till!"—Tit-Bits.

His After-Dinner Speech.

Around the table were gathered many men. The dinner was almost over, and now in the interval of service general conversation had ceased, and they were all looking at him and waiting for him to speak. He was a handsome man; clean shaven and commanding looking, in irreproachable evening dress. He stood, his left arm hanging at his side, his right hand resting lightly upon the table. Every eye was upon him as he began to speak. And this is what he said:

"Sorry, gents, but de plum puddin' is all out. Dere's rice an' tapioca, an' dere's plumpeachanapple creamorrhubarb an' mincerlemon pie. Whachergo'nterhave?"—N. Y. Journal.

A Setback.

"We hunted up that intellectual woman who invented the self-rocking cradle. We wanted to give her a vote of thanks."

"Well, how did she receive you?"

"The inventor turned out to be a man who wanted to get off to the baseball game."—Detroit Free Press.

SILENT SUFFERERS.

Women do not Like to Tell a Doctor the Details of Their Private Ills.

The reason why so many women suffer in silence from the multiple disorders connected with their sexual system is that they cannot bear to broach the subject to a man, even if he is a physician.

No one can blame a modest, sensitive woman for this reticence. It is unnecessary in these times, however, for a woman makes to all afflicted women a most generous offer. Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., bids every woman who suffers to write to her and confide every symptom that annoys her, and she will give her advice without charge, and that advice is based upon the greatest experience ever possessed by man or woman in this country, and extends over a period of twenty-three years, and thousands upon thousands of cases. Why suffer in silence any longer, my sister, when you can get help for the asking? Don't fear to tell her everything.

The case of Mrs. Colony, whose letter to Mrs. Pinkham we publish, is an illustration of the good to be received from Mrs. Pinkham's advice; here is a woman who was sick for years and could get no relief—at last in despair she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham—received in return a prompt, sympathetic and interested reply. Note the result and go and do likewise.

"I was troubled with such an aching in my back and hips, and I felt so tired all the time, and had for four years. For the last year it was all I could do to drag around. I would have such a ringing in my head by spells that it seemed as though I would grow crazy. I ached from my shoulders to my feet and was very nervous. I was also troubled with a white discharge. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., received a prompt reply and followed her advice, and now I have no backache and begin to feel as one ought; in fact, I never felt better in ten years than I do now. I thank God that I went doctoring with Mrs. Pinkham when I did, for if I had not I know I would have been in my grave."
—Mrs. Nellie E. Colony, Nahma, Mich.

Some Interesting Facts Regarding the Output of Crescent Bicycles.

This article is intended to convey a conception of the enormous amount of raw material consumed during a season in supplying the demand for one of the most popular bicycles made. The Western Wheel Works, Chicago, makers of the Crescent wheel, have the largest, and without doubt the most complete, bicycle factory in the world, and can turn out, when running to fullest capacity, 725 finished Crescents in twelve hours, or a complete "up to date" bicycle per minute.

They used during 1896 350 miles of tubing, or enough to nearly reach from Chicago to St. Paul if placed in a straight line. The spokes were made in their own factory, and required 780 miles of wire, or enough to reach from Chicago to Lincoln, Neb.; 50 miles of brass rod was required for spoke nipples. If the spokes, spoke nipples and tubing were placed in a straight line they would reach from Chicago to the Rocky Mountains at Denver. The cranks, if placed end to end, would cover a distance of 22 miles. They used 35 miles of steel for crank axles, wheel axles and pedal axles, and 19 miles of steel for seat posts. If the rims that were used in the manufacture of Crescents in '96 were placed one upon the other they would make a pile 19,800 feet high, 6,000 feet higher than Pike's Peak and about the height of Mount Elias in Alaska, whose summit has never yet been reached by man. It required 32,084 square feet of sheet steel to make the Crescent hollow tooth sprockets, and 21,876 square feet for the steel stampings of the head and seat post clamps, or in all enough flat steel to cover an area of 1¼ acres. There were used 10 miles of cork grips, 10⅝ miles of finished hubs, and 28 miles of steel wire to pin frames together before brazing. The finished chains, end to end, would reach 70 miles, and the different pieces of which they are composed would reach 237½ miles, or in all 307½ miles, the distance from Chicago to Cincinnati. The bearings of 1896 Crescents required 13,997,300 steel balls, which, if placed in a straight line, side by side, would reach a distance of 45½ miles. To lace the chain and dress guards on the ladies' Crescents manufactured in 1896 required 434,150 yards of cord, or 246½ miles, enough to allow a small boy to stand on the top of the Auditorium tower in Chicago and fly his kite where the people in Des Moines, Iowa, could see it. To supply Crescents sold in 1896 required 1,606,742 bolts, and 1,488,075 nuts, having an aggregate weight of 23 tons. The total weight of the complete bicycles was 2,382,842 pounds, or 1,191 tons. To crate these bicycles required 1,235,740 square feet of lumber made up in pieces; 72,718,668 separate and distinct pieces entered into the construction of '96 Crescents, and if all were placed in a straight line, end to end, they would reach from New York to some distance in the Pacific ocean west of San Francisco.—Crescent Bulletin, July 1, 1897.

A Deep Impression.

Pat returned from London after a holiday, and meeting his priest one day stopped to tell his adventures.

"Now, of all the sights you saw, what object struck you most—in fact, left the deepest impression on you?" asked the priest.

"Faith, it was a brick from a scaffold as struck me most and left its deep impression on me," said Pat, showing a cut on his forehetd.—Spare Moments.

A Wonderful Rifle.

Hunting big game is not as hard work as it used to be in the days of the long, heavy, big bored rifles. With a light modern rifle, such as the Model '94 or '95 Winchester, more game can be killed and at much longer distances than with any one of the old time guns. The Model '95 Winchester is one of the highest powered rifles made. It will shoot a 30-caliber U. S. Army bullet through over 50 inches of dry pine boards, and drive a bullet at the rate of 2,066 feet a second through the air. Hunters all over the country say that this is the best hunting rifle ever made. Send to the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., for a large illustrated catalogue free.

Two Mighty Continents.

North and South America, beside Guatemala, the West Indies, Australia, and even Europe, are the fields of usefulness in which Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has demonstrated its value as an antidote to malaria, and as a remedy for dyspepsia, constipation, rheumatism, neuralgia, biliousness, nervousness, and loss of appetite and sleep. The inhabitants, the medical men of these countries, have spoken in no uncertain tones concerning the efficacy of the great household remedy.

Scoff and Cough.

The man who scoffs at the friendly advice, to "take something for that cough," will keep on coughing until he changes his mind or changes his earthly residence. A great many scoffers have been converted by the use of the standard cough remedy of the past half century,—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. But some are scoffing and coughing yet. They wheeze with asthma, bark with bronchitis or groan with the grippe. Singular, is n't it, the number of stubborn people, who persist in gambling, with health and perhaps life as the stake, when they might be effectually cured of cough, cold or lung trouble, by a few doses of

DELANO, FRIDAY, JULY 2, 1897.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

--Simon Weldele has moved his saloon into his new building.

—The village board of equalization adjusted the assessment roll to conform with their idea of things a little on Monday.

—A great many passers by stopped and looked at the pictures of starving Indians, displayed in our window this week, and which were sent us as proof sheets of what were made by the special artist for the July number of Cosmopolitan.

—Potato bugs are said to be quite numerous this year. It was hoped they had concluded to leave us alone, but it seems we were only to have a rest, and the old paris green sprinklers sprinklers have been hunted up and are once more in use.

—Joe Bernick has fished out from its hiding place an old high wheel bicycle, as he rides among others he looks down on them. Several wheelmen envious of Joe's high seat of observation borrowed the wheel; they not only looked down but fell down at the feet of some horses.

—Arrangements have been completed by the Band boys to give Delano a rousing old 4th of July celebration tomorrow, Saturday, July 3d. As the 4th comes on Sunday some are keeping Saturday and some are waiting for Monday. Our boys are bound to be on time and to have the best.

—Quarterely meeting will be held at Montrose in the M. E. Church next Saturday and Sunday, July 3 and 4. Presiding Elder Chaffee is expectind to preach Saturday evening and Sunday Morning. On Sunday evening he is to preach at Delano. He always pneaches well. Come out and hear him.

—Virginia is reported to have had a snow storm in June; the flakes of snow melting, however, before striking the ground. It is claimed that snow in June is an unheard of thing in that country. Our friend William Gent, who is down there, must have felt kind of at home even though it was a little late in the season.

—Wild Jim, the Texas Cowboy, gave an exhibition of rifle shooting, and caught some boys on the run, with a lasso, and exhibited himself in saddle on a horse from the livery barn. He raked in quite a few quarters. Those paying expected a life of Wild Bill, but got a few leaves he said were printed for free distribution. Miss Rena French did not appear. Wild Jim can lasso quarters if they are in a crowd.

—Base ball is about as popular this season as ever. Nearly every evening practice games by members of nines and ordinary citizens are played, and several match games during the week. Delano has the finest grounds in the county; or will have when the fouls quit flying over Jim Hill's railroad and the ball stops hiding under the mullen leaves, and the flies stop roosting in the tree tops. Stop 'em boys, stop 'em.

--It is to be hoped that young America will take into consideration the fact that they and the balance of the people, can enjoy the 4th much better if they have a good sleep the night before and not begin soon after dark the day previous to fire off their ammunition, ring bells, blow whistles, etc. etc. If this is begun the night watch should order out a posse cometas and place the offenders in the cooler until the day we celebrate comes at least.

—Last week's Interurban gives a lengthy account of the golden wedding of Mr. Robert Shannon and Miss Susan Gray, at Hamline, their home. A large number of relatives and guests were present and a good time was the result. Mr. and Mrs. Shannon are known here having visited this place. She was a sister of Mrs. Rev. J. W. Powell, who was killed by being thrown from a buggy here. One of their sons Dr. E. A. Shannon lives at Buffalo and is County Coroner.

—The Magniscope exhibition at the City Hall Friday night was not very largely attended but those present enjoyed the entertainment. The wonderfully life like pictures, moving horses and people, wagons, fire companies on full run, train a mile a minute took the audience by storm. The negro woman bathing her pickaninny brought down the house. Prof. Harry Heller borrowed C. G. Roosen's hat and proceded to poke his finger through the top, then pour out a lot of flowers, then to find in the lining a lot of clothes and a big white rabbit much to the amusement of everybody.

—Our town is sometimes accused of being rough; our young men profane and given to drink, and as an excuse it is said that our population is so largely of the foreign element. If those who have this notion in their heads will but look about them and give the subject a moments thought, they may be surprised to learn that the native born, and those too, whose parents are native born are equally as bad or worse in most ways as are those from foreign countries. Boys who are supposed to be well raised disgrace their parents by patronizing places they should not; and shock the sensibilities of bystanders by uttering oaths and foul language beneath the dignity of men living in a christian land.

--Somebody says Cash Kerrick got a letter from Minneapolis one day this week.

—Valentine Eppel says he thinks his strawberry bed the finest ever in Delano, but it is business picking the berries.

--Dr. Catlin has on hand half a dozen points of fresh vaccine virus, from the Red Wing Station, a good chance for anyone that wishes to be vaccinated.

--The Wilmotts, of Minneapolis, are to play the Crickets, of Delano, a game of base ball, on the Delano grounds, on the third of July, at 10:30 a. m., the purse of $25. goes to the winer.

—Valentine Eppel & Co., is the new cigar firm in Delano, having bought that business of F. L. Scherer. This is Jr. Valentine Sr. is too busy with strawberries to fool with cigars just now.

--A number of bicyclists from Minneapolis and St. Paul visiting Delano friends, join the parade on fine evenings now. Most of the city people ride for pleasure and sit up straight and enjoy the scenery, etc.

—The Town of Franklin board of equalization met Monday. After learning that the Assessor had not noted several new buildings an adjournment was taken until Wednesday to allow him to complete his work.

—A biting dog is a dangerous animal. When so many children are enjoying the pleasant evenings on the sidewalks they should not be in danger from such animals. There are several dogs in town it would be well for the dog catcher to lasso.

—Delano's Fame as a base ball town surely has got abroad in the land. A letter directed to B. B. manager Delano, was received from Elmer Foster, the once noted batter, of Minneapolis wanting to come here for a game on the 4th. As Delano's fame at present hangs on the "Crickits" boys mostly below 17 years of agelt would hardly be fair to play them, one of the best Minneapolis teams.

--Base ball, properly played, is a nice game; but when a few of the awkward ones try to atone for their errors in the game by giving vent to horrible profanity, beneath the dignity of God fearing people, it detracts very much from the interest most bystanders would take in the game, and more especially when those players belong to families noted for thir piety and long line of American ancestors and known better; and don't belong to the terrible foreigners some of them would have us believe are causing most of the wickedness in our land. Wake up boys and see were you stand.

—A young man desiring a ticket to Chicago informs us that the depot agent told him he could get one at Howard Lake or at Minneapolis. Now why can't he get one at Delano? Why must Delano people go to Minneapolis, or to Howard Lake to start on a trip to Chicago? It seems to, that Howard Lake has an International money order post office; but that people doing money order business at Delano must confine their business within the limits of the United States. Delano is a bigger town than Howard Lake and deserves to be supplied with all the facilities for doing business and for travel that Howard Lake has, or Minneapolis either for that matter.

County Cullings.

Don't forget the Teachers Training School at Buffalo, July 7.

The Otsego items in the Sherburne County Star-News says that L. H. Pryor has gone to Winona to attend the Summer Normal School.

The report, so far as we can learn, that John Mazou, of Montrose, was hung in Montana, was wrong. The originator of the report here understood that it was a couple of years ago, while his neighbor informed us that he went to Montana to work, a few weeks ago. His folks at Montrose evidently know nothing of it as they wrote us for information.

Literary Note.

With the exception of the noted World's Fair number of The Cosmopolitan, which reached a price of five dollars a copy after the last edition had been exhausted, no stronger number of this magazine has ever been issued than that for July, 1897. The report of Julian Hawthorn, the Special Commissioner sent by THE COSMOPOLITAN to India to investigate the horrors of the plague and famine, is of an extraordinary character, and will open the eyes of the world to conditions which were scarcely suspected. The same number contains what is probably the greatest poem of this quarter of the nineteenth century. This new rendering of Omar Khayyam's Rubaiydt, which departs entirely from Fitzgerald's, occupies four pages. Amelia Rives reappears as a story-teller for the first time since her marriage with Prince Troubetzkoy. One of the cleverest stories yet from the pen of Robert W. Chambers is given the remarkable story of the War of the Martians, by Wells, which is attracting the attention both of the scientific and the non-scientific good-story-loving public, is continued, and there is a fourth story, by a Becket, elaborately illustrated by the humor of Peter Newell. The educational discussion--this time by Professor Peck, of Columbia--the story of "The Every-Day Life of a Sister of Charity," elaborately illustrated: "The Genesis of a Comic Opera," given by Reginald de Koven; President Gilman, of the John Hopkins University, on "The Bankruptcy of Science," and an interesting story by the Greek who conceived and brought into existance "The Streets of Cairo at the World's Fair"--these are some of the contents of this ten-cent magazine

—The money appropriated for work on Bain's hill has been expended. John Schaust superintended the job.

--If anybody thinks prosperity isn't here let him look over this week's issue of the Delano Eagle and read five mortgage sales. Five Wright County farms offered for sale; the owners have to pay for 7 weeks advertising; a big attorney fee, and other expenses. Ain't that a big chunk of prosperity?

Donnelly Stock Raised a Thousand Per-cent.

A good deal of sport has been made of Mr. Donnelly's verdict for $1 damages in a libel suit against the Pioneer Press. Recently he sued the same paper, again this time for $50,000 damage for libel concerning his speech before the Legislature in which he denounced some of Grover Cleveland's doings. Judge Brill charged the jury that the article was libelous, and if they found it was maliciously so that Mr. Donnelly was entitled to damages. The verdict was for $1000. The Pioneer Press will in the future, no doubt, be quite careful what it says about Mr. Donnelly. It naturally leans to the monied men and as Donnelly stock has risen, so much, of course, he must be respected accordingly.

St. Peter Herald. Captain B. P. Lamberton of the U. S. Navy, was in the city last Friday, the guest of his brother, R. W. Lamberton. The Captain is inspector of light houses and came here from Duluth. He was formerly in command of the Violet, the boat frequently used by President Cleveland, and he states that Mr. Cleveland always paid for the boat with his personal funds and that the money was always turned over to the government. It appears from this that he was unduly critized.

ONLY THREE GRAINS OF CORN.

Give me three grains of corn, mother,
Only three grains of corn;
It will keep the little life I have,
Till the coming of the morn.
I am dying of hunger and cold, mother,
Dying of hunger and cold,
And half the agony of such a death
My lips have never told.

It has gnawed like a wolf, at my heart, mother,
A wolf that is fierce for blood,—
All the livelong day, and the night beside,
Gnawing for lack of food.
I dreamed of bread in my sleep, mother,
And the sight was heaven to see,—
I awoke with an eager, famishing lip,
But you had no bread for me.

How could I look to you, mother,
How could I look to you,
For bread to give to your starving boy,
When you were starving too?
For I read the famine in your cheek,
And in your eye so wild,
And I felt it in your bony hand,
As you laid it on your child.

The queen has lands and gold, mother,
The queen has lands an gold,
While you are forced to your empty breast
A skeleton babe to hold,—
A babe that is dying of want, mother,
As I am dying now,
With a ghastly look in its sunken eye,
And famine upon its brow.

What has poor Ireland done, mother,
What has poor Ireland done,
That the world looks on, and sees us starve,
Perishing, one by one?
Do the men of England care not, mother,
The great men and the high,
For the suffering sons of Erin's isle,
Whether they live or die?

There is many a brave heart here, mother,
Dying of want and cold,
While only across the Channel, mother,
Are many that roll in gold;
There are rich and proud men there, mother,
With wondrous wealth to view,
And the bread they fling to their dogs tonight,
Would give life to me and you.

Come nearer to my side, mother,
Come nearer to my side,
And hold me fondly, as you held
My father when he died;
Quick, for I can not see you, mother;
My breath is almost gone;
Mother, dear mother! ere I die,
Give me three grains of corn.

MISS EDWARDS.

NEWSPAPERDOM is a fine publication for a copy of which we tender our thanks to the publishers. It is worthy a place in every printing office.

DULUTH and surrounding country had its severest storm last Friday and Saturday. It is claimed five inches of water fell, deluging the country, destroying property, and at Proctor not one life.

THE First Regiment of U. S. Vol. Inf. has returned from Gettysburg, where they went to erect to the memory of their part of one of the bloodiest and most decisive battles of the Rebellion a fine monument. They had a splendid victory and a fine trip.

THE Evening Press formerly the Penny Press, of Minneapolis suspended publication last Saturday. The people didn't give Bro. Starkey encouragement enough financially, so he payed up all he owed, and quit according to all accounts. He could not afford to longer run the paper at a loss.

THE tariff bill seems to be having some hard sledding after all. It don't get passed some way; this that and the other objection keeps it before the Senate The President is even accused in some telegraph reports in the St. Paul Dispatch with having appointed the brothers of two Silver Senators to good positions in order to secure the assistance of these Senators in passing the tariff bill. If it is true it is a grave thing. If they were appointed with no such thought, or bargain then the reporter that originated such a thing should be sent to some foreign land where nobody lives, to meditate for a season.

Goes the Whole Octave.

"The Ohio Democrats are blowing very loudly upon their silver bugle, but then its music may be drowned, before election day, by the grand diapson of international bimetallism.—Minneapolis Tribune."

Is then the Tribune in favor of bimetallism; or is it only trying to fool the Buckeyes into giving the G. O. P. one more chance? This old scheme has been played so many times that it would seem that even the Buckeyes would have learned by this time to keep the wool out of their eyes, and if they want bimetallism to vote for it; and not for England to tell us we may.

THE Inventive Age, an industrial review published at Washington, D. C. is at hand, is a good paper for people interested in the patent business, or in machinery, of any kind, $1.00 a year.

THE Gustavus Adelphus Journal published at the College of that name, at St. Peter, was received this week. It shows enterprise, is well gotten up and deserves a reading by all young people contemplating a college course, and is good for older people as well.

Kind of Partial.

Foreign protests in reference to the tariff bill, and foreign protests on the annexation of Hawaii will receive very little consideration from the present administration. It is becoming more and more evident as time passes, that the republican administration is an American one also.—Sherburne County Times.

Why don't the Times have the present administration give Cuba a little American administration? And, if time is to prove "that the republican administration is an American one also." how much time is to be consumed in trotting a monetary commission around over Europe, to learn what the American administration will be permitted to do for money on which to transact business? American administrations are supposed to run affairs in America, and as long as England stays at home and doesn't meddle with our affairs we are to keep on our side of the water.

England, of course, will be helped by the tariff on raw materials in the U. S tariff bill, and England is not supplying us with sugar so Hawaii don't bother her much. But the gold standard will help her get Cuban and other business from us so we must consult her feelings on these subjects, if it is a little bit humiliating to us.

Cole and Jim Younger.

Another moyement is on foot to liberate Cole and Jim Younger from the penitentary at Stillwater. They have been there about 21 years, and of course, would like to get out. Their friends would like to see them out. Stephen B. Elkins, who was once their school teacher, and afterwards, it is claimed chanced to fall into the hands of the gang to which they belonged, owes his life to Cole who interceded for him, of course he would sign a petition for their pardon. Many others, mostly in Missouri, it is claimed, are on the petition or have written letters. Most of the city dailies claim to favor letting them out. The Pioneer Press after lamenting the fact that owing to a peculiar law when they were captured they were not hung, now wants to turn them loose. Several of the gang are dead. They can't be restored. Cole admits he was giving the orders; was leader. The Northfield Bank robbery was a dreadful and shocking affair. Two innocent citizens were killed. The leader of the raid must be responsible for all the deaths on both sides as much as any other one person. Jim was with him. If 21 years of confinement at Stillwater serves the ends of justice for such a crime then the doors should swing outward for many whose crimes are small in comparison. If they are pardoned no other prisoner need loose courage, but boldly apply for pardon. Minnesota now has another peculiar law, a board of pardon; and if it pardons Cole and Jim Younger we predict it will loose its job soon after the next election; that the law will be as promptly changed in order to do away with pardoning boards as was that other peculiar law allowing people to murder and not be hung was changed to make hanging the penalty for such crimes, after the Northfield raid.

If the friends of the murdered citizens of Northfield were to come forward with a petition claiming that the penalty now for such crimes is hanging, and asked that Cole and Jim be hung, would their prayer be granted? Would anybody favor such a change in their penalty? Then when they have luckily escaped hanging why should they more than other criminals be turned loose? If all criminals are to be pardoned why have a penitentiary with all its expense and trouble?

The Stretcher.

We didn' know until today that the Howard Lake Herald had an alias "The Stretcher", but when we came to read its article saying: "Dr. Catlin comes out in the last issue of his paper with a criticism of our village council" we could at once see the appropriateness of the alias "The Stretcher". We intended to criticise, very briefly, Mr. McCornack's letter in the Herald, and thought we had done pretty well when we had called it a splendid letter. Then we said "with considerable energy the editor of the Herald rushes out" and intimated quite plainly that the editor should give law and order a fair show. Now Mr. Tanner just hooped it up to Rev. McCornack and never even gave him his title, either; and he was so quick about it too; a little of the reply right in the same column as Mr. McCornack's splendid article, and all of the next column, and a little in the next column; stretching its length into three columns to answer the less than a column of the other side that Mr. Tanner was so very much afraid would completely demoralize or maybe reform the town, if he didn't correct its influence at once. Then Mr. Tanner had his article in the form of an interview giving it such weight. The Village recorder was brought in; of course Mr. Tanner's article was "official". The law and order party would be everlastingly crushed. We felt at liberty to critise the Herald, alias "The Stretcher". As for any criticisms on the Village council of Howard the editor could wring out of our article we think he would only add to his reputation as Editor of "The Stretcher" in finding it The council evidently didn't consider our criticism aimed directly at them or they might have included us in the resolution the Herald so conspicuously presents to its readers giving Rev. McCornack a vote ot thanks.

As for the GAZETTE attending to home affairs it is not so small but it can see to Howard Lake, in our own county when the editor of "The Stretcher" slops over in his efforts to do something that from our knowledge of Howard Lake people is not in accord with the wishes of a majority of them.

LATER.—Since the above was written we received this week's issue of the Herald, which refuses Rev. McCornack space in his paper "to reply to Mr. Briggs?"

If Mr. McCornack and his friends wish to have his views before the people they should call a public meeting and talk; or get a few pamphlets printed for distribution, or both. Its real mean for editor Tanner to leave the matter to appear as a fight between Mr. McCornack and Mr. Briggs, two peacable citizens. We don't take any stock in this view presented by "The Stretcher", and we are for law and order, without a large reward from the county, even at Howard Lake, and without awaiting an invitation from "The Stretcher" either. At the same time it is asking too much to expect a local paper to devote nearly half its time to printing such controyersies free.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2, 1897.

There never was a clearer case of asking for bread and receiving a stone than the so-called anti-trust amendment to the tariff bill, prepared by the republicans of the Senate Finance committee. It was not their first intention to report any amendment on this subject, but they became satisfied that if they did not there was danger that the Pettigrew anti-trust amendment, which was recently tabled by a little parliamentary juggling, might be brought to a direct vote and be adopted. Then they got their heads together and concocted the sham that will be just about as injurious to the trusts as the Sherman anti-trust law has been, and they actually expect the voters of the country to accept their work as an earnest and real attempt to curb the power of the trusts, instead of seeing it for what it really is; an attempt to bamboozle the voters who don't know any better than to look to republicans for legislation adverse to trusts.

Senator Turpie gave the republican tariff bill a raking fore an aft in a speech in favor of the amendment supported by the minority of the Finance Committee, to tax inheritances over $5,000, 2 percent for the next five years.

He told the republicans that they had made the measure prohibitory and that besides, no bill had ever been presented that made so large and unprovoked a spoliation of the world's commerce. He said there was "compound felony" in nearly every schedule of it, and that the bill made it almost a penal offense to carry on trade with the people of South and Central America, while one-third of it was a declaration of war against France, Germany, and the continent of Europe. He added that the rates in the bill were akin to bribery and rapine dictated by a "banditti of syndicates." He closed by referring to the silver question and expressing the opinion that the abandonment of the free coinage of silver by this government was a step in excess of the rightful authority of those who had ordered it done.

Skin games can no longer be played with impunity upon the credulous by unscrupulous men engaged in the business of soliciting patents. commissioner Butterworth declares that nothing but straightforward honorable business methods are to be allowed in the practice before the Patent office while he is at its head, and that the patent sharks must go, and to show that he means business he has within a short period disbarred eight attorneys from the practice before the U. S. Patent Office for crooked business, and has cited John Wedderburn &Co., who are officially charged with specific instances of fraud and deception in their dealings with inventors, to show cause why they should not also be disbarred.

The republicans of the District of Columbia who contributed money and time to elect Mc Kinley are inclined to say cuss words every time they glance over the list of seven juicy diplomatic places which have been given to residents of the district. With the exception of John Hay, who is more of a literary man than a politician and more of a club and society man than of either, and Louis A. Dent, who was the late Mr. Blaine's private secretary for a long time, the average republican had never heard of these favored individuals until their names went to the Senate. It is probable that the other five gentlemen were credited to the District of Columbia for the convenience of their Congressional backers, but that doesn't make it please the local pie hunters any better.

Representative Dockery, of Mo., who has just returned from a visit to his home, says: "There is but little activity in the business circles of Missouri at this time. Affairs are in somewhat of an expectant attitude, awaiting the appearance of the belated prosperity promised by the republican party, which seems to have been sidetracked somewhere along the line of its journey. Money is idle and listless, because the opportunity for profitable investment is uninviting. Under existing conditions Missouri would probably double the majority she gave Bryan. The next House, in my opinion, will be overwhelmingly democratic, and the republicans will also loose control of the Senate."

It looks to a man up a tree as though John Russell Young, the newspaper man, who is the new Librarian of Congress, had dropped into a $8,000 a year sinecure, as A. R. Spofford, who has been librarian for a number of years is made his first assistant and will probably continue to do all the hard work. It is given out that Mr. Spofford was made assistant instead of Librarian, at his own request, but, of course, nobody has to believe such an improbable story bust because it has official backing. Spofford has many influential friends who might have made trouble, if so disposed; that accounts for the story.

Hamline University.

The Catalogue of Hamline University for the year 1896-7 is at hand. This institution of learning has recently become a University in fact as well as in name. A fully equipped medical department was added some over a year ago, and a divinity school has been organized with the expectation of opening this fall. A school of law is one of the probabilities of the near future. There were enrolled this year in the college of Liberal Arts, 161 students, in the Prepatory Department 111. There were also seven post graduate students doing special work in science and history. The graduating class of 1897, College of Liberal Arts, numbers twenty five, seventeen young men and eight young ladies; College of Medicine, thirty-one, including two ladies.

Hamline University is finely located between the Twin Cities, partaking of the advantages of both, yet far enough from either to have its own community life. Its course of study includes mathematics, ancient and modern languages, English language and literature, historical and political science, physics, chemistry and biology. Special emphasis is placed upon labratory methods and upon individual investigation. The necessary expenses range from $150 to $200 per year.

The medical department of the Hamline University is located in Minneapolis, formerly the Minneapolis College of Physicians and Surgeons, it is the oldest medical institution in the state. The number of students enrolled this year, the first year of its union with Hamline University, was 103, an increase of about 65 per cent over the previous year. This college has a well deserved reputation for teaching its students practical medicine and for equipping them unusually well for actual work. The faculty are a body of Christian men, and the moral tone of the school is excellent. Members of the college have access to the hospitals, and full clinics are held in each of the Twin Cities. For a catalogue or fuller information, address the president or registar at Hamline, Minn., or Leo. M. Crafts, M. D., Minneapolis, Minn. 41-1t.

A PEEP INTO THE STRUCTURE OF SOCIETY.

The True Causes of Poverty.

Why should wealth centralize and why should capitalists, trusts, and combinations become our masters? Why should the poor of the world bow in meek submission to the brutal and inhuman dictations of selfish greed?

Chapters from Nature's Divine Revelations call loud for retrenchment, economy in all departments of government, and the right and proper recognition that the wealth producers merit.

The human race, or society in its broadest sense, is composed of three classes; the poor, ignorant, enslaved, oppressed, and working classes constitute the lowest stratum. The semi-wealthy, learned enslavers, oppressors, and dictators, form the second stratum; and the rich, intelligent, enslaving, and idle classes form the third and complete the body of mankind.

The poor are distributed among all the nations of the earth. They are those who are born amid circumstances opposed to their nature and its requirements. They are those who have necessities unsupplied, desires ungratified, and affections uncared for. They are the degraded, the down trodden, the forsaken and unappreciated of the land. They are the despised, the weak, the wretched, and the repulsed, of all others that compose the human race.

Inferior circumstances produce inferior effects; hence the very poor are also ignorant: and because of their ignorance, are more easily chained in the degrading shackles of superstition and enslayed by laws imposed by governments and the divine rights of Kings. Christ said: "Come unto me ye heavily laden and I will give you rest." "Blessed are ye poor." They lack the power of analytical reasoning, and hence are fit subjects to bear the burdens of the upper classes. And by the loss of independent manhood, the souls true unfoldment, they become impressed that they are performing their duty by submitting to a tyrannical government, and the dictations of their bloated and over fed masters.

Inferior circumstances not only create this effect, but also a more terrible condition still: mental and physical slavery. Millions of the human race are existing under the most baneful form of slavery, and are compelled by force of circumstance to do honor to their oppressors. See the poor of large cities! See the Debbs movement to relieve these conquested centers, where the poor starve and die under the shadows of immense wealth and the drippings of sanctuaries built and opperated in the name of the Man of Nazareth.

The very poor have their thoughts restricted, and their innate powers are crushed by those who hold them in bondage for the purpose of perpetuating the darkness of degradation to which they are subject. They are sorely afflicted, and with the most inhuman conditions under which they are forced to liye.

The symmetry of their forms is marred by cruel manual labor. The constitutional qualities of their being are obstructed in their proper development; and their spiritual faculties are clouded from their birth to the grave by vice, misery, superstition, and all manners of impositions that the devils workshop knows how to turn out. Thus you see, the poor are oppressed and this oppression, in the mind of the powerfully rich is a protective policy, employed of those occupying higher positions in the scale of social circumstance.

But the most remarkable thing to consider, yes think deeply of and study from every point, is: The absolutely poor are the laboring and producing classes. The wealth of the world has been accumulated by the incessant toil of those who are compelled by the hand of oppression to work cconstantly to gain a subsistance; and yet their labor is not duly rewarded. In every portion of the world it is a general fact that he who labors most receives the least in return, and the more laborius the thing in which men engage, the more are they enslaved, degraded and unrewarded.

The poor are the sustainers of wealth because they are the industrious. They are the producers of all wealth, and all blessings that circulate through other and higher societies and yet the poor are the forgotten, the despised, and uneducated. But Christ, that perfect embodiment of human love said: "Blessed are ye poor for of such is the kingdom." But it has been taught from crowned heads to church dignitaries and all the way down the line that poverty is such a universal affliction that many are led to believe it is a means ordered in the providence of things for a purpose of causing a sdbmissiveness in the nature of man whereby he may receive ultimate reward and consolation. Some of our masters cloathed with power and some with the purple of ecclesiastical authority, are striving to console the poor, broken hearted, producers and tax burdened sons of men, by these deceptive prospects, and such, being impelled by interests, are anxious to have such an opinion prevail among them, so that poverty and ignorance may be perpetuated, and that thereby the permanency of their despotic and tyrannical controle may be secure. In every portion of mother earth God's poor are uncared for, and their circumstance hardly relieyed. Still the poor, the unfortunate, worthy poor, the images of God, and the producers of all wealth, are the foundation of all that blesses the human race, and of all the blessings that mankind enjoys, and yet, every day we see this hot bed, mushroom aristocracy, hardly able, still trying to stand upon their hind legs, draw their robes around themselves, and say "I am more holy than thou." But a great reaction has set in, a breaking up of forms of government, that makes the burden of their business, to devise laws to sustain all manner of leacherous conditions that will finally sap the soul and substance of the people's government as dry as the desert. This highhanded extravagance; this silent declaration on the part of officials: "That the people have no rights that they are bound to respect."; this loose handed, brazen manner of discharging obligations to the people has called down the merited denunciation of careful economists and the matured opinions of foreign as well as native statesmen, are in substance as follows:

"The United States government is raidly proving the assertion of our critics, that a democracy is necessarily the most extravagant form of government. In another way this theory has been implied in the statement that in a democracy the public business is nobody's business. But if this be really the characteristic of a democracy, if democracy must continue to be the prey of private interest, and of the greed of privileged classes it is a failure at least to that extent. If extravagance is to go on increasing, if Congress is never to give a thought to the general interest, if the taxes are to become heavier and heayier, if our unarmed country is to be as expensive to its citizens as the countries of military Europe are to theirs, the blessings of our form of government must grow to be greater than they are, if democracy is not to be proved to be no improvement whatever on the forms of government to which it has succeeded. That the time has come when the people must insist on a revisal of their expenditures is shown by the rapid increase in the cost of government within the last twenty years. It is clear that there is no need of the greatly increased expenditure which has caused the deficiency in public revenue. It is mainly due to extravagance, and if Congress will set about the task of paring down the appropriations that are wasteing the substance of the country, it will be simply doing its duty. To refuse to do this, on the other hand, and to insist upon imposing more taxes in order that there may be more money to throw away on pensions that are not deserved (for every American citizen is glad to pay pensions that are deserved), and in log rolling, river and harbor, and public building schemes, is a crime against the government and the tax payers for which those who are guilty will some day be compelled to make reckoning. In 1880, our population was 50,155,783 and the years expense was $162,404,648. In 1890. the population was 62,622,250 and the appropriations had increased so that for that year they amounted to $218,115, 440, so that while the population of the country had been growing at a rate less than 25 percent, the appropriations had increased more than 34 percent. Now for the year 1897, appropriations will be more than 86 per cent, in excess of expenses for 1880. Let us have Bryan and retrenchment, and the people's money restored etc.

Saturday and Monday the glorious 4th was celebrated, and the declaration of Independence was read, and our patriotism was rubbed down in a gentle manner; we was told what a peculiar and wonderful people we are; that the right of franchise gives us privileges envied by kings: (too true) that we are sovereigns, each and every one of us; by the nature of our institutions, one from the lowest ranks may be elevated to the highest gift the people has to bestow; that we posess in a remarkable degree, the grand realization of individual liberty; our resources are the largest; our development the most complete; the ability of our people overshadows all other nations. And in the face of all this the cry of human distress ascends to God, daily begging for the bare necessities of life. Great is the mystery of our greatness. Selah!

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent:
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prised honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault. Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO. Chicago, Ill.

Prof. Aarporath, of the Cordoba observatory, in Lima, Peru, asserts that the moon is not a satellite of the earth, but a planet.

The duke of Perck, the oldest of the English dukes, always keeps a vacant chair at his table for the Saviour, whom he daily expects.

The board of directors of the state penitentiary at Lansing, Kan., has discarded the regulation striped uniforms. The new garb of the convicts is of gray material.

A New Yorker worth $30,000,000 died recently leaving the bulk of his fortune to the legal fraternity. He accomplished the purpose by making two wills, both of which will be contested.

Lieut. Peary, has started after the north pole, and it will be well to begin at once to arrange for "a relief expedition," so as to be prompt. Even if he gets the pole, he will have to have help to bring it in.

The news from West Virginia is to the effect that Gov. Atkinson was "quietly" married. This will be gratifying information to the people who had expected that he would dance a clog to an accompaniment of tamborines, cymbals and bass drums.

The bureau of engraving and printing has decided to replace the present one, two and five-dollar silver certificates with bills which will present a more artistic appearance. This will be entirely satisfactory, provided they present their appearance oftener.

They are going to establish an experimental farm in Alaska, under Washington auspices. Food is not only dear, but hard to get at high prices. It is believed that Alaska can raise her own farm products and that with an adequate food supply the mines will yield much larger returns.

A record of fires in theaters, music halls and other places of public entertainment in the last 300 years gives a total of 1,234 conflagrations of that kind, with a loss of 22,500 lives. The importance of a careful inspection of public halls will not be disputed in the light of these figures.

A law passed by the Pennsylvania legislature and signed by the governor taxes all men over 21 years old who are unnaturalized citizens three cents per day for each day of labor. The tax is levied upon the firms and corporations employing them. It will cause a rush for naturalization papers.

Mrs. Addie W. Buzzell, of Clinton, Me., has been married and divorced five times, although only 34 years of age. In each case she has been the complainant. She says that when she has found a husband not up to her ideas of thrift, industry and congeniality she has set him aside. She is still looking for the right man to manage her farm.

In the Atlantic Monthly Charles Egbert Chaddock says: "Now, the peculiarity of being literal-minded has special reference to exoteric phenomena introduced for mental contemplation, but it is easily coexistent with the evolution of an esoteric train of ideas, the contemplation of which is nullified by familiarity incident to their production." We are willing to let it go at that.

A venerable man of 92, who lives in Chicago and who has been in the country for 27 years, has at last decided to become a citizen and has applied for naturalization papers. He says that he was not frightened into this action by fear that this state would imitate Pennsylvania in taxing aliens, but because he came to the conclusion that he stood a better chance of reaching Heaven if he was a naturalized American citizen. There may be something in this.

The Baptists of Cincinnati have celebrated the one hundred and seventh anniversary of the Duck Creek Baptist church. The church was built in 1790, rebuilt in 1835, and about 20 years ago a modern building was erected some distance away from the old church, and American reverence for things old not being great the old church was demolished. The organization has, however, been kept up. The minutes of the meeting 107 years old were read at the celebration.

Miss Juliet Corson, of New York, the dietetic reformer, whose death recently took place, merits greater honor than she ever received in her lifetime, or than her memory is likely to obtain now. We are told in "Gulliver" that the person who would make two ears of corn or two blades of grass grow where only one grew before would deserve better of mankind than the whole race of politicians. The person who would make one dollar go as far as two did before in preparing wholesome food for the poor ought to be held in grateful remembrance by society. This work the late Miss Corson did.

In spite of numerous appliances recently invented and of the improved construction of sea vessels the amount of human life annually lost upon the ocean is frightful. A British blue book has just been issued, giving statistics of the casualties to British commerce upon the sea in 1895-6. The total losses and serious and minor casualties were 6,872. In the last 20 years the average loss of life on the sea has been 1,833 persons for each year. The loss last year was slightly under that average. When it is remembered that these figures relate only to British vessels, some idea may be had of what the world's loss is.

It is not generally known that the United States mints make money for other nations as well as for our own. The mint in Philadelphia has just finished making $500,000 in five-dollar gold pieces for Costa Rica and has begun work on 300,000 silver dollars for San Domingo. The designs on the coins are often ideas of the government which send the orders, and are got up in such a way as to make imitations as difficult as possible. The coin is shipped to its destination on the regular line steamers. The report given by the mint as to the amount of precious metal used is never questioned by the foreigners.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

Two of the most important provisions of the tariff bill—those relating to the Hawaiian treaty of reciprocity and the duty on coal—were perfected in the United States senate on the 30th ult., while another source of much conflict, the reciprocity section, was matured by the finance committee and presented. Senator Turpie (Ind.) spoke in support of the amendment for a two per cent. tax on inheritances. The nomination of John Russell Young to be librarian of congress was received from the president. The house was not in session.

In the tariff bill revision in the United States senate on the 1st cotton bagging and cotton ties were placed on the free list and the duty on white pine lumber was reduced from two dollars to one dollar per thousand. The bill was completed with the exceptions of the reciprocity section and some comparatively minor paragraphs. In the house Mr. Settle (dem., Ky.) denied the right to adjourn for three days at a time and arraigned the republicans for not acting on the bankruptcy and Cuban questions. Adjourned to the 5th.

Reciprocity and retaliation were the two phases of the tariff bill to occupy the attention of the United States senate on the 2d to the exclusion of all other subjects. Both provisions were agreed to. Senator Thurston introduced an amendment to the bill to prohibit trusts. The nomination of William W. Rockhill, of the District of Columbia, to be envoy extraordinary, minister plenipotentiary and consul general to Greece, Roumania and Servia, was received from the president. The house was not in session.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Republican members of the senate committee on judiciary have practically agreed upon an amendment to the tariff bill making it an offense punishable by fine and imprisonment for any person or corporation to monopolize or conspire with any other person or corporation to monopolize trade in any article protected by the tariff bill.

For the fiscal year just closed the government deficit was $18,623,108, a reduction of $31,821,985 since March 11 last. The receipts from customs in June aggregated $21,560,152, against $11,351,803 for June, 1896. The receipts from internal revenue during June were $12,887,085, a loss as compared with June, 1896, of about $500,000.

The statement of the public debt, issued on the 1st shows that the debt decreased $10,027,966 during the month of June. The cash balance in the treasury was $871,389,358. The total debt, less the cash balance in the treasury, amounts to $355,404,344.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Sad Results of Some Independence Day Celebrations.

Chicago, July 6.—Dispatches from all sections note a general observance in the usual manner of Independence day. Among the most notable observances was that of the Tammany club, of New York, at which a letter from ex-President Cleveland was received with hisses, and a letter from Hon. William J. Bryan was enthusiastically cheered.

Ex-Gov. John P. Altgeld, of Illinois, addressed about 2,000 people in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn. The meeting was under the auspices of the democratic league of Kings county. Henry George presided and introduced Mr. Altgeld, who was greeted with hearty applause, which broke out repeatedly as he proceeded with his address. In his address Gov. Altgeld cast aside the usual Independence day platitudes and made an eloquent diagnosis of public evils.

At Philadelphia the one hundred and twenty-first anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence was celebrated in front of Independence hall. The celebration was under the auspices of the Society of the War of 1812 of Pennsylvania. The ceremonies consisted of an address by Mayor Warwick, reading of the declaration of independence and singing by school children. Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, ex-minister to England, was the orator of the day.

At London, England, the celebration was marked by fervid speeches. The principal addresses were by Ambassador Hay and Special Envoy Reid. Each extolled the virtues of Queen Victoria, and each dwelt on the kinship and the close relations of Great Britain and the United States.

At Keokuk, Ia., the tri-state celebration was a magnificent success. Large delegations attended from St. Louis, Hannibal, Quincy, Fort Madison and Burlington. The feature of the morning was a parade of five divisions. The afternoon was devoted to band concerts, races and athletic contests, exercises at Rand park, balloon ascensions and parachute leaps and a bicycle road race.

MONUMENT DEDICATED.

Shaft of First Minnesota Regiment on Gettysburg Battlefield.

Gettysburg, Pa., July 2.—The monument of the First Minnesota regiment was dedicated Friday on the Gettysburg battlefield in the presence of a number of distinguished Minnesotans.

MINNESOTA'S MONUMENT.

The monument was one of the finest on the field and was erected at a cost of $20,000.

Gov. Clough, of Minnesota, and staff and several congressmen arrived and took part in the ceremonies. Addresses were delivered by ex-Pension Commissioner Lochren, United States Senator Cushman K. Davis, Hon. Martin Maginnis, of Montana, and Col. Colville, who was wounded while in command of the regiment.

Big Strike Inaugurated.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 5.—Industrial circles are much excited over the development in the situation among several important trades. On the verge of the declaration of coal miners of the Pittsburgh district to take the lead in the general suspension of the coal mining industry came the concession of the tin plate and Amalgamated Association of the Iron and Steel Workers. The miners' officials here say that idleness will prevail in the majority of all the rail and river mines in the Pittsburgh district. They claim that the struggle for higher wages will be of short duration and that by reason of the great demand for coal for the lake trade at this season of the year they will be granted an advance before the operators lose large contracts for the future delivery of coal. The officials claim that a conservative estimate fixes the number of men who will go on strike in Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio and Illinois at 200,000. They hope to increase this number as the strike sentiment grows.

Storm at Duluth.

Duluth, Minn., July 5.—A terrific rainstorm visited Duluth Friday night, breaking all records. The rain fell in blinding sheets. It seemed as though the bottom had dropped out of the heavens. It was a cloudburst. Never during the 26 years the weather bureau has been established in Duluth was there such a fall of rain in such a short space of time, and the streams and creeks all swollen to such enormous size The damage done by the storm in Duluth and surrounding towns will amount to over $200,000. Streets are literally torn out in many places, pavements all over the city are rooted up, parks sadly damaged, and the loss to the city alone will be tremendous. The private losses also will run very high. Houses have been loosened from their foundations, especially at the west end, cellars all over the city were filled, basements of stores were flooded, horses and cows were drowned, and an endless amount of smaller damage was done. Fortunately, so far as known, there was no loss of life in the city.

Winners in the Pullman Road Race.

Chicago, July 6.—Four hundred and eighty men of the 515 entries started in the Pullman road race and 466 finished. Carl Anthony Anderson, a young Swede 23 years of age, was the first rider over the tape. He was in the seven-minute class. Five thousand people lined the ropes on the finish stretch on One Hundredth and Eleventh street. Ten times that number saw the riders along the 16-mile course. The time winner was Charles Lavin, of the Pizen club, with unofficial time at 40 minutes and 10 seconds—1 minute and 9 seconds less than the Pullman record made by James Levy last year.

FOURTH OF JULY CASUALTIES.

How It Was Observed in Various Places.

New Bedford, Mass., July 6.—Henry B. Stone, formerly president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, and president of the Chicago Telephone company, was instantly killed at Nonquitt Monday morning by an explosion of fireworks. Mr. Stone, with his family and other summer residents of Nonquitt, was celebrating the holiday with a handsome display of day fireworks. Among them was a mine which was so devised as to scatter paper animals of various colors. Mr. Stone had applied the torch to this piece but for some reason it did not appear as if the spark was going to reach the mine. Mr. Stone advanced and took the piece up in his hands when it exploded, striking him full in the face. His features were badly mutilated and he sustained a compound fracture of the skull.

Chicago, July 6. — By the careless handling of fireworks and other explosives Monday five persons were killed and more than a score injured. The loss of property by fire was not so great as in celebrations in previous years.

Hedrick, Ia., July 5.—By a premature explosion of fireworks at the celebration here two people were killed and several wounded. A spark in the fireworks caused the accident.

Warsaw, Ind., July 5.—The Independence day celebration at this city was marred by an accident at Lakeside park, a resort north of town. Owing to a careless thumping of the vent a cannon exploded prematurely, injuring the following: Andrew Pollock, arm torn off, recovery doubtful; A. A. Charles, arm broken and body bruised; Vernon Carron, hip torn by ramrod.

Sterling, Ill., July 5.—The town of Erie, one of the prettiest in Whiteside county, with a population of 1,600, is largely in ruins. Fire broke out there at ten o'clock Saturday morning that in a short time consumed 13 buildings—stores and residences. A firecracker started the blaze.

EDUCATORS MEET.

National Council Holds Its First Session in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, July 6.—The National Council of Education, which meets prior to the National Educational association, began its first session here Monday morning, most of the members being present. The morning session was devoted to "The High School and Its Functions" and a report of the committee on secondary schools. W. H. Bartholomew, chairman of the committee, submitted a report covering an investigation as to the high schools of 46 cities, including most of the principal ones in the country. From this report it appears that one-half of one per cent. of the scholastic population, or 15 per cent. of the number entering, graduated from the high schools. With few exceptions the schools are in public favor. Many have well-selected libraries, while others are permitted to use public libraries furnished by the city or state. All the high schools except one prepare pupils for entrance into college. Fifty per cent. have a regular course of physical training. Eighty per cent. are coeducational. The north and east, with few exceptions, tend to coeducation, but the south and west to the opposite. There is a growing sentiment in favor of separation. The afternoon session was given up to "The Athletic Element in Education," which was considered by Mr. John Dewey, of the University of Chicago; W. T. Harris, United States commissioner of education, and Miss Mary E. Nicholson, principal of the normal school at Indianapolis, Ind.

Leaped from Brooklyn Bridge.

New York, July 5.—Another candidate for fame met death Sunday in jumping from the Brooklyn bridge. He was Capt. W. C. Keeble, who had a reputation for jumping from bridges and masts of vessels. The bridge police received a "tip" of the coming event on Saturday evening. Capt. Ward at once ordered three patrolmen stationed at either end of the bridge, while an officer in citizens' clothes was sent to watch the house where it was learned that Keeble lived. The officer remained there until nine o'clock Sunday morning, when he returned to the bridge office. Two hours later Keeble, with three companions, left the house in a coach and drove to the Catherine street ferry, where they crossed over to Brooklyn and from there went to the bridge entrance, paid their fare and proceeded slowly to the center of the span on the north roadway, when the coach stopped and the party alighted. Officer Thomas Grady, who was some distance away, saw Keeble climb to the top of the rail and, running toward him, shouted to him to stop. Before he could reach him the man had leaped feet foremost. His body made two complete revolutions before it reached the water, 140 feet below, when it struck the water with a splash, disappeared and was not seen afterwards. The police arrested the driver of the coach and five others.

Fell from a Balloon.

San Francisco, July 6. — Bertrand Hill, the six-year-old son of Chauncey Hill, of Los Angeles, fell from a balloon 1,500 feet above the earth at Oakland Monday and whirled downward to his death. Three thousand persons saw his horrible fate and women fainted and strong men shed tears. Charles Conlan, an aeronaut, was advertised to make a parachute drop from a balloon at Blair's park Monday afternoon and a great crowd gathered to witness the event. Little Bertrand was there and was heard to say he wanted to go up. The balloon was filled and set free with Conlan on a trapeze. Suddenly a great cry went up from the crowd, for a boy's figure was seen holding fast to one of the sand bags placed on the side of the balloon to turn it over when the aeronaut dropped. The balloonist could not reach the boy, as he was nearly 40 feet below the child.

Four Drowned in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., July 6.—A terrible accident occurred on the river Monday night, which resulted in the drowning of four persons. They are: Miss Josie Sanders and Miss Mary Arbor, both of Little Rock, and Joseph and Jacob Dante, brothers, of Pine Bluffs. Miss Sanders, Miss Arbor and the Dante brothers were in a skiff on the river, where they had gone to view the fireworks. A steamer ran down the skiff, throwing all the occupants into the water.

SHOULD PAY A TAX.

Senator Lodge Proposes a Plan to Increase Revenue.

Washington, July 3.—The provision for a tax on stock and bond transactions in connection with the tariff bill, which was agreed upon at the caucus of republican senators, was suggested by Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, and grew out of a statement that with the tea and beer provisions withdrawn the tariff bill was likely to fall short to the extent of $15,000,000 in providing sufficient revenue to meet the demands of the government.

The suggestion as made by Senator Lodge was that a tax of two cents per share should be levied upon every share of stock sold at a stock exchange or at any other place, and that a similar tax of two cents should be collected upon all bonds sold on the stock exchanges or elsewhere. The caucus accepted the suggestion, but decided to leave the formulation of the amendment, with a possible change of rates, to the finance committee. The committee took the matter up at its early meeting Friday, but did not reach a definite conclusion as to the details involved in the proposition. A rough estimate places the amount of revenue the provision will furnish at $7,000,000.

Reciprocity and retaliation clauses were adopted by the senate as part of the tariff bill Friday. The retaliatory clause provides that whenever any country bestows an export bounty on any article there shall be levied, in addition to the duties provided by the act, an additional duty equal to the amount of the bounty.

The reciprocity clause empowers the president, with the advice and consent of the senate, to make reciprocity treaties giving 20 per cent. reduction in duties on designated articles, or placing articles on the free list.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE.

President May Recommend Creation of Currency Commission.

Washington, July 3.—The question whether the president will send a special message to congress recommending the creation of a currency commission will be definitely decided next week. The president is strongly inclined at this time to send a special currency message to congress regarding himself as in a considerable measure pledged to this course. In fact, it was semi-officially announced at the white house late Friday afternoon that such a message would be sent to congress next week, but some of the president's most influential advisers on financial questions are opposed to a message as impolitic at this time owing to hostility to a commission on the part of congress, and the final determination, as stated, will not be reached until Mr. McKinley returns from Canton.

The matter was under discussion at the cabinet meeting Friday, but not in a manner to lead to a definite conclusion or policy, and the matter went over until the president's return to the city next week, when it is probable that Mr. H. H. Hanna, who is chairman of the executive committee of the Indianapolis convention, and perhaps other members of the committee, will come to Washington to discuss the situation with the president and Mr. Gage. Upon the result of the conference will probably depend President McKinley's action as to a special message to congress.

M'KINLEY IN CANTON.

Residents Enthusiastically Welcome the President.

Canton, O., July 5. — President McKinley and party reached the city on the 10:30 train and were met at the depot by the citizens en masse. A large proportion of the populace marched in a parade to receive and escort the party, bands, military companies, old soldiers and the organizations of last fall's campaign being conspicuous in the line. Thousands of others went to the depot unorganized, and the crowd there almost equaled that of the 1st of March, when the president departed for the inauguration. Booming cannon announced the train as it crossed the city boundary line.

Canton respected President McKinley's request that he be permitted to pass a quiet Sunday. While many of his old neighbors and fellow townsmen called at the home of his aged mother to pay their respects, there was no formality about his sojourn in the city, and he and his friends with him were permitted to pass the time as pleasantly and as restfully as the intense heat of the day would permit. The president and his venerable mother attended services at the First M. E. church, of which he is still a director.

Wants Another Party.

Detroit, Mich., July 5.—Col. E. H. Sellers, of this city, who has been a prominent member of the A. P. A. and an organizer in patriotic association movements, has mailed several thousand copies of an address urging the formation of a new political party and calling a convention for that purpose at St. Louis, August 25. Col. Sellers says that the address is authorized by a committee consisting of members from nearly every state. It declares that the people's government is being supplanted by a union of the old political parties with corporate power. The document urges "immediate action toward the formation of a new political party, embracing a national, individual, American republican form of government, with an autonomy of its own, and divested of all the primitive barbarous conditions of the world that have conspired in the past to enslave the conscience and political life of mankind."

Pugilists Can't Fight.

New York, July 6.—The exhibition sparring bout between Robert Fitzsimmons and John L. Sullivan, scheduled for Monday afternoon at Ambrose park, Brooklyn, did not take place. Martin Julian announced to a large crowd of spectators that the police had forbidden the contest, and that therefore the principals had concluded to withdraw rather than violate the law.

Three Drowned.

Highland Falls, N. Y., July 5.—A party of West Pointers, consisting of Charles Mickel, his wife and daughter, Mrs. Holtz and Adam Meisell, were rowing in Long pond Sunday afternoon when the boat capsized and Mrs. Mickel and child were drowned. First Sergt. Anthony Brechbeil, of company E, battalion of engineers, swam out to the rescue, and he, too, was drowned.

HUMMING BIRDS.

A Diminutive Home and Its Tiny Little Eggs.

Suddenly a glint shot from the point where my gaze was dreamily focussed. That was all; but suspicion and savage instincts were aroused. For ten minutes my eyes followed the contour of each of the small boughs 20 feet above me, mere twigs from a higher and greater branch, which in turn declined from a mighty outstretched arm of the giant. Presently suspicion centered in an insignificant, lichen-covered wart on the upper side of a branch as large, perhaps, as a lady's wrist. It was like a dozen others, yet not exactly like them. The lichen seemed to me just a shade grayer and more regular, and the knob was a trifle too round. I feared to take my eyes away, lest it were lost before I had proved it to be only a natural excrescence. The sudden glint again struck my eye, there was a strange, tuneful hum, and—Eureka! Directly above the point I was watching there hovered, with wings vibrating themselves into a misty point, an exquisite ruby-throat. Then it settled on the diminutive cup of lichen, and I had found my first humming bird's nest. By climbing far up above, and then crawling carefully down on a separate limb, one could look over the nest, scarcely a yard away, to admire the tiny white eggs and even more fairy-like nest, marvelously woven inside with the finest and softest fiber, and coated on the outer periphery against the weather with delicate lichen, which just turned the rim, so as to shed any insistent raindrop that might penetrate the manifold roof of leaves overhead. The whole would have fitted in a circle made by joining the index finger and thumb.—C. D. Lanier, in Scribner's.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe has been re-elected president of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's clubs, although she was unable to be present at the annual meeting in Great Barrington on account of ill health.

The railway statistics for May developed 121 roads, including certain Canadian and Mexican lines operating 98,280 miles, which earned almost $2,000,000 more than for a corresponding period in 1896. This is an increase of 5.14 per cent.

"Jeanie Deane's" gravestone in Irongray churchyard is being chipped away by relic hunters. The name of the girl, whose story Sir Walter Scott used in the "Heart of Midlothian," and whose appeal to the duke of Argyll procured her sister's pardon, was Helen Walker.

In Bridgeport, Ct., they have a "hat matron," who is appointed by the mayor to visit the leading theaters of the city and request women wearing tall hats to remove them. When a woman refuses to comply, her name is reported to all the managers of theaters, who refuse to sell her any front or desirable seat in the house.

George Dolby, who was Charles Dickens' manager during his readings in this country, says that the great author was always very careful as to what he ate and drank, and that much of his good health was due to this watchfulness.

It is called a transporting carpet. Endless belts of canvas have been used for some time to convey packages from place to place within the store.

GAVE THE WAITER HIS FEE.

An Irascible Man's Ignorance of the Law Costs Him a Liberal Tip.

The globular and florid old gentleman, as he sat down at the table, pulled a dollar bill out of his pocket, deliberately tore it in two, handed one piece to the waiter, replaced the other in his pocket, and said:

"Waiter, if I am satisfied, you get the other half. Do you understand?"

"Yes, sir," replied the functionary, and became as assiduous as a mother with her first child.

But for some inexplicable reason the old gentleman grew more and more dissatisfied as his meal progressed, until, as he arose from the table, he simply scowled angrily at the expectant waiter.

"Excuse me, sir, but—" the waiter insinuated obsequiously.

"Naw," snarled the old fellow in reply.

"Oh, yes; I think you will," observed the waiter, his backbone visibly stiffening.

"Don't you be impudent, young man," advised the old fellow, threateningly.

"Don't you be a chump," advised the waiter, contemptuously.

"Why, why, wh—at?" screamed the old gentleman, swelling like an enraged turkey cock. "I'll—I'll report you for insolence, you—you villain!"

"I don't think you will," retorted the waiter, calmly and firmly. "Come, hand over the other half of this bill. I need a dollar to go to the theater."

"Explain yourself, you rascal," demanded the old fellow, a great and portentous calm enveloping him. "Now, what does this mean?"

"It means at this minute you are a lawbreaker, sir," replied the waiter, suavely. "Mutilating the currency is a crime, and you have mutilated a dollar bill. Therefore, unless I get the dollar you'll be pinched. See?"

As the waiter pocketed the dollar, he smiled.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

PARTING MOMENTS.

Three minutes! Aye, the fateful clock,
With measured movement seems to mock
My hopes and prayers,
And what I hope I do not know;
I feel my spirits sinking low
With weight of fears.

Three minutes! Will no power restrain
The hand that counts them, and again
My peace restore?
I plead in vain; they will not stay;
They pass, alas! away, away,
Forevermore!

Three minutes, and the end will be!
I'll vainly look that face to see
I now behold.
Yet I these moments' memories will,
Deep in my heart, though good or ill,
Fore'er enfold.

Good-by! What future time may bring
Of pain, or joy, or anything,
We cannot tell.
We know that truth, at last, shall reign,
And God shall make His purpose plain,
And all be well.

A Clever Little Woman.

THe rain was dashing against the hospital window one afternoon in March when I made my rounds. I left Marta to the last, as I felt that on a dreary day like this she would be more than ever glad of a chat.

I had not sat beside her for five minutes before I found that she was in a highly-strung condition, her eyes were so bright, her skin dry, and her pulses quivering with their rapid beats. After a few commonplaces, I said:

"What is it, Marta? What is the matter to-day? You have no new pain—no fresh trouble?"

"No monsieur," she answered, "it is that I cannot still my thoughts—to-day is the anniversary—" and she stopped.

Her beautiful gray eyes were full of tears, and she was trying hard to exercise self control.

"Tell me," I said, "all about the anniversary."

"It was 12 years ago to-day since I met my husband, Jean Louvain," she began eagerly, "and our meeting was a strange one indeed! I was in search of a clever forger—whom the police believed to be a woman—and I had to go to Riviera in search of her. I had been in the Hospital of St. Jacques to see a man whom I thought could give me information, and it occurred to me suddenly that the dress of a Sister of Mercy would be a good disguise. I left Paris in time to reach Marseilles early one lovely morning, and going to the house of a friend I changed my clothes, and scarcely recognized myself as I looked in the great glass at the railway station. No hair could be seen, and the large collar and winged cap gave me quite a different expression. I had bought a smal bag, exactly like those the sisters carry, to hold the things I needed, and I had my papers sewn inside a dress I wore. I was young then and the cases that interested me occupied me so entirely that I became sleepless and suffered at times from sudden faintness, which would be succeeded by violent pains in my head. To alleviate these troubles I carried always a bottle of ether and a tiny phial of chloroform, both wrapped for safety in a square of jewelers' cotton."

"Ah, I see!" interrupted I. "Your forger found them, and used them to stupefy you!"

"Pardon, monsieur," she returned, "my tale is better than that! At Marseilles I got into a compartment whence several people descended, and a man, who was its sole occupant, tried to prevent my entrance, as if unconsciously; but I looked sharply at him and got in. He then placed his arms on the doorway and blocked the window until the train left the station; then he threw himself on the seat in the corner farthest from me on the opposite side, and flung off the large cloak he was wearing.

"To my surprise and horror, I saw he was partly dressed as a woman, and he took from beneath the seat a bag like those in which workmen carry their tools and quietly continued his toilet. Naturally I watched him. He was small and slight, and very fair, and when he took off his coat and waistcoat, collar and tie, I saw a great scar beneath the left ear going right under his chin.

"I knew him instantly; he was Druette, the man whom I believed safely in prison at Toulon, who was the most ingenious and cruel of a gang of thieves who had infested Paris for three years, and who had been cleverly captured three months before. The captor had received 5,000 francs, and now he was at large again, and here before me in this narrow compartment. He stopped his toilet, and said to me, in the quiet, clear voice which I knew to be one of his characteristics:

"My sister, I am running for my life. My life is dear to me, and nothing shall stand in the way of my freedom—do you understand? Nothing!"

"As he said this he took from his bag a large, sharp knife, such as shoemakers use, and laid it on the seat beside him. Judge, monsieur, how I felt. Thought is quick, and my brain had traveled far in the few minutes of the journey. Here was Durette; if only I could capture him—the reward would make my dear invalid mother rich for the rest of her life! I would try, I would think; I would not quail. But first I must act! I shrank into my corner at his words and trembled, and let the tears fill my eyes as I looked up appealingly at him.

"'Fear not, dear sister,' he said mockingly; 'if you do as I say, you have nothing to dread. I shall quit the train at Toulon, and you must talk to me as if I were coming home to my family, and you had made acquaintance with me at Lyons.'

"Of course I promised, and he went on arranging himself. His hair was short, and he put on a black woman's wig and earrings in his ears; he had a skirt twisted around at his waist, and this he let down, then he made me fasten a white chemisette, and he put on a bodice, which I laced. Judge how I was thinking, monsieur! My hands trembled with excitement, for the train was rushing on, and it is barely one hour between Marseilles and Toulon. He talked—I suppose he was glad to speak again after his solitary imprisonment—he reassured me kindly, and said he would not harm me if I obeyed him, and he made me vow on the cross I wore that I would say no word till he was out of sight.

"'And I shall watch your train away, my sister,' he added.

"After I had finished dressing him, I went back to my seat, and then I laughed. He looked furious, and asked me why I was such a fool. I said his face was a fair woman's, and his hair a dark one's, and he would be noticed directly. He scowled at me, and said 'Idiot!' but at the same time he brought from his bag a bottle of dye and a brush, and began to color his hands. The stuff would not run, and he shook the bottle violently, but it came in lumps. 'I want some spirit,' he said, viciously, and he swore—oh, monsieur, so awfully.

"I trembled really this time, for it was so fearful to be shut up with such a wretch! Then an inspiration came to me, and I said: 'See, I have no cognac, but I take a medicine sometimes which is a spirit,' and I poured some of the ether into his bottle and shook it. It ran beautifully, became a clear, brown liquid; he scarcely looked a 'thank you,' but rapidly painted his hands, using his left as cleverly as his right; then he tried his face — and then I laughed again, this time with joy, for I had regained my courage, and I felt I should capture him.

"'Why do you laugh now?' he said, fiercely.

"'Because you are making your cheeks too dark, your eyelids are white, and you have left a rim around your lips,' I said, in as steady a voice as I could command.

"'Good heavens!' he exclaimed, and then he said to me: 'Take this brush and paint me.'

"I took it, and pretended to tremble as I touched his face.

"'Fool!' he shrieked. 'I will not hurt you—see how the train rushes—lose no time!'

"'Bien, monsieur,' I replied; 'you must do as I tell you, then.' I caught up his cloak and put it around him, as a barber puts his cloth, and, telling him to shut his eyes, I began to paint the lids The next moment I transferred the brush to my left hand, and with my right I took out the stopper from the chloroform bottle, and poured half the contents on the wadding that had been around it. Happily, it was a large piece, and, dropping the brush, I pressed it suddenly over his nose and mouth, and saturated it with the ether.

"The suddenness of the action took him so much by surprise that for one second he was quite quiet, and I dashed the bottle of dye right at his eyes as he opened them, still pressing the pad over his nose. He was blinded for the moment, his arms were tangled in the cloak, and if only the chloroform did its work, and I could hold him down! The agony of those few seconds will never be effaced. He tried to reach the knife, monsieur, but I kicked it off the seat away, just as I perceived that his frantic efforts were becoming fainter; and one more violent struggle on my part kept the wadding in its place, and he succumbed; his head dropped back, and his arms fell powerlessly beside him.

"I had no knowledge of the action of anaesthetics, and now a dread possessed me lest I had killed him. I remembered having heard somewhere that slight people of quick brains were specially susceptible to these influences, and I thought perhaps I should only take a dead body into Toulon.

"He looked so ghastly with the streaks of paint on his livid skin. I placed my hand on his heart, and felt his wrist—most thankful was I to find a pulsation. Then I seated myself on the floor, keeping my fingers on his wrist and having in my lap the bottle of chloroform to pour on the pad if I felt his pulses quicken too much.

"I have had many trying journeys, but never another to match this. I am not cruel by nature, and sitting there during the quarter of an hour of the journey that remained, I wondered how I could have acted as I did—it seemed as if I could not be Marta Leclerc.

"At length the train slackened, and then drew up at the platform for examining tickets. Two guards opened the door, and I jumped up and rushed from the carriage: and in my excitement, I shrieked: 'Durette! Durette!'

"'What of Durette?' exclaimed a tall man, who advanced from the carriage behind.

"'He is there—it is he!' I said, and fainted in the arms of the man beside me. I remembered no more till I awoke in the room of the superintendent. I found the chief of the station, some policemen and the tall man standing around me.

"'This is Jean Louvain, warder of the prison at Toulon,' said the superintendent. 'Durette escaped from him yesterday, and he was clever enough to suspect he would return to Toulon, but he did not look for him dressed as a woman.'

"'Nor did I expect to find him caught by a woman,' said the deep voice of Jean Louvain. And that was how I met my husband."—N. Y. Weekly.

He Meant Well.

The story is told in a New Hampshire town of a half-demented boy who one Sunday escaped from the poor farm, and in the course of his wanderings entered the "orthodox" church. The day was hot and the sermon long: the congregation drowsed in their seats, or sleepily fanned themselves and wished the minister would draw his remarks to a close. Suddenly the half-witted boy entered at the rear of the church, with his arms loaded with apples. He threw one of them at the right-hand wall, where it hit with a squashing sound, and scattered down upon the head of a slumbering deacon, who gave a sudden start and sat up very straight. The minister paused and addressed the sexton, who had also suddenly wakened from a nap. "Remove that disturber at once," he said, with some severity. "Don't you mind me, parson," answered the half-wit, as he aimed another apple; "you go right along with what you were saying, and I'll keep 'em awake for you as long as you say."—Youth's Companion.

"Now We Shan't Be Long."

He was an earnest teacher, and was instructing a class in history, at the same time profiting by the occasion to instill a true patriotic feeling in the breasts of his young pupils.

"Now," said he, at the end of the lesson, "what was that famous phrase addressed by Wellington to the guards, and which will never, never die?"

Every boy knew what the phrase was, apparently, for every hand was lifted.

"Well, boys, what is the phrase?"

"Now we shan't be long," was the triumphant answer.—Answers.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

THE OLD COUNTRY ROAD.

From the busy haunts of farmer-folk
It starts on its winding way,
Goes over the hill, and across the brook,
Where the minnows love to play;
Beside the mill with its water-wheel,
And the pond so dark and deep,
Then up to the tavern and village store,
And the church, where the dead lie asleep.

You would never think that the country road,
From the hill to the store, could be
So long to a boy with an errand to do
And another boy to see.
You can never dream how short it is
From the farm to the frozen pond,
Nor how very much farther it always is
To the schoolhouse just beyond.

Oh, the country road! at the farther end
It runs up hill and down,
Away from the woods and the rippling brook,
To the toiling, rushing town.
But, best of it all when you're tired and sick
Of the weary haunts of men,
If you follow it back, it will lead you home
To the woods and fields again.

IMPROVED ROAD MAKING.

An Interesting Interview with the Secretary of Agriculture.

The importance of good roads is recognized by all, and so is the expense necessary to produce them considered of equal significance. Upon the subject William E. Curtis, in the Chicago Record, says: Secretary Wilson has given directions to Gen. Roy Stone, chief of the bureau of good roads at the department of agriculture, to construct a sample steel roadway at the most convenient location he can find at the Nashville exposition, where it may be seen and studied by the visitors who will attend during the summer. Secretary Wilson thinks the steel trackway for wagons is the easiest solution of the good-roads problem, particularly in the west, where stone and gravel are scarce and the soil is deep and sticky.

"No road material promises so much hope to the western farmers as the flat bars of steel at the present cost of manufacture," said the secretary, "and I propose to have sample roads built, not only at the Nashville exposition, but at different points throughout the country, where they will afford practical object lessons to county commissioners and other officials having the highways under their charge. The steel manufacturers are taking hold of the matter with much interest, and are making experiments on their own account, which have already brought out valuable suggestions as to the details of construction. The Cambria Iron company of Johnstown, Pa., has joined heartily in the work of the department, and is cooperating in the development of our plans. The result has been that very promising designs and methods of construction have been evolved, sufficient, at least, for experimental construction, and the Cambria company will soon be prepared to furnish the trackway for experiments or for larger use.

"The advantage of the steel roads in the reduction of the pull required to move a load from an average of 40 pounds per ton on macadam road to eight pounds on the steel track is sufficient to overcome many objections," continued the secretary; "but, in fact, the objections to steel roads have mainly disappeared under the present investigations. The obstacle of original expense is overcome by the reduced price of material, and the anticipated high cost of maintenance avoided by doing away entirely with wood in the construction.

"The danger of horses slipping on the rail in going up and down hill is met by indenting the rails used on grades sufficiently to catch the calks of the shoes without roughing the tread for wheels.

"The difficulty of low joints is met by making the joint stronger than any other part of the track, and the danger of forming a rut alongside the rail is overcome by making every rail joint serve as a 'remount' for wheels. The form of rail proposed is an inverted trough with a slightly-raised bead on the inside. The rail is imbedded in gravel laid in a trench which is well drained. A little gravel is spread between the rails for the horse path. The rails are tied together at the ends and in the middle. The present design is for an eight-inch tread, seven-sixteenths of an inch thick.

"In addition to the steel road, another recent departure is in the direction of building object roads at agricultural colleges and experiment stations," continued the secretary "in accordance with the provision made by congress for aiding those institutions in disseminating information on the subject of road building. Cooperation has now been established by the director of roads under which the manufacturers of road machinery furnish the necessary plant free of charge, the county or city authorities provide the material, and the labor of men and teams, and the government furnishes an engineer to oversee the work and instruct students and visitors, and pays for one or two skilled operators for the machines. In this manner a very slight outlay of public funds accomplishes a large amount of instructive work. The work will begin at the New Jersey agricultural college, at New Brunswick, where a fund of about $3,000 will be provided by the local authorities, and at Geneva, N. Y., where contributions have been made by the city, the experiment station and private individuals amounting to about $7,000.

"In sections where stone is very scarce," said Secretary Wilson, "as in central Illinois, experiments are being made for the construction of brick roads. At Monmouth a road has been made of a single course of vitrified brick set on edge, laid on sand, seven feet wide between curbs of oak plank and borders of broken stone to a distance of two feet on each side. This road has not been in use long enough to be fully tested, but has given a very favorable impression at the outset. It has been recommended that an experiment be made with brick trackways for wheels and gravel between for the tread of horses, and it is quite possible that steel trackways may be profitably substituted for brick.

"Gravel roads cost less than macadam and vary from $1,000 to $2,000 per mile. The seven-foot brick road at Monmouth, Ill., cost 90 cents per running foot, or $4,750 per mile. The eight-foot brick roads at Cleveland range from $8,000 to $13,000 per mile, but this included heavy grading. Material for steel roads of the heaviest class of present design cost, in small quantity, about $3,500 per mile. The amount of material, however, is less than 100 tons per mile, and if the present prices of steel should be maintained material for long lines of road could be furnished for about $2,000 per mile. The lighter class of steel rails for ordinary country roads need not exceed 50 tons per mile, and need not cost much over $1,000 per mile. The cost of grading and track-laying will be additional, but that need not be heavy on the western prairies, for the rails are all prepared to be bolted together."

COOPERATION PAYS.

A Wisconsin Dairyman Points Out Some of Its Advantages.

The success of the cooperative system is brought about in the main by its predominating simplicity. No business enterprise can meet with success without a complete understanding of its details by the promoters. In the cooperative system in vogue to-day the monthly statement issued shows to each and every patron the part he has enacted to accomplish the given whole. He sees just what he has done, and what it has benefited him in dollars and cents. He sees just what his employes have accomplished, and sees just what they receive for the same. He knows the value of his milk product for the month in point of test. He knows the test is true, unbiased, and he questions it not. His weights are actual. He has full confidence and pride in the enterprise and realizes that he himself is a part of the corporate body, with rights unquestioned. On the other hand, in the case of the noncooperative creamery, the patron is in no way consulted as to the management of its affairs. He has no voice in the selection of its officers. If he questions the accuracy of his weights or tests or insinuates that the price for his product is less than he reasonably supposes it should be, he is trespassing upon dangerous grounds. He has no right to an insight of the working of its affairs. He is simply expected to be a patron, whose duty is merely to furnish the material from which others are to make profits.

The marked success of the cooperative creamery is noticeable in almost every locality in which it has been established. It almost invariably increases the area of its territory and supplants all other systems, its honest, open, simple methods winning the admiration of all observers. In my county, where five years ago the cooperative system was unknown, there are to-day in successful operation 16 creameries, averaging in receipts 5,000 to 20,000 pounds of milk per day, and in the summer months some of them reaching over 30,000. Almost every one of these factories supplanted other systems, and it is a noticeable fact that in nearly every instance the same territory under the cooperative system has largely increased, and in many cases doubled its product, owing to the popularity of the system and the unshaken confidence of the producers. I predict for the system a successful future.—H. S. Bell, in Orange Judd Farmer.

THE CANKER WORM.

Its Presence Is an Evidence of Neglect and Carelessness.

The canker-worm is a leaf-eating insect and should, therefore, be dispatched with Paris green. In fact, it is the very insect upon which the first efficient experiments were made with that insecticide and from which the recent development of the spraying of trees has come. An insect which has done so much good as to have demonstrated the means of its own destruction and to have given the hint for the annihilation of all its allies, should be held in pleasant remembrance.

Yet the orchardists complain that they cannot kill the canker-worm with poisons. Some persons even declare that its keenest delight is to feed on Paris green. It is well known, however, that the insect is as susceptible to poison as other leaf-feeding worms, and there are experiments enough on record to show that spraying is capable of wiping out the pest. It is evident, therefore, that the reason why so many people fail to kill it by spraying is because they do not perform the work thoroughly and in season; and then, it is a fact that the worm very often becomes thoroughly established and settled in an orchard before the orchardist ever notices it, or at least before he decides to do anything about it. It is probably impossible to rid an orchard of the worm in a single season if the pest is so numerous as to devour all the leaves.—Rural World.

SHORT DAIRY NOTES.

Milk is sensitive and so is the cow.

Stagnant pools are no places for the cows to drink.

Milk the cow where the flies will not be eating her up.

The palate that prefers sour cream to sweet cream butter is depraved.

Warbles damage cattle to the extent of millions of dollars, taking the world together.

The very utmost care must be taken in hot weather to keep the dairy utensils sweet.

That dog that has fun barking at or chasing the cows is an expensive animal on the farm.

Good cows are pretty high in price, but it will probably be a long time before they are much lower.

If you have no ice or other means of keeping the butter cool, you will soon need a jug to market it in.—Western Plowman.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

The Carnival.

"The Carnival of Polaris" is the unique name which has been chosen for the name and theme of the carnival next fall at Minneapolis. A committee was recently appointed to select a name and make out an outline program for the carnival, and it has reported to the directors suggesting this name as the most satisfactory and significant, and as well adapted to the requirements of the occasion.

On the first night, on the street, the program will be: Triumphal march of Polaris and his hosts; pageant of Ceres and her hosts; betrothal of Ceres and Polaris; Cronus and Rhea (parents of Ceres) deliver Ceres to Polaris; Polaris orders Pluto to restore to Ceres her daughter, Peresphone, who has been six months within the earth, thus symbolizing the process of nature by which seed sown in the ground comes forth into life. In the Exposition Building the first night will occur the wedding of Polaris and Ceres; presentation of the gifts of the gods (merchants' donations); celebration of the marriage feast; procession of the Planets; tableaux of fixed stars; chorus of 50 voices.

The second night, on the river front, will be devoted to farewell ovations to Polaris and Ceres; festivities; carnival of the Constellations, and a grand display of fireworks.

Raised Their Wages.

The schedule presented by the switchmen of the Duluth & Iron Range railway about May 10, has been acted upon and partially conceded. The main concession is an advance of 10 cents per night, the pay previously allowed, and a stipulation regarding overtime. Several minor things asked for were not conceded, but the committee was informed that another conference would be given. The new scale of wages took effect June 1, though it was not generally known until the 1st of July. This involves the pay of about 150 men.

The State Fair.

At a meeting of the managers of the State Aricultural society, the first day of the fair, Monday, Sept. 6, was set aside as Labor day, and the secretary was instructed to confer with labor leaders in order to interest them in the exhibition. The other days of the fair have been set apart as follows: Tuesday, Sept. 7, Minneapolis day; Wednesday, Sept. 8, Minnesota Territorial and State day; Thursday, Sept. 9, St. Paul day; Friday, Sept. 10, Farmers' day; Saturday, Sept. 11, Bicycle day. These arrangements are subject to change on the part of the executive committee if it should be deemed advisable.

Dead Indians.

Five Indians, including Chief Wee-Sug, are dead at Malone's Point, on Mille Lacs Lake, and several others are expected to die as a result of drinking "pain killer," hair oil and other preparations containing alcohol. The Indian payment has been going on there, and the Indians gorged themselves with this stuff, which was bought from Malone's trading post. Indian riders are now scouring every part of the reservation to bring the band together at the Point, and serious trouble may result, as the redskins think Malone is to blame for the deaths.

Knocks Out Kandiyohi

The supreme court has handed in a decision, signed by Judge Canty, knocking out the claims of the Kandiyohi county people to the state capitol site. It seems that years ago a tract of land was set apart in that county for capitol purposes, but the supreme court holds that the legislature can go about building a capitol without first disposing of that land, given for the purpose.

Kidnapped.

Elizabeth A. McDonald, of Duluth, who was given the custody of the two children when she received a divorce from her husband, Jack McDonald, a few weeks ago, has complained that her children have disappeared. Mrs. McDonald says she has learned that her former husband has gone to Canada, and she fears that he has kidnapped the children.

BEAUTY IS BLOOD DEEP.

Pure, Healthy Blood Means Beautiful Complexion — Intestinal Microbes Poison the Blood When the Bowels Are Constipated. Drive Them Out by Making the Liver Lively.

"Beauty is skin deep." That is wrong. Beauty is blood deep.

A person constipated, with a lazy liver, bilious blood, dyspeptic stomach, has pimples and liver spots and a sole leather complexion.

No one with a furred tongue, a bad breath, a jaundiced eye, can be beautiful, no matter how perfect are form and features.

To be beautiful, to become beautiful, or remain beautiful, the blood must be kept pure and free from bile, microbes, disease-germs and other impurities.

Cascarets Candy Cathartic will do it for you quickly, surely, naturally. They never grip nor gripe, but make the liver lively, prevent sour stomach, kill disease-germs, tone up the bowels, purify the blood, and make all things right, as they should be. Then beauty comes of itself and to stay.

Buy and try Cascarets to-day. It's what they do, not what we say they do, that will please you. All druggists, 10c, 25c or 50c, or mailed for price. Send for booklet and free sample. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago, Montreal, Can., or New York.

An Actual Occurrence.

One of the recently-arrived Irish girls obtained a situation in a fashionable house on Madison avenue, where there is a telephone, something that was utterly unknown to Bridget. After she had been in the house a day or two she appeared before her mistress, with her wardrobe under her arm, and said:

"Oi'm after lavin' yer, mum."

"This is rather sudden, Bridget," remarked her mistress. "Can't you remain a day or two until I supply your place?"

"Not another hour, mum. Me sowl is quite distressed out of me. There is a banshee in the house."—Tammany Times.

Over a Ton a Day.

Last year 425 tons of steel were used by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., in the manufacture of rifles and shot guns. This enormous amount represents a consumption of over a ton a day. This information may surprise people who are not familiar with the great demand for Winchester guns, but it will not anyone who has used a Winchester, for they appreciate the excellence and popularity of this make of gun. Winchester guns and Winchester ammunition are unequalled for their many points of superiority. Uniformity and reliability are watchwords with the Winchesters and the results their guns and ammunition give show the great care taken in manufacturing them. Mistakes and Mistakes.

It was the eve of their bridal day.

"Perhaps, after all," he faltered, gazing tenderly yet seriously down into her lustrous eyes, "we shall make a mistake in marrying."

"How you frighten me, Edwin," she exclaimed, with a shiver. "Come, let us rehearse again, and make assurance doubly sure."—Detroit Journal.

Sound Reasons for Approval.

There are several cogent reasons why the medical profession recommend and the public prefer Hostetter's Stomach Bitters above the ordinary cathartics. It does not drench and weaken the bowels, but assists rather than forces nature to act; it is botanic and safe; its action is never preceded by an internal earthquake like that produced by a drastic purgative. For forty-five years past it has been a household remedy for liver, stomach and kidney trouble.

Stories.

EXCELLENT CROP PROSPECTS.

Western Canadian Farmers in Excellent Spirits.

The reports that have been received from the farmers of the Canadian Northwest are exceedingly good. The June rains, which are looked upon as a factor in forwarding the wheat crop, and is inestimable in forcing the growth, have been numerous and the wheat fields are now in the highest condition. The result will be that with the acreage of this year and the prospect of a big average, the lot of the Canadian farmer is a most enviable one. Along the lines of the railway that have been constructed and those under construction, there are still a limited number of homesteads that can be had actually free. In other districts improved farms can be had at low figures. The opportunity is now offered all who desire to better their condition to take up lands there. Excellent climate, good laws, free schools, and the best of social conditions, churches, societies, etc. For particulars and pamphlets and information as to the best means of reaching there, apply to Mr. Ben Davies, Agent for the Canadian Government, 152 Third street, St. Paul; W. Ritchie, Grafton, N. D.; R. H. Swallow, Watertown, S. D.

Up to His Looks.

One of the many private secretaries at the national capital is still new to his honors. One day a newspaper woman, full of business, burst into the office of this secretary's chief. The great man was out. "Can you tell me when he will be in?" she asked. "Really," drawled the clerk, "I haven't an idea." "Well," said the newspaper woman, as she turned to go, "I must say you look it."—Washington Post.

DELANO, FRIDAY, JULY 9, 1897.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Mr. Vores, of Buffalo, will conduct the service in the Presbyterian church next Sunday.

—Farmers are improving the time between showers in plowing corn or in making hay.

—The self feeding flat irons seem to be received with satisfaction by everybody. It saves both wood and time.

—Messrs Strauch and Brenner have in a patch of broom corn on the Minneapolis road on the Jim Young farm.

—C. W. Kerrick sent a crew of men from here to Larimore Tuesday evening, to do some grading at that place.

—On Wednesday several Soo Trains ran by this place over the G. N. their track having been torn up by the storm the night before.

—A large number of Delanoites attended the celebration at Waverly on the 5th. They report a big crowd present and a good time generally.

—Presiding Elder Chaffee preached one of his best sermons Sunday evening at the M. E. Church. The audience was of fair size for hot weather.

—Mrs. Mowatt gave a surprise party to the Kittell boys, of Minneapolis, who were visiting at her home Monday evening. Ice cream and cake were served.

—Mac Belt nearly had a serious accident. The team but for a lucky fall of one horse would have dragged the heavy wagon over his head; as it was a few bruises was the extent of injury.

—The old pine tree on the highest point of the bank of the Crow between here and Rockford, whose boughs had nearly all been taken for Christmas trees and whose memory is preserved in poetry, was torn from its roots this week.

—An entetainment will be given on Friday evening, July 16, at 7:30 for the benefit of the free kindergarten. A program will be rendered by the children, consisting of drills and songs. Ice cream and lemonade will be served. Admission 10 cents. 42-2t.

—Harry Young's pony took another runaway a few days ago. He left the cart near John Sturman's residence; ran over Dave Reibel's child and went home. Ira Walquist has had him in charge since and has about conquored him so that he is getting quite docile.

—Henry Parslow, depot agent at Hankinson, got robbed a few days ago. The robbers went to considerable trouble to get in and got at the money drawer and get only 15 cts for their trouble. They were more fortunate with his neighbor on the N. P. road getting several hundred dollars for their work.

—It is a strange thing that our village authorities can't get up sand enough to follow grade when building sidewalks and that when people are going to build, they can't give them the proper grade until the building is up wrong. If we are to have a grade we should follow it or change it by law as it should be.

—A quartette of life preservers cut a fine figure running up and down the river bank this a. m. Capt. Greear, of Ky., Misther Guy Murphy, Mine Her Ed Buck and Stacy Redmond. Several of them deposited their coats and money purses on the bank, but by this time Buck and Greear had hooked a stick onto the poor horse that had got into deep swift water, and drawed him ashore. A narrow escape.

—Clark Sturman had another of his periodical runaways last Monday. His big team started from near the watering fountain and ran to Mann's residence. Mr. Grant, who was with him jumped out and escaped with a few bruises while Clark hung on to the wagon until the team snubbed it around a tree when he went on up against the house luckily striking feet first. He was bruised and scratched a good deal, but no serious damage seems to have resulted.

—The 4th of July celebration held last Saturday, did not come up to some former occasions of the kind Delano has seen. There was not so many people present as there has been before. After the street parade which was not very elaborate, the band led the crowd to the ball ground where the "Wilmots", the boys say a very few of them, and some men who came with them, played ball with the Delano Crickets, who were not in trim, the pitcher having a base ball finger, the first baseman a lame leg, and who were entirely outclassed. The Crickets got almost their usual score, however, making 10 tallies; but owing to bad fielding allowed the "Wilmots" to make 32. After the ball game the crowd repaired to the grounds and listened to music by the band, speaking by Senator Culkin, followed by dancing. Although the speaker said he wished that great document, the Declaration of Independence, had been read before he began his speech, the committee did not take the hint and we had a 4th of July with the Declaration of Independence left out. Games and sports of various kinds helped fill out the day, and in the evening a dance was held at the City Hall. The day was pleasant and people seemed to enjoy a good time.

Among Our Exchanges.

From the Oregon Agriculturist and Rural Northwest we clip the following:

"Don't forget to scald out the milk cans and milk vessels thoroughly. The greatest "hoodoo" of butter making and the dairy work in general is uncleanliness. "Cleanliness is next to godliness", but in the dairy business it almost comes first. Always in working your milk vessels remember that aside from dirt you have a troublesome little foe—bacteria—to fight. Always rense out the vessels with cold water first—do not add hot water to them the first thing as the milk will be scalded on and therefor harder to take off—then after washing rense them or scald them out with boiling water and they will always keep sweet and clean.—Gilchrist Stewart in Field and Farm.

Personal.

Miss Bauman returned home for a visit last Thursday.

Prof. Hawker made a trip to the cities Monday evening.

Geo. Darrow, wife and daughter visited Delano Thursday.

A. C. Riggs, of Monticello, was a Delano visitor yesterday.

Vernon Wilder and his friend Harvey Stark, of the U. spent Sunday in town.

Miss Stella Davis has returned home after closing her school near Buffalo.

Stephen and Truman Senear, of Rockford, drove over yesterday on business.

John Brandser now occupies his new shop on R. R. Ave. He lives upstairs.

Mrs. Craig and son Joe, of Princeton, is visiting with Mrs. Alice Davis, this week.

The Misses Bauman have closed their dress making shop for a couple of months vacation.

Mrs. Cross, of Minneapolis, is sojourning for a season, with her sister. Mrs. Geo. W. Bolton.

Mesdames Louis and William Rausch and children, of Howard Lake, celebrated at Delano.

Mrs. Utter, went to Minneapolis to celebrate. She is contemplating a journey to California soon.

Miss Isa Kerr, of Minneapolis, spent the 4th with her parents and Delano and Rockford friends.

School District no. 23 which Miss Francis Bauman has been closed for the summer vacation.

I. H. Graff, of Hamline, spent his 4th of July with his daughter, Mrs. Buckley and Delano friends.

Mrs. Farber drove to Buffalo yesterday with her daughter Mamie, who is to attend the training school there.

Frank Curry and family, of Cedar Mills, visited at William Stanley's several days, returning home Tuesday morning.

Cal. Stewart and wife are back from Tennessee. Mrs. S. we understand, thinks grass is much better here than there.

Mrs. Thompson, of Melrose, visited with her daughter Mrs. Dugan, this week, on her way home from a trip to Wisconsin and Iowa.

Prof. Charles S. Hawker and his mother left last night for the state of Maine and other eastern points. They are to be gone a month.

Miss Mary Reinhart accompanied by Miss Lizzie Peterhensel, of Cleveland, Ohio, visiting her aunt and cousins Mrs. Bauman and family.

E. J. Swedeback, of Hibbing, and his daughter and her husband, Harry Haines of St. Paul came up to spend the 4th with the family at home.

L. K. Flanders and wife and Joe Streeter and Mr. and Mrs. Krous of Montrose, came down early Saturday to help Delano Keep July 4.

Rev. Fairbanks, of Cedar Mills, came down Wednesday. He was hunting a chance to ride out toward home, but thought he could get there some way.

Al Hitzman has returned from a trip to Michigan. He says that country may do for folks that never seen another; but for him, one farm here is worth two there.

County Cullings.

Reports from Waverly say that Tom Kelley was shot through the cheek at Waverly, Wednesday, by Jack Muldoon, and that it is another case of intoxicating drink.

Special terms of court will be held, commencing at 9 a. m. on August 17, in Delano, at City Hall; August 18 and 19 at Town Hall, Cokato; August 20 at Cotton's Hall, Annandale.

The Annandale Post, in speaking of the attempt to have the Younger boys pardoned from Stillwater says: "The attempt to secure their pardon is a disgrace to civilization and an outrage on humanity."

Charley Coollen claims to be one of the fastest men in the country. His ability to get from one goal to the other at the celebration here the third, was something of a surprise to several individuals who trailed in behind and hankered after the $2

In a telegram of July 5 the Minneapolis Times says:

"W. E. Culkin, of Buffalo, Minn., who was to day confirmed by the senate as register of the Duluth land office, passed muster much easier than even Representative Morris, who recommended him for appointment, really anticipated. About the only charges or rather protests which came to the senate were from Duluth. These were principally on account of the fact that Culkin is not a resident of Duluth.

It was expected by many that the labor organizations of Minnesota would protest against Culkin's appointment, but so far as can be ascertained no charges from this source were laid before the senate.

The confirmation of Culkin was rushed through in order to anticipate any charges that might be made by labor organizations who were opposed to the appointment. As senators Nelson and Davis both favored confirmation no attention was paid to any protest from Duluth or elsewhere."

ADVERTISE!

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Where is the advance agent of prosperity? He is now over due. The people have been looking for him during the last six months. Perhaps he has pitched his tent in Gotham, in the streets of modern Babylon (New York) or he may have gone to explore the ruins of Pompeii; to look in those ancient ruins for more gold. But most likely he has gone to the Sandwich Islands to make arrangements for annexation to the United States.

Since our fathers fell asleep all things remain the same.

This year every thing seems to be very prolific except prosperity and that is looked for every day by the short line rout.

Corn is coming on better than was expected and wheat and oats is getting very rank.

The low meadows will be very wet when haying comes on unless it stops raining soon.

A good many Independence people attended the 4th at Delano last Saturday; the music was good and also the speaking.

"And King Solomon turned his face and blessed the whole congregation of Israel and all the congregation of Israel stood," and so did the people on the 4th of July at Delano, while listening to the oration of Senator Culkin, of Buffalo.

Frank Herrick, of Minneapolis, was doing business in our town one day last week.

C. R. Gould will start for Maine this week.

Special town meeting to day, will report results later.

Spiritualists at Markville.

If you can spare the space in your valuable paper, I would like to state that the spiritual meeting Sunday, July 4, was more than was anticipated. The demonstration of Immortality was most positive and startling. Mr. Foster is one of the best in his line. Dr. Ewell, of Denver, inspirational speaker, was particularly pleasing and instructive. One could listen to such counsel with much profit, and we only regret that his time is so limited. But will you kindly announce to your many readers (among whom are many spiritualists) that we have the services of both gentlemen mentioned, secured for next Sunday, July 11, and other attractions will be with us. Would like to have all our friends, in or out of the faith, come and hear what the spirits say to the earnest searchers after truth. Come and have immortality demonstrated to you without a doubt; bring double slates and you can nail them together yourself, here, and receive on the inner sides, a written message from the spirits side of life.

WONDERFUL SALES.
$10 Every Day Can Be Made by Agents.
To prove it, we give a few items from actual sales made within the last few weeks: One agent sold 27 copies in two and a half days. Another sold 15 copies in two days, and another 30 in three days. One agent in Indiana sold 15 copies in two days. An agent in South Carolina sold 43 copies in three days. One agent in Georgia sold 25 in two days. An agent in Central Georgia sold 82 copies in ten days. When you consider the commission we allow agents, and the immense popularity of this wonderful book, and the ease with which it sells, there is nothing in which a live, pushing man can engage which will yield such profits. For instance: one agent made $108.25 in ten days selling "Thunderbolts." Another made $39.60 in three days; another $9.25 in one day; another $33 in two days; another $56.75 in three days.

ONE DAY AT A TIME.

One day at a time! That's all it can be;
No faster than that is the hardest fate,
And days have their limits, however we Begin them too early and stretch them late.

One day at a time!
It's a wholesome rhyme,
A good one to live by
A day at a time.

One day at a time! Every heart that aches
Knows only too well how long that can seem;
But it's never to-day which the spirit breaks,
It's the darkened future, without a gleam.

One day at a time!
It's a wholesome rhyme,
A good one to live by,
A day at a time.

One day at a time! But a single day,
Whatever its load, whatever its length!
And there's a bit of precious scripture to say
That, according to each shall be our strength.

One day at a time!
It's a wholesome rhyme,
A good one to live by.
A day at a time.

—HELEN HUNT JACKSON.

IF repentance gets a man serving a life sentence out of prison, why was Blixt ever put in? Didn't he repent before going to Stillwater?

FROM Minneapolis papers one must infer that the order of Elks is not a temperance society; also, that their next annual meeting will not be in the Sawdust city.

IT is not for the 21 years of good behavior that people wish the Younger's to remain in the penitentary; but for many years of evil doings culminating in murder at Northfield.

THE Duluth News Tribune sent out a neat advertisement this week. The News Tribune is surely enterprising, and claims to be the only morning daily outside of the twin cities in Minnesota.

IF the prison board and officials are so positive that the Younger boys ought to be turned out of the penitentiary, it might be well to put a few new men about the place. It might hapen that someone would forget to lock up the back door some dark night.

FROM some of the evidence that has cropped out since people were enabled to compare notes with Cole Younger's letter to the public, whats left of the Northfield robbers will have to keep on being good boys or they may be tried and hung yet.

REPUBLICANS appear to be having about as serious a time with the tariff bill as did their democratic brothers a few years ago. It is almost an impossibility to suit everybody with tariff schedules; and Republican members seem to be no exception to the rule.

WE never did take any stock in the so called civil service reform, not even when President Cleveland was providing places for his friends to occupy for years to come; therefore we are pleased to see the Republicans get back onto good old Andrew Jackson ground, and hope Democrats will profit by experience.

MINNEAPOLIS advertised the coming of the Elks in fine style. They seem to be fully as glad it's over and they are gone, but they are not saying half so much about it. Some of the papers claim the Elks had gone to St. Paul, and it was the "hoodlums" that were having fun about saloons in the wee sma hours of next day.

THAT Attorney for the Younger's before the pardoningboard, who tried to lay the murder of the Swede at Northfield onto the doctors who probed for the ball, made a great point. Did that make the crime of the man who shot to kill, any less? Why didn't he go on and advocate the hanging of Dr. Wheeler who killed one and wounded another of the robbers?

WE are in receipt of the annual announcement of the Hamline University. It is well up to the front among the educational institutions of the state. It adds to its advantages yearly and keeps up to the times. Before making arrangements for attending other institutions look over the catalogue of Hamline University and see if it wil not be to your advantage to select it as best for you.

AMONG politicians who appear uncommonly interested in having the Younger boys pardoned were Gov. Clough, Auditor Dunn, Warden Wolfer, and a few others. Several daily papers published colums of cuts and articles favoring their release, including Cole's letter. The poor old Pioneer Press had a hard time of it, keeping on the fence, sometimes she dragged awfully on one side and at other times most of her weight was on the other side. Of course we have no positive knowledge on the subject but we believe several individuals were paid or promised big pay for their assistance in getting a pardon.

PEOPLE have a right to suppose that Lyman Gage and others occupying high office in this country know that the Constitution of the United States prohibits the passing of export-facto laws, and yet it is claimed that the present Treasurer suggests that an internal revenue tax be levied of one cent a ponnd on all sugar imported since the work on the tariff commenced. Why limit the ex-post-facto law? Why not put the tax on all sugar imported for a year, or for five or ten years? Why not make it go back over time enough to insure the treasury being full for a long time? No, oh no, ex-post-facto laws don't work in this country.

THE Minneapolis Tribune says, concerning the Northfield robbery and murder, that the Youngers know who the murderer of Haywood was. "If they will tell, we believe that the majority of the people of this state would be willing to let them go free in exchange for that atrocious murder, in order that he might receive his just deserts at the hands of this commonwealth." We differ from the Tribune. We don't believe the people fools enough to think the Younger's crime any less, because they swore another into their place in order to escape. The temptation is very great to swear it onto Frank James, whether or not he is the guilty man, from the fact that one Northfield man is very sure it is he. And if it was Frank James who did the deed, isn't the boss of the gang at least equally guilty?

EDITOR C. F. MCDONALD, of the St. Cloud Times says, reports to the contrary notwithstanding, that he did not resign from the Land Office at St. Cloud, and that his term of office don't expire until January. But he publishes a letter from President McKinley informing him that his successor, Alvah Eastman, Editor of the St. Cloud Journal Press, has beeb appointed. Mr. McDonald says the administration makes a great ado about old soldiers haying fair play, and the G. O. P. professes to give the old soldier his share of office. But, when it comes tohaving comrade McKinley send him his discharge from the land office, while he is an old soldier and a G. A. R. man, before his term has expired, to make room for a man that is neither, but is a republican, it looks to him as if, with this administration, old soldiers are no good unless they vote Republican.

England Taking the Country.

An English Syndicate has purchased seventy coal mines in Kentucky. Now, perhaps the coal barrons of Pennsylvania will find a competitor whom they are not able to coerce or freeze out of the market.—Litchfield News Ledger.

It looks as if England was determined on having this country if possible.

FULL SHARE.

Washington, July 12.—(Special to The Duluth Herald.)—With the appointments of Minnesota Republicans already made, and those to be sent in this week, the state will have received its full share of federal patronage and, according to President McKinley, a larger portion of appointments than has been the case under any administration in the past. Nobody, however, seems to be particularly enthusiastic over the president's seleetions. None of the men appointed are regarded as factors in Minnesota politics.

Goodnow and Snider are personal appointments. Stanford Newel has long been a back number, and had no claims for such an important post as minister to Denmark. Ozmun Listoe and Von Bauenbach were selected as a personal favor to Senator Nelson. Capt. Castle was appointed deputy auditor at the request of Senator Nelson, and Bordewick was appointed consul to Christiana through the influence of his son in law, M. J. Dowling.

The House members have not been consulted in the case of a single appointment.

Pardoning Board.

According to a law passed last winter the Governor, the Attorney General, and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Minnesota constitute a board of pardons. They can receive petitions for pardons from parties confined in jail, or their friends and act on them. It has been claimed that this board was made with the purpose of dividing the responsibility of the Governor in granting a pardon for the Younger brothers.

The board commenced a session on Monday, a large number of petitions for pardon were presented. That of the Younger brothers was taken up and arguments were made by Mr. O'Brien of the Prison Board; by Warden Wolfer; by J. J. McCofferty of the reform school board, Bob Dunn and others. It is quite evident that a strong power has been at work to liberate these prisoners. Cole wrote a letter claiming that instead of killing people he had saved several lives.

Some queer arguments were produced favoring their pardon. It was claimed that because they didn't shoot Heywood they should not be held for it. Yet it was thought necessary to mention the names of those whose lives were saved because the chief of the band ordered so.

The people of Northfield, not having forgotten their fellow townsmen whose lives were taken, and the narrow escapes of others presented strong petitions against their release. Several affidavits were read going to proye that instead of the inoffensive Scandinavian who had been in this country but a short time, having been killed by a stray bullet from a citizens gun as suggested by Cole Younger, in his recent letter, that the leader of the band deliberately shot him himself.

It seems the people living at Northfield at the time of the robbery and murder did not see things quite as Cole Younger claims to have seen them; or at least they do not remember them the same. In his letter to the public, Cole does not make an honest, open confession, like a penitent asking for pardon. He covers up the identity of those who escaped and it is claimed he says he never will tell whether or not the James boys were with them at Northfield. A Northfield man says he went to Missouri and identified Frank James as the man who shot Heywood.

And yet Frank is at large, aspiring to be chief of police in some city, and at last accounts was going to some southern fair to be a drawing card and exhibit himself for so much a head to those who might care to pay the price to look on him.

It looks like poor business to be bringing up petitions for the liberation of such men, and seriously discussing them before the public.

The Pardoning Board, after learning both sides, and a two days session, concluded wisely to allow the Younger brothers to remain where they are.

Morris Turns Down a Duluth Soldier.

The veterans of the Union army deserve and should receive fair treatment and generous recognition.—McKinley National Republican Platform, 1896.

The only point we have raised in relation to the St. Cloud Receivership is that the removal was a violation of this provision and the full term rule. We have pointed out the fact that the aboye much talked of love for the old soldier is a sham! We wish to make this plain to the veterans of the war. Here is another case:

A. G. A. R. comrad writes us from Duluth the following; Bartlett Minot, of Willis A. Gorman Post, No. 13, was a Special Agent G. L. O. under Harrison, and was removed by Cleveland. Last spring, under a rule that all old soldiers who had been removed by former administrations for political reasons should be reinstated, he made such an application, and about June 1st received a commission from Secretary Bliss reinstating him. Congressman Morris was at home in the latter part of June. Upon his return to Washington, Comrade Minot's commission was revoked by telegraph, at the request of Judge Morris, and for political reasons, as there were none other although a Republican he supported O. A. Towne.

And such is the boasted "fair treatment and generous recognition" to "the veterans of the Union army" that we are engaged in exposing.—St. Cloud Times.

Alignment of Forces.

The forces in the states in which elections are to be held this fall are aligning themselves for the fray. In Ohio Chairman Towne has recomended to the Free Silver republicans that they put up no ticket; that they make no effort but to haye silver win; and to this end that they yote for the party which advocates the same cause they do.

In Kentucky, the gold democrats, so called, are to unite their forces with the protection party, Henry Watterson and all to come out for McKinley nominees in order to try to knock out the silver sentiment. Old Billy Breckenridge is to be one of the main spokes in this new combination wheel. Everything that can be is to be combined to down the silverites.

This will have a a tendency to break up old party lines still more, if possible than they haye yet been shattered.

At the present stage of politics it looks as if the people were bound to decide for themselves one question at a time. First now comes the money question, afterwards tariff, liquor, and other important issues. In order to do this there must be but two parties. A majority shall rule, and it is hard to get a majority to agree on more than one question at a time.

The Tariff Bill.

The McKinley or Dingley tariff bill is being knocked about from one place to another, amended time and again until it is difficult to see just where it will come out, and when. There is a division on the lumber schuedule, pine boards have been a bone of contention for a long time. The tariff was fixed once at $1 a thousand and now it has been raised again to $2 per thousand. If tariff don't cut any figure in prices, as some try to make us believe why all this haggling over a few cents or a few dollars difference in protective schedules? It looks as if the G. O. P. is in no hurry to bring prosperity by passing a tariff bill as they claimed they would. So far as Democrats are concerned they consider the silver question of so much more importance that they are willing to allow the republicans to pass almost any kind of a high protective bill, the higher the better to show to the country its uselessness.

Good Reading

Every family should be provided with books and papers. Printed matter is now so cheap and so easy to get that there is little excuse for its absence from most houses. Children like to read stories, or to read the locals in newspapers near home, where they know the parties about whom they read; they learn to read readily in this way. Women and men are not up to the times unless they know what is going on in the world, especially in their own neighborhood. Where news is published, it is, if carefully obtained, usually more correct than where passed along from mouth to mouth and changed and altered until one in the evening would scarcely recognize his own story of the morning.

Our county papers can be had for $1 per year, 52 copies for one dollar. No family can really afford to be without at least one. Get that which suits you best. Get one you had rather your children would read than not; one that you would not be ashamed to read to company, one that stands up for morality in all lines.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 9, 1897

M. B. Lloyd, Minneapolis, Washboard. L. G. Loye, Minneapolis, Babe-carriage. H. H. Vaughan, St. Paul, Lever-support for interchangeable brake-beams.

Another proof has been given of the power of the money kings over this administration. Mr. McKinley has virtually been compelled to send a special message to Congress, asking for legislation to carry out the wishes of the bankers for the apointment of a commission to report what financial legislation the country needs. Mr. McKinley must know that the silver Senators will not allow this legislation to be voted upon at this session; if he doesn't, he will very soon learn if an attempt is made to push it in the Senate.

The Senate this week passed the tariff bill; the House declined to accept the Senate amendments, and the trust-made document is now in the hands of a conference committee. The confidential agents of the various trusts are in Washington in force to see that their interests are taken care of by the conference committee. The length of time that the bill remains in conference will depend entirely upon the strength of the fight that will be made against some of the extraordinary favors granted the trusts.

Knowing that the will of Czar Reed, his utter disregard of the Constitution, and his parliamentary somersaults when cornered as representative McMillin cornered him this week when he moved to suspend the rules and adopt the Morgan Cuban resolution, are sufficient to prevent any action by the House, the republican Senators are trying to bamboozle the voters of the country by a little anti-Spanish buncombe. This week, Senator Lodge, from the committee on Foreign Relations, reported a resolution authorizing the President to use force, if necessary, to compel Spain to pay the iddemnity demanded by two naturalized American citizens who were illegally arrested in Cuba in 1895. If there were any intention to put this resolution through Congress, it would be a commendable thing to bring it forward, as Spain has refused to pay any attention to diplomatic demands for this indemnity for two much wronged citizens of the U. S.; but to bring it forward with no real intention of having it adopted by both branches of Congress, merely as a political play, is adding insult to the injury already received by the two unfortunates.

For some unexplained reason, the members of the Senate committee on Foreign Relations have changed their minds about not reporting the treaty for the annexation of Hawaii until the regular session, and will report it at once with a recommeedation that it be ratified. An attempt is being made to get the consent of the opponents of the treaty to vote at this session, it having been ascertained that the necessary votes to ratify can be obtained.

It is not surprising that men of ordinary comprehension should find it difficult to understand the theory of "protection" upon which the republican tariff bill, passed by the Senate this week, was constructed. Take coal, for instance. The duty on foreign coal is advanced from forty cents to sixty-seven cents a ton, yet Senator Elkins, himself heavily interested in coal mines, says the increase will not result in adding one cent to the pay of the miners, although he admits that the price of coal to the consumer will undoubtedly be advanced. In other words the 27 cents a ton added is a gratuity to the mine owners. Senator Jones, of Ark., thus expressed himself on this subject:—"The coal miners would be justified in asking and expecting higher wages after the new tariff goes into effect, if the republicans were sincere in their arguments in support of higher tariff taxes. The burden of their speeches on the coal duties, and on every schedule in the bill, was that higher rates were necessary to protect American labor from the competition of cheap foreign labor, and to enable American employers to pay higher wages, but every one knows that is not what the tariff was increased for. It was to give the coal mine owners and other employers of labor large profits.

Notwithstanding the increase in the duty on coal from 40 to 67 cents a ton, the miners will be fortunate if their wages are not reduced instead of increased. Consumers will have to pay more for coal, and the increase will go to the mine owners and the railways. The tariff was not increased for the benefit of the wage earners, notwithstanding the declaration of the protectionists that the high duties were for the benefit of American laborers."

Country Newspaper.

Everybody likes to read the newspaper printed nearest to his home; to read of what his nearest neighbors are doing; to learn what the village officers, the town supervisors, the school district board, and the county officers are doing. People want to know who has been born, got married, or died. They want to know all the news. When they meet a neighbor they don't like to have to admit that they don't know any important piece of news; that they haven't read the paper. Everybody likes a paper that is clean, that gives the news in a plain, straightforward manner; that is honest and can be relied on. They like a paper to haye opinions on all important subjects and to give their opinions; they want to know what the paper thinks is right, and they like to be sure the paper is right.

Currency Commission.

Several papers, among them the New York world, advocate the appointment of a currency commission, to fix on a financial system for our country. The World claims we should have experts in finance to tell us what kind of money we want. It claims they could do the work better than Congress could. We don't take any stock in that argument. Our American Congress represents or should represent the people of every state. They know what kind of money we want, better than a half dozen narrow-minded bankers who know little outside of figuring interest could tell them. Then they can get the ideas of bankers, of country people, and all, just as well and understand them much better and make their own financial laws. No experts are needed for a commission. We are not yet ready to turn the business of the country over to a few gold standard bankers to make our money; to a few manufacturers to make our tariff laws; to a few monopolies to make the price of labor, or strikes.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Mr. Editor we are lunching along through life, waiting and hoping for better days.

Crops are looking well but we cannot yet tell what the haryest will be.

The potato bugs haye made bad havoc on many a potato patch this year they have not been so bad for several years.

At a special town meeting held in Independence on last Tuesday, to vote on the proposition of establishing a graded school in said town, the vote was largely against it.

Herbert Bursell, of Minneapolis, preached at A. C. Church last Sunday afternoon.

Tame hay is being cut but most of the low meadows are wet and it will be some time yet before they will do to go out on to.

Not much news this week Mr. Editor the 4th is over and business is dull, but we hope for better times in the future.

Seen and Heard at Watertown.

On Monday, Superintendant Kiernan was on hand and opened up the Teacher's training school. 42 were on roll before noon. From present prospects a profitable session will be had.

Dr. E. E. Shrader's mansion on the hill has been so far completed as to give some idea of its large size and general apearance when done.

Mrs. Mamie McKee has been on the sick list for a long time. Her aunt, Mrs. Lucy Hewitt, of Minneapolis, came up Monday to help attend to her.

Watertown expects a newspaper of its own soon. Two offers haye been made to furnish a paper. The Delano Eagle talked some of taking them in under a wing; but that don't seem to be so well appreciated as the plan to move an entire plant into town and do business after the regular way.

Dr. Harry Halgren took a trip to the southern part of the state this week, looking for a good place to hang out his shingle. We have since learned that he is located for the present at Minneapolis.

A Scandinavian graduate of the Hamline University is considering the advisability of locating at Watertown. He might do worse.

Advertise in the GAZETTE.

Demorest's magazine for July is a Victorian Diamond Jubilee number, and besides numerous portraits of the Queen, representing her at different ages, it contains an interesting biography of Her Majesty which is very valuable.

The Fashion Department in Demorest's Magazine for July, is, as always, up to date and helpful, abounding with practical information, handsome models and newest ideas regarding dress. A Pattern Order published in each number entitles the holder to patterns of all the designs at the uniform price of four cents each, and this is an advantage that the furgal woman cannot afford to overlook.

It is very evident that financial embarrassment did not drive the late Barney Barnato to suicide. His estate figures up about $25,000,000, after allowing for all shrinkage.

The Washington postal authorities will hereafter send a swift tug to meet incoming mail steamers in New York, and the mail will be received and on its way on trains before the steamer reaches its docks.

Queen Victoria has 33 great-grandchildren living, and 19 of them boys. Empress Frederick, the queen's eldest daughter, has 17 grandchildren. There is no kind of danger of England running short of rulers.

We are told that in the Garden of Olives at Jerusalem there are eight flourishing chestnut trees that are known to be over 1,000 years old. If this is true we know now where some of the latter day jokes come from.

Nansen, the explorer, is at present in St. Petersburg and is said to be organizing a novel business enterprise. He is forming an international company with a capital of 50,000,000 rubles to exploit the riches of the far north.

American insurance companies are leaving Austria, just as they left Prussia, in consequence of the recent discriminating regulations established by the government. A business amounting to $20,000,000 will thus be practically lost.

Grasshoppers are now worth 50 cents a bushel in South Dakota, that being the rate paid by the state authorities for the destruction of the insects. They are so numerous in some localities that they are a more profitable crop than wheat.

H. B. Chamberlain, formerly of Denver, Col., who recently died in England, made a failure of 36 branches of business before he started to boom western real estate, and he conducted his operations on such a large scale that when he died he owed $15,000,000.

A new kind of gold mining has been developed out in Arizona, where a cattle raiser has discovered gold in considerable quantities in the stomachs of slaughtered steers. But it does not necessarily follow that the worship of the golden calf would be justifiable even under such circumstances.

After all the spring and early summer rains, which caused such destructive freshets, especially in the west, the level of Lake Michigan has been raised only five or six inches. Yet even this advance is looked upon as remarkable. The inland seas are of such wide extent that masses of water, which, pouring down the river beds, bring devastation, affect them only as a drop in a bucket.

One hundred and forty-six bright young maids from Wellesley, Mass., have taken the degree of bachelor of arts. But why, by the way, call them bachelors? Isn't it a misnomer? The word is from the old French bachelier, meaning a young man, and the corresponding female word is bachelette, meaning a young and pretty girl, especially one who has a lover, and who does not love a young and pretty girl?

A phrenologist should accompany all picnic parties that venture upon the water. A fellow narrow between the eyes or with a soft spot on his head should be tied fast to a tree on the shore, for he would be certain "to rock the boat" or do some fool act to show his smartness and endanger the lives of the pleasure seekers. Not a week passes during the picnic season but there comes an account of disaster from just such semilunatics.

The days of perilous mountain climbing are rapidly passing. The Jungfrau, once a terror to venturesome tourists in Switzerland, will lose much of its charm when the railway to its summit, which has just been started, is finished. When the alpenstock gives way to the railway ticket, the Jungfrau will be esteemed common and vulgar by those who take delight in accomplishing feats that call for personal daring. But the thrifty Swiss will make no objection to this, for he knows that with a railroad in operation ten tourists will favor him with his patronage where one comes at present.

The official figures of the shipment of American bicycles to foreign countries this year afford interesting reading. The value of the bicycles sent to other countries during the month of April amounted to $1,117,824, against $330,990 for April, 1896. For the ten months of the fiscal year ended with April the shipments amounted in value to $5,283,504, while for the corresponding period of the previous year the value was but $1,001,347. These statistics show the growing favor with which American bicycles are regarded abroad. It takes Yankee ingenuity to turn out the most finished article.

The death in Philadelphia the other day of Christian K. Ross recalled the heart-breaking story of the disappearance of his little son Charley 23 years ago. The boy was abducted by three men, and since that time the father had never ceased to search for the missing boy. Some years ago the leader of the men who were supposed to have stolen Charley was killed in Brooklyn, but he died without revealing any knowledge of the boy's whereabouts. If he is alive he must now be about 30 years of age, and it is extremely doubtful if he will ever make himself known, if, indeed, he is aware of his own identity.

A BIG JUMP.

Coal Prices Advanced 150 Per Cent. Since the Strike Began.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 13. — The miners' strike is causing the price of coal to still advance and it is selling at $1.80, an increase of 150 per cent. since the commencement of the struggle. The feature Monday in matters pertaining to the strike was the presence in the city of the joint arbitration board, who are endeavoring by every means possible to bring to a peaceable conclusion the strife now in progress. The board held informal sessions and in the intervals interviewed quite a number of operators, the big majority of whom are in favor of arbitration, provided all of the operators will abide by the decision rendered.

At a mass meeting held at West Newton Vice President McKay, of the miners' association, said he believed the West Virginia mines would be closed down within two weeks. If they are not, he said, the railroad men would be called on to bring work to a standstill in that state.

There is a strong indication of a coal famine confronting the country within the next ten days. It is claimed by conservative operators that the marketable supply at present, which is placed at 10,000,000 bushels, would be only able to meet the demands for the market for about a month under ordinary conditions. With the scarcity of coal already prevailing at the lake ports, it is claimed the supply will not last over two weeks at the longest.

Cleveland, O., July 13.—Positive information has been received in this city that the Ohio railroads have decided to refuse to haul West Virginia coal. These roads include the Baltimore & Ohio, the Cleveland, Lorain & Erie and the Cleveland, Canton & Southern. An effort is now being made to verify the information. Railway officials deny the report.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 13. — Gov. Mount said Monday that his sympathy is all with the strikers in the present contest between the operators and miners. He is investigating his authority as chief executive to take a hand in the struggle, and if he sees his way clear will appoint an investigating commission. The governor's action in that event will depend upon the report of the commission from actual contact with the strikers. The governor's pet aversion is the "pluck me" store.

Springfield, Ill., July 13.—President J. M. Carson, of the Illinois United Mine Workers, arrived here Monday night from Danville. The 1,500 miners in the Vermillion field, he stated, were out, and the miners in every shaft in Illinois north of and including Pana were out or had voted to come out. "By Saturday," President Carson stated, "every miner in Illinois, we believe, will have joined the strike." President Carson stated that if left to Illinois and Indiana operators a settlement would be effected with the men at once. He predicts that a general settlement will be brought about within the next two weeks.

BOAT CAPSIZED.

Two Girls Drowned in a Disaster on Eagle Lake, Ind.

Eagle Lake, Ind., July 13.—An accident that will cast a gloom over Winona pleasure seekers for many days occurred here at 6:30 Monday evening. A sailboat carrying five young people capsized in the middle of Eagle lake in a high wind. The drowned are Bertha, aged 15, daughter of Edward F. Yarnell, of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Georgia, aged 15, youngest daughter of Prof. John M. Coulter, of Chicago university. The other occupants of the boat, who were saved with difficulty, were John C. Coulter, fellow in Chicago university; Miss Eunice, daughter of F. W. Munson, of Chicago, and Will Grey, a grandson of Editor W. C. Grey, of the Interior, Chicago. Details of the accident are hard to obtain, owing to the great confusion. John Coulter, who was able to give a general idea of the wreck, says that the boat was sailing in a stiff breeze about a mile from the landing when it became necessary to tack. Misses Yarnell and Coulter were in the bow and failed to take the windward side as the boat came about. The boat went over, righted and then went over again. The two young men succeeded in getting all the girls into the boat, when she capsized a third time. Young Coulter saved Miss Munson. After diving for the others for half an hour the party was picked up. Later steamers went out for the bodies. Miss Yarnell's body was found tangled in the rigging, but that of Miss Coulter lies in 90 feet of water. Divers have been sent for. William Schemer, a boatman, made a hero of himself diving for the bodies, and is now in a precarious condition as the result of his efforts.

OPEN DEFIANCE.

Uncle Sam Will Not Brook Japanese Interference with Hawaii.

Washington, July 13.—The administration has taken steps to keep its grip on Hawaii. Any aggressive interference on the part of Japan will result in the landing of marines and the hoisting of the American flag, with or without the ratification of the pending annexation treaty. The administration, realizing that some crisis might arise while the treaty still hangs fire in the senate, has taken steps to be prepared for any emergency. Rear Admiral Beardsley will have, when the next steamer arrives in Honolulu, instructions giving him power to act at the first sign of aggression on the part of Japan or trouble of any kind with which the local authorities are not able to cope.

Conference of Charities.

Toronto, Ont., July 9.—The national conference of charities and corrections was slow in getting together Thursday morning and was in session until 12:20. The section was called to order by Alfred O. Crozier, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who read the report of the committee on organization of charity. The committee favors organizing charity bureaus from the national capital down to the smallest hamlet in the country; keeping a description of every migratory pauper and tramp; enacting stricter vagrancy laws, and the appointment by the president of a commission to thoroughly investigate the field and the creation of a charity clearing house through which various organizations of the entire country could cooperate. Addresses on topics of interest were delivered by many delegates.

Below the Normal Average.

London, July 13.—According to the Mark Lane Express, it is said that the English wheat crop will show an average of 28 bushels to the acre, which is about two bushels below the normal.

A GREAT CONVENTION.

Christian Endeavorers End Most Successful Meeting in Its History.

San Francisco, July 9.—It may now be said that the Christian Endeavor hosts have completed their conquest of this city. They have arrived in such numbers during the last 24 hours as to permeate every quarter of the city. The scenes at the pavilion resemble a national political convention except that more women remain in evidence on this occasion than usually attend great gatherings.

Promptly at 9:30 the great gathering was called to order by Rev. F. R. Wilke, of this city, and after a musical welcome by the choir brief devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Philip F. King, of Benton, Tex. Then the welcome of the committee of '97 was delivered by Rolla V. Watt.

Lieut. Gov. Jeter then ascended the platform, and in a brief but well expressed speech welcomed the delegates and their friends on behalf of the state of California. An anthem was rendered by the choir, and in behalf of the visiting Endeavorers Rev. Ira Landrith, of Nashville, Tenn., responded to the various addresses of welcome.

When President Clark stepped forward to deliver his address the entire convention arose in enthusiastic greeting, and the Chautauqua salute was given with hearty good will. It was some minutes before the vast assemblage quieted down, and President Clark was able to begin his speech. His topic was "A World Encircling Religious Movement; How Shall It

After singing John Willis Baer, general secretary, delivered his report, which contained the following:

In 1881 there was one society and 57 members. In 1897 there are 50,780 societies and a total membership of 3,000,000. Of the states having more than 1,000 local societies, Pennsylvania leads with 3,443; New York has 3,049; Ohio, 2,383; Illinois, 2,013; Ontario, 1,783; Indiana, 1,387; Iowa, 1,336, and Michigan, 1,071. These figures do not include the Junior, Intermediate, the Senior and Mothers' societies. Pennsylvania leads the Junior societies with 1,397; New York has 1,288; Illinois, 993; Ohio, 970; California, 551; Indiana, 542; Iowa, 518, and Massachusetts, 517. The banner given to the state that has made the largest gains goes this year to Ohio. The second Junior banner goes from Mexico to Spain. There are 366 Intermediate societies, California leading with 51; Illinois having 44; Ohio, 32, and Pennsylvania, 27. The Mothers' societies number 70; Illinois leading with 30; Pennsylvania having 20 and Kansas 11. Twenty-seven Senior societies have been organized, California, New Hampshire and Pennsylvania each having three and Connecticut two.

England has 3,925 societies; Australia, 2,124; Scotland, 438; Wales, 311; India, 250; Ireland, 169; Madagascar, 93; France, 68; Mexico, 100; Japan, 66; West Indies, 63; Turkey, 41; China, 53; Africa, 52; Germany, 22—in all 7,919 societies in other countries. In addition Canada has 3,390.

The badge banner for the greatest proportionate increase in the number of societies, now held by Scotland, will go to the Endeavorers on the Emerald Isle.

In the United States the Presbyterians have 5,531 Young People's and 2,934 Junior societies; the Congregationalists are next with 4,156 Young People's and 1,322 Junior; Baptists, 1,640 Young People's and 1,080 Junior; Cumberland Presbyterian, 867 Young People's and 361 Junior; Methodist Protestants, 871 Young People's and 251 Juniors; Lutherans, 869 Young People's and 324 Juniors, nearly 40 denominations being represented.

During the last 11 months 25,264 of the Juniors have joined the church, and from the Young People's societies, 187,125; in all, 213,389.

San Francisco, July 13. — With the meeting Monday in the Mechanics' pavilion the most successful Christian Endeavor convention ever held was brought to a close. The programme for the day and evening was an interesting one. The attendance at the morning and afternoon meetings was large, and at night those who managed to obtain entrance to either of the main meeting places were fortunate, for only 25,000 could be accommodated and 10,000 more sought admission. All the leaders of the movement are pleased with the success of their efforts and with the outlook for the future of the society.

Tuesday the visiting delegates were tendered a public reception by the citizens of Oakland. About 10,000 attended. With the end of the convention, the thousands of visitors, delegates and others will take advantage of the opportunity and the cheap rates to visit the many places of interest throughout the state. Arrangements have been made for excursions to Monterey, Hamilton, Yosemite, Santa Clara mountains, Stanford university, and other interesting places, even taking in the southern country as part of their journey.

SENATOR HARRIS DEAD.

Impressive Funeral Services Over the Remains in the Senate.

Washington, July 9.—Senator Isham G. Harris died here Thursday afternoon. He was born in February, 1818.

He was engaged in the practice of law until 1857, with the interruption necessary to allow him to become a presidential elector in 1856. He was three times in succession, before the war, beginning in 1857, elected governor of his state, and was serving in that capacity when the war broke out. He took a pronounced stand for the southern confederacy, and was known as one of the southern war governors. Mr. Harris was allowed to follow the pursuits of the private citizen until 1877, when he was elected to the United States senate, defeating Hon. L. L. Hawkins, republican. He has remained a member of the senate ever since, and would have completed his twentieth consecutive year in that body on the 4th of next March if he had lived to that date.

Washington, July 12. — Impressive funeral services over the late Isham G. Harris occurred in the senate chamber at noon Saturday in the presence of President McKinley and members of the house of representatives, members of the diplomatic corps and officials from all branches of public life. The casket remained in the senate until nine o'clock Saturday night, when it was borne to the funeral train for the late senator's home, at Memphis, Tenn.

A SLIGHT CHECK.

It Is Shown in the Volume of General Trade.

New York, July 10.—Bradstreet's says:

"There is only a moderate volume of trade throughout the country, the more noteworthy changes being a checked demand west and northwest, due to the excessive heat and to storms, continued favorable reports as to the cereal and other crop prospects and disturbance in industrial lines due to the strike of about 120,000 bituminous coal miners. The reluctance of West Virginia operatives to join in the strike complicates the situation.

"The prospect of an early settlement of the tariff has strengthened the widespread feeling of hopefulness that the autumn will bring a revival of consumptive demand. Orders for clothing, shoes and hardware for fall delivery are already more frequent at Baltimore, Chicago and Omaha. The movement of dry goods is checked by midsummer stock taking, but retail business in seasonable lines has been stimulated by midsummer weather. There is no improvement in demand for cotton or woolen goods, but the latter are higher, based on the cost of wool.

"Prices show an advance of one-fifth of one per cent. during June and mark the beginning of a turn in the outward flow of the tide of prices which continued from January 1 to June 1."

RELIEF FROM HEAT.

Rain and Cool Breezes End the Protracted Hot Spell.

Chicago, July 12.—The breaking of the heated term throughout the northwest was signalized by a terrific electrical storm and a drenching rain Saturday afternoon. Dispatches show that considerable damage was done by lightning and wind, and in some instances by flood. Some loss of life is reported.

Chicago, July 12.—The first ten days of July broke all records for violent and sudden death during a corresponding period in the history of Cook county. During the ten days closing Saturday night there were 110 deaths in Chicago requiring the attention of the coroner. This is an average of 11 deaths each day, which is a high rate at the coroner's office. The largest number of deaths reported and acted upon in one day was on July 5, when 34 cases were reported. Saturday reports numbered 23, and was the second largest day in point of numbers. Most of the deaths were due to excessive heat.

Throughout Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio Friday was the hottest day of the season. Dispatches show that the temperature ranged from 95 to 110 in the shade, accompanied in many instances by such high humidity that intense suffering prevailed.

At St. Louis, where the heated term lasted 13 days, with an average of 96 degrees, 42 persons died from sunstroke on the streets. The number of deaths in New York from sunstroke for the week ending Saturday night was 14. Cincinnati reported 53 for the same period; Kansas City, Mo., 8; Cleveland, O., 5; Buffalo, N. Y., 7; Pittsburgh, Pa., 22; Philadelphia, Pa., 2; St. Paul, Minn., 2. The number of deaths in Milwaukee resulting from the intense heat for the past few days shows a total of three, with 13 prostrations. A review of the state of Wisconsin outside of Milwaukee, as far as reported, shows six deaths and about 25 prostrations.

At New Orleans, La., the actual deaths from heat prostrations during the week were 15. A much larger number of sick persons and children, however, died as indirect result of the heated spell. Since the commencement of the heated term there have been 17 deaths in Louisville, Ky., and about 50 serious prostrations, all due directly to the intense heat. Up to six o'clock Saturday night ten deaths and about 50 prostrations as a result of the excessive heat were reported in Indianapolis. The highest point reached by the thermometer during the heated term was 99 degrees. The number of deaths resulting from heat in Michigan last week was 12. In Boston four deaths resulted. At Toledo, O., there were ten deaths. Six deaths occurred at Peoria, Ill.

TEACHERS IN SESSION.

Continue Their Discussions at the Final Day's Gathering.

Milwaukee, July 9.—Friday was the closing day of the National Educational association convention. When the morning general session was called to order the gathering was the largest of any day session of the convention.

James M. Greenwood, of Kansas City, Mo., the newly-elected president, had for his subject: "Shall American History Be Taught in Cross Sections or in Parallels?"

The final department meetings in connection with the National Educational association took place Friday afternoon.

The convention closed Friday night. Richard G. Boone, principal of the Michigan state normal school, delivered an address on "Lines of Growth in Maturing," and George T. Winston, president of the Texas university, spoke on "Higher Education in the South."

The report of the committee on resolutions was then read. In substance the report is as follows:

It proclaims the unswerving allegiance of the association to the highest ideals of our public educational system; stands for sound training, thorough discipline and good citizenship. It emphasizes in particular at this time the duty of the school to the community that it represents; demands that school administration in all its departments shall be wholly free from political influence and dictation of every sort; appeals to educated public opinion and to the press of the country to enforce this demand. It believes that the public schools are increasing in efficiency as the tenure of teachers is made longer and more secure; believes it to be the duty as well as the opportunity of the American college to open its doors to the largest number of students possible. The report urges more attention to the study of the history and principles of education in colleges and universities; asks the attention of the executive and legislative departments of the government to the valuable work of the bureau of education and to the pressing need of adequate appropriations for its support.

After the introduction of the president-elect, Mr. James Greenwood, the convention adjourned sine die.

FATE OF THE YOUNGERS.

Minnesota Board of Pardons Considers Case of Famous Convicts.

St. Paul, Minn., July 13.—The state board of pardons met Monday afternoon and began consideration of a large number of applications for their official clemency, the one of most prominence being that of Cole and Jim Younger, who have served 21 years of their life sentence for complicity in the attempted raid of the Northfield bank. The Younger application was taken up at once, and the presentation of the case and arguments in its support filled the entire afternoon, being unfinished when adjournment was taken for the day. Much pressure is being brought to bear to secure the pardon of the two surviving Younger boys.

POWERS' REPLY.

Sultan Finds Little Comfort in Answer to Recent Circulars.

Constantinople, July 12.—Queen Victoria, Emperor William, Emperor Nicholas, President Faure and King Humbert have replied to the telegram received by them from the sultan, and all give advice similar to that sent by Emperor Francis Joseph. Emperor William says in substance that he regrets his inability to disassociate himself from the views held by the other powers. Replies to the circular of the Turkish government to the powers relative to the frontier question have also been received by the ambassadors. They all decline to admit the Turkish pretensions.

Conference Over Tariff Bill.

Washington, July 13.—The tariff conferees have struck some snags in their work. The minor matters were easily adjusted, but on all important features there has been no agreement, and the outlook Monday was that several reports would have to be made before an adjustment could be reached. The house conferees are standing solidly for their bill, and the senate conferees are no less tenacious.

EXCELLENT CROP PROSPECTS.

Western Canadian Farmers in Excellent Spirits.

The reports that have been received from the farmers of the Canadian Northwest are exceedingly good. The June rains, which are looked upon as a factor in forwarding the wheat crop, and is inestimable in forcing the growth, have been numerous and the wheat fields are now in the highest condition. The result will be that with the acreage of this year and the prospect of a big average, the lot of the Canadian farmer is a most enviable one. Along the lines of the railway that have been constructed and those under construction, there are still a limited number of homesteads that can be had actually free. In other districts improved farms can be had at low figures. The opportunity is now offered all who desire to better their condition to take up lands there. Excellent climate, good laws, free schools, and the best of social conditions, churches, societies, etc. For particulars and pamphlets and information as to the best means of reaching there, apply to Mr. Ben Davies, Agent for the Canadian Government, 152 Third street, St. Paul; W. Ritchie, Grafton, N. D.; R. H. Swallow, Watertown, S. D.

Her Regret.

He was worth a good deal in money, but not in anything else.

"I am sorry to have to leave you so much," he said, as he put on his overcoat and started for the club.

"I am sorry you can't leave me more and do it sooner," she returned.

And somehow that bothered him all the evening. In fact, he was somewhat tempted to change his will.—Chicago Post.

WHEN MOTHER TUCKED US IN.

Our little bedroom, "way upstairs," was heated by the sun,
That did its duty grudgingly when summer days were done;
Yet modern rooms steam-heated ne'er will be so cozy, quite,
As ours was, when mother came and tucked us in at night!

How long the winter evenings were before the open fire,
With rosy apples roasting there and sputtering in their ire;
The popcorn snapping blithesomely above the ruddy bed
Of coals, that glowed right furiously, with good rock maple fed;

While father read the paper through, or, when our neighbor came,
Discoursed at length of church and state, dispensing praise or blame
Impartially; and mother sat, with needles clicking fast
That helped the staid old clock to count the moments as they passed;

While fitful firelight flashes fell upon her gentle face
That shone with steady light—the outward sign of inward grace.
And so the happy moments ran till brands began to fall;
The neighbor donned his well-worn coat, and tramped out through the hall;

Then father brought the Bible worn, and read, with reverent voice,
Some "portion" of the Sacred Word, to chasten or rejoice
Our hearts. Oh, while with him we knelt, how glowed his face
As his petition humbly rose up to the throne of grace.

The slow sonorous stroke of nine made Lion lift his head
From shaggy paws; and mother said: "Come, children—now to bed!"
We left our sturdy "copper-toes" the shining hearth before,
Our "daytime clothes" in tumbled heaps beside them on the floor,

And, holding up our trailing gowns, we scampered up the stairs;
Past the big chimney, where, we made believe, lurked polar bears;
Across the floor that creaked with cold—then into bed we hopped,
Drawing the homespun blankets close about each head closely cropped;

And there we listened, still as mice, for mother's gentle tread;
Right well we knew that she would come to tuck us up in bed.
Was ever such a tender "knack" for making life all rosy?—
A touch so deft, a loving pat, and we were, oh, so cozy!

The wind might rack the rattling sash and twist the elm trees tall,
The storm rage at the pane—to us it mattered not at all.
It seemed a shame to go to sleep and lose the dear delight
We had when mother came upstairs and tucked us in at night!

A Brush With Apaches.

BY P. WILBUR SHOOP.

THE long string of pack mules wound down through the dark, narrow ravine of the Hasayampae river canyon, and crossing the dry bed of the stream disappeared behind a ledge of rocks jutting out from the overhanging cliff. It was a lonely spot. Ten miles below a quartz mill had been erected, and five miles up the river was a sheep ranch. But here no sign of life appeared, save the sinuous line of mules wending their way across a stretch of alkali plain to the foothills just beyond. The alkali dust, dry as tinder, crushed under the feet of the animals and was wafted away in little puffs at each successive step.

The straps fastening the load to the back of one of the animals became loosened, and I stopped to fix them. The other mules filed past and left me about a quarter of a mile behind. As I was tugging away at the straps, with the mule occasionally looking back at me with a quizzical expression showing plainly on its face, I heard a sound as of some one slipping over the rocks above. The mule looked up, sniffed the air, gave a sudden lurch, wrenching the straps from my hands, and dashed madly off toward the animals in the lead, probably now a mile ahead, and already on the summit of the nearest foothill. The tin buckets, provisions, etc., that formed the contents of its load, were strewn over the ground quite promiscuously.

The other animals in the train, who previously had been walking along in a sleepy, mechanical way, and only twitching their ears and swinging their tails to vary the monotony, seemed to be infected with the terror of the animal that had broken away from me, and joined it in a mad disorder. I stepped back under the overhanging ledge of rock, and gazed after the animals, wondering as to the cause of their sudden fright. Just then a sharp report rang out. I felt a stinging sensation in my right ear, and could hear a distinct "ping." I clapped my hand to my ear; it was bleeding. Then the reason for the mad fear of the mules came to me. A mule that has been used where Indians are around soon learns to tell by intuition, it seems, whenever one is near and, as they have an inborn antipathy toward them, never lose any time in getting out of the reach of their rifles. This one had fired at me through a crevice in the rocks, but had done no damage save to clip off the tip of my ear.

We were not then expecting an outbreak. A few months before Gen. Cook had gathered in the hostile Apaches and placed them under military control. The former horrors were forgotten, and we were at ease and off our guard. The only weapon I carried was a navy revolver, a poor instrument to cope with a rifle in the hands of a bloodthirsty savage.

I glanced up through the break in the rocks and saw an Apache, in full war dress, peering down to ascertain the result of his shot. As I kept still, he thought he had finished me, and so, losing his caution in his cupidity for scalps, he ventured out from behind the rocks and began climbing down. This was my opportunity, and I drew my revolver and fired at him, and had the somewhat gruesome satisfaction of seeing him fall across a rock. His rifle dropping from his hands, bounded down the rocks and fell at my feet. I picked it up. I had previously supposed him to be alone, but now a dozen or more yells burst from among the rocks, and I knew that I was in for it.

Keeping close to the rocky cliff and dodging from bowlder to bowlder, I ran for some distance up the dried-up bed of the river unperceived. I hid as best I could, and looked back. There were 50 or more warriors, it seemed to me, examining the place where I had been when the shot was fired.

Apparently there was no time to be lost, and taking advantage of their searchings, I ran as rapidly as the rocky ground would permit me. I gained the shelter of a ravine that ran down the river. I clambered up the sides. I was not now more than a quarter of a mile away from where I shot the Indian, and I could easily hear their yells when they realized their prey had escaped. To my relief, their cries grew fainter and fainter, and in a few minutes they ceased altogether. They were looking in the wrong direction for me, and had passed down instead of up the river. This gave me some relief, but I was still in a dangerous locality. For aught I knew, other bands were in the vicinity and anxious for the scalp of anyone who might appear.

Accordingly I carefully and cautiously picked my way along; creeping most of the time and always keeping close to the protection of a rock or large tree. Seeing no signs of Indians, I lost much of my fear and ran openly across the hills. I ran on for some distance, and was finally brought up sharp by fairly running into a camp of the Apaches. They had built a small fire and were devouring the provisions that our excited pack of mules had spilled. All were so busily engaged in eating, however, that I was unperceived. I retreated carefully, but a sentinel that they had posted saw me, and sent a rifle ball whizzing in my direction, much too close for comfort, I can assure you. I ran madly along, stumbling over logs and rotten stumps. I had a good start, and kept in advance of them, quite out of gunshot. Several shots were sent after me, but all apparently fell short. I continued running, scarcely knowing how or where, and at length came out upon the alkali plain. I had run in a circle of about six miles in circumference, and had arrived at the place where the mules had stampeded. I was so exhausted I could scarcely move.

I was now in desperate straits, indeed. I could still hear the yells of the Indians, although their cries were becoming weaker. I looked over toward the foothills, expecting to see some one coming, and to my intense relief I saw, partly obscured by the flying dust, a troop of cavalry from the fort. I could make out the tints of their uniforms, and nothing I have seen, before or since, was as pleasing as that army blue. The fort was only about 20 miles away, and word had been received that afternoon that a portion of the Apache tribe had escaped and were on the warpath, and this troop had been sent to intercept them. I guided the soldiers to the Indian camp, where the Apaches had all returned, having given up their search for me.

When they saw they were surrounded by the soldiers, they submitted without a struggle. Their arms were taken away from them, and they were forced to return to their reservation, very sullen, it is true, but without further hostilities.

Thus ended my first experience with the redskin warriors, and I am perfectly willing to let it be the last. At that time I was so much so, in fact, that I resigned my position as pilot of a packmule train and returned to a civilized region.—Peterson's Magazine.

STORY OF A CAPTURE.

Wit of a Wife Saved Her Husband from the Officers.

"If I hadn't seen it with my own eyes," said the old forty-niner, "I wouldn't be a tellin' it. In our camp we had got kinder civerlized and unless a feller was strung up immediate fur liftin' dust what didn't belong ter him, or ridin' off with a hoss not havin' title ter th' same, we locked him up and held him fur a fair trial. We had a reg'ler officers an' guards an' the convicts had ter work gettin' in wood an' cleanin' up 'round camp.

"One fine-lookin' feller came in there with his wife, an' she war finer lookin' nor he was. I never knowed yet whether he done it or not, but it war charged that he was caught crawlin' out from a tent with his pardner's swag. We caught him an' put him inter th' workin' gang till the gran' jury could set on him. He had a mighty fine hoss that a lot of us wanted ter buy, but his wife wouldn't sell an' took care of him as good as a man could do.

"On a Saturday night that feller broke guard. While we was chasin' 'round a Chinerman noterfied us as how th' man was at home with his wife. They must have heerd us comin', fur there was a rush from th' back door, there was as purty a spring into the saddle as you ever see an' all of us went clatterin' after th' big hoss while his rider waved a hat an' mocked at us. We follered fer miles, droppin' out one by one till me an' th' sheriff had th' trail. We could change hosses, but fur ten hours that there big black kept th' road an' showed us his heels. Then his rider jist coolly got off and set down on a log ter wait fur us. We galloped up with guns in both han's an' ordered a surrender. Durn me if it wasn't th' purty woman, an' we never see either of 'em again."—Detroit Free Press.

Nature's Shrewdness.

When anything ceases to be useful nature begins work at once to get rid of it. Hence, all natural forces work to do away with the seed in oranges which depend for propagation not on seed but on cuttings. The same tendency is seen in flowers, where by cutting, graftings and other modes of artificial propagation they are very much improved and made very "double," they tend to become seedless. Improvement by natural processes is steady. Where we hasten artificially we are not allowed to relax our efforts. If we do it reverts to the natural at once. Such things may be commonplace, but they are wonderful.—Every Where.

It Was Settled.

"When me and Jane was marrit," said the old man, "the fust thing I says when we got to the house wuz: 'I guess the fust thing fer us to do is fer us to settle who's goin' to be boss.'"

"And did you settle it?" asked the youth.

"We didn't."

"You didn't?"

"No. She done all the settlin' uv it herself."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

USEFUL HAY RACK.

One That Is Handy and Has Given Excellent Satisfaction.

At this season of the year we look around to see if we have all the tools necessary to do a successful job of harvesting the hay and grape crops.

Some of us will find ourselves with a broken half dilapidated hay rack almost if not altogether beyond repair. Of course, this calls for a new hayrack, which is almost a total necessity on the farm, and you will never regret it if you build a good one while about it.

I have had one in use for the past four years, which I find very handy and which has given good satisfaction, and I might say it is in as good condition as when made.

In the illustration the sills A A are 2x7 and 15 feet in length. Cross benches B B on sills are 2x4 and 3 feet 5 inches long, or to suit width of your wagon. These are bolted onto sills as in engraving, using 10-inch bolts, putting them in from under side of sill with nut on top of cross bench. These bolts you will find are an inch too short to reach through, but are countersunk, an inch, beneath and a small nail driven through the hole crosswise to prevent loss of bolts should a nut work off, as they are apt to do. The nuts are on top where they can be seen. The corresponding cross-benches C C on wings are 3 feet 6 inches in length and made by 2x4 stuff. These are cut as shown in engraving to slide on over sills and fit under the boards on center of rack. These boards are 1x6 and cut right length to reach as shown in cut of rack.

The side boards or wings are the same length as the sills and 1x6 stuff. These are bolted and nailed to benches C C.

The end ladders can readily be made after the rack is ready to fasten together. Will say that ladders on my rack are 5 feet high and back ladder is arranged with a loose iron pin to boom the load on at any desired height.

The holes of D D inside wings are made for purpose of hinging wings onto main frame of rack, and correspond with holes in cross-benches B B, where a one-half-inch bolt 5 inches in length fastens them together and is itself held in place with a key through it. This makes a combination rack which, by attaching endgates and tight board floor, can be used to haul hogs, tile, pumpkins, etc., and by placing a few boards on side wings a large load of corn in the ear can be hauled. As I have always hauled a great deal of feed each winter I detach the sides, place it on a sled and make a very good feed rack of it, upon which to haul feed from the field to the barn.

My rack is all made of red elm and painted with two coats of oil and Venetian red, which makes quite a durable paint for farm tools, and better by adding a few pounds of white lead. A rack of this kind will be found very convenient upon the farm, and I assure you I would not trade it and go back to the old platform rack.—George W. Brown, in Ohio Farmer.

Arrangement of the Hive.

The bottom-board of the hive should not rest directly upon the ground. This will, in a short time, rot out the bottom of the hive, and will also draw dampness to the interior. Cleats for each end of the bottom-board should be three or four inches wide, and when nailed on brings the bottom proper of hive the same distance from the ground. This will allow space for a free circulation of air under the hive, and not so high from the ground but that the ground can be banked up on a level with the entrance of the hive. The embankment should gradually slope from the entrance, and on a level from the same, back two feet from the hive.—Rural World.

New Potato Industry.

The opening up of a demand for potatoes peeled, sliced and dried like apples promises to give a fresh impetus to potato cultivation, as decay will be prevented and freight cost lessened. The potatoes are peeled and sliced by machinery, soaked two minutes in strong brine, drained and dried at a temperature of about 194 degrees. Before using the slices are soaked from 12 to 15 hours, and then have all the freshness and flavor of new potatoes.

New Food for Cattle.

A long-continued diet of molasses has been found injurious to cattle, but Louisiana sugar planters have discovered that "black strap" mixed in proper proportions with corn, hay or oats forms a good food for fattening cattle. There is already a great demand for it in Texas, and it is expected that the western states will soon consume quantities of what has been considered the nearly useless portion of the sugar-cane product.

Cost of Strawberry Boxes.

The little baskets in which strawberries are sold by the quart cost at the factory about .35 of a cent each. Barnesville, O., is a great manufacturing point for these goods. The baskets are shipped by thousands direct to the big berry fields, or sent out through the commission houses, that sell them at .425 of a cent each.

CORN FOR POULTRY.

By All Odds the Best Grain Food for Laying Hens.

Samuel Cushman, who is authority on matters pertaining to poultry, said at a recent farmers' meeting held in Boston if he was confined to one kind of grain he would take corn. With this he would feed, clover, fodder, corn, meat and other like food. Upon being asked if wheat does not stimulate laying, Mr. Cushman replied that he would not think of giving up wheat, but wanted to impress his hearers that too much stress is put on feeding wheat and too much said against feeding corn by poultry writers.

This agrees with our experience exactly. We believe that corn is the best single grain for poultry and feed it every day. Do not underrate wheat, for it is a good feed to stimulate egg production, but it is not indispensable to the poultry keeper.

The great trouble with farm poultry is, usually, that it gets corn every day and all the time. If the hens run at large they have free access to the yard where the hogs are fed, and a good many times the corn crib is open to them at any time. Under these circumstances the hens fill themselves with corn and do not eat enough other food to keep them in laying condition.

Corn is essentially a fattening grain, and when we remember that the yolk of an egg contains a large proportion of pure fat we see how necessary a good supply of fat-forming food is to the production of eggs. No single food provides this so plentifully as corn does, and the poultry keepr who does not use it will not have the greatest possible success.

If laying hens are given a light feed of corn in the morning they will hunt insects and eat grass enough to satisfy their appetites and maintain the balance of the nutritive element in the food they eat.

Grass is a perfectly balanced food for live stock and poultry, and to one who never gave the matter attention it is a source of astonishment to learn how much of it poultry will eat. In the normal condition of things a hen will live on grass, but if she is laying she must have something in addition to furnish the egg material, and this can be supplied by giving her corn more cheaply than in any other way.

Long observation convinces us that corn fed to laying hens makes the yolk a richer yellow and gives consistency to the whites of eggs. Eggs laid by a half fed hen have whites that are thin and watery and the yolks are often pale and thin, falling flat when the egg is broken instead of standing up in the shape of a half globe.

Corn is the best grain food for laying hens, but too much of it checks egg production. It is hard to convince people sometimes that if a little is good a great deal is better, but in the case of feeding corn to laying hens it is almost safe to say that too much is worse than none.—Farmer's Voice.

HINTS FOR BEEKEEPERS.

Combine bee keeping with fruit growing.

Bees consume a large quantity of honey while they are raising brood.

A colony of bees during the breeding season should have a reserve store of honey.

In hiving swarms all washes for the hive are useless. All that is necessary is to have the hive clean and sweet.

The queens of the Italians are decidedly more prolific. This is in part due to the greater activity of the workers.

A young queen just emerging from the cell can always be safely given to the colony after destroying the old queen.

One advantage with Italian bees is that they have longer tongues and can gather honey from flowers where the black bees cannot.

By at once dividing colonies that show an inclination to swarm and destroying their queen cells the swarming may readily be stopped.

The best time to extract the honey is just as the bees begin capping. In this way uncapping is avoided, and the honey is thick and nearly ripe.

In order to free the honey from small pieces of comb and other impurities it should be passed through a coarse cloth or wire sieve before sending it to market.

The best honey is apt to crystallize, but this may be prevented by keeping it at about 80 degrees. Unripe honey will granulate quicker than that well evaporated.

To secure an abundance of comb honey the colonies must be strong and the brood combs full of brood at the beginning of the honey harvest. The swarming fever must also be kept down. —St. Louis Republic.

PUTTING UP FENCING.

How to Make the Poultry Yard Look Neat and Attractive.

Wire netting is so commonly used now for the yarding of fowls that some plan for properly putting up the fence is important. Ordinarily this fencing is slack and very untidy. It needs to be thoroughly stretched. To do this, the plan showed in the sketch may be used to advantage. A strip of board has four or more hooks arranged on one side to hold the roll firmly and to stretch each section as it is unrolled. A pulley attached to the following post draws the netting tightly past the preceding post, when it is secured firmly with staples and the work advanced to the next post. A fence thus put up will look neat and will be more serviceable in retaining fowls, as a sagging top wire invites attempts at flight.—American Agriculturist.

WIRE FENCE STRETCHER.

Mow Down the Weeds.

If you have any land that cannot be cultivated to corn or potatoes do not allow it to remain for the weeds to exhaust it, but mow down the weeds when they are young and in August sow the land to crimson clover, to be plowed under next spring. It is a good plan to sow crimson clover on every vacant spot and thus improve the soil by taking advantage of its capacity for gathering nitrogen.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

County Exhibits.

One of the most important departments in connection with the Minnesota state fair is that set apart for county exhibits. The managers of the fair are doing their part to stimulate these county displays by offering $1,200 in premiums for this year, against $200 in 1896 and $500 in 1895.

Each county will be allotted space with 20-foot front, with shelving covering about 120 square feet and wall space in the rear 6 by 20 feet. To secure space entries must be made by August 26.

The scale of points on which judges will make their decisions will be on the ratio of a hundred, and displays of wheat, corn, oats, barley, flax, rye, grains in chief, flax fiber (50), sugar beet (25), sorghum (25), native grasses, tame grasses, rape, sorghums and other forage plants, stock vegetables and peas, culinary vegetables, fruits, miscellaneous, greatest number of varieties, design and taste in arrangement will be considered.

The $1,200 will be provided pro rata according as the exhibit averages in aggregate the nearest to 100.

Determined to Die.

Miss Caroline Riste, a young lady living near Perley, attempted suicide. After the folks were in bed she got up, secured an old case knife and hacked her throat very bad, the knife being dull. Then she went to the barn, got up in the hay loft and threw herself out of the window backwards, but was only slightly hurt. Then, going to a neighbor's, about half a mile, she awoke them and wanted the men to go up and take care of her folks, claiming they were after her. Mr. Meibustad persuaded her to go back with him, and her brother took her in charge. Thinking her safe, the folks again retired, and next morning she again tried suicide by taking two spoonsful of carbolic acid. Temporary insanity is the cause.

Reject the Bids.

The capitol commission, after an all day session, decided to reject all bids for stone. This action was taken in view of the important changes determined upon in the revised specifications about to be issued. It is the desire of the board that all bidders shall receive fair consideration, and in consequence of the proposed changes, the only course seemed to be to reject all bids and advertise anew.

After carefully tabulating all the bids recently opened, it was found impossible to designate the lowest bidder, owing to the fact that while one bidder was lowest on one kind of stone for the walls and roof, another was lowest on a different stone for the interior work, and still another was lowest on a third variety of stone for the dome.

Instantly Killed.

Jonah Reynolds, an old man, was instantly killed in Minneapolis by falling from a sprinkling cart which he was driving; Reynolds has just loaded his cart with water and was driving on Lake street. At Pleasant avenue a trace broke and one of the horses turned suddenly and sharply. Without a moment's warning the old man was thrown from his seat to the ground and both wheels of the heavy loaded wagon passed over his chest, crushing it and causing death.

Younger Is Non-Committal.

Cole Younger was seen at the prison in regard to the statement that the James boys participated in the Northfield raid, but refused to affirm or deny it. Said he: "Frank James is enjoying his liberty and Jesse is dead, so I can't see what good it will do for me to say anything either for or against them. No living man has ever heard me say they were with us."

News in Brief.

Lewis Peterson, a young man 17 years old, was killed in the saw mill of the Butcher Lumber company at Red Wing. He was working a lath saw and a slab from the saw and struck him over the heart, killing him almost instantly.

The body of Jack McLeod, apparently killed by lightning, was found in the woods near Grand Rapids.

Lightning struck the homes of James Sherry and W. S. Kingston at Grand Rapids, tearing the latter's bed to pieces.

A man, woman and child were drowned in Skunk brook, at Royalton. The bridge over the stream had gone out and they were attempting to ford with a team. The current tipped the wagon over and they were all drowned, including the horses. The bodies were recovered soon after the accident, but who the unfortunates were is not yet known.

Mrs. Rachel Spellman, wife of a well known resident of the west end of Duluth, was sentenced to a year at hard labor in the penitentiary for arson in the third degree, of which she was convicted a few weeks ago.

Work preparatory to the erection of the school building at the state training school at Red Wing, provided for at the last legislative session, is now well under way.

W. F. Betlock and J. Rodd, strangers, were arrested at Wykoff for passing counterfeit money. Quite an amount was found on their persons. They are detained awaiting the arrival of the United States marshal.

After Mary Hale, a pauper at Marine died, $180 was found in her hovel.

The people in the vicinity of Swan River held a picnic, at which beer was freely imbibed, and soon after a general row started, in which men and women both took part. In the fracas several were badly hurt and others were stabbed.

Dennis Dorgan, 13 years old, became involved in a heated dispute at St. Paul with two other boys of his age, John Farley and Patrick Larkin. The quarrel ended suddenly when Larkin stabbed Dorgan in the shoulder. The blade of the knife penetrated the lung, inflicting a dangerous wound.

A four weeks' training school is in session at Rush City.

Ellis Loomis, of Fulda, attempted to assault a 14-year-old girl and was put in jail. Soon after a mob took him out for the purpose of lynching him, but better judgment prevailed and he was returned to await the action of the law.

A. O. Dahl, under life sentence at the prison for murder, died of heart disease.

P. O. Stevens, deputy game warden of Detroit, was shot at Star Lake by a man who was fishing with nets, whom Stevens was about to arrest. He has since been unconscious and cannot recover.

SHE SPANKED FOR THE FAMILY.

The Stranger's Kind Offer Was Indignantly Refused.

People never get encouragement for doing the Good Samaritan act in the interests of the public, as the man decided who offered to assist a distracted woman and ameliorate the sufferings of a lot of people on a suburban car.

The boy who howls was in evidence, the curled darling of his only own mother and the terror of everybody else, and he had kept the car in a state of wild excitement and exhausted the patience of everybody, including his doting parent.

"Oh, if your father were only here!" she had said for the fiftieth time, as she tried vainly to restrain the howling terror.

At that he stopped howling long enough to beat the air with his small shins, and the woman on the other side of him remarked audibly that a cage was the proper place for savages like him.

"Johnny, dear," asked his mother, "won't you be a good boy?"

Roars and kicks from Master Johnny.

"Oh, I wish your father were here to give you a good trouncing this very minute!" she wailed, as she struggled with him.

Then it was that the philanthropist of the company asserted himself. He had been trying in vain to read his morning paper ever since he started from home.

"Allow me, madam," he said, blandly. "I am a father myself, and I will be happy to chastise your cherub in behalf of his absent parent."

"Oh, no, you won't, not if I know it!" said Johnny's mother, rising in her wrath like a tigress. "There ain't that man living dare lay a finger on that boy—his own father or any other ugly catamount who thinks he knows it all," and she shut off debate by going into the next car and taking the sweet infant with her.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Short, Cheap and Pleasant Route to the East.

The Flint & Pere Marquette Steamships leave Milwaukee every evening, except Saturday, at 8:45, and the big car ferry "Pere Marquette" (largest in the world) leaves Manitowoc every evening, except Saturday, at 11:00 o'clock. Both lines arrive at Ludington the following morning in time to connect with trains for all points in Michigan, Ohio, Canada, East and South.

Passengers will save money and time, as well as enjoy a pleasant journey, by purchasing tickets via F. & P. M. R. R. Ask your local agent for tickets via this route, and for further information apply to your agent, or H. F. Moeller, Asst. Genl. Pass. Agt., Saginaw, Mich.

Mathematics.

There are people who tell us the distance old Mother Earth is from the stars, counting miles upon miles into millions, as the distance from Neptune to Mars. The way they throw figures is awful, on the size of the little sun spot, and how long it would take to walk round it if it wasn't so deucedly hot. They measure the depth of the ocean, and the distance across it as well, get the weight in the air of a meteor, and locate the right spot where they fell. But astronomers and mathematicians all confess that they can't get just right the miles gone over by papa, when he "totes" the cross kid in the night.—N. Y. World.

The New Navy Rifle.

The strongest shooting gun in the world is the new Lee rifle made by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., for the U. S. Navy. When fired there is a pressure on the breech of 60,000 pounds to the square inch. To build a gun that would withstand such tremendous strain was a great undertaking, but the Winchesters, with their vast and varied experience and wonderful plant, succeeded in turning out a gun entirely satisfactory in every way to the Navy. Like all Winchester rifles they shoot to perfection, work smoothly and easily and are strong serviceable arms. The Winchesters send a large illustrated catalogue free upon request.

Enterprises of Great Pith and Moment

Have, ere now, had their currents "turned awry," as Hamlet says, by an attack of dyspepsia. Napoleon failed to improve his advantage at Austerlitz in consequence, it is said, of indigestion brought on by some indiscretion in eating. In order to avoid dyspepsia, abstain from over indulgence, and precede the meal by a wineglassful of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, more effective than any dietetic in improving the tone of the stomach. Liver complaint, chills and fever, and rheumatism are annihilated by the Bitters.

A HEALTHY WIFE

Is a Husband's Inspiration.

A sickly, half-dead-and-alive woman, especially when she is the mother of a family, is a damper to all joyousness in the home. I sometimes marvel at the patience of some husbands. If a woman finds that her energies are flagging and that everything tires her, her sleep is disturbed by horrible dreams, and that she often wakes suddenly in the night with a feeling of suffocation and alarm, she must at once regain her strength.

It matters not where she lives, she can write a letter. Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., will reply promptly and without charge. The following shows the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, accompanied with a letter of advice:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I have suffered for over two years with falling, enlargement and ulceration of the womb, and this spring, being in such a weakened condition, caused me to flow for nearly six months. Some time ago, urged by friends, I wrote to you for advice. After using the treatment which you advised for a short time, that terrible flow stopped. I am now gaining strength and flesh and have better health than I have had for the past ten years. I wish to say to all distressed suffering women, do not suffer longer, when there is one so kind and willing to aid you."—MRS. F. S. BENNETT, Westphalia, Kans.

There Was Fight in Him Still.

"What's the matter?" inquired the foreman, as he entered the sanctum for copy and noted the editor's bleeding nose, swollen forehead, puffed, red eye and tattered, dusty coat. "Fall downstairs?" "No—only that," replied the editor, pointing with his finger to a paragraph in the paper before him. "It's in our account of the Crapley-Smith wedding. It ought to read: 'Miss Smith's dimpled, shining face formed a pleasing contrast with Mr. Crapley's strong, bold physiognomy.' But see how it was printed." And the foreman read: "Miss Smith's pimpled, skinny face formed a pleasing contrast with Mr. Crapley's stony, bald physiognomy." "Crapley was just in here," continued the editor, throwing one blood-streaked handkerchief in the waste basket and feeling in his pockets for a clean one, "and he—but just send that fool of a proof reader in here! There's fight left in me yet!"—Typographical Journal.

Rattlesnakes, Butterflies, and . . . ?

Washington Irving said, he supposed a certain hill was called "Rattlesnake Hill" because it abounded in—butterflies. The "rule of contrary" governs other names. Some bottles are, supposedly, labeled "Sarsaparilla" because they are full of . . . well, we don't know what they are full of, but we know it's not sarsaparilla; except, perhaps, enough for a flavor. There's only one make of sarsaparilla that can be relied on to be all it claims. It's Ayer's. It has no secret to keep. Its formula is open to all physicians. This formula was examined by the Medical Committee at the World's Fair with the result that while every other make of sarsaparilla was excluded from the Fair, Ayer's Sarsaparilla was admitted and honored by awards. It was admitted because it was the best sarsaparilla. It received the medal as the best. No other sarsaparilla has been so tested or so honored. Good motto for the family as well as the Fair: Admit the best, exclude the rest.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JULY 16, 1897.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Conzet has moved his harness shop into his new building, corner of Bridge and River street.

—Charley Eppel has commenced his new cement sidewald around his building on the corner of Bridge and River streets.

—The Delano Fair was not so largely attended as it has been sometimes. A large number of small pigs were offered for sale.

—W. D. Freeman has a fine lot of raspberries, and will soon be able to supply some of our villagers with luscious fruit freshly picked.

—Threshing machines and outfits are beginning to go west. Nearly every train shows that people west hope to reap a crop this fall.

—A Brass Band Concert is advertised for Saturday evening, in the City Hall, Delano, July 24. This is something extra, everybody be there.

--With our warm days and cool nights and vegetation of every kind growing rapidly, this is the time of year when people enjoy life in Minnesota.

—The base ballists evidently had all the Sunday games they wanted for some time a week ago last Sunday. Last Sunday was observed a little more decorously.

—Fish taking advantage of the high stage of the Crow find their way to Delano. Frank Mann caught a fine pickerel from the rail road bridge Tuesday evening.

—Hear the Nashville Students' solo band at noon Monday and attend their performance at the City Hall at night. They are good and deserve a full house. Prices only 15, 25, and 35 cents. 1t.

--Most of Delano's citizens favor the village paying the men who work on the streets and others, before donating $50 or any other amount of village funds to anybody, even 4th of July.

—Some of John Raders neighbors, of Independence, accuse him of having attended the spiritualist camp meeting at Markeville. Just on what grounds the accusations are made, deponent sayeth not.

--Crow River is now at a fine stage. If it would remain as it is the year round it would be navigable for small steamers, and afford fine sport for people who love boating, fishing, swiming, and skating.

—An entetainment will be given on Friday evening, July 16, at 7:30 for the benefit of the free kindergarten. A program will be rendered by the children, consisting of drills and songs. Ice cream and lemonade will be served. Admission 10 cents. 42-2t.

—The Delano Crickets will play a game of ball with the Howard Lake boys next Saturday, all players under 18 yrs. of age. The game will be on the home grounds, Saturday afternoon, July 17. Everybody who enjoys a good game of ball come and see it.

—The Nashville Students Colored Comedy Co. will appear at the City Hall on next Monday night, July 19. They are first class and you make no mistake by going. Best of singing, dancing, and specialties, just what all want. Secure your tickets in advance. Now on sale. Prices only 15, 25, 35.1t.

—School meeting at the School House at 7 o'clock tomorrow, Saturday evening, July 17, to elect three members of the board of education. Be on hand every body that can vote and choose the very best material for a school board that the town affords. Nothing beats first class schools to advertise a town for desirable immigrants.

--John Leudasher, who fell from the freight train to the river one night last week, is recovering from the injuries received. The G. N should plank over and put a rail along this end of the bridge, for the safety of the passengers who wish to get off. A few years ago Mr. Row Brasie got off a good deal the same way as Mr. L. did last week. It is an unsafe landing.

—Justice Walter had before him yesterday State of Minnesota vs. Louis Bramer, who plead guilty and paid fine and costs amounting to $10.30. State vs. Jos. Badnorz, and State vs. John Holuptzok were continued till July 21. These cases were all for assault and battery brought by Gus Brock, of Delano, weo was at Waverly when the offenses were committed. Holuptzok wanted to wait until he could get the free lawyer furnished by the Liquor Association, he being a saloon keeper at Wavealy, and a member of the Liquor Association. Gus Brock was arrested on a similar charge and taken to Waverly in the evening.

—The Howard Lake Herald advises the "GAZETTE to attend to its own knitting; to reform the wrongs in its own burg; and see that the law is enforced in its own home" Very good advice, Mr. Editor, but when you see a chance to aid even a single individual in your own village to have laws enforced, help him, don't wait for us to tender our advice. The law makes it obligatory on all peace officers to enforce the liquor laws, wherever they know they are broken. The penalty is the loss of their office. Perhaps Mr. Mc Cornock could do something on that line.

--Our citizens want a good school; they want it up to the best in the country; they want it economically run; but, many of them, when it comes time to elect members of the board of education, forget, or are too busy, or have not enough interest in school matters to get them out to vote. The way to have a good school, with good teachers and run as economically as possible, is to elect men who will see after the school; who will visit it occasionally and acquaint themselves with what is going on, and what is being neglected, and the whyfore, and attend to remedying what needs it. Three members of the Delano Board of Education are to be elected Saturday night. Be there promptly at 7 o'clock and say your say and vote your vote.

—A good many of those on the picnic grounds July 3, and who have read the Eagle's account of the days doings, and especially of Senator Culkin's speech would like to know what kind of a speech Mr. C. would have made, anyway, if he been given half a chance, and the Declaration of Independence had been read before he begun, or even after Mr. C. had called attention to the neglect. The Eagle's reporter must have been one of the favored few who found a seat from which to listen to the oration; for when a fellow was obliged to make nearly a complete circle arouud the orator in order to escape the vile tobacco and cigarrette smoke in which the speaker was kept, it was difficult to get so wrapped up with the speech as to think it the best ever made in Delano, or even the Senators best effort of his life. The Eagle would have pleased her readers, present on that occasion, had she not soared quite as high in her praises.

County Cullings.

Some of the best and most scientific road work has been done on roads leading into towns throughout the county that Wright county has ever seen.

The summer school for teachers being held at Buffalo, we understand, is successful. Every teacher that can attend should do so, and derive as much benefit as possible.

Tom Kelly, who was shot by John Muldoon, of Waverly, is said to be rapidly recovering from his wound in the neck.

The Boxell murderers still keep out of the grip of the law. Although so many people are so perfectly positive who did the awful deed, but none seem able to prove the case.

Wayerly now has a first grade High school, so we are informed. It is pronounced the best school, so Wayerly people say, between Minneapolis and Litchfield.

The Father Mathew Temperance society at Wayerly is a large one. J. F. McDonnell is President, and work is being pushed all along the line. Jim says the temperance question is of more importance to the people of this country than is the silver, or any other question.

Even the elements help Clearwater be temperate. Water was too much for the saloon. The river got so high the St. Cloud Times says as to wash the saloon away clean and clear, no insurance. When dame nature takes the saloon business in hand like that it wan't be long until we have a temperance county. If Wright County was strictly total abstinence it would soon be one of the best counties in the state. The intoxicating bowl is one of its worst enemies. It does far more harm than all the floods and storms the inhabitants ever saw.

Wright County is coming to the front in politics a little bit. Mr. Saylor, editor of the Howard Lake Herald has a place on the Governor's staff; wears soldiers clothes; and, it is said has something to say about pensions for old soldiers; also that an old soldier had to be "reconciled" from the position in order to let Mr. S. have it.

Then Senator Culkin, and his congressional aspirations have been neatly sidetracked, switched off for Duluth, where they will be shelved, or pigeon holed in the land office. Though it is said "Billy" will retain his residence at Buffalo, while doing a Land office business at Duluth, thus spreading himself over the whole sixth district, in order to keep before the people, the scheme is plain; the Senator thus spread out is too thin, too thin to cover the ground, or even keep out the mosquitoes, which want post offices and such, and are already making life hard for the ex-chairman of Republican League, etc. He may apply for membership in the Duluth Labor organization now that his job is there.

Among Our Exchanges.

Congressman Morris has announced that he will recommend Dr. N. K. Whittemore to be member of the pension board of examining surgeons at Anoka.--Sherburne County Star-News.

Duluth News Tribune:--David B. Hill fears that "there is too much demagogism abroad in the land." Mr. Hill can assist in reducing the visible supply by returning to his cave.

Litchfield Independent:--Charley Pillsbury last fall talked pretty big about how he would employ 1000 more men in case Bryan was defeated. It turned out as he wished, but the 1000 extra men are still waiting for those jobs, while on the contrary Pillsbury has been obliged to discharge some of the men he already had on his rolls.

Andy Bertram, ex-Dairy Commissioner, of Monticello, was a Delano visitor Wednesday.

Rev. Ray, of Litchfield, held Episcopal services at the Presbyterian ceurch Thursday evening.

James McDonnell and son Charley, of Waverly, made the GAZETTE a pleasant visit Tuesday.

Miss Merrel Jones, and brother Guy, returned home Wednesday evening, after several weeks visit with friends at Dassel.

Mrs. Helen Bain transacted business in Delano, Wednesday. She manages to get to town several times during the year.

Mrs. W. M. Mowatt and son Willie drove to Minneapolis and took a look at the circus this week. They returned home Tuesday night.

Charles Brandes was anxiously watching for a well screen to arrive this morning so he could complete a drive well near Montrose.

Mrs. C. M. Johnson and daughter Kittie left last night for Mayville, N. D. to make their home for awhile with Prof. Willis E. Johnson.

H. Elmer Coffin, of Minneapolis, passed through town Early Monday morning on his way home from the West. He was looking well.

W. M. Kespohl, of Duluth, who was to Minneapolis attending the Elk's meeting, visited his old home over Sunday. Bill is a strong silver man.

Misses Stella Davis, Josephine Plattner, and Francis Bauman and Amanda Sturman are among those from here, attending summer school at Buffalo.

Miss Ollie Williams, who has been to Mayville, Dak., for about a year, returned home Saturday. Her sister Jennie, who has been at Rockford for several months, came over Sunday, thus completing the family reunion.

Rev. F. E. Fairbanks, of Cedar Mills, made us a call Monday, on his way home from a visit at the old homestead, near Watertown. His father has sold his farm and intends moving to York State soon.

Editor Whorton and boys, Frank Zaun, Charley Green, Gotlieb Epple, Capt Grecar, John Nitzel, and Mrs. S. S. Ball, were Delano's representatives to Barnum & Bailey's circus Monday, at Minneapolis.

BEWARE OF THE BAR-ROOM BANK.

JAMES ALBERT LUTZ, WISCONSIN, PA.

Beware of the bar-room bank, my boy!
Deposit no money there;
Though profits accrue, they are not for you—
The bar-room bank you should never choose,
Depositors there have so much to lose!

Beware of the bar-room bank, my boy!
It's a place to loathe and abhor,
For honor and truth, independence and youth,
Come not from its open door;
But a sad procession of sorrow and care
Comes staggering forth to eternal despair!

Beware of the bar-room bank, my boy!
God gives us talents of gold—
Hope, honor and health, contentment or wealth,
And promise of joy untold.
In the bar-room bank, if we hide them away,
What account can we give at the Judgement Day?

Beware of the bar-room bank, my boy!
And help us to close the door;
If people to-day would vote as they pray,
We'd close it forever more;
And homes would be happy and hearts would be light,
For want would depart like a dream in night!

Beware of the bar-room bank, my boy!
Deposit no talent there;
Though profits accrue, they are not for you,
But yours is an awful share
Of sorrow, remorse, and eternal despair—
Oh, my boy, of the bar-room bank, beware!

THE FLIES.

(With Apologies to Poe.)

Hear the buzzing of the flies—
Stupid flies.
What a melody of paw-slap their melodies arise.
How they flit and fly and sting you
Through the noises of the day,
And their buzzing finally brings you
First to curse and then to pray.

How they buzz, buzz, buzz,
In a sort of maddening rhyme
To your jawing and your pawing,
And you miss them every time.
They are neither man nor woman,
They are neither brute nor human,
They are flies.
And you often want to rise
In your might and kill "them flies,"
But you can't.

Fist they're here, here, here,
Then they're there, there, there,
Then they're here and everywhere,
And they make you rant and swear,
Paw the air and tear your hair
In your madness of despair.
An a con-confabulation is ever on the rise
From the flies, flies, flies, flies,
Flies, flies, flies,
From the buzzing and the biting of the flies.

HARRY BOLAND.

—Louisville Courier Journal.

WHAT TO EAT, published at Minneapolis is already out for August. A live number too.

KENNEDY'S OWN for July is up to the usual grade of that highly interesting magazine. "Monarchial tendencies in the United States" by David B. Johnson; "Uniform Federal Marriage and Divorce laws in the United States" by I. W. Arnold, L. L. B. and several other well written articles applicable to the times are found in its pages.

THE SANTA FE RAILROAD COMPANY issued an order prohibiting its employes from entering saloons when either on or off duty. The board of trustees representing the liquor merchants of the state held a meeting and adopted resolutions requesting the Santa Fe to modify its order, which they claim is a discrimination against many of the large interests of the state.

REPUBLICAN papers are having a good deal to say about the bimetallic money commission that is across the water discussing with interested parties, even to Rothschilds, as to the advisability of returning to a bimetallic system. Some of them seem to be in earnest, and claim that if all nations would agree to the plan that it would be a good thing. Now, if that is true, why not the United States start in? And those countries who do agree can soon fall into line. Other papers act as if they actually believed that a single gold standard was the only safe money plan; these are saying that the commission will surely not meet with success in its efforts to bring about international bimetallism. One thing is quite clearly established and that is, that many of the G. O. P. believe still in the teachings of James G. Blain and of William Windom, and others, that gold and silver both should be used as primary money. Others have been led to vote and act with those who desire a contraction of the currency to the smallest possible compass. Some of these don't seem convinced in their own minds just why they want a gold standard but act as if it was because a stronger minded person had told them they must.

Admires Bryan.

The Messenger acknowledges a pleasant call from Mr. Edward Past, of Lincoln Neb., who is visiting his sister-in-law Mrs. Past and neices Mrs. A. A. Jewett and Mrs. Geo. Rackliff. He was a member of the old First Minnesota in the days of '61, and accompanied the survivors of that gallant regiment on their recent pleasant trip to Gettysburg. Mr. Past is also a near neighbor and admirer of Hon. W. J. Bryan in Lincoln:—Maple Lake Messenger.

From some of the stories found in our exchanges we could hardly suppose it possible that a member of the old First Minnesota in '61, and a man at that who lives neighbor, and is acquainted, could be an admirer of Mr. Bryan. But then as a matter of fact, there are several members of the gallant First, and other noble warriors and many neighbors who are acquainted with Mr. Bryan who admire his stand, and who cannot help admiring the manly qualities of Mr. Bryan.

Very Effective.

"And Italian genius has invented a rifle which fires eighty shots a minute. It is constructed on the general plan of William Jennings Bryan's mouth."—St. Paul Dispatch.

The Dispatch evidently thought the above something funny, as it had it under the head of "Hot Tomales" whatever it may mean by that.

Shots from a rifle are very sure and effective; and when one which shoots 80 times a minute is compared with the plan of William Jennings Bryan's mouth, it is admitting that great truth we didn't suppose the Dispatch cared to admit, that Mr. Bryan has a very effective mouth. Just think of it! William Jennings Bryan's mouth going off 80 times a minute! and a rifle ball hitting the mark every time! Don't the Dispatch think it might have been more apt in its comparison of the inventive Italian's rifle?

Adulteration vs. Overproduction.

A great mania for economizing has, from the necessities of the situation, seized the people of this country. Naturally our people prefer the best. Nothing is too good for them. Even though it costs more they are willing to pay for the best. The same notion prevails yet, and often we hear "the best is the cheapest." But owing to a lack of money with which to pay for higher priced articles, people are buying much that is not the best: that is cheaper when compared in money value alone. They feel as did the man who thought "if corner lots with houses were worth a dollar apiece he couldn't buy a nail." As good articles are wanted and needed but for lack of cash they are not obtained.

To meet this demand for articles costing less money, and that will partially substitute the real, many imitations and adulterations have found their way to the shelves of merchants or to the markets. Articles hard to tell from the real, often are sold to people because they cost less money; they eat, drink, wear or use them as the case may be, only to learn that they have been sold; have paid too dear for their whistle; their sugar, coffee, tea don't taste right: their molasses or honey is glucose or some mixed up mess, to look finer than the real; their drinks, if they use them, are manofactured to make money; even drugs are not always what they should be. These adulterated eatables, drinkables, and medicines, when taken into the stomachs of the people, do not sit right. The stomach demands the real, genuine, and is not to be fooled with adulterations and rebels; indigestion comes, and even death by "heart failure."

While poor people are eating, drinking and dying from the use of "imitations, the real articles are depreciating in price until they do not pay to market, and are left to spoil on the hands of the producers. This state of affairs is no good to the country. It only injures the producer of real products, and injures the would be consumer of them, while the bloated trusts who make "imitations" fatten their pocket books and go to insane asylums, or commit suicide or set some other example for a warning to those who would profit thereby.

It is claimed that even with strawberries at 5cts per quart or 6 boxes for a quarter, in Minneapolis, laboring people couldn't buy them, while in Wisconsin they couldn't afford to pick them and market them at that price. People can buy "sauce" made from they know not what, so cheap that they can save a little more money at the expense of their health and happiness, to help bloat up the "sauce" barons.

Isn't it about time something was done to bring about a condition of affairs where people can once more live by eating the products of the farms, and not the products of the factories; where industrious people can earn a livelihood by tilling the soil, good healthy work, instead of being cooped up like convicts in a jail, day after day, the profits going to the trusts?

Among Our Exchanges.

New York World:—If the country wants a tariff to suppress trade, minimize revenue and promote trusts, then President McKinley's special session is giving it the kind of tariff it wants.

The Senate has confirmed the nomination of John Goodnow as consul to Shanghai. If reports as to Goodnow's character are true, this is a good way to even up with the pigtails.—Wabasha Democrat.

John Goodnow will be confirmed by the Senate as consul to Shanghi; notwithstanding the fight of ex Senator Washburn and others. We have always been a consistent supporter of McKinley and believe he is the right man in the right place, but we believe the appointment of Goodnow was a mighty poor one, and it won't help the party either.—Sherburne County Times.

No American should sign a "gold" note or contract. American money is good enough for Americans, and if the gold bugs of Europe don't like American money under our American laws let them stay in Europe. Every gold contract made is in violation of the spirit and intent of our American laws. Whenever a man wants a gold note from you, the best thing that you can do is to drop the deal. Every gold note is a swindle on the person who gives it. "American money for Americans" should be our motto.—Waseca Herald.

Duluth Herald:—Even such a strong Republican organ as the Omaha Bee is forced to protest against Mr. Powderly's appointment as commissioner of immigration. It says: "Terrence V. Powderly's appointment as commissioner of immigration does not commend itself to workingmen, neither does it to any other class of citizens who know Powderly and his career. As a labor leader he leads nobody, because he has long since forfeited the confidence of his former followers. As a politician he has no claim on the Republican party."

Sought the Source.

The bimetallic commission sent from this country to Europe to work up an international agreement for the free coinage of silver, have actually called upon Baron Rothschild to privately discuss the situation. This is too awful to think about:—Wabasha Democrat.

Echo Answers, Why?

Every bond, every treasury note, all the indebtedness of the United States is payable in silver coin. Every such debt, by special proyision of the law at the time the debt was contracted, was made payable in silver dollars (ratio of 16 to 1) at option of the government. Why, then, should the bondocracy repudiate that contract and demand gold? By what authority or right did Cleveland refuse to pay out silver coin to plutocracy—or why should McKinley follow in his footsteps?—Waseca Herald

G. N. Watch Inspection.

The Great Northern has issued a bulletin extending the inspection of watches, which up to this time has only applied to engineers and conductors, to firemen, brakemen and yardmen. They are required to proyide themselves with watches not below the minimum standard of excellence prescribed by the company and to have these watches inspected between the 1st and 5th of each month, and to conform to the same rules governing watches as is required of the engineers and conductors. Watch certificates will be issued August 31st, indicating that the employes are to conform to this rule before Sept. 1st.—St. Cloud Times.

Hon. Charles A. Towne.

It is really wonderful what great respect the Republican papers of this State have for the influence and ability of Hon. Chas. A. Towne. They appear willing to accord to that gentleman almost as much power as Czar Tom Reed. Not long ago, they gave him credit for the reduction of the tariff on lumber from $2 to $1 per thousand and yet the entire Minnesota delegation favored the $2 duty. Yesterday, the Pioneer Press special as to the holding up of Eastman's confirmation said that "the fine Italian hand of Mr. Towne has been exhibited," and yet the two Senators favor the confirmation.

Verily, the opposition have a very perceptible fear of Mr. Towne's influence, even though he is not in Congress, and well they may have, for he is the peer of any of them, and the superior of eight-ninths of the delegation.—St. Cloud Times.

Teller and the Tariff

Senator Teller, while he walked out of the Republican convention of St. Louis because it adopted a gold standard platform, has always steadily insisted that he was a protectionist and in accord with the Republican party on the tariff. Still, with the streak of independence that is in him, he is disgusted with the Dingley bill, pandering to the trusts as it does. On its final passage in the Senate last week he voted against it, explaining his vote in a few pointed remarks, in which he said:

"In my judgement it is the worst tariff bill ever passed. The rates are exceedingly high. It takes care of all the trusts in the country, and, I say it without offense, the trust combinations and syndicates have had too much to do with this bill.

He has been on the ground ever since the tariff bill was introduced, and knows all the ins and outs of this notorius measure, and he does not hesitate to say that the trusts have dictated its schedules. Does any sane man believe that these schedules, named as they have been by the monopolies, have been adjusted in the interest of the people.—Litchfield Independent.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 16, 1897

Another disgraceful chapter in the disgraceful history of Congressional sugar scandals was written this week. The thoroughly up-to-date brigands do not rob individuals upon the public highway; they stand in with those who control the making of a new tariff bill and utilize their advance information to make fortunes by speculating in the stock market. By giving it out that the tariff conference committee had agreed to a compromise sugar schedule that was more favorable to the sugar trust than the Dingley schedule sugar stock was pushed up sufficiently high to make thousands of dollars for those who bought before the rise and sold at the highest piont, and there are good reasons for the belief that members of both branches of Congres were among those who did so.

A prominent republican was asked when the tariff bill would get out of conference, and he replied disgustedly. "When its schedules can no longer be profitably worked on the stock market." It is remarkable how often the assertion is heard that the conference is being purposely prolonged for speculative purposes.

Jerry Simpson had to smile when his resolution for the appointment of a select committee of five to investigate the sugar trust and its relation to Congressional legislation was referred to the Judiciary committee of the House, which has not been appointed yet.

Probably the majority of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations seek to ease their consciences by such "hot-stuff" as the report made this week on the resolution directing the President to demand the release of the three Americans who are in Cuban prisons, having been captured on the steamer Competitor. They know the House will not act on it.

Senator Tillman never looses an opportunity to remind the country of the contempt he feels for the Democracy of ex-President Cleveland. The latest occurred during the debate which resulted in the insertion by the Senate of a claus in the General Deficiency Appropriation bill limiting the cost of armor plate for naval vessels to $300 a ton. Senator Tillman referred to the remitting of a fine that was imposed upon the Carnegie Steel Co., by the Secretary of the Navy, for furnishing bad armor, by the President, when he was interrupted by Senator Allen who remarked: "And it was a democratic President who remitted that fine." Mr. Tillman turned to the gentleman from Nebraska and said with studied politeness: "Please don't leave out 'so-called' in referring to the democracy of that President, as it hurts my feelings to hear him referred to as a Democratic President. As for his remitting the fine, I have never sought to fathom the mystery of how he tried to override law and decency by that action."

The Senators do not enjoy being snubbed up by Mr. McKinley any more than they did being snubbed by Mr. Cleveland, as they have very plainly shown in their private talk to each other since it became known that Mr. McKinley had decided not to furnish the Senate with the correspondence with Great Britain relating to the seal fisheries, asked for in a Senate resolution unanimously adopted nearly two months ago. Copies of the correspondence have been prepared, but this week it was decided not to send it to the Senate, on the ground that it would be "incompatable with the public interests" to do so. As an additional reason for not complying with the respectful request of the Senate, officials say it was feared that a publication of the correspondence might result in making the English mad. Probably the uniqueness of this excuse is expected to make up for its lack of plain, everyday common sense. Meanwhile the administration has made public its instructions to Ambassador Hay, which charge the government of Great Britain with trickery.

Republican Senators resorted to filibustering to break a quorum in order to prevent a vote on the Pacific Railroad resolution of Senator Harris, of Kans., which Senator Morgan declares will save the people of this country $30,000,000, if adopted in time to prevent the commutation of the scheme started during the last administration to get possession of the road through an alleged reorganization and purchase, not to mention what will be saved to other creditors and stockholders. Republicans were afraid to kill the resolution by a direct vote, so they resorted to such round-about methods of doing it as refusing to vote thus breaking a quorum. Under the Senate Rules a "counted quorum" doesn't go.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Where are we, for since our fathers fell asleep, we have had no such trials and tribulations financially.

Our people are lost in bewilderment, many of our people know not where they are, whether in the body or out of the body.

A man that is independent thinks for himself and has views of his own; is not controlled by any party faction or clique; is called a crank, a fool, and only fit for the crazy house. Our politics are broken into factions and corrupted by those who are looking for the honors and spoils of office. All kinds of trickery and deception is being manufactured by the power house (the chief apostles in politics) to fool the people, and too many people are looking only for fun and pleasure, and paying no attention to the state of affairs by which we are surrounded.

Men are anxious to be masters rather than servants. A President, a Governor, a Congressman are servants of the people, only, but after they are elected to office in their imagination they are lords, and salaried officers get very important, and what belongs to them above their shirt collar they think is of more importance than the rest of the world.

Our people are getting too aristocratic for a Republican form of government. We read in the book of books that God made the world and the fullness thereof We are all one flesh both Jew and Gentile, all made of the same kind of clay, and I, for one was not born to worship the golden calf nor man in the flesh.

It is said the Queen's Jubilee cost millions of dollars, and yet the people of India are starving.

Mc Kinley's Inauguration cost much money, thousands upon thousands, and yet there are thousands of the poor that do not have half enough to eat. Many people may think these things all right but God will not long recognize such things. There are some things that money cannot buy. Simon Magnus tried to buy salvation but could not make the purchase.

That great issue that was before the people last fall, the money question, has been put before the people in panoramic view in most every form, but I can see but one solution of the problem and that is, that both gold and silver is money of the constitution, and Congress had no right to demonetize silver in order to bring a premium on gold, and if gold is coined on private account, silver should be coined the same A man told me the other day that silver was not government money. I am sorry men are so short sighted. There is not a government bond issued that is payable in gold, but they are payable in coin, both gold and silver (silver dollars). The Mathews-Stanley resolution says it is not in violation of law to pay government bonds in silver dollars. Gold is now being coined on private account; yon can take your bullion to the government mint and waite until they coin it or they will weigh it out and pay you for it then, and some people try to make others believe that the government buys it. Call it what you please, it is free coinage just the same, and so it was with silver until it was demonetized.

Men last fall tried to make themselves believe in a 53 cent silver dollar. The firm of Willoughby, Hill & Co., of Chicago, originated the 53 cent silver dollar fad, that is the Mexican silver dollar, and put it on sale at 53 cents, but they have busted up long ago, and financially they have gone to their reward.

Now if Dingley gets his tariff bill through all right a wave of prosperity may be expected by the shortest route, and there are thousands of men who depend only upon their days labor, think that this high protective tariff is going to help them; high protection on sugar, high protection on lumber, and high protection on wool and woolen goods, will benefit the poor man will it? For the Lord's sake will you please tell me in what way? I know men have argued that the employer will pay more wages. This is a sickly argument, and no truth in it. Is it to be supppsed that the manufacturer will pay more to his men just because he has high protection on his goods? Not a bit of it.

What money is most in circulation now?—silver, silver certificates, and bank currency. Where are the greenbacks? They have been withdrawn for a purpose. I know the party now in power does not like to hear anything about the money question, but they will hear more and more about it all along the line. They also try to make the people believe Bryan is a back number, but all they say about Bryan is doing no harm, just keep on. The more they say the better.

It is said Mark Hanna has moved into the White House. Must say I admire McKinley's choice of company. I had rather be a door keeper in the house of the Lord than to be Mark Hanna, as reported by good authority. Mr. Editor, I am for this government, for Union and the Constitution as given to us by our fathers. You may talk party until you are black in the face but that will never bring reconciliation, nor establish a righteous form of government, there is too many men trying to fool the people and it seems there are too many people willing to be fooled. My sympathy is with the poor first, the rich can take care of themselves.

Now Mr. Editor I am just a plain simple farmer, never have acquired much of this world's goods, but so far have managed to pay debts, keep out of jail and the poor house, but can't tell how long this may continue; for there is rich blood at my heels. My father came to Hennepin county 40 years ago. I was only a kid as they say, but I was put to clearing land and working among the stumps, and if any one has envied me my position there is yet opportunities where they can partake of the same privilege, but while I live I shall be in the fight for what I think is right.

The stars and stripes that unfurls itself to the breeze on landand sea is no dirty rag, and our subjects are of as good blood as any nation; let us stand by principal and right if politics goes to the dogs. Now some will read this (if they read it at all) and say that fellow is a fool and perhaps they will be right, but I think I know when I am getting my share of the feast

The politicians in this country have got a disease that is worse than hog cholera, the devoted love of office. It might be a good thing to cut the salaries down one half and thereby save some tax, and get better men for the office.

Retrenchment and reform must begin soon.

A. FARMER.

Sherburne County Star-News.—Washburn, McKinley, Pillsbury and Goodnow are mixed up in a question of veracity. A suffering public is willing to admit that all are guilty and let it go at that. It is subline irony to talk of veracity in politics anyway.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent:
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilcon machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory.

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, 7 authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Last year was one of the most profitable for the fire insurance companies ever experienced by them, but this year promises even better results. The fire losses in the United States and Canada, according to the New York Journal of Commerce, has amounted to $57,940,450 during the first half year, against a loss of $63,959,559 in the same time last year, and over $66,000,000 in the first six months of 1895.

At last we know exactly how old the earth is, for Lord Kelvin, the eminent British savant, has, after the calculation of years, reached the defininte conclusion that this terrestrial sphere has been such for 30,000,000 years. This is not the chimerical assertion of a theorist, but the result of long and laborious study by perhaps the man best qualified of all to make an authoritative statement to humanity.

In the last year 72 persons credited as New Yorkers disappeared, dropped out of sight more completely than if the ocean had swallowed them up; and this 72 does not include the real number of people swallowed up by the sea of mystery. Only the humble seek police aid to search for lost ones. The dwellers behind the brownstone, as a rule, swallow their grief in silence, and seldom seek the aid of the police.

Telephone wires seem to have an important influence in preventing lightning from striking, according to the investigations of the German telephone department. Three hundred and forty towns with telephone systems and 500 towns without them were under observation. In the former the lightning struck three times for every hour of the storm; in the later five times. Moreover the violence of the lightning was much less in the former case.

There is no country in the world that is so bountiful in its products or that gives such rich rewards to legitimate industry as our own green land, says the Philadelphia Times. Here there should be plenty at all times for those who in any degree merit it, and it would be so, regardless of the mutations in business and trade, if the people were not diverted from legitimate channels of effort to go rainbow chasing for ease and fortunes which tempt all to destruction.

It is becoming evident that the czar of Russia has among his subjects some of the most depraved and ignorant wretches in the world. Recently it was announced that the practice of burial alive was common among certain religious fanatics, and now comes the news that beggars in southern Russia make it a practice to kidnap and mutilate children so that their condition would excite public sympathy and enable them to obtain alms. The Siberian penal system has been criticised as inhumane, but apparently it is only the application of this system which should be criticised.

There is no need of flag laws to enforce respect for the national emblem in this country. Statistics of flag manufacturers and the use of the national colors are proof of the fact. More than 50,000,000 flags of all kinds are bought for the Fourth of July season each year. A vast number are of cheap description, and wear out or are destroyed after the temporary use which they serve. This keeps the industry of flag manufacture constantly active. The times are never so hard that the people are without money to buy the American colors for purposes of display on Independence day.

The appeal made by the remnants of the once powerful and warlike Sioux tribe for permission to erect a battle monument over the graves of the warriors who fell at Wounded Knee seven years ago is not only pathetic, but gives evidence of the turning of these Indians from the paths of savagery. The erection of monuments has never been a characteristic of nomadic races, and the appeal shows a desire upon the part of the Indians to settle down to the pursuits of civilization. But a "storied urn" or "animated bust" erected to the memory of red men is certainly something new in mortuary art.

INTERESTING NEWS COMPILATION.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Special Session.

A resolution was reported in the United States senate on the 14th for the ratification of the Hawaiian annexation treaty and another asking the president to interfere in the case of the schooner Competitor prisoners who are imprisoned in Cuba. A resolution to prevent the disposal of the government lien on the Union Pacific railway under the terms of an alleged agreement caused a long discussion. In the house Mr. Simpson (Kan.) introduced a resolution directing the speaker to appoint a committee of five to investigate the sugar trust.

Pacific railway affairs occupied the attention of the United States senate on the 15th. A joint resolution was passed accepting the invitation of France to participate in the Paris exposition of 1900. In the house Mr. Lorimer (Ill.) introduced a bill to appropriate $500,000 for a monument to Lincoln in the city of Washington.

The session of the United States senate on the 16th was brief and uneventful. A bill was passed to give the consent of congress to a compact entered into between South Dakota and Nebraska respecting the boundary between said states. The house agreed to the partial conference report on the general deficiency bill and concurred in the senate amendment fixing the limit of cost for armor plate at $300 per ton.

Senator Morgan (Ala.) occupied most of the time in the United States senate on the 17th in support of a resolution relating to the Union Pacific railway. In executive session a number of nominations were confirmed and the nomination of Terrence V. Powderly, of Pennsylvania, to be commissioner-general of immigration was received from the president. In the house no business was transacted.

LATER NEWS.

An United States mail car was broken into at Willmar, Minn., during the temporary absence of the mail clerk about 1 a. m. and the mail was partially looted. The thieves evidently worked in the dark, for they did not discover the registered mail.

Gov. Taylor, of Tennessee, has appointed Hon. Thomas B. Turley as United States senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Isham G. Harris.

The conference report on the tariff bill was adopted shortly after midnight the 20th, by a vote of 189 to 117, and at noon the report went to the senate for action there. This eclipses all previous records. The result was accomplished after 12 hours of continuous debate. But two speeches were made by the republicans, one by Mr. Dingley in opening the debate and one by Mr. Payne, of New York, in closing it.

Judge Fisk, at Grand Forks, N. D., decided that August Normand, already under conviction for the murder of Andrew Hillestad, could not be tried again, and he will be taken at once to the penitentiary to serve a life sentence.

The amount of treasure brought down from the Clondyke by the steamship Portland is now placed at $1,500,000. Each passenger is required to place his gold in the ship's safe, but the miners secreted their dust in blankets and luggage, which were taken either to their stateroom or thrown carelessly about the ship.

The jury in the case against George Defender, for the murder of the Spicer family at Winona, N. D. case came into court after having been out 60 hours, and reported that they were unable to come to an agreement and were discharged.

C. B. McIntosh, governor of the Northwest Territory, in which is included the far-famed Clondyke district, is in Seattle. The governor freely subscribed to the truthfulness of the stories sent out as to the richness of the new diggings. He estimated that Clondyke and its tributaries yielded over $3,000,000 in gold last winter. Of this amount he says $2,000,000 and upward came via the steamships Portland and Excelsior. More than a million dollars in dust, he says, is now stored away in the cabins of miners along the creek being developed.

The steamer Baltimore City of the Furness line, from Montreal to Manchester, is reported lost in the Straits of Belle Isle.

It is stated that Emperor Nicholas has telegraphed the sultan that if the Turks do not evacuate Thessaly, Russian troops will enter Turkey.

THE MINERS' STRIKE.

May Take a Month to Adopt True Uniformity Plan.

Arbitration Commission of the Five States Effects a Permanent Organization—Situation Reviewed by President Ratchford.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 17.—True uniformity may eventually win in the Pittsburgh mining district through the efforts of the peace commissioners, but it will take time. It is expected that it will require several weeks, perhaps a month, to secure the signatures of the operators to the proposition, and Gen. Little has advised that no time limit be put on the movement, as at the former attempt.

The position of the miners' officials in this new phase of the strike movement is queer. M. D. Ratchford, the national president will have nothing to do with it. President Dolan and Secretary Warner have cut loose from their national executive in the movement and propose to give it their hearty support.

Permanent Board Formed.

The arbitration commissioners of the five states, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania, have formed a permanent board, with the object of urging the uniformity plan with all operators. Gen. Little, of Ohio, was made president, and B. Frank Schmidt, of Indiana, secretary.

President Ratchford Talks.

Columbus, O., July 19. — President Ratchford sums up the strike situation in an interview to the State Journal as follows:

"The manner in which the miners are conducting themselves commends itself to the country and gives their officers renewed encouragement, and strengthens the belief that victory will ultimately crown their efforts. We have started into this movement realizing fully the importance of the work before us and the responsibility resting upon us, and after two weeks of suspension, involving more than 150,000 miners, we are well satisfied with the results. Only those who are best acquainted with the condition of the miners have any idea of the extent of this suspension and its paralyzing effects upon the labor and business of the country. It has not yet reached its full proportions. The coming week will add 20,000 men to the idle column. The week following will bring greater accessions to our ranks. The movement will continue to grow, not only from the point of number involved, but public opinion will become crystallized more fully and through the press of the country will demand a solution of this great difficulty. The organized trades of the country are to-day in closer touch than ever before. Never in the history of labor troubles have they been found so closely allied. Our demand for living wages and the determination of our miners to secure it have brought expressions of sympathy and moral and material support from almost every branch of organized labor, whose efforts in our behalf will endear them to all lovers of fairness and establish for the miners, with their own efforts, a living rate of wages."

Strike Not a Choice.

Columbus, O., July 20. — President Ratchford and Secretary Pearce have issued a letter to the public giving the causes leading up to the present suspension. The circular says that the suspension is not a choice but an alternative forced upon the miners in their demand for living wages. An operator is quoted as saying in a joint conference prior to the suspension: "Go on and fight; we are ready for you." The movement is characterized as "nothing less than a spontaneous uprising of an enslaved people who have determined to submit no longer to the cruel, heartless and inhuman conditions imposed upon them by unscrupulous employers, which has reduced them and their dependents to actual starvation."

Will Return to Work.

Huntington, W. Va., July 19.—The miners at Thacker, Logan and Dingess, who on Saturday afternoon decided to strike, held a mass meeting Sunday afternoon and reconsidered their action. They will return to work as usual Monday. The Elkhorn miners, who also decided to strike, will, it is believed, follow their example.

Debs Talks to Miners.

Fairmont, W. Va., July 20.—Eugene V. Debs addressed the entire male population of Fairmont Monday night and about 200 miners from the neighboring collieries. The meeting was a very enthusiastic one. Besides the 650 miners who laid down their tools at Monongah Monday morning, 27 of the 14 men at Pritchard joined the strikers.

Charleston, W. Va., July 20. — The strike movement among the miners in the Kanawha valley received a slight impetus Monday morning when the coal diggers at two more mines decided to go out. This increases the number of idle miners to ten and the number of idle men to about 800.

President McKinley's Aid Asked.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 20. — Pittsburgh council Monday in regular session passed a resolution calling on President McKinley to use his good offices in the settlement of the coal miners' strike. The resolution advocates arbitration on a true uniformity basis and urges the president to act promptly in the matter before the strike develops into an industrial war that threatens to violate the public peace and seriously interfere with the business interests of this community.

To Try to Start the Mines.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 20.—Unless the miners' leaders are able to get the West Virginia diggers out early this week, the local strike situation promises to grow very interesting about the last of this week and to come to a crisis next Monday morning, as indicated in the dispatches Sunday night. Several of the local operators have announced that they are tired of seeing their contracts get away from them, and that the mines now supplying their trade must be stopped or their own mines will be put into operation.

More Illinois Miners Go Out.

St. Louis, July 20.—Information just received is to the effect that 450 miners employed in the shafts of the St. Louis Consolidated company at Collinsville, Ill., went out Monday at the request of the marching delegation from Staunton, Glen Carbon and Mount Olivet coal mines. They created no disorder.

Rock Island, Ill., July 20.—The miners at Sherrard and Cable, Mercer county, struck Monday afternoon.

Rescued.

Phoenix, A. T., July 19.—James Stevens was rescued from the Mammoth mine, after an imprisonment of 14 days without food or water. At seven o'clock Saturday morning, at a depth of 125 feet, the rescue party broke into the drift where Stevens has been confined. Stevens is fearfully emaciated, and has lost fully 70 pounds during his confinement, but his mind is clear.

BAPTISTS MEET.

Young People's Convention Opened at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 16. — The seventh international convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America began in this city Thursday morning, with about 4,000 delegates and some of the most prominent Baptist leaders in the country present.

The convention was opened with a short song service, led by Dr. L. L. Henson, of Fort Wayne, Ind., formerly secretary of the board of managers. At the close of the song service Dr. Henson read the Forty-sixth Psalm and delivered a fervent invocation, after which President Chapman arose to deliver the opening address.

As President Chapman walked to the front of the platform he was greeted by a great volume of applause.

The afternoon session was presided over by F. L. Fowke, of Ossawa, Ont., vice president of the B. Y. P. U. A. After a 15-minute praise service the reports of officers were read and a number of addresses were delivered. At the evening session President Chapman delivered his annual address, which covered the work of the past year in a very complete manner.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 17. — The principal business transacted at the meeting of the Baptist Young People Friday morning was the election of officers. The head officers remain the same, while the remaining ones are changed to a certain extent. The officers elected are:

President—John H. Chapman, Chicago.
Vice presidents—Rev. Curtis Lee Laws, Baltimore; Rev. George B. Vosburg, Denrea, Cal.; Rev. J. H. MacDonald, Amhurst, N. S.
Recording secretary—Rev. H. W. Reed, La Crosse, Wis.
Treasurer—Frank Moody, Milwaukee, Wis.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 19. — The Baptist Young People's Union of America closed its successful convention here Sunday night with a most impressive consecration service. Buffalo has been conditionally chosen as the convention city in 1898.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Young People of the Methodist Church Meet in Convention.

Toronto, Ont., July 16.—Delegates to the convention of the Epworth League overwhelmed this city Thursday. Decorations on the principal buildings have given a general holiday appearance to the city.

The opening meetings were held in the afternoon in the pavilion of the Metropolitan church. In the evening four monster meetings were held. In Massey Music hall 5,000 people gathered. At the pavilion more than 3,000 assembled, at Coke's church there were 1,800, and at the Metropolitan church 3,500 people present.

Bishop John P. Newman delivered a lecture on the advance of Christianity, in the course of which he made a vicious attack on the press, stating that instead of doing good they served up for breakfast a hash of crime, murder and scandal.

Toronto, Ont., July 17.—The Epworth leaguers have kept on coming for two days till Friday they numbered over 20,000 strong, and carry everything in front of them. Meetings they have in profusion, and speakers "from Greenland's icy mountains" and from India's missionary fields, all full of eagerness. Friday the meetings numbered no less than 16.

Toronto, Ont., July 19.—Five monster farewell rallies Sunday night closed the greatest convention the Epworth league has ever held.

LOOKS BRIGHT.

Dun Says Every Feature of Business Outlook Is Encouraging.

New York, July 17.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their weekly review of trade say:

"Excepting the great coal miners' strike, which may terminate at any time, there is scarcely a feature of the business outlook which is not encouraging, the season considered. Crop prospects have been improved by needed rain in some regions and foreign advices continue to promise a large demand. In many home industries, particularly in building, there is more activity than in any year since 1892, and the week has brought a better demand in boots and shoes and in woolens, while the movement of freight, mainly iron ore, through the Sault Ste. Marie canal is the largest in its history. With money markets unclouded, there is nothing in sight to hinder rapid improvement when uncertainty about legislation has been removed.

"The advance in wheat to 81⅛ cents was not due to the government estimate, which was followed by a decline, but to foreign advices and considerable buying for export. Demand is already felt from Australia, Brazil and even Argentina, while the promise for European crops is not considered bright. The disposition of farmers to keep back wheat for higher prices may affect the outward movement."

TO MOVE NEW WHEAT.

Thousands of Empty Grain Cars Sent to Carry the Crop.

Kansas City, Mo., July 19. — Long trains of empty freight cars have rolled out of Kansas City for two weeks and dropped off in twos and threes and fives on side tracks along the lines of the railroads in Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma. These empty cars, of which there are thousands, will be filled with new '97 wheat inside of four or five weeks. A tremendous grain rush is expected, and the best of management by railroad officials will be needed to prevent a huge grain blockade, or a grain-car famine. Conservative estimates of crop statisticians place the yield of wheat for this year in Kansas alone at 60,000,000 bushels.

HONORS FATHER MARQUETTE.

His Namesake City Unveils a Statue in His Memory.

Marquette, Mich., July 16. — Father Marquette's namesake city held a great celebration at the unveilng of the bronze monument of the explorer and priest whose name it bears. A feature of the great parade was a band of 30 Indians on horseback, dressed in feathers and war paint. The band was augmented by as many more men and boys painted to represent Indians. The exercises were held on a platform built at the foot of the statue.

Flint Glass Workers' Conference Ends

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 19.—The American flint glass workers' convention, which has been in session here for two weeks, adjourned finally Saturday afternoon after selecting Zanesville, O., as its next place of meeting, and reelecting the following officers: President and treasurer, William J. Smith, Pittsburgh; vice president, F. H. Williams, Baltimore; secretary, John Kunzler, Pittsburgh.

NEW ELDORADO.

Wonderful Stories from the Alaskan Gold Fields.

Seattle, Wash., July 19.—The reports of great gold discoveries in Alaska have caused intense excitement here. Policemen are resigning from the force; every street car man that can raise a stake has given notice to his company. In fact, all classes of society are represented in the feverish rush to get north. Men neglect their business and congregate in groups on the streets in excited discussions. People are telegraphing friends and relatives in the east to come and join them in the new Eldorado.

The steamer Portland is here from the Klondyke and has brought in treasure weighing more than a ton and valued at not less than $1,000,000. Capt. Kidston said that the richness of the Klondyke had not been exaggerated. He predicted that many millions would be taken from the placers during the present season—perhaps as much as $18,000,000.

Seattle, Wash., July 20.—One hundred men took passage on the steamer Al Ki Monday, most of them starting on what is called the overland trip to Klondyke. From Juneau they go 100 miles farther by water to Dyea, then over the mountain passes, down Lakes Linderman and Bennett to the Yukon river, and from that river to the new discoveries.

Thomas Moran, an old miner, who has just come from the Klondyke after a three years' sojourn, bringing with him $25,000 worth of gold dust, left this morning for San Francisco. Before going he said that it was beyond the power of one's mind to realize the wealth that was being taken from Mother Earth. "Pockets are being discovered," he said, "that contain large amounts of pure virgin gold."

Mr. Moran also gave the first account of what is known in the Klondyke as "Too Much Gold Creek." Only two white men have ever reached it, and they had to give up and turn back because they had no provisions. This creek of fabulous wealth is about 700 miles from the Klondyke and is known to Indians, who refuse to reveal its location. The Indians say there is too much gold for white men, meaning that if the secret is given out there will be another rush of prospectors.

J. W. Moore, of Seattle, who sent a man to the Klondyke last March, has just received 24 ounces of the precious metal. Moore, who is in the woolen business, will take his entire stock to the mines on the next steamer. Harry Durken, a young man, who has been in the Klondyke for three years, writes to his sister in Seattle that he has two five-gallon oil cans filled with gold dust.

EXPORT RECORDS BROKEN.

High Mark in Trade Is Reached During the Year.

Washington, July 16.—The monthly statement of the exports and imports of the United States, issued by the bureau of statistics, makes the remarkable showing that never before in the history of the country have the exports of merchandise, which include practically all the exports except gold and silver, reached so high a figure as during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1897, nor has the excess of exports over imports ever been so large. The only time these figures were approached was in 1892, when the United States was making heavy shipments of grain to feed Europe after a series of deficient harvests. The statement of 1897, with comparisons, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $1,032,998,880; increase over 1896, about $170,000,000; total exports of domestic and foreign merchandise, $1,051,987,91, as compared with $882,606,938 for 1896. The total imports of merchandise during the fiscal year just closed amounted to $764,373,905, of which $381,932,605 was free of duty. The total imports were about $15,350,000 less than last year, and the excess of exports over imports for the year was $287,613,186. This is an excess of about $185,000,000 over last year and an excess of about $23,000,000 over any previous year.

PEARY IS OFF.

Arctic Explorer Leaves to Prepare for His Journey to the Pole.

Boston, July 20.—The steamer sealing bark Hope, with Lieut. R. E. Peary and party on board, bound for northern Greenland, left this port at nine a. m. on Monday, fully equipped for the voyage. The work of provisioning the vessel was completed only a short time before she sailed.

The object of the voyage is to establish a settlement at a remote northern point in Greenland, which shall be used as a base of supplies for an expedition in search of the north pole under Lieut. Peary in 1898. To this end a party of Esquimaux will be established at the new settlement and will, during the next year, be engaged in making preparations for Lieut. Peary's expedition.

LOOKS LIKE A BLUFF.

Startling Bit of News Telegraphed from Paris.

London, July 16.—A dispatch from Paris to a news agency here says that inquiry at an American embassy there has elicited a confirmation of the rumor that the governments of Spain and Japan have arranged an offensive alliance against the United States. The understanding is for the mutual protection of Cuba and Hawaii.

Washington, July 16.—Little credence is placed in official circles here in the statement that the Spanish and the Japanese governments have entered into an offensive alliance against the United States for the mutual protection of Cuba and Hawaii. Indeed, so far as could be learned no intimation of such an agreement has reached the state department.

Japan Will Arbitrate.

Yokahama, July 20. — The official press states that it is probable that the Japanese government will agree to the proposal of Hawaii and submit the dispute between the two countries to arbitration.

How They Came to London.

The following conversation took place between two gentlemen in a crowded London club room. They had been talking about the condition of things when they first came to London. Mr. Rawson said:

"When I first came to London, I had only a ragged coat, with a knife and a few marbles in my pocket."

"You were better off than I, then, for I had neither a coat nor a waistcoat, nor a knife, nor even marbles."

"Nonsense!" was the reply. "How could that be?"

"Well, I will tell you. When I came here I was a baby in long clothes."

The roar of laughter that arose could have been heard miles away.—Tit-Bits.

It's Different, You Know.

It was during a controversy over the value of a bicycle.

"There are cases, mamma," explained the young woman, "when the proper use of a bicycle is almost imperative, and I'm sure that mine is one of them."

"Nonsense," returned the elder woman. "That's very nice talk from the point of view of a dealer in bicycles, but that is all. Now if you want exercise—"

"But I don't mamma," interrupted the young woman, hastily. "It isn't exercise that I need, but recreation, and there's no recreation in doing the housework—none at all."—Chicago Post.

THE LONG, HARD HILL.

They were standing in the sunlight
Of the summer time of life:
She was still without a husband,
He was waiting for a wife.
And her cheeks were rich and rosy,
And her lips were luscious red,
So he pressed her dimpled fingers
As he looked at her and said,
As they stood there in the heather
Where the road had crossed the rill:
"May we not fare together
Up this long, hard hill?"

Now her hand began to tremble
And her eyes were full of tears
As she trained them on the road that Wound away among the years; ;
But she had no voice to answer
Him; she could not understand,
For the future lay before her
Like a far-off fairy land.
There was sunlight on the heather,
There was music in the rill,
As they went away together
Up the long, hard hill.

Oftentimes the way was sunny,
Other times 'twas full of lures,
But the love that had come to them
Was the true love that endures.
Though the bonny brow is wrinkled,
Though the raven lock be gray,
Yet the road might have been rougher
Had she gone the other way.
Now the frost is on the heather
And the snow is on the rill,
And they're coasting down the short side
Of the long, hard hill.

JUST IN TIME.

BY C. N. BARHAM.

AS SEEN from the sea, the town of New Haven, Mass., appears embosomed between two hills. These hills are not more than five hundred feet in height; but what they lack in altitude they make up for in picturesqueness. They present a bold front of trap rock, which, combined with the harbor in the foreground, and a long line of low hills stretching away toward the sky line, constitute a scene of loveliness which is not easily forgotten.

The whole neighborhood is of historical interest. It was in one of these two hills—that which is called the West Rock—that the celebrated regicides, Goffe and Whallley, once found refuge. A cleft in its rugged sides is known, far and wide, by the name of the "Judges' Cave."

This cave is a mere den, lying between two immense boulders of about twenty feet perpendicular. One of these is somewhat conical in shape, while the other is almost a perfect parallelogram. Between these, at some remote period, another large stone would seem to have fallen, and become tightly wedged. This is all that justifies the name of a cave. The place must have been a fitter dwelling for the bears and cougars which at that period infested the eastern states, than for two famous Englishmen.

On one of the stones, which is covered with inscriptions, some visitor has taken pains to renew the inscription which, tradition says, the occupants placed over their retreat. His enthusiasm must have been brighter than his orthography, for he has only succeeded in informing posterity that "opposition to tyrants is obedience to God."

Hither one hundred and twenty years ago came Reginald Flanders, an English soldier, who had served in the French and Indian war. It was a solitary situation for such a man to have chosen as a settlement; but he knew no fear, and craved for no companionship. He cultivated a patch of the wilderness which stretched far away inland, and, as the Indians were quiet, the wild hillside seemed to him, his wife and Basil, his eight-year-old son, an earthly paradise.

It was a September morning. The leaves, beginning to change, shone like gold in the sun. Reginald Flanders had thrown a sack of corn across the back of his plow-horse and was taking a farewell of his wife and child, preparatory to starting for New Haven, where he proposed to exchange his marketable commodity for household necessaries. Throwing his gun over his shoulder—for no prudent man would then go on a journey without his tried weapon of defense—he strode away, and was almost immediateiy lost to view.

Shortly after the dispatch of a frugal breakfast, Basil left the log house and wandered towards the verge of the woods. A small stream came trickling down toward the sea, and beside it the little fellow halted. A floating acorn, the first of the season, caught his eye, and, with the thoughtlessness of childhood, he drew it to the bank. Somehow, that early fruit of the wilderness appealed to his roaming instinct. He craved for more, and, reasoning that there must be plenty up stream, perceiving that his mother's eye was not upon him, he started on his quest.

The rivulet ran through a ravine. The banks, composed of rocks, fretted by storm and decay, rose almost perpendicularly on either side. A few scattered trees and shrubs sought nourishment from the earth, which had fallen from above. Beyond these, up the gorge, Basil pushed on—whither he did not know.

The mother soon missed her son, but at first, thinking he was in the vicinity, checked her fears. The hours passed, and, as he did not return, her anxiety changed to absolute terror. Forsaking all else, Mrs. Flanders hurried to the fields, and, with rapid footsteps, traversed the gloomy glades. Search as she would, she could discover no trace of the missing one. She shouted, called his name, but there was no response.

At length she came to the stream. There, with a cry, half of gladness, half of dismay, she hailed the child's footprints in the soft, yielding soil. She saw that they pointed upwards to the gorge, into which she had never before ventured. But a mother's love fears no consequences. She entered.

For some time she rushed onward, experiencing all the bitterness of hope deferred. The cry: "Basil! Basil!" rang out of the stillness of the wood, but no answer came.

Suddenly she stopped, and gazed into the gloom with straining eyes; then she pressed her hand to her heart, reeled and almost fainted. There, not 50 yards away, stood Basil!

It was but for a moment that she so yielded to her conflicting emotions. Conquering her feelings, she rushed forward and clasped the child to her breast. As the now overjoyed mother did so, to her horror, looking up into the tangled foliage, she perceived a huge panther, stretched, crouching, upon an extended bough, apperently ready to spring. Probably the brute had only then observed Basil, for now, upon his mother's approach, it hesitated to attack, lashing its tawny sides with its tail, as if to work itself into a state of greater fury.

What was to be done? A weak woman was powerless against the strongest and fiercest denizen of the New England woods.

Scarcely knowing what she did, the poor mother seized her child and turned to fly. As she did so, the panther made its spring.

Owing to the height and the distance, it sprang short, barely touching the rock upon which the two were standing, and fell backward.

The respite was but brief. Recovering itself, the savage beast returned to the attack.

Mrs. Flanders clasped Basil closer to her side, being resolved, in her desperation, that the destroyer should only reach his life through herself.

She could not escape by flight, and had no means of defense. She could only wait and pray.

Once more the assailant made its attack, this time with a greater measure of success. It struck the edge of the rock, and managed to cling to it. Struggling desperately to recover itself, it stretched forward until its jaws seemed but a short yard from its intended victim.

At this moment overwrought nature gave way under the strain, and she swooned. As for Basil, he had hidden his face in his mother's gown.

Meanwhile, Reginald Flanders sold his corn, and expended the proceeds in flour, sugar, a small, prized packet of tea for his wife, powder and lead, and other simple necessaries.

Having transacted his business, he set out on the journey homeward. The sun rose high in the heavens, and, anticipating no evil, he suffered the slow-paced plow-horse to subside into a walk.

There was joy in the calm peacefulness of the surrounding wilderness. The birds were merry, the sea gleamed behind him like glass, the hills rose on either side. He was surrounded by the pure beauties of nature, and the sweetness of contentment filled his soul. He seemed to dream, and left the horse to wander as it liked.

How it occurred Reginald Flanders could never tell. To his surprise, arousing himself from pleasing reverie, he found that Dobbin must have taken the wrong course, for they were on the upper instead of the lower side of the "West Rock."

This mattered little, excepting that it made the journey somewhat longer; for which he was sorry, as he knew his wife would be looking out for his coming; only now he must cross the stream high up in the woods. So, pressing the faithful old horse into an apology for a trot, he pursued his way.

At length he came to the precipitous bank of the brook, down which with some difficulty he guided his horse. Pursuing a downward course in the direction of his home, he was suddenly startled by a shrill, weird cry.

It sounded as if it were the voice of his wife, and yet it was strangely unlike. What was it? What could it portend?

There it rang again. Some one must be in dire peril.

There was no time for delay. The mystery must be solved at once. Forward!

The old horse lumbered heavily on, over rocks and projecting tree-stumps, but its best efforts failed to keep pace with its master's ever-increasing anxiety.

The cries had ceased. All was once more as silent as nature, on an early autumnal day, can be. With the recurring silence the man's fears became intensified.

As he came within sight of the rock, he was surprised to perceive an enormous panther, making strenuous endeavors to climb its slippery sides.

With the instinct of the hunter and the coolness of the practiced soldier, Reginald Flanders grasped his rifle, shook the priming in his hand, placed a fresh flint in the lock, and took a long and deliberate aim. Had he known the real state of affairs, it mgiht have unnerved his arm, but the knowledge was happily spared him.

And now the savage animal made its foothold good. With a snarling cry it crouched, leaped and—rolled back, lifeless, into the stream, with the settler's bullet through its brain!

Curious to find out what had been the panther's object, yet not for a single moment guessing the truth, the marksman set himself to climb the rock.

Who shall describe the mingled horror and thankfulness with which he perceived the unconscious forms of his loved ones, and realized that he had been providentially enabled to save them from an awful fate?

With difficulty the loving husband won his wife and boy back to life, and bore them, pale and weak, but safe, to his cabin.

That evening the sun went down into the west with his last red rays resting upon a family giving thanks for an almost miraculous escape from a dreadful death.—Golden Days.

Not Likely to Catch Him.

"Hi, boy!" exclaimed a traveler who, in journeying through the wilds of Arkansas, had been thrown from his horse, which had galloped off and left him to pursue on foot. "Have you seen a loose horse go by here?"

"Big roan hoss, with a saddle on him?" the lad asked, unconcernedly.

"Yes, yes! Did you see him?"

"Believe so."

"How long ago?"

HAD VOTES TO SPARE.

Conference Report on the Tariff Bill Passes the House.

Adopted by a Vote of 185 to 118—The Act Expected to Yield a Revenue of $225,000,000—Changes in the Schedules.

Washington, July 20.—The conference report on the tariff bill was adopted by the house shortly after midnight by a vote of 185 to 118 and at noon today the report will go to the senate for action there. This eclipses all previous records. The result was accomplished after 12 hours of continuous debate. But two speeches were made by the republicans, one by Mr. Dingley in opening the debate and one by Mr. Payne, of New York, in closing it. The democrats were thus forced to put forth speaker after speaker, but their bombardment of the republican position was unanswered.

Every republican in the house who was present voted for the report. The democrats, with five exceptions, voted against the report. The exceptions were Slayden (Tex.), Broussard (La.), Meyer (La.), Davey (La.), Kleberg (Tex.) The populists and silverites did not vote solidly. Mr. Shafroth (Col.) and Mr. Newlunds (Nev.), silverites, abstained from voting. Mr. Hartman (silverite, Mont.) did not vote. The populists who voted against the report were as follows: Baker, Barlow, Botkin, Fowler, Jett, Lewis, Marshall, Martin, Peters, Simpson, Strowd and Vincent. Four did not vote: Howard, Kelly, Stark and Southerland. The other populists were absent. An analysis of the vote shows that 180 republicans and five democrats voted for the report and 106 democrats and 12 populists against it.

Expected to Raise $225,000,000.

As to the question of revenue to be raised by the bill, Mr. Dingley, in his speech, pointed out the difficulty resulting from the large anticipatory importations. The bill next year, he calculated, would raise $225,000,000, $75,000,000 more than the present law. Over $40,000,000 had been lost in this year's revenues by the importations of wool and sugar and other things, the duty on which was raised in the bill, so that he calculated that the bill this year would raise $185,000,000.

Main Points in the Report.

Washington, July 20.—The tariff bill was pushed through the conference stage Monday after two hours' discussion before the full conference committee—democrats and republicans—held in the senate finance committee room Monday morning. At the outset the democratic conferees asked until Tuesday morning to go over the report, saying this course was preferable to going over it with the republicans. To test this question, Senator Vest (dem., Mo.) moved an adjournment until today, which was defeated by a strict party vote. The democratic conferees then offered amendments to the report, but were met with the statement that it would merely consume time to urge amendments, as they would be rejected. Representative Wheeler (dem., Ala.) offered amendments placing cotton bagging and cotton ties on the free list; also a substitute proposition for rebates on these articles. These and other amendments were withdrawn, however, as there was no prospect of favorable action on them. Shortly before noon Mr. Dingley moved that the report be submitted to the two houses. This prevailed by a party vote, and the meeting adjourned. There was little clash during the discussion, and the democratic members of the conference contented themselves with a protest against the report and the manner of agreeing to it.

The new tariff bill is to become operative immediately it is signed by the president.

The Sugar Paragraph.

The paragraph in relation to sugar in full follows:

"Sugars not above No. 16 Dutch standard in color tank bottoms, sirups of cane juice, melada, concentrated melada, concrete and concentrated molasses testing by the polariscope not above 75 degrees ninety-five one-hundredths per pound and for every additional degree shown by the polariscopic test thirty-five one thousandths of one cent per pound additional and fractions of a degree in proportion; and on sugar above No. 16 Dutch standard in color and on all sugar which has gone through a process of refining one cent and ninety-five hundredths of one cent per pound; molasses testing above 40 degrees and net above 56 degrees, three cents per gallon; testing 56 degrees and above, six cents per gallon; sugar drainings and sugar sweepings shall be subject to duty as molasses or sugar as the case may be, according to polariscopic test. Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to abrogate or in any manner impair or affect the provisions of the treaty of commercial reciprocity concluded between the United States and the king of the Hawaiian islands on January 30, 1875, or the provisions of any act of congress heretofore passed for the execution of the same."

The conference restored the house rate of 20 per cent. on sugar cane. Saccharine is made one dollar and fifty cents per pound and ten cents advalorem.

The confectionery paragraph is changed to read as follows:

"Sugar candy and all confectionery not specially provided for in this act, valued at 15 cents per pound or less, and on sugars after being refined when tinctured, colored, or in any way adulterated, four cents per pound and 15 per cent. ad valorem; valued at more than 15 cents per pound, 50 per cent ad valorem. The weight and the value of the immediate coverings, other than the outer packing case or other coverings, shall be included in the dutiable weight and the value of the merchandise."

Other Schedules.

The statement of the republican conferees made the following explanation of the effect of the changes agreed upon by the conferees in the schedules other than the sugar schedule:

"Metals and Manufactures Of—The reductions of duties on some forms of iron and steel proposed by the senate are accepted in part as proposed and several new paragraphs are introduced not heretofore specifically provided for.

"Cotton ties, which were placed on the free list by the senate, are restored to the dutiable list at a reduced duty of five-tenths of one cent.

"Tin plates are placed at the rate of duty provided in the bill as it passed the house.

"Structural iron is reduced one-tenth of one cent.

"The senate amendment (270) on pocket-knives, which is substantially the same as the paragraph passed by the house, is agreed to, and compromise rates adopted on guns.

"The house agrees to senate amendment 316, increasing the duty on lead ore to 1½ cents, and the duty on pig lead (321) is placed at 2½ cents.

"Nickel ore and nickel matte are left on the free list, as provided by the house.

"Wood and Manufactures of Wood—All sawed lumber, except sawed timber exceeding eight inches square, is left at the rate of two dollars per thousand, as provided by the house. Planed lumber is also placed at the house rates.

"Tobocco and Manufactures Of — The duty on wrapped tobacco is placed at $1.85 per pound, a compromise between the house rate of two dollars and the senate rate of $1.75, and the senate reduction on filler tobacco accepted.

"The several amendments on lead paints adjust the rates to the increased duty on lead. The other amendments in the chemical schedule concur with the senate in slight reductions of rates on many chemicals and other articles, including linseed, olive oil and coal-tar dyes, and an increase of the rates on camphor and ground drugs.

"Earths, Earthenware and Glassware—Crockeryware is restored to the duties provided by the bill as it passed the house, which are substantially the duties of the act of 1890.

"Glassware is left in the main at the rates provided by the house bill, the reductions being in paragraphs relating to bottles, molded and pressed glassware and cylinder and crown glass.

"Agricultural Products—A compromise between the house and the senate rates on cattle (371) is agreed to.

"In general the duties proposed on agricultural products are the same as those in the act of 1890.

"Oranges and lemons are raised from the house rate of three-fourths of one cent per pound to the senate rate of one cent.

"Fish are placed at rates a little higher than those which were provided by the act of 1890, and a little lower than the house rates.

"Spirits, Wines, Etc.—The senate rates on spirits, wines, etc., are adopted in the main.

"Cotton and Cotton Goods—The duty of 20 per cent. on imported cotton, as proposed by the senate, is not agreed to, for the reason that the only cotton imported is Egyptian cotton, which is a quality between our uplands and sea island, and not produced here. The cotton schedule, as a whole, remains substantially the same as in the bill as it passed the house. The changes are mainly in the high grades of cotton underwear, with some modifications of hosiery.

"Flax, Hemp and Jute, and Manufactures—The senate changes in flax and hemp are adopted. Compromise rates on manufactures of jute, flax, etc., are agreed to, the object being to develop the industry in this country.

"The senate amendments to place burlaps, bags, cotton bagging and straw mattings on the free list are disagreed to, and these manufactures placed on the dutiable list at reduced rates."

Wools and Woolens.

"Wools and Woolens—The house rates on wool of 11 cents on class one and 12 cents on class two are adopted, and the senate specific rates on carpet wools agreed to with a modification raising the dividing line so as to place a duty of four cents per pound on such wools valued at 12 cents and less, and seven cents on such wools valued at more than 12 cents. The duties on manufactures of wool are placed at substantially the same rates as in the act of 1890.

"Silks—The duties on silks remain at substantially the same rates as provided by the house.

"Paper and Pulp—The duties on wood pulp for paper and on paper are converted into specific form at substantially the present ad valorem rate, with a proviso added for an additional duty as against any country that imposes an export duty on pulp or goods. The duties on manufactures of paper are substantially as they passed the house.

"Sundries—This schedule remains substantially as it passed the house.

"Coal, however, is reduced to 67 cents per ton, and coal slack or culm to 15 cents per ton, as proposed by senate amendment 674.

"A duty of 15 per cent. is placed on hides of cattle, which were placed on the free list by the house. The senate amendment (698) proposed a duty of 20 per cent., but this has been reduced to 15 per cent. A proviso is added for a full drawback of the duty paid on hides subsequently exported as leather.

"Paintings and statuary for private use are made dutiable as provided by the house, but at 20 per cent.

The Free List.

"The Free List—The free list as it passed the house is in the main adopted, except that bolting cloths and several kinds of essential oils have been added.

"The house provision applying a remedy to the wholesale introduction of goods into this country free of duty, by Americans visiting Europe, is substantially adopted.

Reciprocity Provisions.

"Reciprocity Provisions—The house and the senate reciprocity plans are united and adopted with modifications. In the senate plan any commercial treaty must be approved by congress before it goes into effect, and in the house plan chicle, silk, laces, sugar, mineral waters and hides have been stricken out, and tonka and vanilla beans added.

"The senate provision imposing an equivalent counter-veiling duty on imports from foreign countries which have been paid an export duty is adopted.

The president is authorized to enter into negotiations or commercial agreements in which reciprocal concessions may be secured in favor of the products of the United States. He is empowered to revoke the concession when satisfied that the agreement is not adhered to in good faith by any other country with which an agreement shall have been made.

What may be termed the retaliatory clause of the provision is that which empowers the president to suspend by proclamation the provisions of this act providing for the free introduction of coffee, tea, Tonquin or tonka beans and vanilla beans coming from any country which imposes duties upon products of the United States he may deem to be reciprocally unequal and unreasonable. The rates which he is thus empowered to fix are: On coffee, 3 cents per pound; on tea, 10 cents per pound; on tonka beans, 50 cents per pound; on vanilla beans, $2 per pound; on cuts, $1. The president is required to act within two years in securing these reciprocal trade treaties, and they are to be submitted to the senate for its ratification. Articles are to be reduced to the extent of 20 per cent. in these treaties, and the president is specifically authorized to enter into negotiations which will place certain articles upon the free list for a specified period of five years.

"Internal Revenue Provisions—The senate provision increasing the internal revenue tax on cigarettes is agreed to with an amendment covering cigarettes wrapped in tobacco, and provisions to enforce the collection of tax.

"The senate provision, changing the law so as to allow no rebate on beer is agreed to.

"The senate provision for a stamp tax on the issue and transfer of stock and on bonds issued by corporations is omitted from the bill.

"The administrative sections, added to the bill by the senate, are substantially the same as those passed by the house in the Fifty-fourth congress, and are agreed to with alight amendments."

A NEW SENATOR.

Thomas B. Turley, of Memphis, Named for Senator Harris' Seat.

Johnson City, Tenn., July 20.—Gov. Taylor on Monday evening made the official announcement that he had appointed Hon. Thomas B. Turley, of Memphis, United States senator to succeed the late Isham G. Harris. The governor wired his choice to Mr. Turley and received a polite telegram of acceptance.

[Thomas B. Turley was born in Memphis, Tenn., April 5, 1845. His father was the late Thomas J. Turley, who died in Memphis August 1, 1854. His mother was Mrs. Flora C. Turley, a daughter of William Jattle, one of the earliest settlers about Memphis. She died a few years ago. Mr. Turley's father's family was Virginian and his mother's North Carolinian. He attended various schools of Memphis up to the breaking out of the late civil war. He enlisted in the first year of the war in the Maynard rifles, company L, One Hundred and Fifty-fourth Tennessee regiment. He was wounded twice—once at Shiloh and again at Peach Tree creek in front of Atlanta. He was captured in the battle of Nashville and taken to Camp Chase, O., where he was held until March, 1865, when he was exchanged and returned south. After the war Mr. Turley passed two years at the University of Virginia, where he was a law student. Since 1869 or 1870 he has been practicing law in this city. At the present he is a member of the firm of Turley & Wright. He has never held office of any kind. He was married in 1870 to Miss Irene Rayner, daughter of the late Eli Rayner, of Shelby county. Five children have been born to himself and wife, all of whom are living.]

Tariff in Sweden.

Christiania, July 20.—The customs committee of the storthing has adopted a report proposing the introduction of differential tariff duties on several agricultural products and giving greater protection to small manufacturing interests.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Interesting Experiments.

A number of interesting experiments in soil, moisture and temperature are being conducted on the state experimental farm. Electrodes are sunk in the ground and the current passing between them is dependent on the amount of dampness in that particular patch of soil in which they are placed. The more moisture in a given area, the less the resistance offered to the current for that area. When the resistance is found, the moisture contents can be calculated for that particular locality. In the same way the temperature of the soil can be computed by knowing the resistance.

Will Test the Law.

Jacob Schmitt, the oldest and one of the best known barbers of Winona, is going to give the new barbers' law a test. He says he does not believe in the right of the state to compel him to take out a license, or for any board to examine him as to his ability as a tonsorial artist. He was in business before the members of the board were born, and he thinks he is as well up in the qualifications of his business as they are. He says, positively, that he will not apply for any license and will let events take their course.

Burglars.

While Hummel, Hamilton & Co.'s circus was giving a performance in Owatonna, two hangers on went through a house in the northern part of the city. They secured considerable stuff and made their exit, but were observed and on being arrested were identified. They were arraigned and pleaded not guilty, but as some of the goods were taken from one of the men in the court room they will eventually land in Stillwater. They were bound over to await the action of the grand jury.

Sentence Commuted.

The state board of pardons commuted the sentence of Louis Kellihan, from hanging to life imprisonment, for the murder committed in the Sherburne bank robbery.

H. H. Rose, a life prisoner, was pardoned, and when he left the prison gates he could scarcely believe he was free to go and was afraid his actions would subject him to a loss of grade credit. He returned to St. Paul, accompanied by his brother. Rose served 22 years and 41 days.

Suing the Bank.

Corporation Attorney Markham has begun an action against the Allemannia bank of St. Paul and the sureties on its bond as a depository for city funds, to enforce the payment of $120,479, the balance of city funds held on deposit when the bank suspended, Jan. 4. The bond was given before the bank changed its name from the Commercial bank to the Allemannia bank, and this will undoubtedly be pleaded by the defendants as a release from liability.

For the Navy.

Lieutenant Commander J. M. Hawley, assisted by Captain H. R. Brayton, of the United States navy, have arrived in Duluth and will open a temporary recruiting station. This is the first time that men have had an opportunity to enlist in the navy except at the seaboard. It has been found that no vessel in the navy has a full complement of men and because of enlistments only being made at the seaboard few western men have been enlisted.

We Beat the Danes.

Minnesota butter now outranks Danish butter in the English market, not because it is ranker, but quite the contrary. Danish butter has heretofore stood at the head of all markets for superiority in all the essential qualities of the finest butter in the world; but in the latest test, made two or three weeks ago in London, it fell a point and a half below the Minnesota product.

Hog Cholera.

The hog cholera situation in Minnesota is much less serious than it was a year ago. Dr. H. M. Reynolds, of the state board of health and chairman of the committee on infectious diseases, says that the board felt greatly encouraged over its success in controlling the disease and that it would continue the warfare.

A FAST COLT.

He Had Earned the Right to Be Called Cyclone.

Several men gathered about a horse near the western market the other morning, commenting upon the prominence of the beast's ribs and general lean and lankiness. The animal belonged to a farmer living near Ypsilanti, and, it was said, never permitted grass to grow under its feet on the road. The farmer was not pleased with the remarks and the strong inferences that the poor thing had never realized the sensation of corn and oats.

"What do you call your horse?" was asked.

"Cyclone, and don't he look it?" replied the man from the rural districts.

"Cyclone! What a name. He certainly looks as if one had struck him."

"That's what happened to him, my friend. It was just like this. You remember the awful breeze we had out to Ypsilanti about three years ago. This feller was a sucking colt at the time and was in the barn with two horses. The cyclone, regular old hummer, came along and thrashed the barn off its legs and dropped it nigh on to 100 yards away. After the twister had raised all the hob, fences and sheds it could we went out to look things up. The two horses were stone dead, and the colt, would you believe it, was nowhere to be found.

"Next day I turned over the hen coop, which lay in the field half a mile away. Right in the coop and laying on the door which faced down was the colt. He commenced kicking when he heard us and we took him out in a hurry. He wasn't scared a bit, I tell you, and was cool as a cucumber. The neighbors say they saw the coop goin' through the air and the colt after it. The little feller caught the coop and got inside of it to save himself, that's what he did. That's the plain truth, and if you don't believe it ask the colt. Good day, strangers."—Detroit Free Press.

His Superior.

"I am usually rated as a clever performer," modestly remarked the well-known prestidigitator. "The press and public accord me a gratifyingly high standing, and my fellow artists are pleased to look upon my work as being skillful beyond that of my competitors; I have always regarded myself as being a past master in the art and science of legerdemain. But yesterday I met a gentleman who is so clearly my superior that now I know myself to be but the merest tyro, struggling with the rudiments of my profession. Hints to Hunters.

To get good results in any kind of shooting, uniform, reliable ammunition is absolutely necessary. Experience has taught the most successful hunters that it pays to always use ammunition made by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., as it is unequalled for accuracy, reliability, uniformity and strong shooting qualities. Winchester ammunition can be bought everywhere as it is in great demand all over the world. Like Winchester guns, it is the standard of the world. It costs no more than inferior makes and it is a thousand times better. Send for a large illustrated catalogue free.

Real Warm Weather Rest and Comfort.

There is a powder to be shaken into the shoes called Allen's Foot-Ease, invented by Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y., which druggists and shoe dealers say is the best thing they have ever sold to cure swollen, burning, sore and tender or aching feet. Some dealers claim that it makes tight or new shoes feel easy. It certainly will cure corns and bunions and relieve instantly sweating, hot or smarting feet. It costs only a quarter, and the inventor will send a sample free to any address.

THE LARGEST SINGLE ORDER FOR CREAM SEPARATORS EVER GIVEN.

A Noted Iowa Creamery Operator Orders Five Hundred at One Time.

W. I. Moody, Iowa's greatest creamery operator, estimates that it costs an average of 10 cts. per 100 lbs. to haul milk to a creamery and haul the skim milk away again.

He is going to save all this by placing with his patrons Dairy Separators, and have wagons call for the cream.

In this way the farmer will get the full advantage of the Separator and creamery systems, will have the warm fresh skim milk at home for stock feed and will not be at expense of carting his milk to a creamery.

Before ordering these 500 Separators, valued at over $50,000, the merits of all the different Dairy Separators on the market were very thoroughly considered and practical tests were made by Mr. Moody.

It was finally decided that the Sharples Separators, made at West Chester, Pa., were the most desirable and best made machines, and though costing a little more money, it was thought they were well worth the difference asked, and the order was given to that company.

"There are a great many laws on the statute books which don't seem to command much attention," remarked the political protege. Use Gentleness.

Be gentle in stimulating the kidneys, otherwise you will excite and weaken them. The happiest results follow the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to overcome renal inactivity. Avoid the unmedicated, fiery stimulants of commerce. The kidneys have a delicate membrane easily irritated, and upon this the action of such excitants is pernicious. Malarial complaints, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia and biliousness succomb to the corrective influence of the Bitters.

Pertinent Questions.

Why Will a Woman Throw Away Her Good Looks and Comfort?

Why will a woman drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence and miss three-quarters of the joy of living, when she has health almost within her grasp? If she does not value her good looks, does she not value her comfort?

Why, my sister, will you suffer that dull pain in the small of your back, those bearing-down, dragging sensations in the loins, that terrible fullness in the lower bowel, caused by constipation proceeding from the womb lying over and pressing on the rectum? Do you know that these are signs of displacement, and that you will never be well while that lasts?

What a woman needs who is thus affected is to strengthen the ligaments so they will keep her organs in place. There is nothing better for this purpose than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The great volume of testimony which is constantly rolling in, proves that the Compound is constantly curing thousands of just such cases.

The following letter from Mrs. Marlow is only one of many thousands which Mrs. Pinkham has received this year from those she has relieved—surely such testimony is convincing:

"My trouble commenced after the birth of my last child. I did not know what was the matter with me. My husband went to our family physician and described my symptoms, and he said I had displacement and falling of the womb. He sent me some medicine, but it did little good. I let it go on about two years, and every time I did any hard work my womb would come down. Finally a lady friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did. The first bottle helped me so much, I continued to take it right along. My back was almost the same as no back. I could not lift scarcely any weight. My life was just a drag to me. To-day I am well of my womb trouble, and have a good, strong back, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. L. Marlow, Milford, Ill.

—Don't forget the Rosser Family Cornet Band concert to be given at the City Hall, Saturday evening, July 24. Half of the proceeds will go to the aid of the M. E. Church, of Delano.

—Delano has three horse shoers and yet business men drive to neighboring villages for shoeing, and some of the neighbors from these same villages drive to Delano where they get good shoeing.

—Henry Bock has about completed the building of a fine residence on the West Side hill. Wm. Zabel has his new residence on West Bridge street well under way, also. Hard times don't prevent a few houses from being built anyway.

—The celebrated Rosser Family, consisting of Geo. W. Rosser, and his three sons and two daughters between the ages of 12 and 20 years, will give a first class entertainment in the City Hall, Saturday evening, July 24. Band music, singing, and recitations. Admission 10 and 20 cts. The entertainment is well spoken of by the press.

—The Nashville students, with their car, stopped over here Monday and Monday night. In the afternoon, members of the troupe and a picked up nine about town played ball, 16 to 15 in favor of Delano. Had the full nine innings been played there is no telling how many scores would have been made. In the evening they gave their entertainment in the City Hall to a fair sized audience for the hot weather. They are a genuine typhical negro troupe, and make plenty of noise and keep the people awake.

--The school meeting was not so largely attended as it should have been, but 53 were present. Quite a lively interest was taken by those present. The polls were kept open from 7 to 8 P. M. and the following received votes.

	for 3 yr.	for 1 yr.
A. W. Wittman,	22	5
J. E. Borsch,	40	5
C. M. Conzet,	16	18
W. M. Mowatt,	7	12
T. J. Catlin,	5	3
N. K. Coffin,	4
J. A. Wharton,		3
I. Gutzwiller,	1

Two votes and part of five others were thrown out on account of not being written right. The officers elected were for three years, A. W. Wittman and J. E. Borsch; for one year, C. M. Conzet.

—The Delano Cemetary officers complain that several parties who have friends buried in the cemetary still owe for their lots, and that, although they have been repeatedly notified of their indebtedness, for a burial place, are still delinquent. Part of the fence has been blown over and the grass needs cutting; trees need trimming, and other things to beautify the last resting place of our dead friends should be done. The board is willing, even anxious to have these matters attended to, but have no money on hand with which to pay for doing them.

R. M. Walter is Secretary and Treasurer of the Association. Parties owing the Association should see him and and leave the amount with him. No one can be proud of our grave yard in its present fix. If your friends should visit with you one of the last places you would probably care to point out to them would be the cemetary with the grass as high as some of the tombstones, and a large part of the fence down. Delinquents take warning and pay up and have things look better.

—Had the Health officers recommendation to provide for hauling all swills from the village, during the hot weather at least been put in force by the Village Council, several neighborhood disputes might have been obturated. It is unpleasant and at times unhealthy, to inhale the auroma arising from sink holes where swills, slops, and other refuse matter are deposited on your neighbor's premises; and it is positively disagreeable, and breeds unpleasantness between neighbors, more especially where some throw such things on their neighbors premises. Several complaints have been made. Some have informed us that they had a barrel full but could get no one to haul it away. The Village should provide for hauling that not fit for feed. If kept as it should be, clean enough for feeding hogs, there would be plenty who would remove the slops for that purpose. The Council should provide for an abatement of this nuisance. Swills and slops poured into alleys and about back yards are, many times, worse than pigs properly kept would be.

—The cemetary board will meet at Dr. Catlin's office Saturday evening, July 24 at 7:30.

—Next Sunday evening, Rev. J. L. Farber will begin a course of sermons on man. The first to be, origin of man.

--The game of base ball between Delano and Watertown scheduled for next Saturday, has been postponed one week at Watertown's request.

—George P. Schaffer has his new counters in his new store, and expects to move in soon. He will have one of the largest and finest stores in town when he gets moved.

--The name of Helena Steffes, of Delano, now appears on Uncle Sam's pension list as original, widow, etc. Mrs. S. has waited patiently a long time for her pension.

—A large audience enjoys the Thursday evening concert given by the Delano Concert Band every week, in the band stand opposite the depot. The music grows more and more attractive.

—The state of Minnesota vs. John Holuptzok and Jos. Badnorz came up yesterday before Justice Turngreen, on a change of venue. The state came out ahead. We understand an appeal is to be taken.

—Knowing ones seem quite sure that F. H. Lindsley will be the new post master at Delano. Messrs W. H. Frazee and J. W. McDonald were in the field, but from all accounts, were distanced from the start.

—Joseph Leudasher marketed half a dozen fine hogs Wednesday. Al Hitzman was purchaser. Delano is supplying some of the finest pork in the country now-a-days. Quite an improvement on the "razorbacks" of long ago.

—Scorchers are occasionally seen on our sidewalks yet. Several ladies entered warm protests this week; one determined feminie stood her piece of sidewalk and defied the wheelman who finally turned out.

LATER, the Village Council has finally passed an ordinance prohibiting riding bicycles on sidewalks. Good.

—Mayor Borsch discovered some boys in swimming near the wagon bridge, a few days ago. His honor thought it did not look just right, and soon had the offenders ashore; and proposes to enforce the laws against a repetition of such disgraceful business. There are plenty of good swimming places besides that at the bridge.

—Owing to a rise in the price up to seventy two cents per bushel, wheat has been coming into town quite lively. Provident farmers with a year's supply ahead have been induced to spare a little. Now should storms, hail, or any other thing destroy the new crop some of them would be doubly sorry. But they have taken the chances, trusting Providence to refill their recently emptied granaries.

DIED.

INGERSON.—In Franklin, on Tuesday, July 20, Mr. Charles W. Ingerson, aged 68.

Mr. Ingerson purchased the farm formerly owned by Luther Cunningham, and moved from Independence into our vicinity several years ago. He was a prominent man, having held several offices, among them, Town Clerk, Justice of the Peace, and member of the School Board. He was a member of the Presbyterian church. He leaves a wife and one son to mourn his death. The bereaved relatives have the sympathy of a host of friends in this their hour of affliction.

County Cullings.

We are pleased to note a somewhat more law and order tone to the Howard Lake Herald this week. It says two men were arrested for being drunk on the streets. Wonder if the officers of the peace made complaint.

The County Commissioners evidently have concluded to run some things the way they think they should be run, and have passed the following resolutions:

"Be it resolved that the board hereby repuest C. A. Pidgeon, County Attorney of Wright County, to ask the Judge of the District Court, before whom the case of the State of Minnesota vs. John R. Howard shall be tried, to appoint D. F. Larabee as substitute Co. Attorney to prosecute said Howard at said trial, wherever the case shall come up for trial."

The people of Wright County except a few interested ones, will be well pleased with this substitution.

"What," asks the Superior Leader, "will be the outcome of the mission of Messrs. Wolcott, Stevenson and Paine, sent to Europe by President Mc Kinley in behalf of international bimetallism?" The outcome will be three cases of gout if they don't break away from the banquet table.—Duluth News Tribune.

Village Ordinance,

AN ORDINANCE TO PROHIBIT THE RUNNING OF BICYCLES ON THE SIDEWALKS WITHIN THE LIMITS OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO, MINNESOTA.

The Common Council of the Village of Delano do ordain and establish as follows:

Section 1. That if any person shall run any bicycle on any sidewalk within the corporate limits of the Village of Delano he or she shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $1.00 nor more than $5.00 and costs of prosecution for each and every offence and shall stand committed to the village jail or to the jail of Wright county until such fine and costs are paid, not exceeding five days.

Section 2. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its publication.

Adopted, July 19th, 1897.
Published, July 23rd, 1897.
